ROROO MAYOR CLARK SHAKES PLUM TREE

Dolliver Clerk, Gano Recorder and Vanderhoef on Health Board.

H. FORGETS PARTY LINES

In a Speech New Executive Refers to Harmonious Relations With Council—Pays Tribute to Predecessor—Street Commissioner Not Named

Robert Clark, Jr., who assumed his duties as Mayor of North Plainfield, made some important changes in the various appointive offices and these were all speedily confirmed by the Council at its meeting at noon yesterday. The office of street commissioner is for the present left unfilled. Charles M. Dolliver, Republican, who has served as recorder for six years, was made borough clerk succeeding Frederick A. Martin, and Manning F. Gano, a Democrat, was named to fill the recordership. James Walker, another Democrat, succeeds Frank Schuck as engineer of the steam of the fire department; Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, a Republican, was appointed borough physician in place of Dr. D. C. Adams, a Democrat, and J. V. E. VanDerhoef, Republican, was made a member of the Health Board in place of J. O. Osgood, Democrat, who declined reappointment.

Almost completely hidden by a large floral horseshoe, presented by his friends, Mayor Clark made a short speech, explaining that although it has been customary in the past for new meyors to make either oral or written messages, he felt that it would be unnecessary at this time, such as the members of the Council and himself had had frequent conferences and were happily agreed. Hoping that all political party would be forgotten, he expressed the desire that citizens, council and executive would get together and work for the welfare of the borough. The mayor paid a fine tribute to his predecessor, Simeon B. Smalley.

The lobby was crowded when the new executive took the oath of office. The double doors separating the council chamber and the sleeping quarters of the firemen were thrown open to accommodate the throng. At 8 o'clock, sharp, Mayor Smalley, the retiring executive, swore in the new one, and both were roundly applauded. Mayor Clark at once got down to business and made his appointments. He took occasion while speaking regarding his message to publicly acknowledge his admiration for the retiring mayor and commended him for the advancement of the borough and the energy displayed in his administration.

After adjournment the following appointees were sworn in, all of whom had been named and were confirmed. The salary of each official remains the same as last year. They are: borough clerk, Charles M. Dolliver; recorder, Manning F. Gano; chief marshal, George Weiss; marshals, Lemuel Pope, Charles Kellar, and John Hermann; chief of fire department, William McCullough; captain, William Daley; lieutenant and driver, Albert Fritts; tillerman, William Hogan; engineer of steamer, James Walker; borough physician, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan; overseer-of-the-poor, Fred Becker; member Board of Health, J. V. E. Vanderhoef; borough engineer, Harry C. VanEmburgh.

The committee appointments follow: Sewage commission, William J. Buttfield, chairman; George R. Rogers, J. O. Ogood, C. L. Nichols, George S. Boyer, Samuel St. John McCutchen and William C. Smith. The latter is in place of John P. Emmons, who declined re-appointment. Audit and finance, Edmund Rushmore and L. B. Woolston; fire and water, J. J. Stahl and M. C. VanArsdale; streets and public health, L. B. Woolston and Alexander Milne; Laws, Ordinances and Taxation, W. J. Buttfield and Edmund Rushmore; licenses, marshalls and lights, Alexander Milne and J. J. Stahl; stationary and supplies, M. C. VanArsdale and W. J. Buttfield.

Eagles Install Tonight.

The recently elected officers of Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E., will be installed tonight by District Deputy Maussel; of Hoboken, and staff. Delegations from Aeries in nearby cities will be present. Refreshments will be served.

Golden Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore F. Sebring, of Franklin Township, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage last night. Mrs. Sebring is a sister of the late George Rockefellar, former mayor of Plainfield.

—The Board of Trustees of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will meet tonight.

MOY FOR BI-PARTISAN BOARD OF EDUCATION

In Message Mayor Also Wants Women as Members--Water, Garbage and Sewerage Discussed at Length.

Suggestions of decided general interest and views as interesting to the taxpayers, on pending questions of municipal growth and imrpovement, mark Mayor Moy's second annual message. He favors a bi-partisan Board of Education of nine members, with three women on the body, the appointment of an inspector of weights and measures and inspector of buildings, and a committee in charge of city property and a board of protectors.

He favors the sinking of wells for a municipal water plant, and urges a prompt disposition of the sewage problem. He advocates a salary of $1,500, a $500 increase, for the city judge. The message in full follows:

"To the Honorable Common Council:

"Gentlemen—I am deeply sensible of the honor which I have of being permitted to address you in my present capacity. I am equally sensible of the obligations and responsibilities which rest upon your honorable body as the legislative representatives of the people and upon myself as the executive.

"The needs of our city are many, and they multiply constantly. New questions arise from day to day requiring solution and adjustment and as these questions arise and the needs grow, the responsibilities of the governing authorities increase proportionately. They are called upon to please many people of many and diverse interests. It is impossible to please everyone and unwise to attempt to merely please any one. The question must be always: What is right to be done? Then endeavor to do it.

People Misunderstand.

"I gather from my experience during the past year that a great many people fail to understand the powers and duty of the Mayor with regard to the enforcement of law. It seems to be a somewhat common belief that the Mayor makes the law to suit himself, and that he is entitled to fashion it to meet the views of those who desire a law to fit a special case. Such however, is not the case, and I will take the space to quote from the Charter of the City the rule laid down, and which the Mayor must follow.

"'And be it enacted That the Mayor shall be the chief executive officer of the clay, and shall see that the laws of the State and ordinances of the city are faithfully observed therein.'

"He may recommend the Common Council to pass such measure as he may deem necessary or expedient for the welfare of the city. He shall maintain peace and good order therein, and in case of a riot or tumultuous assembly, may take commend of the police force of the city to suppress it.

What Law Says.

"'And be it enacted, That the Mayor of said city sall, before he enters upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe * an oath or affirmation that he will faithfully and justly perform all the duties of the said office to the best of his ability.'

"It therefore appears that Laws and Ordinances must be enforced in order that those who do not know, or who have no respect for them shall learn to know and to respect them. This relates particularly to the ignorant foreign element which comes to us in increasing numbers and will continue to come as the years go by. They do not know and must be taught. If we fail in this particular, the final result must be disastrous in the extreme.

"I am pleased to be able to note a representation of more than one political party in your honorable body. It is a very desirable innovation and I trust the results will be such that the people will feel the necessity of continuing the practice. A good healthy minority is always eneficial in every legislative body; it means a more frank and open discussion of public affairs; a more thorough development of ideas; the injection of an interest that was lacking; the voicing of both sides of a proposition. It is altogether commendable.

Bi-Partisan Board.

"For these reasons I am sorry that the bill passed by the last Legislature, making Boards of Education appointive in various municipalities in this State, was for some mysterious reason, changed so as to exclude Plainfield from its operation as that would have permitted the appointment of a bi-partisan Board.

"I think, by the way, that I may say in passing that the ideal Board of Education should consist of nine members three of whom should be women.

"I wish to say also that I do not mean that I intend to cast any reflection on the members of the present Board of Education, for all of whom I entertain the highest respect.

E. S. HOOLEY'S TRIBUTE TO DEPARTED PHYSICIAN

No citizen of Plainfield in the quietly earnest pursuit of his profession and the daily round of his social life made more friends than the late Dr. William C. P. Boone. His death in Baltimore Saturday came as a shock of personal loss to many Plainfielders, in all walks.

In a tribute to Dr. Boone, voiced today, Edwin S. Hooley speaks for hundreds of mourning friends of the departed physician. Mr. Hooley said:

"To the new comers in Plainfield the late Dr. W. C. Boone was probably not so well known as he was to many of us older residents. He was my friend for over thirty years and during that long friendship I was continually impressed by the man's character and sterling worth. His charity was boundless and while a devout member of the Roman Catholic church he knew no creed when his services were needed and Protestant or Roman Catholic shared equally his gratuitious ministrations. He did not believe in sharing only one-tenth of his income, he would give it all if necessary. No day was too stormy, no night too dark for him when his duty called and in many cases he has been the nurse as well as the physician.

"I do not believe that in the history of Plainfield there has been the death of a man whose loss will be so sorely felt by the poor. He was a gentleman of the 'old school' with a refinement and courtesy that were essentially an integral part of his make-up. He sacrificed his life for the poor and his death was the direct result of his unfaltering devotion to them. The world has been better for his having been with us and as a man who knew and loved him offer this slight tribute to his memory:

"'He was my friend
Steadfast, firm and true,
For me no task too great
He thought to do.'"

MAYOB'S APPOINTMENTS CONFIRMED BY COUNCIL

Mayor Moy sent the following appointments to the Common Council last night and they were confirmed in each instance without a dissenting vote:

William M. Wherry, Jr., to succeed C. H. Dunham, as member of the Board of Health, one year; Stephen H. Voorhees to succeed F. W. Dunn, as member of the Board of Health, two years and Dr. T. S. Davis to succeed himself as a member of the board; Philip Suffern to succeed James L. Greenleaf as member of the Shade Tree Commission for five years; George L. Babcock and Lindsey Best to succeed themselves as members of the Playground Commission, both for three years.

The following were appointed special policemen for one year: A. R. Craig, William Mernagh, George Muir, Kirk Wiggins, John J. King, R. H. B. Dalley and Charles B. Wicht.

Swearing Off.

'Tis swearing-off season; to groove of reform you should fashion your habits with impetus warm. Swear off on excesses that shorten your days—tobacco, frumentum, late hours, cafes; on envy and hatred and malice and guile; on betting, horse racing, and things in that style. Swear off too, on coal with no warmth in its glow and get your black diamonds from Stevens—Geo. O.

Samuel Rothberg Resigns.

Samuel Rothberg, who has been in the employ of Harry Werner, of West Front street, for the past ten years, resigned his position on Saturday and on April 1 he will open a men's clothing and furnishing store in the building adjoining Proctor's theatre, which was formerly occupied by Jacob Fass. A new front will be put in the store and many interior changes will be made. Mr. Rothberg is a popular member of the Y. M. H. A., and has a great many friends.

FREEHOLDERS PICK CADY AS DIRECTOR

Large Board of Union Coucty Organizes For its Final Year.

SCHWARTZ GETS $1,200 JOB

Former Assemblyman Named as Sealer of Weights and Measures—Dr. F. W. Westcott Re-appointed County Physician.

The Union County Board of Freeholders met yesterday at the court house, Elizabeth, for organization and the slate prepared by the Republican members went through without a hitch of any kind. This was the last organization meeting of the "large board" that the county will have, as the "small board" comes in next year. John N. Cady, of Summit, was chosen again as director and former Assemblyman Augustus W. Schwartz was chosen to the new office of county sealer of weights and measures at a salary of $1,200 a year.

Dr. F. W. Westcott was re-appointed county physician as salary of $900 and J. W. Fink, former county road inspector, was made supervisor of county roads at a salary of $1,200. Before the meeting Judge Atwater swore in three re-elected members and one new member. These were John N. Cady, of Summit; Adolph Gruener and William H. Randolph, of Rahway, and William I. McMane, of Summit, who succeeds William H. Swain. The first Thursday in each month was fixed as the time for regular meetings of the board. Director Cady will announce the new committees on Thursday. The board is composed of fourteen Republicans and six Democrats.

TO OUR READERS.

The new publishers of the Plainfield Daily Press are planning a much bigger and better paper. Inadequate press facilities will delay these improvements for about two weeks, and we beg the indulgence of our readers for that length of time. A new press has been ordered and was expected to be in operation today, but through difficulties beyond the control of the manufacturers, they were unable to have it running. The present delay in getting the papers into the homes will be entirely done away with after the new press is installed.

NEW TREASURER FOR FANWOOD TOWNSHIP.

The Fanwood Township Committee met yesterday morning for organization and the swearing in the newly-elected township officers. Ira G. Walker was reappointed chairman and Henry C. Meyer, treasurer, in place of W. S. Herry, the retiring member.

Samuel Hetfield, the newly elected member of the committee, was appointed a member of the Board of Health; Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., was reappointed township counsel, and Augustus Klemser was renamed overseer of poor at a yearly salary of $75. The latter appointment was the first under the new law, which makes the office appointive, instead of elective.

FANWOOD'S COLLECTOR IS INJURED IN AN ACCIDENT.

Borough Collector Charles Sheelen, of Fanwood, was thrown from his grocery wagon Saturday, breaking his collar bone and suffering painful bruises about the head.

Mr. Sheelen was taking orders about the borough when the accident occurred. The horse he drove was lively and as he started to get in the wagon after a stop the animal started before he could get hold of the reins. The sudden start threw him to the road. Friends picked him up and had him taken to his home.

Dr. Westcott set the fractured bone. It will be some time before he will be able to return to business.

Cracked Head On Pavement.

William Emmons, of Summit avenue, fell on a slippery pavement on South Second street, last night, and was found by Patrolman Muir unconscious. He had a bad scalp wound on the back of his head. He was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital.

A. G. Nelson Entertains.

A. G. Nelson entertained a large company of friends at his home in New Market, Saturday night. The evening was spent in dancing, playing games, after which refreshments were served.

Meeting of Clericus.

The Plainfield Clericus will meet at the rfer on "Religion and Science" will be Elizabeth, next Monday afternoon. A paper on "Religious and Science" will be read by Rev. Dr. Dickenson, of New York.

DE FOREST OVERSEER; MacMURRAY CITY CLERK

City Fathers on Third Ballot Pick New York Lawyer as Alex. Ayers Successor--Mygatt Finance Head.

When the 1912 Common Council met last night for organization Henry L. DeForest, formerly of the Charity Organization Society, was elected oversser of the poor, on the third ballot, to succeed Alexander D. Ayers, who has held the office for eleven years, and City Clerk James T. MacMurray was re-elected for a term of three years, despite persistent rumors that another man would be chosen.

William M. Wherry, Jr., a New York lawyer, and Stephen H. Voorhees, a New York business man, were appointed to membership on the Board of Health, succeeding Charles H. Dunham and F. W. Dunn, while Dr. T. S. Davis was appointed to succeed himself on the board.

Tolles President.

All of the members were present when the meeting was called to order by City Clerk James T. MacMurray, including Patrick J. Reville and Fred Endress, the Democrats, who succeeded two Republicans, Herbert Buxton and F. L. Montgomery. After the clerk read the call he announced that the first business would be the selection of a president. Ralph I. Tolles, who is now beginning his sixteenth year as a member of the Council, was re-elected. preseident. He thanked the members for the honor and expressed the hope that the coming year would be a harmonious one.

The next matter of importance was the election of a city clerk. Duncan W. Taylor promptly nominated James T. MacMurray, and Mr. Reville named Edward T. Lynch. The former was chosen by a vote of nine to two, Councilmen Reville and Endress voting for Mr. Lynch. Mr. Mygatt then offered a resolution, which was adopted, electing Mr. MacMurray clerk for a term of three years, all voting in the affirmative, except the Democratic members.

Minor Appointments.

Mr. Mygatt offered another resolution which was adopted, appointing George B. Wean typist and stenographer for the city for one year at a salary of $600. This vote was nine to two, as was also the vote on Mr. Mygatt's resolution appointing William Kline janitor and page. Mr. Reville nominated Robert Diggs for the position, he receiving the Democratic vote.

The rules of the 1911 Council were made the rules of order for the 1912 body, and Mr. Mygatt gave notice that at the next meeting he would move that the rules of order be the bylaws of the Council for the year. The rules were suspended for the election of a committee on sewers, which is done by the Council. The following were selected: C. C. Randolph, W. W. Wilson, F. E. Mygatt and Fred Endress.

The Plainfield Dental Society petitioned for an appropriation of $1,000 for the establishment of a free dental clinic, and this was referred to the finance committee. Other matters left by the 1911 body were referred to the proper committees of the present body.

The Committees.

President Tolles announced these committees for the year:

Finance—Frederic E. Mygatt, chairman; Duncan W. Taylor, George S. Clay, John E. Dunn, Patrick J. Reville. Streets—William L. Gloak, chairman; Charles C. Randolph, William W. Wilson, Frederic E. Mygatt, Fred Endress. Fire and buildings—Duncan W. Taylor chairman; Charles C. Randolph, Frank L. Holt, William W. Wilson, Fred Endress. Public affairs—George S. Clay, chairman; Frederic E. Mygatt, William L. Gloak, Duncan W. Taylor, Patrick J. Reville. Police—Charles C. Randolph, chairman; Frank L. Holt, John E. Dunn. Street lighting—John E. Dunn, chairman; William W. Wilson, Fred Endress. Alms—Fred Endress, chairman; Duncan W. Taylor, William L. Gloak. License—William W. Wilson, chairman; William L. Gloak, George S. Clay. Laws and ordinances—Frank L. Holt, chairman; George S. Clay, Patrick J. Reville. Auditing—Patrick J. Reville, chairman; Frank L. Holt, John E. Dunn.

Residents of Everitt place petitioned for two lights on that street and the matter was referred, as was also a petition of residents of Myrtle avenue for two lights. Petitions protesting against the erection of a large gasolene tank on Rock avenue, and one from J. S. Haskard and others asking that McDowell street be macadamized, a communication from the Board of Health regarding the sanitary condition of Greenbrook, and a petition from Andrew Muir regarding the extension of West Fourth street were all referred to proper committees.

Water Commissioners.

In accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Mygatt and adopted, the following with President Tolles

THETA SIGMA CHI GIVES DANCE AT THE PARK CLUB

One of the delightful social functions on New Year's Day was the leap year dance given at the Park Club, last night by eight young college women of the city who have formed what they call the Theta Sigma Chi. The members are the Misses Dorothy Lyon, Dorothy Parvin, Dorothy Tuttle, Eleanor Brown, Leeila Hedges, Eleanor Hatch, Alice Lane and Helen Harrington.

There were about one hundred guests including a number of out of town guests. A majority of those present are college men and women who were home for the holiday season. The music for dancing was furnished by VanEpps Brothers, and was a feature. At midnight refreshments were served. The dancing continued until 2 o'clock this morning.

The patronesses for the affair were the mothers of the young women who gave the dance.

Junk Seller Arrested.

Charles O'Neill will be arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court tomorrow morning on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, preferred by Isaac Schrager, of West Third street. The complainant alleges that he bargained with O'Neill for the purchase of a quantity of old iron, agreeing to pay $7. Three dollars were paid to bind the bargain and then Schrager is alleged to have learned that O'Neill had no right to sell the scrap.

Fell and Broke Leg.

Mrs. T. P. Neilson, of East Front street and Watchung avenue, slipped on the icy pavement near her home yesterday and broke both bones of her leg just above the ankle. Dr. Pittis reduced the fracture.

Open House at Hunt Club.

The Watchung Hunt Club in place of the scheduled run, which it could not hold yesterday owing to the bad going, had open house at the club on Plainfield avenue, where the members gathered and had an informal social time. Refreshments were served throughout the day.

LAWYERS PRESENT GAVEL TO CITY JUDGE DE MEZA

City Judge William G. DeMeza was pleasingly remembered by the Plainfield Bar Association at yesterday morning's session of court, being presented with a rosewood gavel and a granite block. The presentation was made by Mayor George W. V. Moy on behalf of the association. Judge DeMeza expressed his appreciation of the gift in a brief response.

Mayor Moy took occasion to compliment the court on its efficient administration of that important department of the city government during the year just closed, saying that he had closely watched the justice meted out and had carefully analyzed the opinions rendered, finding them all to be uniformly just and founded on correct interpretation of the ordinances.

The granite block is suitably carved as is also the gavel which is encircled with a silver band bearing the inscription: "Presented to William G. DeMeza, City Judge, 1911."

CAPT. W. W. WINN BORNE TO GRAVE IN HILLSIDE.

The funeral service for Captain William Wallace Winn, whose death occurred in Muhlenberg Hospital, Friday afternoon, was held privately yesterday afternoon at his late home on Grandview avenue. Aside from the immediate relatives only a few intimate friends and neighbors were present. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, officiated and burial was made in Hillside cemetery.

The casket was almost completely hidden by a mass of floral tributes. They came from friends and the local Lodge of Elks. Members of the order acted as pall bearers. They were James Taylor, Postmaster E. H. Bird, Joseph P. Burd, borough Councilman L. B. Woolston, former Mayor James F. Buckle and A. T. Raymond.

Acquires City Property.

F. C. Jennings has purchased of Dudley Miller, as an investment, two-thirds of the brick block at Park avenue and Fourth street. Mr. Miller retains the corner store wherein is located his drug store; also the two flats above the store.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF DR. WM. BOONE

Solemn Requiem Mass at St. Mary's For Late Physician.

MOURNERS THRONG CHURCH

Succumbed to Uraemic Poisoning on Saturday Following an Operation at Baltimore, Md., Hospital—Aged Sixty-seven Years.

Mourning friends and associates of the late Dr. William Constantine Pise Boone, who died in Baltimore Saturday, filled St. Mary's church this morning, when the funeral of the physician was held. The large attendance and the profusion of flowers on and all about the bier attested how widely the departed physician was esteemed. Men and women in every rank of life were in the congregation and every face wore the same mask of grief.

The Plainfield Clinical Society was present in a body, and the Union County Medical Society was largely represented. A dozen priests took part in the solemn high requiem mass, among them two former rectors and a former curate of St. Mary's.

The mass began at 10:30 o'clock. Very Rev. Edward R. Dyer, S. S., D. D., president of St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, a cousin of Dr. Boone, was the celebrant. Monsignor Smyth, of Bayonne, a former rector of St. Mary's, was deacon; Father Egan, of Bayonne, another former rector, was master of ceremonies. Father Bogan, the rector, preached the sermon, an eloquent and moving tribute to the deceased doctor. The Rev. Edward D. Boone, S. J., of Loyola College, Baltimore, oldest brother of Dr. Boone, pronounced the blessing at the grave.

The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. The pallbearers were J. J. Kenney Chief of Police Patrick S. Kiely, Joseph O'Keefe, John J. Hines, T. H. Sullivan and W. H. Dunkinson.

Dr. William Constantine Pise Boone, was one of the best known and most beloved physicians in the city and this part of the State. His death occurred at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md., Saturday afternoon from uraemic poisoning, following an operation. He had not been well for some time and recently he decided to go to Baltimore for an operation. There was a sudden change for the worse in his condition on Friday and his family was summoned to his bedside and was with him when he passed away.

Dr. Boone was born in Washington, D. C., April 16, 1844, of parents descended from old Maryland families. His father was John Francis Boone, of Prince George county, and his mother was Louise Anne Maria Baker, of Charles county. While in his junior year at Georgetown College, Dr. Boone left his studies to enlist at Camp Lee, Va., in the Confederate Army. He joined Company E, of the First Maryland Cavalry, Maryland Line, Bradley Johnson, commanding, and served from October, 1862 to the end of the war in the Army of Virginia. He was wounded and captured at the second battle of Winchester and the battle of Morfield, Hardy county, Virginia, and was confined at Camp Chase, Ohio, as a prisoner of war for six months.

After the war Dr. Boone prepared for his profession in the School of Medicine, University of Maryland, under the private tutelage of Prof. Richard McSherry, and received his degree of doctor of medicine in 1872. He practiced in Maryland for a time and then removed to Plainfield, where he was engaged in active practice until immediately preceding his operation.

Throughout his long residence and practice here, Dr. Boone was beloved by all who knew him for his kind, gentle and courteous manner. He was a great friend of the poor and there are hundreds of people here who will always have cause to hold him in loving remembrance for his service and skill in following his profession. He never turned a deaf ear to any one in want or the suffering.

In connection with his practice he had been city physician of Plainfield and coroner of Union County. He was medical examiner for the Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York, and the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Philadelphia, for many years; physician to Watchung Council, No. 552, Knights of Columbus, and he was also a member of the latter organization, and of the Confederate Veteran Camp, of New York; also the Plainfield Clinical Society, the Union County Medical Society, included in the Medical Society of New Jersey, taking a deep interest in each one.

Dr. Boone married shortly after

The enterprise with which we usher in the New Commercial Year is at once significant of the aggressiveness and progressiveness back of this institution. We begin with a trade event of transcending importance to you, proffering as it does

The season's best and most desirable merchandise at big savings from regular prices.

Merchandise of almost every character and description that covers varied desires and requirements.

Outer Apparel—Undergarments—Accessories of Dress.

Dry Goods of every description.

Things for the home—much of which is brand new, intended for the forthcoming season.

At every turn on every floor you'll encounter bargains. The reductions in many instances are most drastic—for back of all is the determined movement to reduce stocks to the minimum, to energize business to its utmost and to live up to the precedents established by our many previous Annual January Sales.

Furs for New Year's

We offer to the people of Plainfield their greatest chance to buy furs at prices which no one can duplicate elsewhere. We give the people the advantage of low prices now, when cold weather is with us and their need of furs is greatest. Why should the people of Plainfield pay fancy prices for their furs when they can buy the same goods from the Charles Kurtzman Fur Store, each piece guaranteed and at prices far more satisfactory to them. When you are thinking of buying furs stop in here. Our prices are positively one-third cheaper than elsewhere. Quality the highest. Our being in town many years and having leased our store for many years to come prove that we mean every word we say.

To Brides and Brides-to-Be

Through our CLUB PLAN you are enabled to furnish your home nest completely. "Newlyweds" so often make the mistake of buying indifferent lines of furniture, draperies, etc., the excuse being, "Just for the first year or two, when we will be able to replace with exactly what we want." Why not start off with exactly what you desire? Our PAY-AS-CONVENIENT CLUB makes this easy without excessive cost.

PRICES. You buy at exactly the same prices as do our regular charge or cash customers.

QUALITY. We offer only the best of its kind, in dependable wearing qualities and up-to-date in style.

PAYMENTS. A small deposit down — balance weekly, through check or in person.

This is a News Advertisment

For our best advertisement, however, we refer you to anyone who is now, or has been, a Club member. All satisfied—none dissatisfied.

You may enroll at any time, making your purchases within thirty days thereafter. First payment upon delivery of goods.

Information by mail, or you may inquire at our Club Charge office, or from any of our housefurnishing salesmen.

Prehaps that present dress suit is becoming a little worn and shabby—why not have us make you a new one fashioned according to the latest dictates of Dame Fashion? Dress suits made to your measure here have that distinctive, refined, aristocratic, smart air of exclusiveness—they are results of masterful tailoring. Business suits, overcoats, etc., also made as excellently, too.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD

On account of the bad weather watch night service at the Baptist church was not held this year. However, Sexton Joseph Williams welcomed the new year, by ringing the church bell from 12 to 12:05.

Several sweepstake matches took place yesterday at the clay bird shoot held on Frowery's range. John Singer, of Westfield, proved to be the lucky one and took first money.

The snow storm spoiled skating for New Year's day; however, the young people were able to enjoy coasting on Spencer's Hill.

One good New Year resolution is to read the Plainfield Daily Press and keep in touch with local affairs.

Miss Evelyn Buckley has returned from a visit of several days with Miss Leoro Henry, of Plainfield.

The public schools of the township reopened this morning after the usual ten-day holiday vacation.

SOMERVILLE.

A stereopticon lecture on "Our Germanic Ancestors and Their Conversion to Christianity" was the program for the Bible fellowship meeting at the Second Reformed church on Sunday afternoon.

The J. H. Ahern homestead, near Millstone, has been sold to Raymond F. Lozier, of Ridgefield Park. After making improvements Mr. Lozier will occupy the house.

The homestead property of James Todd in Bedminster Township was sold last week to Grange G. Van Arsdale, who owns the adjoining farm.

The Pi Sigma Kappa fraternity, which numbers twenty-one members, held its annual banquet at the Somerset Hotel Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoppert and children, of Ellisdale Manor, near South Branch, are spending a month in Ohio.

Miss Clara Davis spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bellis at Plainfield.

Mrs. A. A. Lawton is spending some time in New York city.

WESTFIELD.

The engagement of Miss Edna Huking, of Euclid avenue, to William J. Hodge, of Bayonne, has been announced.

Miss Esther Many, of Westfield avenue, will give a Leap Year dance at her home on the evening of January 5.

Mr. and Mrs. A. King and King are visiting at Milford,

Miss Lillian Haskill is spending the holidays at Bangor, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mann visiting at Lansford, Pa.

The Epworth League of the M. E. church will hold its regular business meeting in Vincent chapel Friday night, with the presentation of reports.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church will hold a tea in Vincent chapel this afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. The women are requested to bring their fancy work.

The Dutch Arms, men's association of Trinity Reformed church will give a "ladies' night" entertainment at the church Monday night, January 15. Malcolm Schakleford, humorist and impersonator, in songs and stories with banjo, will furnish the program.

Seco Silks—plain and dotted, 26 inch wide, big range of colors; reg. 25c, at 18c

15 pieces Wool Dress Goods—from our 50c quality; these styles did not sell as readily as they should have, so marked them down to, yard 29c

This annual clearing period coupled with the fact that it is a fixed rule of this store that each season's stock MUST be sold within that season, brings about the very lowest prices on Winter goods of the entire year. Absolute clearance is what we aim to accomplish by this price lowering movement. A real bonafide lessening of prices that is so far reaching in its scope and decisiveness that those in search of seasonable goods below value will be attracted to the sale by the sheer force of the out-of-the-ordinary values offered.

We've taken the frills off the announcement of this event—the values offered are so important and unusual that the plain unvarnished statement of actual facts will carry our message of the sale with far more force than any combination of words we can devise.

THE GOODS—the very qualities you have become acquainted with on your former visits to the store. PRICES—considerably less than have ruled during any time of the present season. That is the whole essence and substance of this very important clearance movement of seasonable merchandise.

Sale begins tomorrow morning. Here are forceful facts emphasizing the wisdom of immediate attendance.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY

LOCAL AUSEMENTS.

There is a big sale of seats for the forthcoming engagement of May Irwin in her last success, "She Knows Better Now" at the Plainfield theatre Friday night. There is every reason why the sale should be a heavy one, in fact every appearance of Miss Irwin on tour, is said to have been greeted with a crowded house. In the first place, Miss Irwin's personal popularity is a sure lure for the dollar, her popular personality a sure cure for the blues. In a second-rate play, she would be worth seeing, but the author of "She Knows Better Now" has provided her with the best play she ever had. To say that a cast and production "are up to the well-known Liebler & Co. standard" has come to be a catchword with dramatic writers throughout the country, signifying that no more be said in its favor. Every assurance is given that the cast supporting Miss Irwin in "She Knows Better Now" and the production of the play will be "up to the well-known Liebler & Co. standard."

Aunt Mary played by Miss Helen Lowell in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" at the Plainfield theatre, Saturday, matinee and night, is an elderly New England woman with very primitive ideas of life in New York. She is unable to understand some of the escapades of her nephew for which she has to pay. A break between nephew and aunt is imminent when some of the young man's friends contrive to get Aunt Mary to New York. They involve her in a round of pleasure that completely converts her to city life and weens her away from her country home. There are scores of amusing situations brought about by the gradual conversion of the old lady to a metropolitan outlook on life.

An announcement of importance is the booking of "The Spring Maid," for an engagement at the Plainfield theatre on Monday night, shortly after Christmas. This joyous opera, which played a sensational engagement of two seasons in New York, will make this city one of its first stands, and local music lovers will be among the first to enjoy its delightful music and bright comedy. Under the direction of Werba and Luescher "The Spring Maid" will be presented with a cast of over seventy and the special "Spring Maid" orchestra, with the choruses and ballets that were so notable during the New York engagement. The cast will be headed by the fascinating Russian prima donna, Gene Luneska, whose personality and charm fit the role of Princess Bozena to perfection. The principal comedy part will be played by the celebrated English comedian, Charles McNaughton, who was loaned by Messrs. Werba and Leuscher for the English production of "The Spring Maid" and was recalled to play his original role with this company. The story of saucy little Princess, who poses as the spring girl at Carlsbad and leads the flirtatious Prince Aladar a merry dance, is one of the most delightful in all modern opera. The music in "The Spring Maid" is so charming and appealing that it has had an immense vogue everywhere. During the run of the opera in New York thousands of music lovers sung and played the "Fountain Fay" song, "Two Little Love Bees," "Day Dreams," "How I Love a Pretty Face," etc., and the other song hits of this delightful musical treat. Messrs. Werba and Luescher promise an ornate production of this immensely popular success, and the local engagement of "The Spring Maid" will be one of the most important events of the theatrical season. Later announcement will be made of the opening of the sale of seats.

The Frank McEntee and Millicent Evison company of Shakespearean players which will be seen at the Plainfield theatre on Thursday afternoon and night, is composed of many of the foremost members of the best organizations of this kind in England and America—eight of the players having been associated with Ben Greet, three with F. R. Benson and three with Sothern and Marlowe. This year the company will present "The Merchant of Venice" and "Hamlet."

ANNOUNCEMENT.

With this issue the ownership and management of the Daily Press passes from Mr. Albert L. Force to the Plainfield Press Company. For about forty-four years Mr. Force has been engaged in the publication of The Weekly Constitutionalist and for nearly twenty-five years as publisher of The Daily Press in Plainfield, and retires with the respect and esteem of all our people. We wish for him many years of life, with good health, to enjoy the relief from responsibility which he has so well earned. He turns over to his successors a property the work of his life, of which he was justly proud. It will be the aim of the present owners to make the Plainfield Daily Press a continued influence for all that is good in this community, and to deserve the confidence and support of the citizens of Plainfield and the people of the State. It is not our purpose to make promises nor to boast of what shahll be, but to let our readers judge for themselves as the future shall demonstrate the facts. We intend to try to make the Press an indispensible visitor in every home in the city of Plainfield. Our first love is Plainfield, and our chief object will be to promote, what we believe to be, the best interests and surest prosperity of our city. In politics we shall be independent. While the editors are both Republican and expect to remain so, this paper will not be a political organ. Such newspapers no longer have influence. It is just as much the duty of a newspaper to voice public sentiment by just criticism of its own party, when that party is wrong, as it is to support it when it is right. The party which keeps its promises, and nominates men who can be depended upon to do the right thing by the people, and the business interests of the country, is the one which will secure support in the future. We are planning many new and we trust, advanced things. They will come speedily. We shall give all the city and State news as fully as it is possible for any newspeper to do, as well as the general news of the country. We bespeak not only your confidence and support, but, your earnest assistance in furthering the best interests of the city of Plainfield—a city acknowledged everywhere, as one of the "Queen Cities of our State."

To Hold Special Services.

Special services will be held at the Temple Baptist church this week, starting tonight, when Chaplain George E. T. Stevenson, U. S. N., will tell of his trip around the world. Tomorrow night a "home night service" will be held in charge of Rev. Evart C. Conover, pastor. Thursday night Rev. Dr. W. E. Chalmers, of Philadelphia, will speak and Friday night will be "Sunday-school Night" with an address by Rev. Dr. W. W. Pratt, of this city.

McAfee-Huff.

Miss Grace A. McAfee, of 35 Craig place, and Paul V. Huff, of Mariners place, were quietly married Saturday night by Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, at the home of the latter on East Ninth street. The witnesses were P. S. McAfee and Mrs. John Hoffman, both of this city. The couple will reside at 44 Mariners place.

Y. M. H. A. Annual Ball.

The seventh annual ball of the Young Men's Hebrew Association was held last night in Sebring's auditorium and was a gratifying success, maintaining the high standard established in past years. The committee in charge consisted of Benjamin Hurwitz, M. Bernstein, H. Robinson, D. Rosenthal, L. Goldstein, S. Rothberg and A. H. Richard.

Church Building Fund.

The members of the Mt. Olive Baptist church started a popular subscription for the building fund Sunday night, and $656 was subscribed in addition to which $59 was contributed in cash.

Mr. and Mrs. Slater, of Somerville, spent New Year's with their son, H. C. Bush, of Richmond street.

MOY FOR BY-PARTISAN BOARD

"You have had placed before you by the heads of departments, and the department committees the various reports showing the record in detail of the past year, and I will therefore not tire you with a repetition of these matters, but will briefly refer to some of them.

Sewage Disposal.

"The question of paramount importance this year is that relating to the disposal of sewage. We have fifty miles of sewers depositing their contents on beds that are, even now inadequate to perform the task imposed upon them. The burden grows no less; an effort to enlarge the capacity of the beds is met with opposition from without the city and from within. It is evident that some permanent solution of this question must be reached. Procrastination will not do. The question must be settled. If the present opposition prevails, enlargement of the beds will be impossible.

"The only practical plan would then seem to be a trunk sewer leading to a distant point to be used by a number of municipalities who would pay pro rata for its use.

Water.

"After many years of discussion and examination, and the payment of five thousand dollars to an expert to tell us what we already knew, we find that the thing to do is to avail ourselves of the water beneath our feet. The sum of twelve thousand dollars has been appropriated to carry on the matter and an offer has been made to the Water Company for its plant, which has been refused. It is now proposed to go on with condemnation proceedings, and acquire the plant if the price be not too high. If it is too high, the city can of course fall back on a contract.

"While I do not condemn the present method, yet, I would have preferred the plan of sinking our own wells (and I know of no part of the city where water is not obtainable) building our own plant and if necessary, laying our own pipes, and indeed, it may yet be necessary to pursue this course.

Garbarge and Ashes.

"This subject presents a vexed question, not altogether easy of settlement. Under the present system, or rather, lack of system, disposal is through many channels and the city has little or nothing to do with it, beyond licensing the carters and directing where ashes may be dumped.

"This method is not by any means ideal, and has been much criticized. It has, however, one big advantage, it don't increase the tax rate. Municipal control means the buying or hiring of wagons and other equipment, and the hiring of men; the gathering each day into one large mass the ashes and garbage of the entire city to be disposed of, the next question being how and where shall this disposal be accomplished.

"Two methods present themselves, one is the erection of an incinerating plant, the other the erection of a Utilization plant. There is going to be opposition to the erection of either of these plants within the city limits on account of the possible odor emanating from them.

"I am frank to say I am open to suggestions with regard to proper handling of the subject. The disposal of leaves in the fal l isalso a matter causing complaipt. An ordinance now permits that they be burned during certain hours, which is unsatisfactory to many people. When the other question is settled, it may well include the disposal of leaves.

Streets.

"The city has 81 miles of streets, of which 57 are macadam, three-quarters of a mile is brick, and 23 miles unpaved. Macadam costs about $5,000 per mile to build. There are about six miles of storm sewers. The expense of maintaining the streets naturally increases from year to year, the appropriation for that purpose last year being $48,000, an increase of $8,000 over the preceeding year.

"The street lighting service has been very poor for the greater part of the year. It would appear that the lamps are burned out, or that an insufficient amount of current is being furnished.

Bonded Debt.

"The bonded debt of the city is now $677,000. The sinking fund is $15,452.08, making the net debt $651,547.92. $13,000 was paid off in 1911, and $74,000 added; $40,000 being for school bonds and $34,000 for street improvement bonds. the floating debt is $44,000. The cash on hand and amount due from taxes, etc., amounts to $146,997.46.

Citly Real Estate.

"The real estate owned by the city aside from fire houses is as follows: Garbage crematory property situated on Myrtle avenue, having a frontage of two hundred feet by six hundred in depth. For this property the city paid twenty-two hundred dollars. Lot corner Plainfield avenue and West Third street 49 feet on Plainfield avenue by 132 on Third street. Tract known as "Old Gravel Pit" on Midway avenue, 423 feet front by 165 deep. Assessed valuation $4.00 per foot. Lot Plainfield and Huntington avenues, 30 by 120 feet, donated to city.

"Poor Farm, West Front street, 1,200 feet on West Front street by 1,700 to brook, containing over fifty acres. For this property the city paid $23,500. It contains approximately 250 to 300 building lots. Pumping station, triangular lot on Randolph road, 215 feet front, assessed at $2.00 per foot. Pumping station on Monroe avenue, 200 feet front by 256 on Sherman avenue, assessed at $8 per foot.

Liquor Licenses.

"The city licensed last year nine saloons, and two wholesale liquor dealers, producing a revenue of $10,600. The Elk Club House operates under a county license from which the city receives $298.50, making total receipts from this source of $10,898.50.

Miscellaneous Licenses.

Hack and other licenses granted during 1911 are as follows:

"Hacks, 38; hack drivers, 33; push carts, 4; express, 27; express (2 horse), 5; motor, 5; peddler (foot), 8; trucks (1 horse), 8; trucks (2 horse), 14; cartmen, 31; peddlers with hrose and wagon, 38; junkmen, 16; junkmen, extra, 1; auctioneers, 6; employment agencies, 4; kennel licenses, 5; dog, 798; hunters, 481. Revenue to city, $4,151.50; revenue to county, $481, (hnnters' licenses); fees to city clerk, $386.40; fees to chief of police, $50 (being one half of fees paid by employment agencies).

Courts.

"The city maintains two courts, one for the trial of civil matters, which has jurisdiction over suits not exceeding $500, known as the Plainfield District Court; the other for the trial of criminal matters and for violations of city ordinances, known as the Plainfield city court.

"The District court is presided over by a judge appointed by the Governor, his term being five years and his salary being $1,500 per annum. He sits one day a week. This court has also a clerk and a sergeant-at-arms appointed by the District court judge. The receipts of this court for the past year were $1,134, disbursements, $2,278.50, showing a deficit of $1,144.50. The term of the present judge expires this year.

"The Plainfield city court is presided over by the city judge, elected by the people every thre years. He sits every week day, consuming fully half of his time. He has no clerk and keeps his own books. His salary is $1,000 per annum. The receipts of this court for the past year are approximately $2,000. I have closely observed the operation of this court for the past year, and am in-

The Home Building & Loan Association
Offers Cheap Interest for a Home Builder or Buyer

It figures out about like this, as a series will run out in twelve years: If $2,000.00 is borrowed (other amounts in same proportion),

He pays $10.00 a month dues for 144 months	$1,440 00
He pays $10.00 a month interest for 144 months at 6 per cent	1,440 00
Entrance fee, search, etc., about	25 00
Total amount paid	$2,905 00
He has the use of	2,000 00
At a cost for 12 years of	$ 905 00

Which is actual net interest of only 3¾ per cent. per annum.

This is on a basis of 6 per cent. When no money is on hand, the Association will provide money for the borrower at a very slight premium.

The regular meetings of the Association are held at its rooms, 109 Park Avenue, on the third Monday evening of each month. New series are opened at each regular meeting. Further information may be had at that time or by applying to the secretary, Arthur E. Crone, care of the City National Bank. tu-th clined to the belief that the judge is underpaid. It would seem but fair that he be given a salary to equal that of the District court judge.

Fire Dep't. and Building Inspection.

"My observation and information is that the inspector of buildings has more work than one man can properly perform. My belief is that this situation should be relieved by appointing a new inspector of buildings, and permit the chief of the fire department to give his attention to his duties there.

"The question of the purchase of automobile apparatus has been discussed for some time. If the money that was expended in the erection of the Netherwood fire house had gone into an automobile apparatus it would have been a much better investment, provided, of course, the automobile apparatus is reliable and could always be depended upon. The impression I have gained is that they cannot, in t is I may be wrong and if I am wrong I am willing to be set right. One argument in favor of automobiles would be the doing away with the perennial fire horse question, which, I observe is again before us and which led to some illuminating discussion last year. Arguments are offered that, while this class of apparatus are very expensive, yet they are more economical as they cost nothing to keep, unless in operation.

"If we need new apparatus, or when we need it, I would be very sure that the kind we buy would do the work required of it for I cannot conceive of anything more absolutely worthless than a "dead" fire engine.

Taxes.

"Always with us and always a fruitful subject of discussion. Our taxes for 1911 were ten points higher than the previous year and yet the assessable valuation seems to have been about a million dollars more. I have labored under the impression that the increase in valuation ought to take care of the increased expenses of the city, but it don't seem to work out that way. One item of increase in 1911 was the cost of the new election law, said to have added something like ten thousand dollars to the budget, and so far as that item is concerned I think it is worth it. Another item is an increase of eight thousand dollars for streets over 1910. The water question added twelve thousand; poor department five hundred; contingent fund two thousand; fire department four thousand; Play Ground Commission one thousand; making a total of thirty-seven thousand five hundred dollars increase for these items alone. Then there were increases in the State school and public school tax, over which the city has no control. The water and sewer matters are going to use up considerable money within the next year or two and I feel that a wise economy along other lines may well be practiced.

General.

"The Playground Commission and its work are thoroughly intrenched in the affections of the children and parents. Parker Field has been equipped and opened and has been well patronized as have been the other play grounds throughout the city. We have a new building code; a new trolley ordinance and a new ordinance to hurry up the Mayor in the matter of paying bills (which he approved). We are to have a new Police Pension Commmission, appointed by the Mayor, alone We are to have on overseer-of-the-poor appointed by the Common Council this matter having been taken out of the hands of the mayor.

"I trust we will have an inspector of weights and measures; a board of protectors; abolishment of the fee system; purchasing agent appointed; a committee placed in charge of city property; and that Muhlenberg Hospital shall receive substantial recognition in the great work it is carrying on here in order that the unselfish men who are engaged in the work may be encouraged to renewed effort by a knowledge that their efforts are generally appreciated, and not for this reason alone, but that they may extend the work of extending relief to suffering humanity.

"I have considered and am convinced of the need for widening Park Avenue from Second to Front streets and of widening Somerset street from Front street to the bridge, but the imeprative need for spending money in other directions is so great at this time that this much needed improvement must wait.

"I have opposed and will continue to oppose the erection of great storage of gasoline within the city. I regard them as a menace to life and property. Protests have been filed by the residents from the East and from the West ends of the city. There is vacant property outside the city which may well be used for this purpose.

"I have endeavored to be as brief as possible and have indeed passed some subjects with less than might properly be said on them, but I recognize that short speeches, short letters, short messages and even short sermons are the most highly appreciated.

"I extend to you as a body and to each of you individually hearty wishes for a Happy New Year. I have endeavored to have in mind at all times the best interests of the city and I trust I shall always be impelled to that end and if differences arise between us I shall always be impelled to that end if differences arise between us I shall always bear in mind that though our views may differ, yet we are all working to bring about results that shall mean for our neighbors, and every citizen is our neighbor, and for our city benefits that shall permanently endure.

"I am your obedient servant,
"GEORGE W. V. MOY,
"Mayor."

DE FOREST OVERSEER

were chosen as the special water commission for the year: F. E. Mygatt, George S. Clay, F. L. Holt, W. L. Gloak and Duncan W Taylor. At this time Mayor G. W. V. Moy's message was presented.

Councilman Mygatt moved that the Council proceed to elect an overseer of the poor, whereupon Mr. Taylor nominated Henry L. DeForest, a lawyer, W. L. Gloak nominated A. D. Ayers and P. J. Reville named W. H. Harding. On the first ballot both Ayers and DeForest each received five votes and Harding one. On the second ballot DeForest received four votes, Ayers five votes and Harding two. The third ballot resulted in DeForest receiving six votes and Mr. Ayers five, which elected Mr. DeForest.

Mr. Mygatt offered several resolutions as follows, which were adopted:

The Plainfield Daily Press and the Courier News were made the official newspapers of the city; the finance committee was authorized to have the reports of the city departments printed in pamphlet form; $300 was appropriated for the use of the Shade Tree Commission until the regular appropriation is made; $1,000 was appropriated for the sewer committee until the regular appropriation is made, and similar action was taken giving the Board of Health $1,000. The finance committee was authorized to secure the necessary books for the board of assessors; the sum of $3,307 was transferred from the general fund to the sinking fund, and City Treasurer W. F. Arnold was authorized to have 4 per cent. registered bonds in the sum of $7,000 printed on account of the new Darrow avenue and Dunellen avenue schools.

The customary resolution was adopted providing that special policemen pay $5 for their badges, with the understanding that when their services terminate $2.50 is withheld for the pension fund and the other half is refunded to the retiring officer. The Council then adjourned to meet on Tuesday night, January 9.

his medical graduation Mrs. Annie M. Lord, of New York city, who, with the following children survive: William Arthur Boone, Rev. Charles E. Boone, of St. Austin's College, Washington, D. C.; J. Frank Boone, of Portland, Oregon, and the Misses Frederica, Anne and Caroline Edith.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICE AT MONROE AVENUE CHURCH.

The fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church was observed last night by a large congregation despite the inclement weather. Rev. Charles S. Kemble, after reviewing the growth of the church, outlined the plans for the future work. Incidently he read a number of letters from former pastors. Among them was one in the nature of greetings from Rev. Theodore S. Henderson, now of Brooklyn, former pastor at Monroe Avenue M. E., containing a tribute to the late James McGee. Rev. Mr. Henderson eulogized Mr. McGee and said that it was due to his efforts that the Monroe Avenue church came into existence.

Clearing Out Sale.

Levy Brothers, the West Front street dry goods merchants, will close their store tomorrow for a day or two, in order to arrange their stock for a clearing out sale of the contents, which will begin on Saturday. The firm is still unable to state whether it will leave Plainfield April 1. They have an option on a property and if suitable arrangements can be made they will purchase the same and still continue in business here.

Enjoyable Family Reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Will F. Williams, of Westervelt avenue, entertained relatives at dinner yesterday. Covers were laid for ten. The company sat down at noon to a bountiful dinner prepared by Chef W. A. Millard, of East Second street. The afternoon was thoroughly enjoyed with vocal and instrumental music and Mr. and Mrs. Williams were voted "good entertainers."

Watch Night Service.

The Young People's Society of the First Baptist church held a largely attended watch night service Sunday night beginning at 10 o'clock. At 11:30 o'clock, Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong made remarks appropriate to the last half hour of the old year. At the stroke of 12 all joined in singing a hymn. A social hour followed, during which refreshments were served.

Officers of Press Company.

The Plainfield Press Company was organized on Saturday last with the following officers: John Franklin Fort, president; Ralph L. Morrow, vice-president, and secretary; Leslie R. Fort, treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Blair, of Duer street, entertained members of the Ramsey and Blair families at their home yesterday, it being in the nature of a reunion.

HAHNE & CO.

Beginning a New Era in Merchandising

Surely This is the Best News in To-day's Paper. Listen!

10¢ PURCHASE CAPITAL $1400,000 THE SURETY STAMP

We Are Going to Share Our Profits With You—Going to Give You Back 2½ Per Cent. of Your Purchases.

10¢ PURCHASE CAPITAL $1400,000 THE SURETY STAMP

This is one of the most important innovations that the house of Hahne & Co. ever adopted, therefore we deem necessary a detailed explanation of the purpose and character of our plan, and we urge you to read every line of what follows, since it so directly affects your every day expenditures.

We purpose Sharing Our Profits with you on and after January 2, 1912.

We plan to return to you a discount of 2½ per cent. on all your purchases, believing it will pay us to do so to insure your steadier patronage. And we have selected what we believe to be the best method of effecting this return—

THE SURETY STAMP COUPON

About the Coupon

The Surety Stamp Coupon is designed to incorporate all the good features of other coupons or stamps without any of their objectionable characteristics.

Surety Stamp Coupons were adopted in preference to ordinary trading stamps. We wanted something that we could absolutely guarantee—not only the redemption of, but the redemption, in merchandise of quality.

We Guarantee our own goods, and as you will redeem your Surety Stamp Coupon Books with $2.50 worth of our goods, that redemption is guaranteed to your entire satisfaction.

One Surety Stamp Coupon is given with each 10c Purchase.

$2.50 in Goods Free

We want you to compare this discount of 2½ per cent. with any proposition you have ever heard of. We want you to remember that you are not confined to a few articles of questionable value, but that you have placed at your disposal the gigantic stocks of merchandise which fill this store from top to bottom, with the exception of groceries—merchandise purchased by our able corps of buyers; carefully selected for the particular class of patrons we are serving in the State of New Jersey.

When you consider this unusual purchasing power of Surety Stamp Coupons and that you have thousands of articles of new and seasonable merchandise from which you may select, known to be as low in price as any, and often lower than elsewhere, you will have no hesitancy in confining yourself to the collection of Surety Stamp Coupons.

Our Free Prize Offering

To All Surety Coupon Collectors Anywhere
This offer dates from Jan. 2, 1912

To each of the first 25 persons presenting a filled Surety Stamp Coupon Book for redemption, we will give one filled Surety Stamp Coupon Book Free.

(Only one prize given to a customer.)

To each of the second 15 persons presenting a filled Surety Stamp Coupon Book for redemption, we will give 500 Surety Stamp Coupons Free.

(Only one prize given to a customer.)

To each of the third 10 persons presenting a filled Surety Stamp Coupon Book for redemption we will give 250 Surety Stamp Coupon

(Only one prize given to a customer.)

The above offer is good, no matter where you may have regularly collected these Surety Stamp Coupons, whether New York City, Newark, Cincinnati, Nashville, Paterson, Jersey City or elsewhere, and you may bring in ALL the Surety Stamps you have previously collected in filled books and present them to us for REDEMPTION.

40 Free Coupons

As you enter the store Tuesday or any day this week you will be presented with one of our coupon books containing 10 free Surety Stamp Coupons and on presentation of the book at our Surety Stamp Coupon desk on the First Floor 30 additional coupons will be given you, making 40 coupons in all free to you this week.

Redemption Stations—Surety Stamp Coupons are not only redeemable at the store of Hahne & Co., but also at over 225 stores in the Greater New York Territory, as well as in other cities in which Surety Stamp Coupons are given.

Strongest, Safest Stamp Coupon

The Surety Stamp Coupon merits the endorsement of the people who buy the Hahne & Co. class of merchandise, and who have heretofore been unable to get stamp coupons that are redeemable in merchandise of their own selection.

You select the merchandise you want in any department that you desire—a fact that alone relegates the old-time and limited-scope "Premium Parlor" idea into the background.

In addition, however, Hahne & Co., with all their resources, absolutely and without qualifications, also pledge the redemption of all Surety Stamp Coupons given out in New Jersey, whether issued by them or other merchants—a double guarantee of the strongest character.

The Surety Stamp Coupons will be a permanent feature with us.

We Cheerfully Extend This Profit Sharing Plan
To Our Charge and Our Furniture Household Club Patrons:

Surety Stamp Coupons will be issued to our Charge and Club patrons when bills are met promptly on the date due. Coupons will not be issued to these classes of accounts upon the date of sale.

Exchange Your Tobacco Tags, United Cigar Certificates, Soap Wrappers, Milk Labels, Etc.: To enable you to fill your Surety Stamp Book quickly we have made arrangements to exchange various kinds of tobacco tags, United Cigar certificates, soap wrappers, milk labels, etc., for Surety Stamp Coupons. Ask for Exchange List at our Stamp Desk.

Inaugurating 1912 With the Mightiest of All Our JANUARY FURNITURE SALES

Beginning Next Tuesday, Continuing Thruout the Month With Prices Decisively Reduced

Probably the Most Varied Stocks of Furniture in the United States Involved in This Sale.

Product of the Foremost Factories Represented in This Great Aggregation of Furniture.

Yielding the People Positive Savings of 10 to 50 Per Ct.

Why This Sale Is Welcomed

EVERYBODY will welcome the coming of Our Annual Furniture Sale, for there is not one home in a thousand that is not always open to the introduction of some new piece of furniture. In many rooms are to be furnished, and some whole houses are to be equipped. This fact makes our January Sale of the utmost importance. Thousands await this event, knowing that at this time positive reductions are made on practically every piece of furniture in our stupendous stock.

Many Kinds of Furniture

THERE will be furniture in this sale for Parlors, Music Rooms, Living Rooms, Libraries, Dining Rooms, Bed Chambers, Halls, Dens, Kitchens, Bungalows, Offices, Club Rooms and Public Buildings; for every room there are hundreds of pieces to choose from and the price range is so wide that all purses may be met.

We make it easy for all to buy furniture of the best sort by extending the privileges of our Club to practically all who desire to avail themselves of it.

SHERIFF'S SALE—In Chancery of New Jersey. Between Caroline M. Solarbaum, complainant, and Mary J. Scherrer et al., defendants. Fl. fa. for sale of mortgaged premises.

By virtue of the above-stated writ of fieri facias to me directed I shall expose for sale by public vendue, at the Sheriff's office, in the Courthouse, in the City of Elizabeth, N. J., on at two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all that certain tract or parcel of land and premises hereinafter particularly described, situate, lying and being in the Township of Fanwood, in the County of Union and State of New Jersey:

Being known and designated as lots forty-four (44) and forty-five (45), in block six (6), as shown upon map entitled "Map of Mountain View Heights, adjoining the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, property of M. A. Bose, August, 1905," and further described as follows:

Beginning at a point in the northeasterly side line of Cecilia Place, distant one hundred eighty-nine and eight one-hundredths (189.08) feet in a southeasterly direction along the said side line from its intersection with the southeasterly side line of East Second street and is the southerly corner of lot forty-six (46), block six (6), as shown upon the above-mentioned map; thence running in a northeasterly direction along the southeasterly line of the aforesaid lot forty-six (46) a distance of one hundred and twenty-five (125) feet to the easterly corner of the lot last above mentioned, the same being in the rear line of lots fronting on Farley avenue; thence running southeasterly along the rear line of lots eleven (11) and twelve (12), in block six (6), as shown on the said map, a distance of fifty (50) feet to the northerly corner of lot forty-three (43), in block six (6), as shown upon the said map; thence running southwesterly along the northwesterly line of that lot a distance of one hundred and twenty-five (125) feet to the aforesaid line of Cecilia place; thence running northwesterly along said side line a distance of fifty (50) feet to the place of beginning.

Conveying also all the right, title and interest of the party of the first part hereto, of, in, and to the land lying in front of the above described premises to the middle of Cecilia place, subject to the easement of the public therein forever as a public street.

Being a part of the same premises conveyed to the said Mary J. Scherrer by Mountain View Heights Realty Company by deed dated October 4, 1909, not yet recorded.

Paint that Stays Painted
That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

Capital is Opportunity.

Every young man in business will be confronted with occasions when a small cash capital--plus his efforts--would open the door to a profitable career. The problem of accumulating the capital is the hardest one. A Prudential Endowment maturing for cash in ten years solves the problem. The earlier the start is made the sooner the capital will accumulate.

JERSEY DEMOCRATS BOOM FOR WILSON

Committee of Fifty Named by State Chairman to go to Washington.

TO OPEN HIS HEADQUARTERS

Delegation Will Assemble at Hotel Willard For Meeting of the National Democratic Committee—What's Doing at Trenton.

Special from Staff Correspondent.

Trenton, Jan. 3.—Following a conference of State Chairman Edward E. Grosscup with several members of the Democratic State Committee and other party leaders yesterday afternoon, it was announced that nearly fifty leading Democrats of the State would go to Washington, Friday, and remain for the meeting of the Democratic National Committee next Monday. The delegation will be headed by Mr. Grosscup and the New Jersey headquarters will be at the New Willard Hotel. The purpose of the Jersey Democrats will be to boom Governor Wilson for the nomination for President.

Some of those at the conference were Governor's Secretary Joseph P. Tumulty, Congressman William E. Tuttle, Jr., General Dennis F. Collins, of Elizabeth; Thomas Birch, of Burlington, and William K. Devereux, secretary of the State Committee. Governor Wilson will also be in Washington next Monday and will speak Monday evening at the Jackson Day dinner.

While the members of the State Committee were together it was decided to open the State headquarters at 39 West State street next Tuesday. As already stated, the headquarters will be made the rallying place for the party during the session of the Legislature and will also become a bureau for the advancement of the move to make Governor Wilson the national standard bearer.

There were few politicians of either party at the State House yesterday. Senator Edge, of Atlantic, came to attend a meeting of the Employers' Liability Commission, of which he is a member. Senator-elect Pierce, of Union county, was here and said that the grade crossing bill, which he is preparing, would be ready to submit to the Republican legislators' caucus on Thursday. He stated, too, that he was preparing a measure to provide for the equalization of tax assessments and expected to have it ready Thursday.

OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED BY PLAINFIELD AERIE

These officers of Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E., were installed last night by Senior Past Worthy President R. P. Kampf, who had been delegated to officiate at the installation by District Deputy Maussel, of Hoboken, who was unable to be present: Worthy President, P. W. Guinee; worthy vice-president, Harry Coddington; worthy chaplain, Henry Weirenga; worthy secretary, Horace G. Adams; worthy treasurer, Arthur G. Adams; worthy conductor, Frank McCabe; worthy inside guard, M. J. Higgins; worthy outside guard, H. J. Adams; worthy trustees, Henry Frowery, three years; E. J. McCann, Sr. P. W. P., two years, and E. J. Mahoney, one year. Mr. Kampf was assisted at the ceremonies by Past Worthy President M. J. Higgins and Frank McCabe.

Following the business meeting and installation a social session was held and refreshments served.

Free Lecture on Japan.

The next lecture in the free public school course will be given in the Washington school auditorium tomorrow night at 8 o'clock by John M. Whiton, who will give a "Familiar Talk on Japan." It will be a narrative of his personal experiences and he will touch many things and incidents not given by the ordinary lecturer. His descriptions are illustrated by many beautiful lantern slides and are sure to interest.

Night School for Foreigners.

Tonight, at 8 o'clock, an evening class will be opened in the Stillman School for those of foreign birth. It will be under the charge of Miss Bateman, who conducted the class in the Lincoln School last year. It has been changed to the Stillman School as more central. Tuition is free and all who wish to get a better acquaintance with English are urged to attend.

CORRUPT PRACTICE ACT VIOLATIONS ARE ALLEGED

Justice Bergen Orders Grand Jury th Probe Charges and Indict if Testimony Warrants.

Justice Bergen, who opened the January term of the Union county courts, yesterday, called the attention of the grad jury to the fact that it had been brought to his notice that there had been violations of the corrupt practices' act in the county and he urged that they be probed and indictments found if warranted by the evidence. Justice Bergen declared that this act must be enforced, and even though a candidate has expended no money he must file a statement to that effect.

Justice Bergen also dwelt upon the manslaughter case of C. W. Faber, of North Plainfield, in which the latter is held in $10,000 bail awaiting grand jury action. Mr. Faber, while driving an automobile along South avenue, struck and killed Peter Murray, of Fanwood, who was an engineer in the employ of the Edison Company, of New York. The grand jury was instructed to consider the case carefully.

Thomas H. Roberts, of Rahway, is foreman of the grand jury. Elizabeth is represented by six members, Plainfield by four and Rahway by three, with smaller representations from other municipalities. The Plainfield members are Augustus G. Jenkins, Charles H. Frost, DeWit C. Ivins and former Councilman Herbert Buxton. George H. Johnston is the member from Fanwood. The trial of cases will begin on January 8. The list is an unusually light one.

PRESENTATIONS ARE MADE AT MASONIC COMMUNICATION

Officers were installed and there were several presentations at the regular communication of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., last night. There was a large attendance and unusual interest in the business of the evening. B. Frank Coriell, on behalf of the members, presented George Zimmer, the retiring worshipful master, with a past master's jewel and apron, while Judge John Ulrich presented a gavel to the incoming worshipful master, Henry G. Kline. The recipients expressed their appreciation.

These officers were installed by Past Worshipful Master George T. Caskey:

Worshipful Master, Henry G. Kline; senior warden, Charles A. Lee; junior warden, William McD. Coriell; treasurer, Clarence Goss; secretary, Robert Kenney; senior deacon, J. Harry Cook; junior deacon, John Knight; masters of ceremonies, LeRoy DeCamp, William Reynolds; stewards, Fred Soper, R. H. Barnhard; chaplain, Rev. J. O. McKelvey, Rev. George Hauser and Charles A. Russell; marshal, William G. Hutchcroft; tyler, Kaspar Bolsterle. After the installation there was a banquet.

WHIPPING POST USEFUL FOR WIFE BEATER HE SAYS

William Witteman, of Plainfield avenue, was sentenced by Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning to serve ninety days in the county jail as a penalty for beating his wife last night while drunk. In imposing sentence the court said that although this is the first complaint Mrs. Witteman had made, according to her testimony it is not the first time her husband had subjected her to abuse and while he sat on the bench in this city Witteman nor any other man could not abuse a woman without being punished to the full extent of the law. Judge DeMeza also said that he was sorry the whipping post is not in existence as in such cases it would be useful.

In Business For Himself.

George Rust Rogers, of this city, who has been associated with Clinton Gilbert for many years, has become a dealer in bank and trust company stocks on his own account, with offices with Frenaye & Herreshoff, 60 Broadway, New York.

Funeral of Mrs. Shannon.

The funeral of Mrs. Bridget Shannon, who died yesterday, will be held tomorrow at her late residence, 457 West Third street, at 8:30 and in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock, when a solemn requiem mass will be offered for the repose of her soul. Interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery.

CHARITY EXHIBITION FIRST PRIZE ESSAY

Miss Bonnell Winner of Contest Conducted by Charity Societies.

OVER 100 IN COMPETITION

Remarkable Appreciation of the Purpose of the Recent Exposition Shown by Those Trying to Get the Much Coveted Prize.

None of the many other problems of the recent welfare exhibit of Plainfield's Charity Organization Society and Anti-Tuberculosis League offered more difficulty for the joint committee in charge than the task of selecting the best essay about the show from the many contributed by the boys and girls of the schools.

More than one hundred of these essays were written. So far as English and spelling were concerned they varied widely, of course, but in every one of them there was shown a remarkable appreciation of the significance of the exhibit and a genuine sympathy for the unfortunates of the city whose welfare was at stake. Out of the entire grist the teachers selected a score or more of the compositions for the committee to pass upon. These, in turn, were sifted to eight in the work of selecting the one most worthy of the five-dollar prize. Each of the eight was entitled to a prize, according to the committee, but, unfortunately, there are many people in Plainfield with empty coal-bins and scant larder, who need five-dollar bills more than the careful essay-writers of the schools. So, from the eight one was selected, Margaret R. Bonnell. She is in the junior class of the Plainfield High School.

The other seven were Lucy B. West, Margaret Louise Carey, Cortlandt Fleming, May Calaway, Jennie Feinberg, Jennie Shrager and Morris L. Mann.

Miss Bonnell's winning essay was as follows:

"The watchword of modern times is 'Prevention.' The Plainfield Public Welfare Exhibit taught every person who attended it how to prevent the development of tuberculosis in his own case, how to prevent its growth if he should develop it, and how to prevent its spread from himself to others.

"Klondike beds and reclining chairs for the outdoor treatment of tuberculosis attracted the visitor's attention first, and from that moment she was constantly reminded that 'consumption is easily caught, prevented and cured.' A minature room, first gloomy, then brilliantly lighted, showed the wonderful change from darkness, dreariness and death, to sunlight, cheerfulness and health. The visitor thought of this again when she saw the sleeping porches of the model sanitorium and the window-sash taken out of a 'home sanitorium' to admit more light and air. Under a microscope lay a piece of glass-enclosed blue paper. The visitor looked through the powerful lenses, and the blue paper swarmed with little red tuberculosis germs, magnified five hundred times.

"A little beyond, the Young Women' Christian Association exhibit covered the walls with pictures and posters, and the table with baskets, millinery, etc. On a clever chart, the occupations represented in the enrollment list of the local branch—teachers, school girls, companions, maids, bookkeepers, nurses, cooks—circled round the physical, social, educational and spiritual lines of Young Women's Christian Association work. You often wish you had something to amuse the children during long Sunday afternoons, don't you? The Young Men's Christian Association Woman's Auxiliary showed picture cards for a child to color, stories to read to him, pictures to show him.

"Then came the Consumers' League department. A tenement worker was paid $1.75 for that handsome crocheted collar; you were charged $5 for it. And the neckties you gave Johnny at Christmas—let's see—yes they were 35 cents each. The woman who sewed them received 55 cents a dozen—or $4 a week. Somebody was paid 60 cents a dozen for sacques like the one baby wore

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

Gentlemen: I note with approval the policy outlined in your issue of yesterday, the carrying out of which can only mean success. I am,

Yours sincerely,
G. W. V. MOY.
Mayor of Plainfield.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

I want to congratulate you on the appearance of last evening's edition of the Plainfield Daily Press. It looks well with the new head line and is both newsy and timely in every respect. I like the tone of your announcement especially that the independent spirit will always be manifest as to civic and political matters. The Plainfield Daily Press has always been a potent factor for all that is good in the community and for such a course it has always had the confidence and support of every citizen, and I am glad to know that under the new ownership this policy will still be pursued. I wish for the new owners a large measure of success.

ROBERT CLARK, Jr.,
Mayor of North Plainfield.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

Permit me to congratulate you on the decided improvement in The Press and particularly on the policy you propose to pursue. I am sanguine of your success.

CHARLES J. FISK.

BANKER CHARLES J. FISK RETIRES FROM BUSINESS

Former Mayor Charles Joel Fisk on January 1 retired from the banking firm of Harvey Fisk and Sons, Cedar street, New York, which was established by his father twenty-one years ago, and in the future will give up all active business and live in retirement. This step was made necessary on account of Mr. Fisk's health and the advice of his physician. Mr. Fisk has not been actively identified with the firm's business for ten years, when a serious illness compelled him to relinquish many of his duties with the banking house in New York city.

Mr. Fisk's father established the banking house which bore his name twenty-one years ago and was finally succeeded by the sons, Wilbur C. Fisk, Pliny Fisk, who is now the head of the concern; Charles Joel Fisk and Alexander Green Fisk. The last named retired from the firm a few years ago. An older brother, Edward Fisk, is a member of the well known banking firm of Fisk & Robinson, New York city.

Mr. Fisk has served the city many terms as Mayor, and has also served as a councilman. He first succeeded the late George W. Rockafellow as Mayor, and was later succeeded by James T. Buckle, only to be reelected for another term. A year ago he retired being succeeded by Mayor G. W. V. Moy. Mr. Fisk and his family are spending the winter in New York, although they still retain their residence on West Seventh street.

BORO STREET COMMISSIONER TO RECEIVE STATED SALARY

An ordinance governing the appointment of a street commissioner will be introduced at the first regular meeting of the North Plainfield Council on Friday night. The office was left vacant by Mayor Clark at the organization meeting on Monday because the manner in which the street department in the borough has been conducted in the past does not meet with his approval. Hence the proposed ordinance has been drawn at his request.

Until the measure becomes operative arrangements have been made with William J. Hudson, who was prominently mentioned as the appointee for the place, to act in the capacity of commissioner, especially in cases of emergency, such as heavy snow storms or any other cause requiring immediate attention. The keys to the places where the tools and all other equipment of the department are kept have been delivered to Mr. Hudson by John Y. Barrett, the retiring commissioner.

The plan and scope of the new ordinance will make the street commissioner a salaried employe of the borough just the same as the marshals and will require his whole time to be devoted to the position. The salary agreed upon is understood to be $80 per month. Other requirements aside from personal attention and entire time are also imposed by the terms of the ordinance, but Mayor Clark this morning declined to make any statement.

PRISONER ESCAPES FROM POLICE HEADQUARTERS

Charles O'Neill, Arrested for Obtaining Money Under False Protenses, Makes Exit Through Skylight.

Charles O'Neill, who was to have been arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning, made his escape from city police headquarters yesterday afternoon. He had been arrested in the morning by Sergeant Overbaugh on the complaint of Isaac Schrager, who alleged that O'Neill had obtained money from him under false pretense. When O'Neill took French leave he left behind him his overcoat, one pocket of which contained a note scribbled on the margin of a newspaper, parts of which are unfit to print, but conveying his opinion of the police and himself by comparison.

After being locked up O'Neill complained of the cell room being cold and asked to be allowed the freedom of the corridor to walk about. He was the only prisoner and his request was granted.

The doors leading to the cell room were all locked and the sounds of O'Neill's pacing back and forth were heard for a long time. When the noise ceased Sergeant Overbaugh looked in and saw that O'Neill had seated himself in a cell. He remarked that he had sat down to rest a minute. The sound of footsteps reached the sergeant when the prisoner renewed his walking. This continued for some time and now appears to have been a part of his plan to allay suspicion.

Another prisoner was brought in shortly after 1 o'clock and he also complained of the cell room being cold. Investigation then showed that O'Neill was missing. The cold air came in through the skylight where a pain of glass large enough to admit the passage of a man had been removed. After gaining the roof O'Neill had dropped to the wall surrounding the jail yard and then to the outside. In order to reach the skylight he had climbed to the top of the cells and pulled himself up on the coils of steam pipes around the inside casing wall.

Standing on the elbows of the inlet and outlet pipes he had slipped the glass out of its metal frame. Only a young and active man could accomplish this feat. Before trying the skylight he had loosened a brick from the wall and tried the two windows and transom. It is thought that he intended knocking the bars over them loose with the brick when the thought to try the more difficult though less noisy means of gaining his freedom.

The hunt for the escaped man that immediately started has so far been futile.

MRS. NEIGHBOR OBSERVES HER EIGHTY-SIXTH BIRTHDAY

With her health and faculties almost as good as they were in the bloom of her youth, Mrs. Mary Neighbor, of 207 East Front street, celebrated her eighty-sixth birthday yesterday. Many of the friends and and relatives of the aged woman called on her to extend their congratulations and best wishes. Mrs. Irwin Young, of Newark, a daughter of Mrs. Neighbor, and Miss Kate Rowland, of this city, spent the day with the octogenarian and assisted her in receiving her friends.

Mrs. Neighbor has been a resident of this city for the past forty years and has lived in her present home on East Front street for thirty years. She was born at Califon, where she spent the greater part of her younger days, her maiden name being Mary Bailer. Her husband, the late Calvin Neighbor, died in this city two years ago in his eighty-sixth year.

Although nearing the century mark in years, Mrs. Neighbor is in the best of health and has good sight and hearing. Until twelve years ago, she kept a boarding house on East Front street and even now she keeps house for herself, living alone. Mrs. Neighbor has been a member of the First Presbyterian church of this city for years. She has five children, all of whom live in this city.

The Kilties Are Coming.

The Scottish concert, which is to be given in the Plainfield theatre, Thursday, January 25, by Clan Mackensie, No. 204, S. O. C., promises to be a most interesting affair. The program includes several singers of Scottish fame as well as a few Americans. A part of the proceeds of the concert will go to the Anti-Tuberculosis League.

STATE COMMISSION PLAN EXAMINATION

To be Conducted in All Schools of New Jersey Next June.

DR. KENDALL'S STATEMENT

By Authority of An Act of the Recent Legislature Tests Open to All the Children of the State—A Circular Letter Issued.

Special from Staff Correspondent

Trenton, Jan. 3.—The scope of the new public school examination to be conducted next June under the law passed by the last Legislature is given in a circular which was issued today by Dr. Calvin N. Kendall, State Commissioner of Education. The new law provides that the Commissioner of Education shall prescribe minimum examinations throughout the State for graduation from grammar schools and for admission to high schools and high school departments; confine such examinations to arithmetic, writing, spelling, English grammar and composition, history and geography; prepare or cause to be prepared questions for the examination; prescribe the times and places for holding them and the rules governing them; designate the persons to conduct them, and, if admissible, direct superintendents, principals and teachers of one district to conduct them in any other. The examinations are to be open to all children of the State, whether they attend public or private schools. The circular, in part, is as follows:

The first examination under the provisions of this statute, which as you will observe governs graduation from grammar schools and the promotion of pupils from the grammar schools to the high schools and high school departments, will take place in June next.

This is a matter of so much importance that it seems best to make a statement at this time, to indicate the scope of these examinations. Such a statement is herewith presented.

At the time of the examination, a sufficient number of questions or topics will be presented in each subject as to allow an opportunity for choice. For example, in geography, if ten questions or topics are to be answered or discussed, perhaps twenty-five questions or topics will be presented, from which a choice may be made. Likewise in arithmetic a similar choice of problems will be offered from a larger number of problems than the pupil will be required to solve.

It is to be understood that what is presented here is not a course of study. It merely points out in a general way the outline of the subjects which will be covered in the examination. It is realized that some schools are teaching, and should teach, more aspects of subjects than here outlined.

It is hoped that at some time in the future, after the present school year, the examination may be such as to determine the pupil's methods of study or work.

The examination in a given subject may be taken when the pupil completes the subject, in accordance with the present local course of study, or at the time of the first regular examination after such completion. For example, in those school systems or districts where geography is not taught in the eighth grade, the examination may be given in that subject when the pupils complete the subject. The results of this examination can readily be recorded, and will stand later as an examination in that subject for entrance to the high school. The same holds true of the history of the United States and arithmetic.

Discussing the standard that will be required in the examinations Dr. Kendall says that the test in spelling will be a test of the ability of the pupil to spell words in common use. It is expected, he says, that pupils will be able to produce hand writing that is neat, legible and uniform. The examination in English grammar will cover the elements of the study. Technicalities will be avoided. It will comprise the analysis of simple, complex and compound sentences, but will avoid sentences which present special difficulty. It will also

TOWNSHIP RESENTS BORO SEWER PLANS

Fight Renewed to Prevent Location of Beds at Greenbrook.

RESIDENTS ARE UP IN ARMS

North Plainfield Township to Ask the State Board of Health for a Hearing Before Plans are Approved—For Location of Plant.

The residents of the Greenbrook section of North Plainfield township assembled in the district schoolhouse, last night, for the purpose of making formal protest against the plan of North Plainfield to locate its proposed sewage beds on the Cramer farm in that vicinity. Forty persons were present, most of whom are New York and Plainfield business men who have fine homes in the territory that may be invaded. Edward F. Feickert was made chairman of the meeting and C. H. Holbrook, treasurer.

Numerous addresses were made in which it was pointed out that Greenbrook has come to be one of the finest residential sections in this vicinity and that the establishment of the beds in the proximity of the handsome estates would work untold harm. It was decided to draw up two resolutions, one to be presented as a protest to the North Plainfield Township Committee at its meeting tonight, and the other to the State Board of Health, asking that the residents be granted a hearing before action is taken on the proposed plans. Superintendent Cook, of the Watchung Water Company, said his concern would protest against the location of the sewage plants as the effluent discharged in Green brook would tend to contaminate the supply wells. A delegation will attend the township meeting tonight.

It was declared at the close of last night's conference that Mrs. Brown, one of the largest property owners in Greenbrook, would employ personal counsel to oppose the location. She resides on what is best known as the William Marsh Rice farm, a tract of eighty acres, directly adjoining the Cramer tract. It was at one time owned by the New York lawyer for whose murder Albert T. Patrick is now serving a life sentence in Sing Sing.

MAIN LINE TROLLEY COLLIDED WITH A RIG.

Main line car, No. 2040, westbound on West Front street, a short distance below Sycamore avenue, at 6:10 last night, collided with a carpenter's rig, owned and driven by William H. Brokaw. The wagon was proceeding in the same direction as the car and when hit was turned completely around. Mr. Brokaw complained of being hurt about the head but to all appearances sustained nothing of a serious nature. The horse was uninjured and the only damage done was to the vehicle.

The motorman said that the Brokaw rig carried no lights and he did not see it until too late to avoid a collision.

Chamber of Commerce Annual.

The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held in the chamber rooms, Frost building, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at which time officers will be elected and a board of directors will be chosen for the coming year and other matters of interest will be considered.

FATE OF SALOON LICENSE INTERESTS ELIZABETH.

At the meeting of the Elizabeth Board of Excise next Tuesday night the application of Benedict Kavalonskas to conduct the saloon at 216 Second street, the present proprietor of which is Tofil Dulinsky, will come up for consideration. Dulinsky's license was recently revoked when he was haled before the board on a charge of Sunday selling. A writ of certiorari, which acted as a stay, was procured and the saloon was kept open. It is said that if the board grants a license to Kavalonskas it will stop further action against Dulinsky, and there is much interest in the action of the body.

IS ASBURY PARK DRY? JUST HEARKEN TO THIS.

Asbury Park, Jan. 3.—Chief of Police Smith in his report to Council Monday gave some startling figures on excise arrests in this prohibition resort and a peep into the conditions as they exist on the west side or Springfield avenue district.

He said the ratio of arrests for excise violations in this city was far higher than in Atlantic City or Long Branch, and that the total of arrests for drunkenness in Asbury Park was larger than is recorded from all other parts of Monmouth county combined.

SING SING FUGITIVE HELD IN ELIZABETH.

It is expected that Governor Wilson will grant reuiqsition papers for the return of William Ryan to Sing Sing prison, New York, today. Ryan broke his parole from Sing Sing and was arrested in Elizabeth and committed to jail for thirty days. This time expired yesterday and he was recommitted. Detective Jackson, of the New York State Detective Department, was in Elizabeth yesterday in connection with the case and left last night to see Governor Wilson.

TO AILING WOMEN.

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many a Sufferer in Plainfield.

No woman can be healthy and well if the kidneys are sick. Poisons that pass off in the secretions when the kidneys are well, are retained in the body when the kidneys are sick. Kidneys and bladder become inflamed and swollen and worse troubles quickly follow. This is often the true cause of bearing down pains, lameness, backache, etc. Uris poisoning also causes headaches, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness and rheuamtic pain.

When suffering so, try Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy that helps sick kidneys. You will get better as the kidneys get better, and health will return when the kidneys are well. Let a Plainfield women tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. Earnest Dorflinger, 400 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I hold just as high an opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills today as I have for years. The cure they made in my case has been permanent and conseuentqly I am glad to confirm my former testimonial." (Statement given January 19, 1911.)

On August 28, 1905, Mrs. Dorflinger gave the following account of her experience with Doan's Kidney Pills. "The first symptom of kidney trouble in my case was a dull, heavy pain in my back and head. This was followed by a tired, languid feeling and I knew that my kidneys were gradually giving out. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and getting a box at Randolph's Drug Store, I began their use. Before long my condition improved and I continued taking Doan's Kidney Pills until I was cured."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

FORECAST WILSON'S MESSAGE FEATURES

Abolition of Grade Crossings Likely to be Strongly Advocated.

TAXATION A LEADING TOPIC

Reform of Method of Drawing Grand and Petit Juries—Reorganization of State Institutions—Auto Reciprocity.

Trenton, Jan. 3.—With the opening of the Legislature only a week off, there is much interest in what Governor Wilson will say in his annual message to the lawmakers. The Governor has completed his message and it is in the hands of the printer, but he has given no hint as to what are its contents. It is reasonable, however, to expect that the Governor will treat of the so-called progressive legislation passed at the last session, and that he will tell of what was accomplished, and of what benefits to the people he believes have been or will be derived therefrom. From what the Governor has said it is thought likely, too, that he may admit some defects in the Geran election law and recommend some amendments. It may be stated positively, however, that whatever amendments he may suggest will make no change in the essential features of the new election law.

Without a doubt, also, Governor Wilson will devote considerable space in his message to the question of the abolition of grade crossings. As the Governor was the commanding figure in the Democratic State convention which drafted the State platform last fall, it may be taken for granted that this part of his message will follow closely the grade crossing plank in the platform. This platform favors the elimination of grade crossings and speaks for the enactment of legislation giving the Public Utility Commission power to compel the railroad companies to abolish such crossings where, in the judgment of the commission, they are a menace to life.

Another question almost sure to be discussed by Governor Wilson is that of taxation. In his inaugural address last January, the Governor declared that the present system of taxation was no system at all, and needed overhauling from top to bottom. He made no recommendations upon the subject of taxation in any special message and, therefore, it is not improbable that he may make his first annual message the vehicle for expressing some concrete views upon this perplexing and complex matter which is of vital importance to every individual taxpayer.

The State platform favors such changes in the administration of the system of taxation "as will provide more satisfactory means of assessing and equalizing taxes and of readjusting our methods and rates of taxation," and if the Governor shall make recommendations along tax lines they will, doubtless, follow the lines of this part of the platform.

As the Governor had an important part in drafting the State platform, it is deemed quite likely that his message will deal with most of the propositions presented in the platform. These propositions include a recasting of the law of the State, so as to reform the method of drawing grand and petit juries; such changes as will throw greater safeguards around the powers of corporations, so as to correct what the platform declares to be "too lax methods of incorporation in our State, having resulted in the creation of corporations both within and without the State in a way which does not safeguard the interests of the public;" the immediate re-organization of the administration of the State institutions upon a plan similar to the new administration of the public school system; the enactment of laws granting automobile reciprocity; the further improvement and extension of laws governing factories and work shops, for the better safeguarding of the life and limbs of those engaged in the industries of the State.

KLINE HEADS UNION BODY.

Howard B. Kline was chosen chairman of the Union Township Committee at its reorganization meeting Monday afternoon. Daniel H. Beach, who was the chairman during 1911, was named treasurer. John K. English, of Elizabeth, was reappointed township counsel, and Joseph P. Bonnell was named overseer of the poor for a term of five years. The latter's salary was fixed at $200 a year, an increase of $25 annually.

The committee adjourned to hold a special meeting Tuesday night, January 9. The Board of Health elected Mr. Kline as its president.

15 pieces Wool Dress Goods—from our 50c quality; these styles did not sell as readily as they should have, so marked them down to, yard 29c

This annual clearing period coupled with the fact that it is a fixed rule of this store that each season's stock MUST be sold within that season, brings about the very lowest prices on Winter goods of the entire year. Absolute clearance is what we aim to accomplish by this price lowering movement. A real bonafide lessening of prices that is so far reaching in its scope and decisiveness that those in search of seasonable goods below value will be attracted to the sale by the sheer force of the out-of-the-ordinary values offered.

We've taken the frills off the announcement of this event—the values offered are so important and unusual that the plain unvarnished statement of actual facts will carry our message of the sale with far more force than any combination of words we can devise.

THE GOODS—the very qualities you have become acquainted with on your former visits to the store. PRICES—considerably less than have ruled during any time of the present season. That is the whole essence and substance of this very important clearance movement of seasonable merchandise.

Sale begins tomorrow morning. Here are forceful facts emphasizing the wisdom of immediate attendance.

GETTING THE STATE HOUSE READY FOR LEGISLATURE

Trenton, Jan. 3.—The interior of the State House is being polished up this week in readiness for the opening of the Legislature next Tuesday, and when the lawmakers reach the capitol they will find everything "as neat as a pin." Particular attention is being given to the Senate and Assembly chambers. All the woodwork and desks are being polished and the carpets cleaned with the State House vacuum cleaning system, and in other ways the two chambers are being made spick and span.

Custodian Weseman has also had the famous chandelier in the Assembly chamber polished and supplied with new electric lamps.

N. J. TRAINS KILLED 378 LAST YEAR.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 3.—Discussion of grade crossings is a feature of the annual report of the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners, just submitted to Gov. Wilson. It also recommends the granting indeterminate franchises to new companies, the extensions of the powers of the board to compel connections between public utilities, other than railroads, and a requirement for the amortization of the discount at which bonds have been sold. To bring about these changes the commission suggests Legislative amendments.

According to the report, 378 persons were killed on railroads in 1911, while 902 were injured. The Commissioners state that the elimination of grade crossings has become a matter of prime importance, and that the danger to life and limb is increasing daily. In 1911 the board obtained protection or augmented the protection of forty-nine dangerous crossings.

NUGENT MEN WOULD REBUKE SCHLOTTERER.

As the result of his recent stand in Elizabeth municipal political affairs, there are indications that Councilman George H. Schlotterer will be defeated for re-election as president of the Elizabeth Democratic Club at the annual meeting of that organization next week.

Mr. Schlotterer recently refused to caucus with his Democratic colleagues in Council and is also charged with neglecting to call an important meeting of the special committee on river improvement, of which he was chairman. At the organization meeting of the Council Monday night he nominated a Republican for temporary chairman and was considered the leader of the movement to defeat Edward Nugent, the caucus nominee for president, which resulted in deadlocking the Council.

A portrait of Mr. Schlotterer that hung in the rooms of the Democratic Club was turned to the wall one day last week, and this is taken to indicate that there is strong opposition to his re-election as president.

FATHER SAVES GIRL NEAR SUFFOCATION.

Rosalind Weisberger, seven years old, narrowly escaped suffocation during a fire that threatened the destruction of the home of her parents at 65½ Court street, Elizabeth, early yesterday. The child was asleep in her room on the second floor of the houe and when the smoke began pouring into the room she was too frightened to make an outcry. Her father, Albert Weisberger, was finally awakened by the smoke and carried his wife, three-year-old son and Rosalind to the street. He then summoned Engine Company No. 3 by telephone. When Chief Gerstung arrived he found it necessary to turn in an alarm from box 134 to get more apparatus to extinguish the flames. The fire was of mysterious origin and started between the walls of the building.

OBSERVE TIN WEDDING; FORTY SUPPER GUESTS.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wyman, of East Front street, celebrated the tenth anniversary of their wedding Monday, and in the afternoon and evening they entertained about forty relatives and friends from Middle Valley, Califon, Neshanic, Elizabeth and Plainfield. An elaborate supper was served last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Wyman were married in this city ten years ago Monday, Mrs. Wyman being Miss Ella Trimmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Trimmer. Mr. Wyman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wyman, and is associated with his father, who is of the firm of Wyman & Haberle, contractors and builders.

PARTY FOR ELOCUTION AND DANCING PUPILS.

Dancing and elocution pupils of Mrs. H. I. Neff, ranging in age from five to twelve years, held the first of a series of parties Saturday afternoon. The program included Delsarte poses in Grecian costume, a pantomime, a grand march and a number of recitations.

Those who took part in the numbers were Alice Spangenberg, Regina Brennan, Edna Pound, Warner Neff, Helen Leury, Dorothy Durant, Richard Borden, Constance Durant, Robert Lee, Mabel Peck, Sidney Durant, Richard Borden, Hazel McVoy, Mary Bling, Adria Galbraith, Frances Flynn, Ambrose Brennan, Jr.

M. R. Poucher and R. W. Poucher, of this city, are registered at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City.

NO CHANGE IN MIDDLESEX.

At the meeting of the Middlesex County Board of Freeholders Monday Freeholder Peter H. S. Hendricks was re-elected director and all the county officers were reappointed with the exception of County Engineer Frederick Simons of Roosevelt. He sent a communication to the board setting forth that if the salary was to remain as last year, $2,500, he would not accept the appointment. The matter was then deferred until next Thursday.

The officers named and their salaries are as follows: County collector, Thomas H. Hagerty, $3,000; clerk, Asher W. Bissett, $900; county solicitor, John A. Coan $1,000; county physician, Edgar Carroll, $1,000; supervisor of roads, James De Hart, $1,500; janitor of county buildings, Milton Jacques, $60 a month.

CITY JUDGE IS LENIENT WITH TEN OFFENDERS.

All but one of the eleven offenders arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court Monday morning were allowed to go under suspended sentences upon their promise to do better this year. The exception was William Morris, of East Fifth street, arrested for drunkenness and panhandling. He was ordered to leave the city. The others were Charles Garfinkle, of West Third street, arrested while impersonating a messenger boy and collecting money; Harry Molleson, of East Second street; Thomas Muldowney, of West Front street; Michael Motley, of North avenue; Edward Fitzsimmons, Park avenue; Joseph Packer, of West Third street; Michael Donko, of West Third street, and Michael Fitz Morris, of West Second street, all drunk and disorderly.

Augustino Fisco, of Cottage place, received a suspended sentence of $100 and 59 days for threatening the life of Joseph Gennero.

Plainfield, N. J., January 3, 1912.

THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

As is the case with all public utterances of a government executive some exceptions may be taken to the views and recommendations expressed by Mayor Moy in his second annual message. But we believe his assertion that "the question of paramount importance this year is that relating to the disposal of sewage" meets with the hearty approval of all our people. His declaration that there must be no further procrastination, but that the matter must be settled now for all time is also not to be questioned. His solution of the vexing problem is a trunk line sewer to a distant point, and we presume that he means to an isolated district, to be used by Plainfield and nearby municipalities which would pay their pro rata share. This seems to be the only sound solution for sooner or later Plainfield will be compelled to abandon its present plant located within the confines of the municipality.

The Mayor goes little further than he did in his message a year ago in his treatment of what we consider only secondary to the sewage question and that is the matter of the disposition of garbage and ashes. It is a disgrace to Plainfield that the authorities should do nothing to eradicate the present unsanitary, unsightly and antiquated method of collecting and disposing of this refuse. We pride ourselves that we are so far ahead of other communities of similar population as concerns municipal developments and improvements but we overlook the fact that we are away behind the times in this most important matter. No one will gainsay the fact that for a third or less what householders are compelled to pay private contractors the municipality could do for us in a far more satisfactory manner. For ten long years our Board of Health has urged that some action be taken to improve conditions but the succeeding governing bodies have been deaf to its appeals. The Mayor asks for suggestions and we submit one for his consideration — let the Common Council appoint a special committee to investigate and to report some feasible scheme.

Mr. Moy is quite right when, in expressing his pleasure that for the first time in many years there is minority representation in the Common Council, he asserts that the division augers well for the city for as he says "a good healthy minority is always beneficial in every legislative body." Following up this subject, His Honor expresses his regret that a statute prevents the appointment of a bipartisan school board. To his mind also the Board of Education should have among its membership some women. The ideal board he is inclined to believe is one consisting of six men and three women. So long as we have a school board of such excellence as the Mayor hints we have, is there any real necessity for any change, particularly when the board welcomes the co-operation and support of the Parent-Teacher Association and the Plainfield Mothers' Association, two active and useful bodies?

We can warmly endorse the recommendations of Mayor Moy that an inspector of weights and measures be appointed; that the pernicious fee system be abolished; that a purchasing agent for city supplies be named; that the city judge's salary be increased; that substantial financial aid be given the hospital and last, but by no means least, that Park avenue from Second street to Front street be widened. Mayor Moy has done much for the city during the first year of his term and now that there is peace and concord between the executive and legislative branches of our government we look forward to a year of unprecedented advancement for the municipality.

The representatives of the Governments to the United States all failed to appear at the peace dinner in New York last Saturday night. That is not remarkable in view of the fact that Italy, Turkey, China, Russia and many nations in South America are in actual war, and England, France and Germany are busy trying to see how they can keep themselves out of war-like conflict.

The dove of peace does not seem to be having as happy a time as one might wish.

Half the battle for good times in business in 1912 will be found in the confidence that we are going to have them. Let us be thankful for the blessings we have.

Help us to give all the news, social and otherwise, by sending us any item which may interest you. We wish to print it all.

We greet our readers with an earnest wish for their prosperity and happiness in 1912.

It is good to make promises at the beginning of the year, but it better to keep them.

The strongest thing that President Taft has done is his Peace Treaty proposals.

PLAN SCHOOL EXAMINATION

include parts of speech and those modifications of them which are useful in enabling one to speak and write correct English. Special attention will be given to the correction of common errors in English.

The scope of the examination in arithmetic will include writing integers and common and decimal fractions; examples in addition, subtraction, mulitplication and division of integers and common and decimal fractions; use of the common aliquot parts and exercises in denominate numbers. This test will include simple problems involving the cost of an income on stocks, percentage and its application to problems and finding simple interest; to profit and loss, commercial or trade discount, commission, brokerage, insurance and taxes. It will also cover ratio and proportion, surface and contents of common plane figures and solids, omitting the sphere, pyramid and cone. Also, it will include common business forms, such as bills, receipts, promissory notes and checks.

The examination in English composition will test the ability of a pupil to write a paragraph or a brief composition upon some subject, within the range of his knowledge, activities or interests. Pupils also will be tested in their ability to write a letter correct in form and in sentence structure. In history the test will be confined to United States history and to its most important aspects. Very few dates—those universally recognized as the most important—will be called for. Isolated facts, or facts which are not a part of large topics will not be called for. The details of military campaign will be omitted, but the causes of wars and their results will be included, emphasis will be placed upon the growth of the nation in its industrial, economic and social aspects. It is believed, Dr. Kendall says, that one purpose of the study of history should be to make it clear how the progress of the nation from the beginning has been effected by the lives of great historical characters.

The test in geography will not be a mere test in locations. It will be confined in general to the United States and to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Germany, France, Russia, Italy, Austria-Hungary and Japan, together with a few of the most vital facts and their significance in the other parts of the world. Important features of the geography of New Jersey will be included. Outlining the test in geography, Dr. Kendall says:

Geography is not only a description of the earth's surface, but a study of the people who inhabit it, and their life as affected by climate and physical environment. The study should possess a human interest, showing the earth as the home of mankind and its adaption to man's activities.

RESOLUTIONS ON DEATH OF DR. WILLIAM BOONE.

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital last night passed these resolutions on the death of Dr. W. C. Boone:

Whereas, the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital have learned with profound regret of the death of Dr. William C. Boone, for many years a member of the Medical Staff, and desire to place upon the records of the Hospital a minute testifying to the high esteem in which he was held by the members of the Board and to the great loss which they have sustained;

Resolved, That in the death of Dr. William C. Boone, Muhlenberg Hospital has lost a valued friend and one who for nearly thirty years served on the Medical Staff with ability and honor. Courteous and generous of heart, he commanded the respect and esteem of all who knew him, and by his intelligence and industry was active at all times in the interests of the hospital; further

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread at length upon the records of Muhlenberg Hospital, and a copy be forwarded to the bereaved family as evidence of our sorrow and sympathy.

PAPER BAG SUBSTITUTE FOR THE POT AND PAN

A demonstration of paper bags as a substitute to pots and pans for cooking is being made at the Public Service office in the Stirling building on Park avenue, and will continue until Saturday night of this week. The public is invited and already the practibility, economy and efficiency of the plan have appealed to housewives to whom it has been explained by the expert cook in charge. Different articles that appear daily on home menus are prepared for inspection by visitors.

The bags have been scientifically and chemically treated preventing them burning and at the same time retaining all odors of the foul, fish, vegetable or fruit being cooked so that unless one was told it would be impossible to know that a temporary kitchen had been set up in the building. This same sealing process prevents any of the flavor escaping during the process and adds to the taste when served.

Fleet's World Trip.

The first of a series of special meetings for the week was held at the Temple Baptist church last night when Chaplain George E. T. Stevenson, U. S. N., gave his illustrated lecture on "A Trip Around the World with the American Fleet," in which he presented the missionary side of the world journey. The views were among the best yet seen here.

Exhibit Loving Cup.

The prize cup for the best pointer in Union and Somerset counties, presented by Peter Floersch and J. A. Staats, which was won by Dr. A. F. Carpenter's dog, "Spot," at the Plainfield Dog Show, is now on exhibition at the Queen City Hotel. The cup is known as the "Queen City Hotel Cup."

Elks' Club House.

Plans for the Elks new club house and ways and means for financing the erection of the proposed structure will be discussed at the regular meeting tonight when the building committee will render a report based on investigations as to cost and maintenance of Elks' clubs in other cities. A large turn out is expected.

ASSEMBLYMAN ANDERSON'S VIEWS ON NEW LEGISLATION.

The employers' liability act, the corrupt practices act, the election law, the equalization of taxes, together with good roads are important matters requiring legislation the coming year, according to the opinion of Assemblyman W. deLaR. Anderson. In an interview today, Mr. Anderson said that the election law should be changed, making it plain who is to bear the expenses of election, the county or municipality. He favors publishing the sample ballots three times at least.

GEORGE E. STILLMAN WEDS MRS. A. L. BIRGE.

George E. Stillman, of West Sixth street, who was married to Mrs. A. Louise Birge, of Providence, R. I., on Christmas Day, returned to Plainfield yesterday. The ceremony was performed at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Henry T. Arnold in Norwich, Conn., Mr. Arnold, brother-in-law of the bride, officiating.

James C. Hemphill, of Westerly, R. I., a brother-in-law of the groom, was the best man and Mrs. Henry T. Arnold was the matron-of-honor. Mr. and Mrs. Stillman spent several days at Atlantic City before returning to this city.

Mr. Stillman has been employed at the Potter Press Works for more than thirty years. He is Third ward member of the local Board of Assessors.

Michael Lyons Injured.

Michael Lyons, a driver for the Eastern Bottling Company, was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital this morning for an X-ray examination for a possible dislocation of the shoulder. Mr. Lyons made a stop on Spooner avenue yesterday and before he could get in the wagon his team ran away and in running after the rig he slipped and fell on the icy street, injuring his shoulder. The injury is not serious.

Y. M. C. A. Banquet Speaker.

Rev. John McDowell, a well known minister of Newark, will be the speaker at the annual banquet of the local Y. M. C. A., which will be held in the association rooms Thursday night, January 18, his subject being "The Church and the Social Situation." The work of the year will be reviewed by the president, J. E. Kimble.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur VanCleef, of East Millstone, removed yesterday to 450 Grant avenue.

CHARITY FIRST PRIZE EASSAY

last winter. Maybe you don't care about these poor slaves, but you do care about your children. Consumption is bred in tenements and sweatshops; consumption is carried in germ-laden clothing; consumption is easily caught. Some clothing is made in clean factories, and some stores sell it.

"At the next booth, a uniformed nurse explained baby foods, and the necessity for giving babies clean milk. During the summer of 1911, fresh air, good food, and wise care were provided by the King's Daughters' Camp for an average of 160 babies per week. In this nursing department, placards declared that neglected teeth are the cause of much poor health, and often the reason why children do not 'get on' in school.

"Next was a white-walled bedroom, well lighted, the spotless bed made hospital fashion; then a cluttered-up hole, guiltless of a window. A prize-fight picture adorned the dirty walls, once-white canvas shoes, a hat trimmed with pink roses, clothing, and heaps of junk strewed the floor and piled up in the corners. In such a room, on beds of rags, a sick woman and a child slept. The next room was in almost as much of a mess, the floor littered with oil cans, tinware, and dirt, the food, plates, and forks tumbled upon the table any old way. The walls had evidently been used as targets for the food the family didn't want. The next room, with plenty of light, a clear floor, and a neat table, was a distinct relief. Not far from a photograph of an uncovered meat stand in the dusty street, hung a card with this inscription:

" 'He never stops to wipe his feet,
But from the refuse in the street
He comes and crawls upon your meat.
Swat the fly!'

"The visitor paused astonished before a map, thickly dotted with black pins, of Plainfield and North Plainfield. In some sections the pins hid the white paper. 'Cases investigated by the Charity Organization Society since 1878—15,000 cases on record,' indicates what this Society does. What happens when a case of distress is reported to the Charity Organization Society? The Society's agents visit the destitute home, communicate with the hospital, the tuberculosis camp, the Children's Home, the police station, and the relatives, if any can be found. The poster in the Society's booth said:

" 'We're glad to help the worthy ones who suffer pain or ache,
But woe to any gent or dame who ever tries to fake.
The city's nurse attends to those who really are distressed,
And Dr. Kiely's Institute attends to all the rest.'

"Many children could not attend school all winter but for the shoes and clothing given them by the C. O. So., as the Society is called, 'for short.' Many babies would suffer but for the warm wraps, socks, and blankets, some of them made by the women of the Society. The little garden in the C. O. S. exhibit explained itself. Vacant lots in the great cities are 'farmed' by men who have consumption. In this way they have outdoor employment. The gardens grown from seeds given by the C. O. S. are a source of much pleasure and exercise in the open air.

"At the exit, a sign in the hospital booth caught the visitor's eye: 'The Hospital is only 17 per cent. a Pay Institution; it is 83 per cent. a Free Institution.' Although the Anti-Tuberculosis League meets the expenses of its camp, the hospital provides all the nurses. If the Public Welfare Exhibit convinces the citizens of Plainfield that 'the health of the individual is the cornerstone of the State,' it will have been worth while."

FIRST M. E. CHURCH WOMEN GIVE TEA FOR KITCHEN FUND.

One of the series of teas started last winter was held in Vincent chapel of the First M. E. church yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. These teas have been arranged for the benefit of the new kitchen fund and have been successful. Considering that everyone has been busy with holiday affairs, yesterday's affair was largely attended and greatly enjoyed.

There was a delightful informal program comprising vocal solos by Master James Dorr, piano duets by Miss Muriel Collins and Miss Marguerite VanZandt and whistling solos by Miss Edith Hamilton, including several encores.

—Juvenile cantata entitled "Uncle Sam Celebration," given by the Choir Boys of Bethel chapel, Thursday evening, Jan. 4, 1912, at 8 p. m. Proceeds for the benefit of the choir. Tickets 10c and 15c.

Leader of The Revolt In China

THE most important figure in the revolutionary movement in China is the commander in chief of the rebel forces, General Li Yuan Hung. General Li is under the average height and has pasted with his cue, as have great numbers of his followers. He has a very affable manner and speaks excellent English.

General Li is forty-six years old and a native of the province of Hupeh. He was educated in the Peiyang Naval college and participated in the Chinese-Japanese war. In the naval battle where the Chinese were disastrously defeated General Li was in command of one of the Chinese cruisers which were sunk and only saved his life by jumping overboard as the ship was sinking. Subsequently he was detailed to the army in Hupeh province to train the military and, coming to the attention of Li Hung Chang, was appointed as his aid and accompanied him on his trip around the world. After his return to China General Li, together with a small group of Chinese officers, took a course in military tactics in Japan, since which time he has been second in command of the provincial troops of Hupeh province.

In an interview on the situation General Li said:

"This revolution is a popular uprising against the Manchus, under whom the people of China have suffered enormous indignities for many years. The movement has been going on for over a year and came to a head when the former viceroy of Hupeh beheaded a number of innocent men merely on suspicion. I was second in command at Wuchang and had the confidence of my men. But I could restrain them no longer, and so the revolution started. Viceroy Jui was compelled to flee for his life, and practically the entire army came over to our side. I was elected commander in chief of the revolutionary forces. The people of China are now awake and will never cease to fight until the Peking government has surrendered.

"Our success has been due not so much to the fact of our fighting qualities as the desire of the government troops not to fire on their countrymen who have such a just and righteous cause.

"I believe it will be impossible for the Manchus to send a sufficient force to prevent our advance, and when I have the proper number of troops I intend to proceed to Peking and take the seat of the government. That will be the end of the revolution, and the Manchus will be compelled to leave China and we will establish our own government.

"To establish a republican form of government is our aim and desire. I have made some study of the republican governments of the world, and I believe China can best be governed by the people. We are a peaceful, law abiding country, and the people can be trusted with the government. Too long have we suffered from the oppression and corruption of the Manchus, who have done nothing for China, only for themselves. We want to place China among the powers, exploit her resources and treat with other nations as a nation and not be forced to the indignities that the Manchus have put upon us. We intend to be friendly with all foreign powers. All their interests will be protected to the best of our ability, and the treaties now in force and the land under foreign control will be respected. What we are fighting for is the chance to create in China a nation of equal opportunity, where life and property of all will be safe. Under the Peking government no one was safe, and if you came under the displeasure of the Manchus you were likely to lose your head without any trial or to disappear, and, no matter how hard your friends searched, they were unable to find any trace of you. This despotism will cease when we take over the government."

RUSSIA'S DOUBLE TARIFF SYSTEM

It May Lead to Difficulties With the United States.

AFTER NEXT DEC. 15.

With Termination of Treaty of 1832 We No Longer Have Guarantee of Most Favored Nation Treatment, and High Rates May Prevail.

Serious tariff difficulties will automatically arise between Russia and the United States with the termination of the treaty of 1832 on Dec. 15 next unless by that time a new treaty has been negotiated or Russia goes out of her way to grant rate concessions to this country.

These difficulties will grow out of the double tariff system of the Russian government. One set of schedules is to be applied to goods coming from countries with which Russia has treaties containing "most favored nation" clauses. The other rates are to be applied to imports from countries with which Russia has not in force any guarantee of "most favored nation" treatment. The latter rates are known as the "general tariff" of Russia, while the former are called the "conventional tariff." The conventional tariff was built up through concessions to various countries granting reductions on goods of a particular class. Through long operation of this system and the extension of the "most favored nation" treatment these concessions, granted a few at a time, have become the tariff rates ordinarily applied.

With the termination of the treaty of 1832 the United States will no longer have any guarantee of the most favored nation tariff treatment, and under the ordinary interpretation of the Russian tariff law the general tariff rates, considerably higher than those of the conventional tariff, will be applied to American goods.

A Tariff War.

If this is done and the maximum and minimum provision of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law is still in force President Taft will be obliged to revoke the proclamation granting minimum rates to Russian goods. The minimum rate concession is by law to remain in force only so long as the Russian government makes no discrimination against American goods. The application of the general tariff rates by Russia will undoubtedly be construed as discrimination, enforcing the revocation of the minimum American tariff rates.

This situation would be nothing less than a tariff war, the effect of which, of course, can hardly be foreseen at this time.

For the year ended June 30, 1911, the value of American exports to Russia was about twice that of Russian goods brought into this country. Exports to Russia, consisting chiefly of agricultural implements, unmanufactured cotton and steel, were valued at $24,704,049. The value of Russian goods imported into the United States, principally hides, skins and unmanufactured wool, were valued at $12,203,462.

State Department's Plans.

It is the intention of the state department to make no effort to press the negotiation of a new treaty with Russia for a considerable time. It is believed that nothing but embarrassment to both sides could result from endeavoring to open the discussion of the Jewish passport question and a new treaty at present. It is intended that Russia shall have a long time to forget about any momentary resentment of the agitation in the United States.

Above all else the department would wish that Russia herself would at some time within the next twelve months offer to begin negotiations of a new treaty. It is hardly expected, however, that the Russian government will prove to be so good natured and helpful.

If favorable opportunity presents itself within the next year the Russian government will be invited to negotiate a naturalization treaty with the United States. For more than fifty years Russia has declined to negotiate such a treaty, as she still adheres to the doctrine of perpetual allegiance and does not recognize the right of her subjects to become citizens of another country and absolve themselves of all the obligations of Russian citizenship. If such a treaty could be negotiated it is believed most of the passport troubles would automatically disappear.

TO HARPOON SUBMARINES.

Government Working on Novel Plan to Protect Battleships.

The navy department is at work on a system of defense against an attack by submarine boats, which, it is predicted, will prove most damaging to this latest type of sea fighters.

The details of the new system are carefully guarded by the department, but when it is perfected battleships will be able to take care of themselves against this type of destroyer, the officials think.

According to the reports, the idea is that of an officer who knows the methods of whalers. It is said that a harpoon has been designed which can be discharged from a gun into a submarine. The harpoon is to be attached to a steel cable so the submarines may be located after being speared.

"The Lack of Money"

said Mark Twain, "is the root of all evil." Certainly the lack of ready money at the right time is responsible for many failures, hardships and lost opportunities.

DEMOCRATIC COUNCILMEN PRESENTED WITH BOUQUETS.

The organization meeting of the Common Council, Monday night, attracted a number of interested citizens, including a large delegation from the Plainfield Democratic Club. They were accompanied by Frank J. Shattle and Edward T. Lynch, each carrying a large bouquet of flowers. One was presented to Councilman Patrick J. Reville and the other to Councilman Fred Endress, the two Democratic members. When the two new men took their seats they were greeted with hearty applause.

Among others noticed in the gallery were City Treasurer W. F. Arnold, former Councilman Robert L. Lee, aspirant for the city clerkship; John H. Cose, chairman of the City Republican committee; Andrew McCardell and former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who was accompanied by his son, Harvey Fisk.

Decision Favors Kipsey.

J. Brognard Betts, of North Plainfield, deputy commissioner of education, has informed the school board of Warren township that, according to a ruling of the State School Commission, Grover F. Kipsey should be retained as school supervisor and that he was illegally discharged. Mr. Kipsey was removed from the office and Edmund E. Sage appointed in his place. The township school board will meet Saturday night to consider the matter.

Basketball.

The basketball tossers of the North Plainfield High School won an uphill game, Saturday, in the third period of play, from their old rivals, the city High School, in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. It was not until after seven extra minutes of play that the borough boys nailed the victory. "Bill" Taylor rang the winning basket, making the final score 32-30.

Mrs. John V. Beekman, of West Eighth street, with her two sisters, Mrs. George Schumacher, of Clifton Park, Weehawken, N. J.; Mrs. Rollin E. FUNERAL SERVICE FOR MRS. MARY B. SMALLEY.

The funeral service of Mrs. Mary B. Smalley was held at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William T. Campbell on Somerset street and was largely attended by relatives and friends. There were many floral tributes. Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of which Mrs. Smalley was a member, officiated. The pall-bearers were Julius J. Stahl, Howard Woolston, William McCullough, William G. Debele, William Schenck and David Allen. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

New Year's Service.

The annual New Year's service was held at the Calvary Baptist church, Monday morning, with Rev. G. W. Bailey, pastor, in charge. The topic for the sermon was "The Goodness of God." At noon the annual dinner was given to the poor under the auspices of the women of the church. Mrs. G. W. Bailey arranged the decorations.

The Junior Epworth League of the First M. E. church will resume its meeting on Friday.

UNION COUNTY'S SHERIFF DROPS FIVE CONSTABLES

There was some surprise expressed in the Union county court at Elizabeth yesterday when it was learned that Sheriff Wright had dismissed five of the twelve court constables, including Peter V. Weaver, of this city. It has been the custom in the past to hire twelve constables for the entire year at $3.50 a day. This year the whole force will be subject to call.

When the courts are in session all of the constables will be on duty, but during the dull season only seven will be hired. The five constables who have been laid off temporarily are Peter V. Weaver, of this city; Robert Walpole, of Scotch Plains; Mr. Petries, of Linden; Messrs. Eckhardt and Teipel, of Elizabeth.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT AND THE PRESIDENCY

His Position Is the Big Question In the Political Situation.

Has Said He Is Not a Candidate—Silent as to Whether He Would Accept.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

FOR the past few weeks the big question in presidential politics has concerned Theodore Roosevelt. The colonel's smashing Outlook editorial on the prosecution of the steel trust, the undercurrent of talk for his candidacy at the recent meeting of the Republican national committee, the placing of his name on the primary ballot in Nebraska and the Sheldon-Roosevelt correspondence regarding the Harriman campaign fund episode of 1904 have all contributed to this result. Any man with half an eye can see that the occurrence of such a sequence of events at this particular time is vastly significant. The obvious interpretation of the incidents and the one adopted by most newspapers and politicians is that Colonel Roosevelt is a candidate for the presidency. In my own view this is not strictly accurate. Mr. Roosevelt is not a candidate in the ordinary sense nor under the circumstances can he be. He is not in a position to become an avowed candidate.

Is not the correct way to put the question something like this—not that Colonel Roosevelt is a candidate, for he has repeatedly answered that in the negative, but would he accept the nomination if tendered to him? That may seem a distinction without a difference, but it is a distinction that must be made if we are to get anywhere. Putting the question in this way, the answer given by many of those who have talked with Mr. Roosevelt and by most of those who have studied the situation is in the affirmative. If the nomination comes to him they believe he will accept. But it will be worse than time wasted to ask him if he is a candidate either now or at any time up to the meeting of the convention, nor is it believed that his friends will follow this plan of campaign. Their attitude will be that he should be nominated in spite of himself.

No "Cinch" as Yet.

There is at least one obstacle in the way. It is a large object, weighing something more than 300 pounds. Sure! You have guessed it—Taft! The friends of the president claim that he already has the nomination cinched. Apparently they have made some people believe it, but never be cocksure before the horses start. Claiming is a part of the political game. Every campaign manager has a large, lusty and leather lunged claims bureau. Everybody likes to go with the winner, and the power of suggestion is mighty.

The simple fact remains that no delegates to the Republican national convention have been elected up to this writing. No primaries have been held. Now, we can say what we please about politicians controlling conventions, but the fact remains that public opinion makes itself felt in conventions, despite the manipulations of politicians. This is true not only in the states that have presidential primaries, but to a less degree in those using the old methods of choosing delegates. The politicians themselves are guided by public opinion. That is good politics.

With no delegates elected and with no clear line on public opinion, it is manifestly absurd to claim at this time that anybody has the nomination cinched. More than ever before the actual voters are going to make the nominations in this year 1912. When the voters of the Republican party have been heard from in a definite way it will be time to talk of "cinches" and not before.

Once let the Republican voters of the United States get the idea that Theodore Roosevelt will accept the nomination if it is tendered him and it is easy to imagine what will break loose. Up to this time these voters have been more or less apathetic. The bulk of them have accepted it as a matter of course that Mr. Taft would be renominated, but that he would have a hard fight for re-election. Nothing about this program has stirred the blood of the average party man. He has been lukewarm, not to say indifferent. But let Mr. Roosevelt's personality once be injected into the canvass and all that will change in the twinkling of an eye, for there is something about the colonel that arouses every man to fight—it may be for him or it may be against him—but, anyway, to fight.

Roosevelt In the Running.

In the opinion of most political students the concurrence of events in the past few months has injected Mr. Roosevelt's personality into the canvass. He is in the field and will remain there until or unless he removes himself. Nor will any mere statement that he is not a candidate be sufficient to take him out of the running. Nothing less will suffice than the positive statement that he will not accept the nomination.

Will he make such a statement? On this point the whole country is frankly skeptical, and I must confess I share the skepticism. The question, then, narrows itself to this: Colonel Roosevelt has said and will continue to say that he is not a candidate. He has not said and probably will not say that he will refuse a nomination. Under these conditions can his friends nominate him?

President Taft is frankly a candidate. His attitude, as reflected by his followers, is that if any Republican is elected on the record of this administration he should be the man, and if any Republican is defeated on the record of this administration he still should be the man. Behind him is the unwritten law that a president who has done reasonably well should be renominated. As a matter of fact, every Republican president has been named for a second term, with the exception of Johnson, Hayes and Arthur. Hayes declined a renomination, and Johnson and Arthur became president through assassination and had against them a powerful faction of the party. Behind Mr. Taft also is the immense power of the administration.

There is another factor in the situation. Senator La Follette is the candidate of the progressives and will have several states behind him—how many it is impossible yet to state. At the time of the national committee meeting it was declared that the candidacy of the Wisconsin man had taken a sudden slump. Those who made this statement evidently did not reflect that the national committee was chosen in the convention of 1908 and was therefore a Taft body that does not correctly reflect present day conditions. Despite these press reports, whether inspired or not, the truth is that Senator La Follette's candidacy is still very much alive, as will be seen the moment the returns begin coming in from the actual voters.

A number of Roosevelt's former supporters are now behind La Follette, notably Senator Jonathan Bourne and Gifford Pinchot. Some of the more ardent progressives are even charging that the Roosevelt candidacy is designed to hurt the Wisconsin senator since it will divide the insurgent vote. That is a knife which will cut both ways, however, as many conservatives are also lining up behind the colonel. One of the anomalies of politics is that since the Outlook editorial on the steel trust there are hints that Wall street would accept Roosevelt.

Thus three serious obstacles appear in the path of the Roosevelt candidacy. These are the opposition of the administration, the opposition of the Progressive league and the further handicap that Roosevelt himself declares he is not a candidate. Can he be nominated despite these? If this is too much to predict, can his followers gain sufficient support to deadlock the convention and name him in a stampede?

For or Against Instructions.

The fight is narrowing down to one between instructed and uninstructed delegations. The friends of the president will insist on ironclad Taft instructions. Since the colonel declares he is not a candidate his friends cannot follow a like course and insist on Roosevelt instructions. The most they can do is to oppose instructions for Taft. A negative fight is a hard one to make. It is much easier to rally an army for somebody than it is against somebody. Moreover, it is easier to marshal a host behind a man who says he wants to lead than it is behind one who is uncertain or who says distinctly that he does not want to lead.

The president's own state of Ohio is now one of the chief battlegrounds. It is difficult to nominate any man with his own state against him. The progressives are strongly organized in Ohio and recently carried the constitutional convention. Walter F. Brown, chairman of the Republican state committee, is openly for Roosevelt. The district delegates are elected by primaries. The voice of Ohio in this contest may be the voice of the nation.

The re-entry of Colonel Roosevelt into the political field promises to make this an interesting and gingery year. Already two or three persons have been violently hurled into the Ananias club. There have long been rumors of a break between President Taft and his predecessor. These have persisted since Taft refused to appoint Elihu Root and James R. Garfield to his cabinet and ousted Gifford Pinchot. Whatever may be the personal feeling of Mr. Roosevelt toward his successor, however, he has not hesitated to criticise the administration on its conservation policy, on the arbitration treaties and on the prosecution of the steel trust. Moreover, he has made his criticisms in language that showed deep feeling. If there is anything in Roosevelt's heart it must come out. He can no more keep it concealed than a volcano can keep from an eruption. These recent occurrences lend color to the rumors that have floated down to us from 1909. Now we are coming so close to the contest that there must be a showdown. In such a situation are packed all kinds of possibilities. Is one of them the return or attempted return of Theodore Roosevelt to the White House?

THE CAUSE OF THIS MIGHTY SLAUGHTER

It is imperative that I oust this mountain of merchandise with which I am overburdened. The BACKWARD SEASON and DISASTROUS WEATHER CONDITIONS have created a condition which never occurred before. Anticipating a large Fall and Winter business I bought heavily and must unload and must sustain an immediate loss now or risk a GREATER LOSS LATER. So I perfer to face the situation squarely and start this MIGHTY SALE NOW, at a time when all my friends and patrons can benefit to the fullest by this great bargain treat. The loss I sustain during this sale will be fully compensated by the ACCOMPLISHMENT of my purpose, TURNING my SURPLUS sock into CASH as quickly as possible. Bear in mind I am not forced to do THIS but use this method of giving values that are out of the ordinary to stimulate my future business. For 10 years I have been established in Plainfield, and everybody knows MY WORD HAS BEEN MY BOND. I will continue to do business in Plainfield on the same honorable lines that heretofore marked my business career.. This is not an ordinary sale, but an extraordinary event. A strenuous campaign of Bargain Giving, annihilating high prices. FACTS AND FIGURES WILL TELL THE STORY RATHER THAN WORDS. PRICES HAVE BEEN SHATTERED BEYOND RECOGNITION. A powerful, persistent purpose urges me to make this mighty sacrifice, consequently there is only one remedy, that is to CUT and SLASH PRICES that will be the talk of PLAINFIELD. This is not a store to build up PROFITS, but a store to BUILD UP a Royal Corps of friends and patrons. Paint that Stays Painted
That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

A LUCKY SHOT.

It Helped the Captain Out of an Embarrassing Situation.

In the good old days the revenue cutters carried small rifled cannon, but they were only used to fire salutes with and now and then break up a derelict. The gunners were never expected to hit anything. When they used the guns on floating wrecks the cutter would be alongside, and the master gunner would bang away until he'd smashed the wreck or used up his ammunition. No one ever thought of keeping tab.

Captain E. P. Berthoff told a story the other day which illustrates the conditions which formerly prevailed on the "treasury fleet." When it is a matter of running down smugglers or putting an end to poaching or mapping a bad channel or destroying derelicts the cutters average 100 per cent of efficiency.

"Few gunners could hit a target," he said. "Really there was little need. They didn't use a loaded shell once in a lifetime. But now and then the board of inspectors came on board, and then every one was worried and nervous until the ordeal was over. The inspectors visited the cutter commanded by a friend of mine. He ordered out the firing squad.

"'Bang!' went the rifle. The projectile hit the target squarely in the center.

"'Cease firing,' ordered the captain happily. And he turned to the inspectors, pleased as Punch. 'There's no use wasting ammunition,' he said. 'Our gunners can do that every time.'"—Herbert Corey in Cincinnati Times-Star.

OLD BAVARIAN TOWNS.

Many of the Smaller Ones Merely Walled Farm Villages.

In old Bavarian districts many of the smaller towns are merely walled farm villages. These settlements of agriculturists reproduce the ancient laager for all. Each is built in the form of a parallelogram, the shorter sides having each a gateway, with double gates, over which rise central square watchtowers capped with conical red roofs. A narrow road or street runs from gate to gate, with old half timber houses set back close to the inclosing wall. The ground floor of these houses affords stabling for cattle, and from these stables the cows are driven out through the town gates in the morning and brought in at night. Townships like this are merely clusters of houses intimately connected with the farm lands that lie beyond their gates. The peasantry, whether peasant proprietors or allotment leaseholders, go in and out to their work.

In eastern Bavaria, toward the Danube, where the better class farms are to be seen, one finds farmhouses of wood, a great shingled roof covering—as in Holland—not only the large living apartment, with many bedrooms, but also the stables for the horses and cattle. On such farms much of the farm work is done by girls, who usually wear short petticoats, tight bodices and kerchiefs on their heads. Most of the men are either in the army or working at trades.

Chinese Music.

All Chinese music is weird and screeching. They say their pleasure comes in exciting, not soothing, the nerves. They have flutes, horns, violins, mouth organs, guitars and table harps to be played with a loaded feather, which last make a delightful music akin to our mandolins. Every business house has its musical corps (just as we organize company baseball clubs), who in the evening are supposed to amuse the master, who lives on the story above the comprado's house. Seated on the counters which at night are also their beds, the fokis essay with a vengeance discords which are unquestionably disturbing to the occidental nerves, but for that reason the phlegmatic Chinese find them exhilarating.—J. S. Thompson's "The Chinese."

"Mad," but He Knew It.

FitzGerald, the author, was once walking down Church street, Woodbridge, in company with a friend on the way to the Deben to go aboard his yacht. The day was hot, and he walked bareheaded and barefooted, his shoes slung by their laces across his shoulders, his clothes untidy and ill fitting. At the four cross ways, where the postoffice now stands, was gathered a party of yokels, who made the strange figure the butt for coarse wit. "Ah, bor," exclaimed one in the singsong Suffolk vernacular, "'e's as mad as a hare in March." FitzGerald turned to his friend, having overheard the remark. "Yes," he said, "the fellow is right, but I'm sane enough to know that I'm mad."—T. P.'s London Magazine.

Love and a Breakfast.

"John," she said to her husband, who was grumbling over his breakfast, "your love has grown cold."

"No, it hasn't," he snapped, "but my breakfast has."

"That's just it. If your love hadn't grown cold you wouldn't have noticed that your breakfast had."

Legal Lore.

"As a lawyer how would you advise me to sue for a girl's hand?"

"Take the case to court and ask for immediate trial."—Baltimore American.

They Sink Backward.

"Hippopotamuses are the only water animals that sink backward when going under the surface of the water," said a keeper in the Central park menagerie to a group of visitors in front of the animals' tank.

"Aquatic animals, as a rule, dive into the water head first and make more or less splashing. But the hippo goes down so quietly that if a hunter were standing near the edge of an African pool the big river horse would disappear without attracting attention. They keep up the custom in captivity, where there is no necessity of guarding against enemies. As they go down they throw up their noses and fill their lungs. I have timed this specimen and found that she can stay under water for five minutes. She then comes up with a snort and takes a fresh supply of air. Perhaps she could stay down longer if she was trying to avoid danger."—New York Sun.

Believed in Closed Windows.

An old Yale man, giving his reminiscences of President Noah Porter, recalled a talk the kindly gentleman gave to his freshman class. "Young gentlemen," said the president, "the air of New Haven is especially heavy and damp at night, owing to the proximity of the city to the sea, and I wish to advise you always to keep your windows closed at night; otherwise your health will be likely to suffer." That was the advice of the president of the institution. It is significant of the extent to which ideas change with the years. Now everybody is for out of doors air, and the person who followed the advice of President Porter would be condemned out of hand; and yet, if we are not mistaken, that gentleman managed to live out his threescore years and ten and do them about eleven better. He was born in 1811 and died in 1892. He believed in closed windows.—Hartford Courant.

Whistler Was a Dandy.

If taking infinite pains with his appearance means dandyism, then Whistler was a dandy. The very word pleased him, and he used it often, in American fashion, to express perfection or charm or beauty. Never was any man more particular about his person and his dress. He was as careful of his hair as a woman, though there was no need of the curling tongs with which he has been reproached; the difficulty was to restrain his curls and keep them in order. The white lock gave just the right touch. However fashion changed, he always wore the mustache and little imperial which other West Point men of his generation retained through life. Even his thick, bushy eyebrows were trained, and they added to the humorous or sardonic expression of the deep blue eyes from which many shrank.—Pennell's "Life of Whistler."

Welsh Bulls.

Ireland's position as the country in which "bulls" blossom best is being seriously challenged. It was a Welsh member of parliament who crushingly remarked to an opposition member: "The honorable member has attempted to throw a bombshell at the government, but in the hands of the chancellor of the exchequer it was turned into a cocked hat long before it was thrown."

It was also a Welsh member, though not the same one, who, speaking against a proposal to fortify London, began earnestly with: "Our navy is our only defense. If our navy temporarily left the seas"— And then he had to stop. Delighted members, with visions of battleships swooping over green fields or climbing over housetops, were in a roar, and it was some minutes before business could proceed.—London Answers.

Ions Are Very Small.

The smallest piece of matter is called the ion. It is so small that a person could not imagine that anything could be smaller. It is so small that its identity is lost in its effect. It is the point where solid matter resolves itself into a form of electricity. Now, think how small that is from this experiment: If the ions in a toy balloon, full of gas, were counted out at the rate of a hundred per minute it would take 100,000,000 persons 4,000,000 years to count them. The fact that the human intellect can discover this fact is quite as startling as the fact itself. This seems to be getting on the edge of material creation, and if the ion could be further divided we would have to get over into the spirit world to do it, for there possibly its last analysis only can be reached.—Ohio State Journal.

Over the Phone.

"He hasn't slept all night, doctor," said Mrs. Blinks over the phone, describing her husband's symptoms, "and this morning he complains of aches in his bones and a general headachy feeling. Is there anything I can do?"

Just then the wires crossed with the phone connection of the dog fancier.

"Sure!" came the response. "Bring him in this afternoon and I'll cut his ears for you."—Pittsburgh Press.

Two Evils.

There are two things in life that a sage must preserve at every sacrifice—the coats of his stomach and the enamel of his teeth. Some evils admit of consolations; there are no comforters for dyspepsia and the toothache.—Bulwer-Lytton.

More Like It.

"Do you wish to call your husband up on the phone?"

"No, I don't. I want to call him down."—Exchange.

Despair alone makes guilty men be bold.—Coleridge

BOSTON HARBOR FROZE.

But That Didn't Keep the Britannia From Sailing on Time.

Boston harbor froze over in January of 1844, and the advertised sailing of the Britannia, then in dock, seemed surely to be impossible. But the merchants of Boston would not have it so. They met and voted to cut a way, at their own expense, through the ice, that the steamer might sail practically on time.

The contract for cutting the necessary channels was given to merchants engaged, like Frederick Tudor, in the export of ice, but not ice cut from the harbor. Their task was to cut within the space of three days a channel about ten miles long. For tools they had the best machinery used in cutting fresh water ice, and horsepower was employed. The ice was from six to twelve inches in thickness.

As the Advertiser of Feb. 2, 1844, described the scene: "A great many persons have been attracted to our wharfs to witness the operations and the curious spectacle of the whole harbor frozen over, and the ice has been covered by skaters, sleds and even sleighs. Tents and booths were erected upon the ice, and some parts of the harbor bore the appearance of a Russian holiday scene."

On Feb. 3 the work was done, and the Britannia, steaming slowly through the lane of open water, lined on either side by thousands of cheering spectators, made her way to the sea.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

It Has Frequently Expelled Members Legally Qualified to Sit.

The assumption made in more than one daily journal that the house of commons cannot expel a member who is "legally" qualified to sit is not warranted by precedent, the only authority to which the commons bow, says an English writer.

In the eighteenth century the south sea bubble caused many expulsions, although the members' defense had not been heard in the law courts. One of the victims was Chancellor of the Exchequer Aislabie, credited with having bagged £250,000 from the public. In addition to expulsion, he was sent to the Tower and ordered to refund his booty. An Irish peer was expelled for directing a lottery, while for organizing a "charitable association" of shady habits Sir Robert Sutton and two others were shut out in 1730. Steele of the Tatler was prohibited the house for "maliciously insinuating that the Protestant succession in the house of Hanover is in danger under her majesty's administration."

But perhaps the oddest reason for closing the doors of the house of commons upon a man is to be found in the case of Mr. Asgill, whose sin was that of writing a treatise "On the Possibility of Avoiding Death."—Philadelphia Ledger.

An Odd Incident of War.

In the Philippine portion of his book "The Memories of Two Wars" General Funston tells of a unique instance at the siege of Malabon: "Company L was firing a few volleys, and one of the men, having just discharged his piece, felt a second blow against his shoulder, it being almost as hard as the kick of the gun. Upon trying to reload it was found that the breech of the piece could not be opened, and it was laid aside to be examined by daylight, which was done in the presence of a number of us officers. Upon forcing the breech open it was found that the base of the copper shell of the cartridge that had been fired just before the weapon had been disabled had been shot away, while mixed all up in the breech mechanism we found the remains of the steel jacket and the lead filling of a Mauser bullet. There was a very pronounced dent on the muzzle of the piece. What had happened was that while the man had the gun extended in the firing position a bullet had gone down the muzzle. This weapon is now in the Army Ordnance museum in Washington."

The Wettins of England.

If the king of England were to renounce the throne and resolve to become an ordinary citizen he would be called George Wettin. How does the name Wettin come to be the king's surname? This is the answer:

Queen Victoria married Albert, duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, of the senior branch of the house of Saxony. The family name by which this house, dating from the middle of the tenth century, came to be known afterward was Wettin, and this was and is the surname of both branches—the Ernestine and Albertine—of the house of Saxony. The name comes from the castle of Wettin, near Magdeburg, which claimed Wittekind as the founder of the race.—London Answers.

Preaching and Practice.

The college instructor should take pains to practice what he preaches.

One member of a class in English composition brought his theme to the professor after recitation hour in order that the professor might read a marginal correction which he had written and which the pupil had been entirely unable to make out.

"Why," explained the professor, "that says, 'Write more plainly!'"—Youth's Companion.

An Eye to Business.

"I want to marry you," said the rising young author bluntly.

"Why?" coyly asked the great heiress, preparing to listen to his impassioned confession.

"Well," he replied, "it would be a great advertisement for me."

Human foresight often leaves its proudest possessor only a choice of evils.—Colton.

"Square Pot" Boilers for Service and Heat

Boynton Square Pot boilers outlive the ordinary make by virtue of their superior construction and better materials. They give most heat because none can escape until its full duty has been discharged.

This sectional view shows how directly the fire comes in contact with interior water surfaces, thus giving rapid circulation with free steaming. It is equipped with the famous square fire pot, patented by the BOYNTON FURNACE CO.

This square pot increases the effective radiating surface 15%, which greatly mimimizes the cost of heating.

OUR MOTHER TONGUE.

An Expressive Sentence in Which It Was Badly Twisted.

The professor of English, who was taking a vacation trip on horseback through the hills, had occasion to make notes of a good many quaint and interesting expressions employed by the sturdy mountaineers. The one that pleased him most was a striking use of the little word "but."

The party had ridden for hours and had not found a single inn. They were hungry, and one of the guides suggested that it might be possible to get a bite to eat at one of the mountaineers' huts.

"I know you can get corn bread there," he said.

The professor volunteered to go with the guide to a hut high upon the mountain side in quest of the corn bread. A dilapidated garden fence surrounded the hut, and when the gate squeaked on its hinges a dog began barking. Simultaneously a fat woman edged her way through the door and approached the men at the gate.

"What d' yo'-all want?" she called.

"Madam," said the professor, "would you be so kind as to tell us whether we can get any corn bread here?"

"Corn bread!"

"Yes, corn bread," he repeated. "We'd like to buy some of you if you have any."

"Corn bread? Corn bread, did yo' say?" Then she chuckled to herself, and her manner grew more amiable. "Why, if corn bread's all yo' want, come right in, for that's just what I hain't got nothing else on hand but."—Boston Herald.

SINGSONG GIRLS.

They Are to China What the Geishas Are to Japan.

"Singsong" girls of China are first cousins to the geishas of Japan. These young ladies vary in age from sixteen to thirty and are chosen for their physical and their artistic attractiveness. The singsong girls are habited in coat and trousers of the finest silk, satin or brocade. The former is cut very much in the style of a French ouvrier's blouse, and the latter are cylindrical, falling to the ankles and disclosing the finest silk hosiery and the daintiest embroidered shoes.

At an understood interval one of the singsong girls comes forward to play an instrumental solo. It is more or less a fantasia on two notes, the pitch lying at about E in the treble clef, with squeaky high excursions. No sheet of music is unfolded, the Chinese professional singer being expected to know the words as well as the music of at least 500 ballads. There are sure to be solos, duets and trios, and here the male orchestra comes in with fine enthusiasm in accompanying the singers.

Sometimes there is a tremendous racket in the midst of a most pathetic episode, which prevents you entirely from gathering the meaning of the song. But custom has sanctioned these outbreaks, which are understood of the Celestials, though it is certain no western star singer would put up with them at any price.—Chicago News.

When Rhymes Come Hard.

Matthew Arnold complained of the unmusical sound of the names of many of his countrymen. But an American is astonished by the substantial musical quality of countless English names. A list of "first year" students at one of the English colleges for women contains hardly a name that lacks euphony, and many of them, like the following, are a "treat" to the ear: Laetitia Helen Alford, Alice Senga Margaret Bryson, Ethel Muriel Meredith. But is any name quite so musical as Meredith, and has any name so ravishing a connotation? An English journalist some weeks ago set himself the task of finding a rhyme for it and produced "out-Herodeth," which was clever if not affording a perfect concord.—Detroit Free Press.

Siam's Amazon Guard.

Siam is one of the few countries which boast of a corps of women police. The members of this amazon guard are all old and ugly. They wear uniforms, though they are not armed. Their chief duty is to act as gate keepers of the inner, or women's, palace at Bangkok. They follow any stranger who enters the palace and remain with him until he takes his departure. Men who have business inside the palace—doctors, architects, carpenters, electric light fitters, etc., enter the palace freely, but are always accompanied by some of the Amazon guard. The palace has some difficulty in recruiting these guards, as the work is hard and the pay poor, and the qualification—uncomplimentary.—London Standard.

It Depended.

"Do you believe in capital punishment?" asked the lawyer who was examining the candidiates for the jury.

"Well, that depends."

"Depends on what?"

"Oh, the defendant. If she is that good looking young woman who sits at your left, I don't."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Stung.

"You look worried, old man. What's wrong?"

"I was stung by an adder this afternoon."

"Heavens! How did that happen?"

"The bank clerk told me that my account was overdrawn."—Lippincott's.

The Difference.

The impecunious—It is just as easy to love a girl with money as to love one without it. The Heiress—But it isn't so easy to get her.—London Tit-Bits.

In Japan the Rich Pay More.

A common complaint made by tourists in Japan is that they are obliged to pay for everything far higher prices than the natives are charged, or, in other words, that because they are foreigners they are being fleeced, but a glance at the social conditions by which the people have been educated would reveal the curious fact that throughout Japan's long period of isolation it was an accepted principle that the rich must live for the sake of the poor, and prices have always been based upon the purchaser's rank in society or upon his presumed ability to pay. This understanding remains largely in force today, being fully recognized and acted upon by all favored classes throughout the empire.

The occidental, coming from lands where the reverse practically holds good—the poor living for the sake of the rich—naturally complains of being robbed, as from his point of view he really is, but it is not because he is a foreigner, but because, being a tourist, he is presumably wealthy.—Arthur May Knapp in the Atlantic.

Saved the Crown Jewels.

A very romantic adventure once befell the Scottish crown jewels while they were deposited for safety in Dunottar castle. This stronghold was besieged by Cromwell so hotly that the little garrison decided to surrender. On the eve of yielding the wife of Ogilvie, the commander of the beleaguered castle, managed, with the aid of the wife of the local minister, to elude the besiegers and get the jewels away. The latter were buried under the pulpit in the parish church and lay there till the restoration, though the minister and his wife were tortured to disclose the place where the jewels were hidden. Ogilvie was afterward rewarded with a baronetcy, and Keith, who stoutly declared he had seen them in the possession of the exiled King Charles II., was made an earl. But the faithful minister and his wife went unrewarded.

Old Superstitions.

It is only when we begin to investigate the origin of certain old customs and superstitions that we gain any real idea of how deeply rooted in men's minds during the dark and middle ages was the fear of the supernatural and particularly of evil spirits. To this day in a certain country the cottagers after the Saturday morning scrubbing take a piece of chalk and draw a rough geometrical pattern round the edge of the threshold stone. This they do, not knowing that their ancestors thought it a sure way of keeping the devil from entering the house. Another custom, often noticeable in country parishes, is the reluctance to bury the dead on the north side of the churchyard. This is because evil spirits were always supposed to lurk on that side of the church precincts.—London Spectator.

The Gentle Sex.

An eminent English statistician has calculated that of two children, a boy and a girl, born on the same day the boy will have only seventeen chances against eleven of living one year, while the girl will have twenty-one chances against eleven. From five to fifteen there appears to be but little difference, but from fifteen to nineteen the boy will have 269 chances and the girl 277 chances of living against one of death. If a thousand ablebodied men and a thousand ablebodied women be armed and equipped for battle and ordered on a long, weary march more men, says this authority, would probably reach their destination, while more women would be found exhausted, but more men would be found dead by the wayside.—New York American.

A Connoisseur.

A great painter was asked by his little son, "Father, what is a connoisseur?"

"Well, my son," the father answered, "did you notice that tall, white haired gentleman at my studio tea yesterday?"

"The one with the sable lined overcoat, father? Oh, yes! I noticed him."

"Well, my son, he is a connoisseur."

"But how do you know he's a connoisseur, father?"

"By his actions, my son."

"But, father, he acted like every one else at the tea, didn't he?"

"Certainly not, my son! Certainly not! The others drank my Russian tea, ate my foie gras sandwiches and took leave. But he—he bought a picture!"

A Biting Retort.

Lady Wortley Montagu, one of England's most brilliant women, incurred Pope's undying hatred in the following manner: The poet, who was deformed and very dark and addicted to questioning everybody, once asked her to define an interrogation mark. She defined it as "a little, crooked black thing that asks questions."

Particular Woman.

Judge—She insisted on having a woman lawyer secure her divorce.

"Why was she so particular?"

"She did not want to go contrary to that portion of the marriage ceremony that reads, 'Let no man put asunder.'"—New York Herald.

His Use For Soap.

"Lady," said Meandering Mike, "would you lend me a cake of soap?"

"Do you mean to tell me you want soap?"

"Yes'm. Me partner's got de hiccups an' I want to scare him."—Washington Star.

Ignorance.

Have the courage to be ignorant of a great number of things, in order to avoid the calamity of being ignorant of everything.—Sydney Smith.

MECCA THE SACRED.

A Shrine That Draws One-seventh of the Human Race.

Although one of the most inaccessible cities on earth, Mecca each year has visitors in such numbers that it must be ranked in this particular with London and New York. Even the world's metropolis on the Thames can boast no such cosmopolitan character as is imparted to this mysterious city in the wilderness of Arabia by the myriads of pilgrims who, at the cost of incredible pains, annually crowd into its confines.

This city is the oldest place of resort in existence, yet of all the millions who have visited it not a score of Christians are known to have come out alive. No flag of citizenship would save a man's life were he known to be a Christian within the sacred precincts of the city where the prophet himself decreed that no unbeliever should set foot.

Of the 225,000,000 Moslems in the world only 15,500,000 live under the Turkish flag, yet most of them acknowledge the sultan of Turkey as their caliph, the successor of the prophet. As Mohammed shrewdly foresaw, the Mecca pilgrimage binds together his disciples into a unity which could be effected in no other way.

"Mecca," says Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer of Arabia, "has become the religious capital and the center of universal pilgrimage for one-seventh of the human race."—Harper's Magazine.

WONDERFUL ECHOES.

Effect Produced by a Pistol Shot at a Lake in Bavaria.

Probably the finest echo which the world knows is in the cathedral at Pisa, where the leaning tower is. Sing two notes and there is no reverberation. Sing three and they are at once taken up by the walls of the edifice, swelled, prolonged and varied till they seem as a divine harmony from some majestic organ.

There is a cavern in Finland in which, if you test your lungs to the top of their capacity, there will answer you such horrible roarings, moanings and mutterings that you will be glad to rush out in absolute terror.

The cutting down of trees in a certain locality on the Hudson river spoiled a splendid echo. A word shouted there was repeated forty-two times.

Undoubtedly the most extraordinary natural echo in the world is to be heard by the side of a small lake in Bavaria. On one hand rises a perpendicular cliff several thousand feet high, while on the other side is a dense forest. If a pistol is fired on the lake the woods send back a faint echo that gradually dies away, but presently it is heard from the cliff, continually increasing in power till it bursts over one's head like a deafening peal of thunder.—Pearson's Weekly.

Making Up His Mind.

Deliberateness, a quality generally ascribed to the Scots, must reach a kind of quintessence among the Shetlanders, if this story from the Christian World may be held to represent them fairly:

The Rev. James Hamilton, minister of the Church of Scotland, Rodney street, Liverpool, while on holiday in Shetland had a narrow escape from drowning. Accompanied by a boy Mr. Hamilton was fishing for sea trout, when he slipped on a stone, lost his balance and, being incumbered with heavy wading boots, had great difficulty in keeping his head above water.

Finally he managed to get back to the shore, although in a very exhausted state, and said to the boy:

"I noticed that you never tried to help me."

"Na," was the response, "but I was thinkin' o't!"

Craft of the Gypsies.

Gypsies introduced the practice of palmistry into England. This appears from a statute of 1531 called an "acte concerning Egypsyans," which recites that "afore this tyme dyverse and many outlandysshe People, callynge them selfes Egyptians, using no crafte nor faicte of marchaundyse, have comen into this Realme and gone from Shire to Shire and Place to Place, and used greate subtyll and crafty meanes to deceyve the people that they by palmestre could tell menne and womens fortunes, and have by crafte and subtyltie deceyved the people of their money."

The Giant Petrel.

The giant petrel of the arctic regions will feed on offal until it is so absolutely gorged as to be unable to rise off the ice in flight. Then it runs along the ice if chased, spreading its wings out as sails. Before being captured, however, the petrel will suddenly stop and disgorge a quantity of semidigested food and then go off on a run again. If overtaken a second time it will repeat the performance and when once it has got rid of its dinner flies away.

As "Home Sweet Home" Is Sung.

She had a voice like a siren, and when she sang "Mid play sures, sand palaces, tho beam a roame, be it averse oh hum bull, there snow play sly comb," and so on to the conclusion, there wasn't a dry eye in the room.—United Presbyterian.

Misleading.

"Well, well," exclaimed Nagget over his paper, "that's a queer heading for this article. It says 'Woman's Talk.'"

"What's so queer about that?" demanded his wife.

"Why, there's only about half a column of it."

Unless the habit leads to happiness the best habit is to contract none.—Zimmerman.

JURY REFORM BILL IN SENATE CAUCUS

Upper House Republicans Receive Harry D. Leavitt's Bill.

TO PUT AN END TO AN ABUSE

County Court Judge to Select Names From Which Sheriff Shall Draw—Provisions of Bill Are Outlined By Its Author.

Special from Staff Correspondent

Trenton, Jan. 4.—County judges are given the initiative in the selection of grand juries in a jury reform bill which was submitted to the Republican Senatorial caucus today by Senator Harry D. Leavitt, of Mercer county. In this particular the bill differs from various jury reform measures which have been introduced at recent sessions of the Legislature.

The Leavitt bill provides that the Judge of the Court of Common Pleas in each county shall select a list of names and from this list the sheriff shall draw the grand jury panel. The list of names to be selected by the judge varies with the size of the counties. In first-class counties the list is to contain 500 names; in second-class counties, 400 names; in third-class counties, 300 names; and in fourth-class counties, 200 names. The measure provides that after the lost has been selected by the judge, the names shall be deposited in the jury box and the grand jury panel drawn from the box by the sheriff in the usual manner.

Senator Leavitt has had in mind the drafting of a jury reform bill ever since jury reform became an issue in the last campaign. The measure as presented by him today, with whatever modifications the caucus may authorize, will be made one of the party bills to be urged for passage throughthe Legislature. Senator Leavitt is strongly in favor of grand jury reform, and said today that he thought this bill presented the proposition in a way that would solve the present grand jury troubles. He stated that he had placed the drawing of the lists in the hands of the county judge rather than in those of the supreme court justice, because the county judge in each county is very much more familiar with the men eligible to jury duty than the supreme court justice, who may preside in the county.

In the two or three grand jury reform bills that have been introduced in recent sessions the provision was that the sheriff should draw the list in the usual manner, and then this list should be revised by the judge.

SOMERSET ASSEMBLYMAN GIVES VIEWS ON TAXATION

Discussing his views regarding needed legislation and making suggestions to the Republican party leaders of the changes, which in his opinion, would fulfill the party pledges made prior to the last fall election, Assemblyman William de LaR. Anderson, of Somerset county, yesterday, said: "The State taxation machinery should be changed so that it shall consist of a State board who shall appoint for each county an assessor under civil service regulation with a suitable salary; a local assessor appointed by local governing bodies, who shall be confirmed by the State board; local boards of appeal consisting of three members elected for one, two and three years and thereafter for three years each, and a mandatory provision for the publication and circulation of the local tax duplicates in all communities at least once in three years."

Regarding employers' liability legislation, Mr. Anderson said: "Employers should be allowed to organize and establish mutual insurance funds for the protection of themselves and their employes. The household servant, farm laborer, or labor which is subjected to no greater risk of liability to injury than is encountered in every day life, shall not be considered as coming under the provisions of this act and the employers thereof shall not be held liable to them."

He is also in favor of amending the corrupt practice act to allow the use of vehicles donated by persons other than candidates for the purpose of transporting voters to the polls, and the elimination of grade crossings, the most thickly populated sections to have first consideration.

Regarding the question of good roads, he said: "Main arteries should be maintained by the State and there should be increased aid from the State for the maintainance of local roads."

SENATE REPUBLICANS FIX A PROGRAM FOR SESSION

Election Law Change, Auto Reciprocity, Good Roads, End of Grade Crossings, Uniform Assessments.

Special from Staff Correspondent.

Trenton, Jan. 4.—The Republican joint caucus in session this afternoon gave out a statement referring to the party policy during the coming session. It declared for a short and business-like session and it was stated that it had been agreed that all pledges in the platform of last fall should be kept. The statement then recited the list of bills which had been prepared to meet these pledges, which bills were commended in the caucus. The measures embraced the following:

Necessary amendments to the Geran election law; Grand Jury reform, development of inland waterways, increase of revenue from automobiles in connection with proper reciprocity, development of good roads, an act to lessen the cost of insurance under the Employers' Liability Act, an act to provide for safety guards around machinery and the cure of the dust evil in factories, the abolishment of grade crossings, a revision of the tax laws giving uniform assessments.

Necessary amendments to Public Utilities Act, amendment to existing acts regulating municipalities so that by a proper vote of the people special charters can be secured and more home rule enjoyed. It was further stated that everything possible would be done tending to secure a business-like session of the Legislature during the coming winter. The above plan was decided upon early so that time would be saved later on when the session gets underway.

The bill providing for the abolition of grade crossings has been prepared by Senator Carlton B. Pierce, of Union county. He won his campaign on that plank of the party platform.

Provisions for the abolition of 123 grade crossings are contained in the bill submitted by Senator Pierce of Union county. The crossings are to be removed on the basis of one to each twenty miles of track, the most dangerous ones to the removed first If the railroad company petitons for the removal it is to bear all the expense. If the municipality petitions it shall pay one-fourth the expense.

Presenting radical tax reform along lines different from anything heretofore proposed in this State, the bill to secure uniformity and equalization in taxation, drafted by Senator Pierce, of Union county, was laid before the caucus. The basic principle of the bill is the reorganization of the scheme of local assessments. Each county, rather than each taxing district is made the unit for assessments. The work of assessment is to be done by a county board.

OLDFIELD GETS VERDICT AGAINST TWO CONCERNS.

The suit of Chester Oldfield against the Westfield Realty Company and the Amity Construction Company was decided in favor of the plaintiff in the District Court this morning by Judge William Newcorn. Mr. Oldfield filed a mechanics lien for $34.25 against a number of houses erected by the construction company on land purchased from the realty concern. The full amount asked was awarded. Augustus Nash represented Mr. Oldfield and Senator James Fielder, of Jersey City, appeared for the defendants.

Small Fire; Two Alarms.

Two alarms were sent in last night for a fire that destroyed a shed and chickencoop belonging to Mrs. Bertha Richter, of East Second street. Box 53 was pulled first and a few minutes later box 18 because the person sending the second alarm was unable to hear the whistle on the first and did not not know that the department had already been summoned. The loss, including the lives of half a dozen chickens, will be covered by $100.

Missionary Society Meeting.

The quarterly meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church will be held in the church parlors tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. An address will be given by Mrs. Gildersleeve, associate secretary of the Women's Board on the administration of the board, explaining how the funds contributed by the societies are applied.

Removes His Office.

HOLY NAME JUNIORS HOLD A SUCCESSFUL MASQUERADE

The junior members of the Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's church conducted a highly successful masquerade dance in Debele's auditorium last night. It was attended by a large number of young people from the city and borough and many visitors from out of town. Costumes both pretty and grotesque were numerous, adding greatly to the gaity of the scene.

The feature of the program was a grand march at 9:30 in which all the dancers took part. It was led by Robert Hamilton and Miss Norah Callahan and the many pretty figures which they evolved were generously applauded by the spectators. Several moonlight shadow dances also proved an appreciated novelty, the stereopticon lantern being operated by Henry Bryianiaski, of Proctor's theatre.

Prizes were offered for the best Colonial and the most grotesque costume. These were awarded as follows. Women's, Miss Grace Meendell and Miss Katherine Morris; men's Jacob Schlick and Russell Hann. Parubek's orchestra furnished the music.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the affair was composed of the following. William Welsh, chairman; Edmund J. Kenney, Walter Pauly, Daniel McCormack, Frank Hart, Joseph McCullough, Henry Bryianiaski, Leo Pauly, Albert BBryaniaski and Convill Harper.

APPROPRIATES $10,000 FOR GARFIELD MONUMENT

Special from Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The bill introduced by Senator Briggs authorizing an appropriation of $10,000 to aid in the erection of a monument in memory of the late President James A. Garfield at Long Branch has been approved by the upper chamber and it is now up to the House to endorse the proposition. Under the terms of the bill the money is to be paid to the Garfield Monument Association, a New Jersey corporation, by the Secretary of War, provided the association shall have raised at least the sum of $10,000 addition to the government aid. Although an amendment was added providing that "the responsibility for the care and keeping of said monument shall be and remain in the said Garfield Monument Association, it being expressly understood that the United States shall have no responsibility therefor," it is required that the design for the shaft shall be approved by the Secretary of War.

Representative Scully, of the Third New Jersey district, will make a special effort to have the monument project put through the House during the present session.

The citizens of Long Branch and vicinity have already contributed more than the ten thousand dollars required to make the government appropriation available.

P. H. S. SCIENCE TEACHER WILL RESIGN ON FEB. 1.

Professor Frederick H. Beals, science teacher at the Plainfield High School for the past three years, will resign February 1 to take a position as head of the department of science at the Barringer High School in Newark. Prof. Beals came to Plainfield on account of the health of his family. Before taking his present position he was head of the department of physics in a college at Los Angeles and previous to that he taught in the State Normal School in California and at another time was at Worcester Academy in Massachusetts.

Race to Finish Building.

William H. Abbott, of this city, is one of three men who are vieing with each other for rapidity in building construction in Westfield. Since the Casino burned down, that town has been without a hall or place of amusement, such as moving picture shows and the proprietor of the burned out attraction was unable to get other suitable quarters. Mr. Abbott, Walter Mooney and Arthur Flag all have structures under way in which picture exhibitions will be given.

DE FOREST TO GET ON NEW JOB NOW

He Must Give Personal Attention to Overseership Immediately.

BECAUSE OF AYRES REFUSAL

Predecessor, Whose Work DeForest Warmly Praises, Firmly Declines to Be His Assistant and None Other is Selected Yet.

Henry L. DeForest, who was elected overseer of the poor by the Common Council, Monday night, to succeed Alexander D. Ayers, who held the office for eleven years, is confronted with a rather embarrassing situation because for the present he must give his personal attention to the duties of the office. Mr. Ayers formally notified Mr. DeForest yesterday that he declined to take the position of assistant, even though he should receive the salary of the office. The new overseer, therefore, has taken up the duties of the office and is acquainting himself with the details as rapidly as possible.

Mr. DeForest, in company with Councilman Fred Endress, chairman of the alms committee, visited the poor farm yesterday afternoon and they were much pleased with the satisfactory condition there. As expressed by Mr. DeForest, the inmates appeared to be a happy family. The new overseer was loud in his praise of the work performed by Mr. Ayers and called attention to the fact that last year about $1,000 worth of produce was raised on the poor farm above that needed for the inmates at the poor house. This fact, he believed, should be known by the public.

In an interview with a reporter for the Plainfield Daily Press, last night, Mr. DeForest confirmed the report that Mr. Ayers declined to serve under him. He said that he was sorry that the latter had made that decision and that he had tried to persaude him to continue, but that it was useless. Mr. DeForest added that his time would be taken up for the present getting acquainted with the duties of the office. He hopes to get an assistant. According to the new law Mr. DeForest is expected to personally investigate each case coming before him, and this will require considerable of his time. For the present the new overseer will arrange to be at his office in the city building at certain hours and later on an assistant will attend to some of the details of the office requiring immediate attention.

With a new title and a new typographical appearance, the Daily Press appeared yesterday afternoon under its first change in management in nearly twenty-five years. Mr. A. L. Force has retired from active business in the fulness of years and in the enjoyment of the respect of his fellow citizens. The new owners of the Daily Press begin with the record of a good man behind them. Both Leslie R. Fort and Ralph L. Morrow, the active members of the company, are young men. Mr. Morrow has been editor of the Daily Press for the last eight years. Mr. Fort has been publisher of the newspaper in Lakewood. The new management has taken hold with vigor and will make many changes.—Plainfield Courier News, Jan. 3, 1912.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

We notice that the Press ushered in the new year of 1912 auspiciously with its metropolitan make-up and a brand new typographical dress.

This speaks well for the up-to-dateness of the city of Plainfield. The style is good and it is bound to meet with the hearty approval of the citizens of this community. Long live the Press. May its new owners meet the success that such a venture warrants. May it also continue to be a valued asset to the prosperity of the city and surrounding vicinity.

The best wishes of The Review are extended for the future welfare of and good luck to the Plainfield Daily Press.

Fraternally,
D. J. CARNEY,
Editor. The Review.
North Plainfield, January 4, 1912.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

As a daily reader of your paper, I wish to congratulate you on the rejuvenated appearance and general tone of same. It looks well and with the addition of the out of town news, it cannot fail of success.

Very truly yours,
SAMUEL A. HEWITT,
Captain, Salvation Army Corps.

HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM NOT FOR PEACE MEETING

Education Board Refuses to Allow Commerce Chamber to Have Treaty Mass Meeting There Free.

The Board of Education at its annual meeting, last night, denied the request of the Chamber of Commerce for the free use of the High School auditorium for a meeting in the interest of the Taft peace treaties at which time Stuart L. Woodford, the former minister to Spain and former lieutenant governor of New York State, will be the principal speaker. The board took the position that favorable action would establish a bad precedent and might lead to trouble later on. F. B. Clark, clerk of the board, was instructed to inform the Chamber of Commerce that it could have the auditorium at the customary rental fee.

Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of schools in a communication to the board called the members' attention to the visit of the special legislative committee of investigation last year, when many pointed questions were asked of the superintendent and treasurer and inquiries were made as to the system employed and the expenditures and general management, the result of which was that the State school system was changed.

In this connection Dr. Maxson said that he thought the board would be pleased to know that a member of the committee recently stated that in all the State it had found only three places where the board and system were entirely satisfactory and the first city mentioned was Plainfield. In consequence a gold medal is displayed in the office at the school signifyng that fact. The board expressed great satisfaction over the report of Dr. Maxson.

During the business session these officers were re-elected for the coming year: President, Leander N. Lovell; vice-president, William S. Tyler; secretary, Floyd T. Woodhull; Mr. Lovell and Mr. Tyler were named as members of the Board of School Estimate for the year. They will serve with two members of the Common Council and Mayor G. W. V. Moy.

The custodian of school funds, W. F. Arnold, reported a credit to the board at the end of December of $50,299.86, and there was also reported that Tax Collector W. R. Townsend's collections for December amounted to $50,425.77. Mr. Clark, the clerk, reported that $1,432.68 had been received as tuition from outside pupils.

MISS MARIE NOLEN BRIDE OF WILLIAM L. WHITNEY

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Marie E. Nolen, daughter of Mrs. James Nolen, of Richmond street, and William L. Whitney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Whitney, of East Sixth street. The ceremony was performed at the Church of the Transfiguration, New York, last Friday, Rev. Dr. Durrell officiating. The couple was unattended.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitney are for the present living with the groom's parents until their new house is completed in this city. The groom is a cousin to Harry Payne Whitney and holds a responsible position in the Customs House, New York.

MEETING IN INTEREST OF SOCIAL SETTLEMENT.

A meeting in the interest of the Whittier House, the social settlement in Jersey City, will be held tonight at the home of Frank L. Clark, 404 West Seventh street. Much interest is taken here in the work and two Plainfielders are officers of the institution. They are Mr. Clark and Rev. Dr. John S. Zelie.

At tonight's meeting, which is an invitation affair, Miss Cornelia F. Bradford, the head of the House, will make an address. She is a sister of the late Dr. A. H. Bradford, of Montclair.

Fell From Building.

Peter VanFleet, of East Front street, fell from a building in the course of erection at Clinton avenue and Greenbrook road shortly after noon today and sustained a fractured and badly lacerated nose and bruises and contusions all over his body. He dropped twenty feet. Dr. M. L. Clawson attended the injured man upon his arrival at Muhlenberg Hospital.

MISS EVA WILKINS IS NOW MRS. HARVEY V.D. BEEKMAN

Miss Eva Wilkens, daughter of Mrs. Linnie E. Wilkens, and Harvey Van Doran Beekman, of Highland Park, New Brunswick, were married at 7 o'clock last night at the home of the bride's mother, Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, officiating. There was a large number of relatives and friends present.

The bride was gowned in white satin trimmed with duchess lace and chiffon and a tulle veil caught up with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. Her only ornament was a handsome brooch, set with pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. The wedding march was played by Miss Maud Keys, of Orange.

Following the ceremony a reception was held, during which congratulations were offered and supper was served. Later Mr. and Mrs. Beekman left for Washington on a hoenymoon trip. Upon their return they will reside with the bride's mother at 234 East Fifth street. The couple were the recipients of many handsome wedding gifts.

The home was elaborately decorated for the wedding by Stanley, the florist. Palms, cut flowers and smilax combined to make an attractive decoration, the color scheme being green and white.

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY AT MRS. JOHN J. SWAN'S TEA

Mrs. John J. Swan, of Watchung avenue, gave a delightful tea at her home yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock, the affair being attended by about 250 friends from out-of-town and this city. The home was attractively decorated with pink roses, pink and white carnations and red roses, the color scheme being carried out effectively in the reception room, parlors and dining room.

Mrs. Swan was assisted in receiving by her sister, Mrs. Samuel Porter Williams, of Hartford, Conn., Mrs. Gerald F. Earl and Mrs. C. W. King poured in the dining-room, and those who assisted were Mrs. Pierpont Foster, Mrs. Charles H. Frost, Mrs. Anna Stewart, Mrs. Howard Hunter Williams, Miss Lillian King, Miss Harriet Shreve, Miss May Shreve and Miss Anne Miller, all of this city.

The social features of the tea were greatly enjoyed by the guests, the hostess being the recipient of many congratulations throughout the afternoon. The object of the tea was to afford many friends an opportunity to meet Mrs. Swan's sister, Mrs. Samuel Porter Williams, who is spending sometime in this city.

BETTER REMOVE SNOW COURT WARNS MERCHANTS.

Proprietors of stores and residents of East and West Front streets and North avenue were summoned to the city court this morning and were notified by Judge William G. DeMeza that they had violated the ordinance relating to the removal of snow from the sidewalks in front of their places. The court's attention had been called to the matter by Street Commissioner Gavett.

Ordering them to remove the ice and snow at once and warning them that if in the future the snow was not removed after a storm in the time allowed by the ordinance, the penalty would be imposed, sentence was suspended.

Cantata at Bethel Chapel.

The choir boys of Bethel chapel will present a cantata in the chapel tomorrow night under the direction of the organist, Charles E. VanHorn. The cantata, which is entitled, "An Uncle Sam Celebration," is a comic sketch and will be given by a cast of thirty boys, the female roles being taken by the young male thespians.

Defied Order; Fined $10.

Benjamin Cohen, of New York, was fined $10 by Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning for distributing samples of a patent medicine after permission to do so had been denied him by Mayor Moy.

MEREDITH DRYDEN MAY BE IN FLORIDA

Herald Personal Adv. Supposed to be Addressed to Missing Man.

DISAPPEARED 2 MONTHS AGO

His Brother, Robert Dryden, Lives at St. Michael's, Florida, and Report is that Meredith is There Now.

M. D. (Buck)—Have good news; call at office. Jack.

The above advertisement appearing in the "personal" columns of yesterday mornin's New York Herald has caused friends of Meredith Dryden to believe that the mystery surrounding his disappearance two months ago is about to be cleared up. "M. D." are Mr. Dryden's initials and "Buck", is the nickname given him by close friends. "Jack" is the nickname of his brother-in-law, J. P. Nolting, of West Seventh street.

When seen today Mrs. Nolting declined to make any statement regarding the advertisement, either as to who inserted it or as to the reference made to "goodnews." The former employer of the missing man stated this afternoon that so far as he knew no word had been received from Mr. Dryden since he left town, although efforts are still being made to locate him.

An unconfirmed report was current today, that Dryden is with his brother, Robert Dryden, at St. Michael's, Florida. While this rumor lacked confirmation direct, it is understood to have originated with a person who was close to Mr. Dryden during his residence here and was familiar with his circumstances. This same person, however, was as much at a loss to account for the strange manner in which Mr. Dryden disappeared at the time as were those who knew little about his private life.

The story of Dryden having been located is given credence by many nevertheless on the ground that it is possible. They also maintain that it would be impossible for him to have kept his whereabouts a secret without having help of some sort. Just what reasons he advanced that would win for him this assistance is best known to himself and those to whom he related his reasons for leaving town and remaining absent without notifying family, relatives and friends of his present address.

Funeral of Percy Ross.

The funeral of Percy Ross, whose death occurred Saturday, after an illness of three weeks, was held at his mother's home on Richmond street, Tuesday afternoon. It was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends which included a delegation from Washington Camp, No. 98, P. O. S. of A., of Dunellen, of which he was a member. Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, officiated and burial was made in the family plot in the North Plainfield cemetery. The pall bearers were selected from the P. O. S. of A. There were numerous floral tributes.

JEWELED HANDBAG LOST, DANCE GUESTS SEARCHED

Private detectives are searching for a diamond-studded handbag, said to contain $3,000, which was lost by Mrs. Jaspar Lynch at the Lakewood Country Club society dance on New Year's eve. When she discovered her loss Mrs. Lynch, demanded that two men, guests at the dance, be searched. Her wish was obeyed, but the bag was not found, and the dance was practically broken up by the incident.

The Country Club dance is one of Lakewood's society features every New Year's eve, and many members of the social colony were in attendance Saturday night. The revel was at its height when Mrs. Lynch, in high, nervous tones, announced that her jeweled bag had disappeared.

Festivities were halted while Mrs. Lynch explained how she missed the bag from a chair at her side a few moments after she had placed it there. Attention was called to the presence of two New York men, patrons of the Laurel-in-the-Pines, who were among the guests. Neither was very well known by the other guests, and Mrs. Lynch demanded that they be searched. Friends of the two men protested in vain. One of the New Yorkers agreed to be searched, but the other became indignant. Both, however, had their pockets turned inside out by the members of the club house committee.

An attempt was made to suppress the story of the entire affair, but the activity of the detectives led to a disclosure of the incident.

L. Esler, one of the men who is alleged to have been searched, stated last night that he would bring suit against Mr. Lynch, because of statements he had made at the time the bag was first missed. He will ask $50,000.

A waiter, who was helping at the club on Saturday night, was arrested in New York last night charged with the theft.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. DeMeza, of Sandford avenue, are visiting relatives in Bridgeport, Conn.

Senser Taylor, of Erma, a student at Pennington Seminary, is visiting Harry B. Smith, of Grandview avenue.

William O'Keefe, who has been visiting his brother, Joseph O'Keefe, of West Seventh street, has returned to Detroit, Mich.

Otto Linke, a student in Georgetown University, is spending the Christmas vacation at his home on West Front street.

William V. Rafferty, of Sandford avenue, returned to Georgetown University yesterday after spending the holidays in this city.

Mrs. Alfred K. Willett, of Craig place, who recently underwent an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital, continues to improve.

John A. O'Keefe, formerly of this city, but now of Buffalo, N. Y., has returned home after spending several days at the home of Charles Ward.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Miss King and Miss Singleton, two of the local school teachers, have returned to their duties after spending the holidays with out of town friends.

Mrs. Walter Sisty and little daughter, Alice, have returned to Wayside Park, Dunellen, after a visit with her mother, Mrs. Susan Manning.

Miss Nora McDonough, who has been spending a few days with friends in the village, has returned to her home in Plainfield.

The Misses Eveline and Gertrude Schrope have returned from a visit with their sister, Mrs. Charles Terry, of Dunellen.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

A number of the lovers of trap shooting in town are considering the advisability of organizing a gun club and holding weekly shoots. The old Brookside Gun Club, which thrived for several years, brought out some good material and all that is needed to develop it further is a little practice.

Mr. and Mrs. Gere Paff and child, who have been spending the holidays with Mr. Paff's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Paff, returned yesterday to their home at Glen Gardner.

Miss Geneva MacGowan has returned from her holiday vacation of ten days, which was spent with her parents at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Rev. and Mrs. Franklin K. Mathiews, of the parsonage, have been entertaining relatives from Jersey City.

Mrs. James C. Lyons is spending several weeks with her niece, Mrs. Charles Smith, at Westfield.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Several prominent borough citizens attended the meeting at Greenbrook, Tuesday night, when formal protest was made against the proposed location of the North Plainfield sewer beds. It is believed the property owners will combine with Dunellen in the fight against the establishment of the plant as contemplated.

The Baraca class of the Presbyterian church will hold an invitation supper on Friday night, January 12. Covers are to be set for 150 and several prominent speakers will be present.

The congregations of the First Baptist and Seventh-Day Baptist churches will unite in a week of prayer beginning January 7.

Miss Sadie Brouwer left yesterday for Northampton, Mass., to resume her studies at Smith College.

WILL TELLS EXECUTOR TO LOOK OUT FOR SON.

Fearing for the future of her son, Mrs. Hannah M. Ellis, of Millburn, who died about two weeks ago, has directed the executor of her estate, David R. Peer, named in her will probated yesterday, to look after the son, Henry C. Ellis, lest he "squander his share in dissipation."

Mrs. Ellis divided her real estate between her children, Mrs. Sarah M. Peer, Miss Jessie H. Ellis, Mrs. Attelesa L. Hankins, Abraham L. Ellis, Mrs. Elizabeth T. Smith and Henry C. Ellis. She divided her personal property among two daughters, Mrs. Attelesa L. Hankins and Mrs. Elizabeth L. Smith.

After appointing Mr. Peer her executor, Mrs. Ellis speaks of the relations she wished him to bear toward her son.

"I want my executor," the will reads, "to look after the future welfare of Henry C. Ellis in giving him his share, as stated, on account of him squandering his share in dissipation."

David Shay, formerly of this city, now residing in New York, has been visiting friends here.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks closed weak in New York yesterday.

Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans died suddenly in Washington.

Mme. Curie was reported dangerously ill in Paris with appendicitis.

Manchu troops were sent to resist the Chinese mutineers at Lan-Chau.

The fourth Central American Conference began its session at Managua, Nicaragua.

A safe retreat in Mongolia was reported as being prepared for the boy Emperor of China.

Emmette T. Flood, national organizer of the American Federation of Labor, was arrested at Muscatine, Iowa.

It was reported that Western and Southern Mongolia would follow the lead of Eastern Mongolia and declare themselves independent kingdoms.

Ex-Mayor Bookwalter, of Indianapolis, said he told labor officials two years ago that J. J. McNamara had directed a series of dynamite explosions.

Violence appeared in the laundry workers' strike in New York, the other feature of which was its spreading to Brooklyn and Jersey City.

Said Pacha completed the formation of a ministry at Constantinople and announced the introduction of a bill modifying the Turkish constitution.

More testimony regarding the peculiarities of Miss Maria L. Campbell, whose $2,000,000 will is being contested, was heard before Surrogate Fowler in New York.

Arms and ammunition were sent to the Gulf from points in New Jersey and Pennsylvania; evidence of a widespread plot against the Madero government was uncovered.

Sheriff Harburger, of New York, said he had asked for legal advice as to his power in appointing women deputies, so women who expected to get badges yesterday were disappointed.

In an interview at Tampa, Fla., William Jennings Bryan stated he could not conceive of any condition that would make it possible for him to consider becoming a candidate for the Presidency.

President Taft, setting at rest rumors that he might withdraw from the race for the Presidential nomination, said to a caller at the White House, "Nothing but death can keep me out of the fight now."

Percy G. Vanderoef, treasurer of a drygoods firm in New York, confessed defalcations of nearly $150,000 after surrendering to the District Attorney; it was said that not speculation but high living was to blame.

The Supreme Court of the United States refused to grant a writ of error in the case of Silas N. Phelps, convicted of murder in Massachusetts; only the clemency of the new Executive Council can save him from death.

Governor Dix's message to the Legislature was attacked by Senator Newcomb and defended by Senator Wagner; Assemblyman Merrit was elected Speaker of the lower house; many bills were introduced and the Legislature adjourned until next Wednesday.

Representatives of New York city, at a subway conference in the Union League Club, told Samuel Rea, vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and H. P. Davison, of J. P. Morgan & Co., that the Interborough must come forward with another offer quickly or not at all.

Congress.—Both houses reconvened after the holiday recess. Senate: Mr. Bristow introduced bills for a government Panama Canal steamship line; many petitions favoring ratification of the arbitration treaties were received. House: The session lasted only fifteen minutes and no business was transacted.

ROCKFELLER HELPS NEW JERSEY HOSPITAL.

John D. Rockfeller has just subscribed $10,000 toward the new buildings of the Tuberculosis Preventorium for Children at Farmingdale, which will be completed this month. The gift is contingent upon $140,000 being collected from other sources, as the total cost of the building is $150,000.

The estate of Albert Brisbane has donated 170 acres of farm and woodland. The sum of $114,000 has already been collected, the principal gifts being from Nathan Straus, $50,000, and from a friend of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, $50,000. The other $14,000 already collected is in sums ranging from $1 to $1,000 each, from about 200 subscribers.

POLICEMAN HELD IN BAIL FOR STRIKING A WOMAN.

James Gleason, a member of the Westfield police force, who was arrested Monday evening on a charge of hitting Mrs. Robert Eustice in the face, was held by Judge Collins in $100 bond yesterday morning to await the action of the Grand Jury.

"Doing God's Work in God's Way" will be the subject of the sermon by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Sunday morning, and the evening topic will be "A Great Question—Is Thine Heart Right?"

YALE WANTED A COURSE IN CLUB SWINGING

Rutgers has always ranked high in club swinging, having at the present time A. A. Nelson and Leonard Briggs, intercollegiate club swingers for the past two seasons, and who are expected to again capture honors at the next intercollegiates, which will be held at Haverford College in March. Rutgers for years has most always had a point scoring club swinger. This is due to the excellent coaching of Frederick H. Dodge, physical director at Rutgers. There is probably no more proficient coach in this department of gymnastics than Mr. Dodge.

Larger colleges evidently realize that Rutgers is superior in club swinging, as Yale wanted to send their club swinging candidates to Rutgers to take a course. As this would undoubtedly injure Rutgers chances in the intercollegiates, probably not this season, but in the future, Mr. Dodge did not favorably receive the plan.

The Intercollegiate Gymnastic Association now proposes to lessen the value of club swinging, by reducing the points from ten and five to five and three respectively.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Frank McEntee and Millicent Evison, for a number of years leading players with the Ben Greet Company, will be seen in "The Merchant of Venice" and "Hamlet," this afternoon and tonight at the Plainfield theatre. It is unsual in these modern days to see really worthy representations of the great masterpieces of Shakespeare. Too much attention is bestowed on stage pictures and too little on the spirit of the plays. This company has become noted particularly for the life-like interpretations it gives of the great bard's works. Every member of the organization is thoroughly capable, and presents a natural portrayal of the character he undertakes to depict. No doubt every one interested in the best drama will take advantage of the opportunity of seeing these players.

May Irwin's seasons grow shorter each year. She is a woman of independent means and a lover of home. Perhaps there is no other person in public life, at least on the stage, whose interest in domestic matters is as great as May Irwin's. These are the main reasons why the popular comedienne spends comparatively little time in professional service. This season she is acting in a new comedy satire, called "She Knows Better Now," written by Agnes Crimmins, of Boston, a new comer in the field of dramatic writing. Miss Irwin will be seen in this city in the new comedy tomorrow night.

Miss Lowell's mission in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," which comes to the Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night, is to make people happy and ends by sending her audience away with a "satisfied-with-life" expression on their faces. As a puritanic but lovable old lady, her sharp wit is a constant source of delight. The process of making her young, a work undertaken by her nephew and several of his young friends, gives the piece its second title, "the play with a thousand laughs."

One of the most pretentious of recent music successes will play an engagement at the Plainfield theatre on Monday night when Messrs. Werba & Luescher present their enchanting operetta "The Spring Maid." This attraction comes direct from its triumphant New York run of 300 nights at the Liberty theatre in that city, and this in the face of the fact that the tuneful opera has been playing to capacity houses every night of its engagement there. Not since "The Merry Widow" has there been a musical production as loudly heralded as "The Spring Maid" and its entrancing melodies are too well known by music lovers to need any added comment. They have caught the public's fancy from the first. Already everyone who has the slightest ear for music, is either whistling or humming such gems of melody from its score as "Day Dreams," the captivating waltz number "Fountain Fay," and the pleasing romance "Two Little Love Bees." These musicianly numbers as sung by Miss Luneska, in her own inimitable manner are in themselves sufficient to win popularity for "The Spring Maid."

Ousted Policemen to Fight.

On advice of counsel, Joseph Antonaccio, who was ousted by the Republican majority in the Morristown Board of Aldermen from his position as police officer in the Race and Flagler streets district, intends to report for duty each night at headquarters. He will render a bill at the end of the month for his salary. If the bill is not paid, it is declared, he will sue the city.

Two New Teachers Appointed.

The Rahway Board of Education, which will be legisalted out of office previous to Feb. 1, Tuesday, night held its last regular meeting and finished up its business. Bills amounting to $8,000 were paid. The resignation of J. Leslie Crowell as teacher was accepted. The following teachers were appointed: Miss Bernice Saxton, at a salary of $700, and John C. O'Brien, at $800.

ELIZABETH DEMOCRATIC CLUB MAY NAME KELLY OR HECK

James P. Kelly and John J. Heck are being mentioned as probable candidates for the presidency when the Elizabeth Democratic Club holds its annual meeting and election of officers next Tuesday night. The incumbent is Councilman George H. Schlotterer, but in view of his having associated himself with the Democratic recalcitrants, who, with the Republican and Socialist members of Council, succeeded in bringing about a deadlock when City Council met to organize Monday night, it is conceded that he cannot be re-elected, even should he run again.

It is said that about twenty active members of the club have threatened to resign should Mr. Schlotterer be allowed to retain the gavel and there seems to be a growing sentiment against him, especially among the friends of Edward Nugent, who is seeking re-election as president of Council and against whom Mr. Schlotterer is evidently leading the opposition.

Mr. Heck is particularly popular. He was nominated for Council in the Third ward at the recent primaries, defeating Councilman Byrnes who then ran independently, the result being that a Socialist, now Councilman Kopp, slipped in. Mr. Kelly is a young lawyer, who has always been an active worker in the club and has many friends.

KEEP IT OUT OF POLITICS.

Every few days the name of some new candidate for the position of Warden at the State prison, to succeeded Mr. Osborne, appears in the State papers. The appointment will be made by Governor Wilson during the coming Legislative session. Why a position of this kind should be considered one to be given as a reward for party service, is hard to understand. Of all places that should be kept out of the influence of politics this is the most important. Mr. Osborne has held the place for ten years, and has gone through an investigation or two without any successful reflection being made on his conduct of the place. He knows how to handle both prisoners and keepers, and has had little trouble maintaining discipline.

New Jersey has had one sad experience in using a penal institution as a place to reward partisan office-seekers. We refer to the Rahway Reformatory. The revelations made there during the investigation of 1907 as to the character of some of the keepers and their treatment of the young men confined were anything but pleasant. Many of the men who acted as keepers and in other positions were shown to have been placed by Middlesex county politicians as a reward for services rendered. The place was really a prison wretchedly conducted and belieing its name.

When Rev. Frank Moore was taken from Pennington Seminary and put in charge of the institution radical changes were made and it became a reformatory in every sense. We doubt if anyone would again consider that position one to be filled by a political hanger-on.

If the practice of removing capable heads of penal and correctional institutions is to be commenced by the Democrats it will be a sure indication that they are not to be trusted with the government of New Jersey.

"THE THREE R'S."

When The Daily Press supported the State School Commission during the session of the recent Legislature it did so from a sense of duty, sharing the general belief that there was something radically wrong with the old system. A more progressive body which would introduce more advanced and systematic methods in public education was sorely needed as was shown by the report of the Frelinghuysen committee. It has been evident to parents for some time that the "Three R's" were being neglected and the pupils were being rushed through to higher grades for advanced studies when they possessed only a smattering of the fundamentals. It is with much rejoicing, therefore, that the average parent reads the circular issued by Dr. Calvin N. Kendall, State Commissioner of Education, as published in yesterdays' issue of this paper.

As the Orange Chronicle, which commends the plan, says:

"The new law provides that the Commissioner of Education shall prescribe minimum examinations throughout the State for graduation from grammar schools and for admission to high schools and high school departments; confine such examinations to arithmetic, writing, spelling, English grammar and composition, history and geography; prepare or cause to be prepared questions for the examination; prescribe the times and places for holding them and the rules governing them; designate the persons to conduct them, and, if admissible, direct superintendents, principals and teachers of one district to conduct them in any other. The examinations are to be open to all children of the State, whether they attend public or private schools."

If Colonel Roosevelt is really an aspirant for the nomination, why doesn't he come out, flat-footed, and say so?—Jersey Journal.

No doubt he's too modest.

Theodore Roosevelt is a receptive candidate for the Republican nomination for President, which will be made in Chicago next June, if the dispatch printed in this morning's Sun is to be believed. At the same time President Taft is quoted as saying that "nothing but death" can keep him out of the race now. Senator LaFollette is making an active campaign to land the place, especially in Ohio, Mr. Taft's home State. There are a lot of people who are advocating the nomination of Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court. On the whole it looks as if the next six months are to be lively ones in national Republican politics, and judging from newspaper comment, Roosevelt has the greatest chance of landing the nomination.

The hospital governors paid a deserved tribute to the invaluable services of one of its members this week when, without discussion, they unanimously declined to accept the resignation of former Mayor Charles Joel Fisk. Many of us know that it was only because of the indefatigable work of this public spirited citizen that the institution could abandon its ramshackle old structure in the west end and be housed so splendidly on Randolph road.

"I cannot conceive any condition that would make it possible for me to consider the question of my becoming the candidate for the presidential nomination of the Democratic party in 1912."—William Jennings Bryan.

And yet some people think that it would be an impossibility for Mr. Bryan ever to be right.

They have found another one of those "perfect maids" over in New York. This one succeeded in getting away with about $5,000 worth of jewelry and clothing before she was placed in the hands of the police. Question is whether a perfect one is not worth nearly that amount now-a-days.

The youth who has the set conviction that one has to be born with a silver spoon in his mouth or must have some powerful backing to succeed in life will profit by reading "Fighting Bob" Evans story of his own life. The biography may be obtained at the Plainfield Public Library.

In the death of "Fighting Bob" Evans, the hero of many a notable naval battle, the nation loses a picturesque character, and probably the man who in modern times has done more to uphold the position of the United States than any other naval officer.

After reading the protests made against the man whom President Taft had about decided to elevate to the Supreme bench, it looks as if some one besides that court is going to "get the hook."

We congratulate the Common Council on its wisdom in retaining James T. MacMurray as city clerk. To have put an inexperienced man in his place would have been a serious mistake.

What sweet revenge that shrewd old Oriental diplomat has had on the Manchu dynasty, which on more than one occasion connived to cut off his head.

Show your interest in the community's welfare by attending the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce tonight.

"Sang Good Night and Died," says a newspaper headline. If some nocturnal back fence prowlers would only take the tip!

Plainfield's two greatest needs are a trunk line sewage disposal system and the municipal collection and disposal of garbage.

If it's not too late, we desire to wish success to the adminstration of Borough Mayor Robert Clark, Jr.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The boys' basketball team of the Plainfield High School will play the five from the Yonkers High School tomorrow afternoon on the local court. P. H. S. was defeated at Yonkers recently, but believes that it will be able to turn the tables tomorrow.

Several high school boys interested in wireless telegraphy will meet at the school tomorrow afternoon under the direction of Prof. Beals to form a wireless club. Those interested have the necessary wireless equipment for a station at the school.

Injured Playing Basketball.

Miss Clara Smith, manager of the N. P. H. S. girls' basketball team, while practicing with the team in DeLele Hall, yesterday afternoon, ran a nail into her hand, inflicting a painful but not serious injury. She will play with the team at Kearny tomorrow.

A Question Answered.

The dirty little newsboy was busily crying his wares. The fussy old lady standing near accosted him.

"Little boy, do you earn your living selling papers?" she inquired.

"Does I look it?" he scornfully demanded. "Naw; I owns er steam yacht and er automobile. I sells dese for charity."—Housekeeper.

"America's Grand Old Man"

THREE generations of Americans were spanned by the life of John Bigelow, "America's grand old man," who died recently in New York at the age of ninety-four. But eight years the junior of Abraham Lincoln and William E. Gladstone he was fated to see these men and other statesmen whom he had known pass from the world's stage, and of all the contemporaries of his long career in the law, journalism and public service he alone was left.

Mr. Bigelow came of old English stock, his forbears having emigrated in 1642 and settled in Watertown, Mass. The son of his emigrant ancestor received a grant of land in Rhode Island in recognition of his services in King Philip's war. His father, Asa Bigelow, practically established the village of Malden, Ulster county, N. Y., in 1807, building its first postoffice, church and school. It was there that John Bigelow was born on Nov. 25, 1817.

Graduated from Union college in 1835, Mr. Bigelow first studied law in a law office at Hudson, but the same year removed to New York, where for seventy-seven years he was to make his home. He was admitted to the bar in 1838.

Simultaneously with taking up the practice of law he began to write for the newspapers of that day. His articles on constitutional reform published in 1843 came in for much attention and were largely circulated. He became literary editor of the Plebeian and by his writings attracted the attention of prominent Democrats of that time. His support of Van Buren's candidacy in his writings brought him to the notice of William Cullen Bryant, who invited him to share in the proprietorship of the Evening Post.

Mr. Bigelow's diplomatic career began with his appointment as consul at Paris by President Lincoln. In 1865, on the death of William L. Dayton, he was advanced to envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary at the court of Napoleon III.

At the end of his diplomatic career in France Mr. Bigelow, after a brief return home, went to Berlin to educate his children. In 1873 he returned to America to take up literary work and to resume a friendship already dating back for some years with Samuel J. Tilden. Mr. Tilden brought about his nomination a few years later for secretary of state. Mr. Bigelow won over Frederick W. Seward, the Republican candidate, by 14,810 votes.

In December, 1885, President Cleveland nominated Mr Bigelow for assistant treasurer at New York, but he declined the honor He later went to Panama to report to the New York chamber of commerce what the prospects were for the completion of the canal under De Lesseps. Mr. Bigelow made a most careful investigation and came back to report that, while the problem "would seem to be a very simple one," yet "nothing in fact could be more desultory." Mr. Bigelow's report so pleased the chamber that he was elected an honorary member of that body. President Cleveland appointed him United States commissioner to the exposition at Brussels in 1888. In 1894 he was a delegate to the convention which revised the New York state constitution. Racine college and Union college in 1886 gave him the degree of LL. D., and the University of the City of New York bestowed the same degree upon him in 1889.

In Mr. Tilden's will Mr. Bigelow was appointed a trustee of the money which was to be applied to the establishment and maintenance of a public library. By the terms of the same will he was also made Mr. Tilden's authorized biographer. In 1895 he published his life of Mr. Tilden.

All his life Mr. Bigelow was a Democrat, but his period of great activity in politics ended with the death of his friend Mr. Tilden.

His wife was Jane Tunis Poultney, who died a number of years ago. His unmarried daughter, Miss Grace Bigelow, was his constant companion in his later years.

THE FORUM.

For Free Dental Clinic.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

I think the general public ought to know something about the proposed Free Dental Clinic for the City of Plainfield which will come before our Common Council for their consideration the latter part of this month and which just a few nights ago was referred to the finance committee.

Last year there was an ac tpassed by this State to make annual appropriations to incorporate dental societies of this State conducting and maintaining dental clinics in such cities for the free treatment of indigent persons. That act allowed an appropriation of $1,000. Shortly afterwards this act was amended so as to allow an appropriation as high as $5,000, because in some cities it has been found advisable to establish two or three clinics to be open to the poor most of the time.

Abraham Lincoln said, "God must have loved the poor people, he made so many of them." There is absolutely no doubt but what he did as they are surely numerous enough.

A free dental dispensary service located in our city would be for just such people. Oral hygiene is a subject which for the last five years has been attracting the attention of dentists, physicians, educators, and settlement workers all over the civilized globe.

A few years ago the Plainfield Board of Education was among the first to appoint dental inspectors for the school children and a general improvement has been noted in the care of the mouth and teeth since that time. There are plenty of poor children and adults who are not only suffering from tooth-ache but from diseased conditions of the mouth who if restored to nomal conditions would make that person more comfortable and happy.

Statistics show that school children sufferinf from abnormal conditions of the mouth and teeth are backward in their studies. I think I am safe in saying that fully seventy per cent. to eighty per cent. of the school children of Plainfield have defective teeth which we must admit is rather a high percentage.

The majority of the dentists of Plainfield have pledged themselves to give up a reasonable amount of their time to this work and we hope the Common Council will see its way clear to appropriate $1,000 for this cause.

Thanking you for the space you have so kindly given this article,

Very truly yours,
CHAS. G. DAVIS.

Victoria Falls.

The native name for the Victoria falls is the "Smoke That Sounds." The Arabs call them more imaginatively "the end of the world." When a great river suddenly pours over a 400 foot deep precipice and disappears in a 400 foot deep gorge it might well be falling over the edge of the earth into the immensity of unoccupied space.—South Africa.

High Pews.

During the reign of William and Mary in England a worthy bishop complained to the latter that the ladies of the court were wont to fix their eyes on their neighbors rather than on him during his discourses. It apparently never occurred to the divine that the fault might lie in the sermons themselves. By consent of the queen high pews were introduced to prevent wandering eyes. "As for the young ladies for whose spiritual welfare they were devised," says a writer, "their indignation was only surpassed by the rage of their admirers." From that time high pews were commonly placed in churches.

SEWAGE PLANS PROTEST HEARING FEBRUARY 27

Nomer Gray, of this city, who attended the hearing before the State Board of Health last week, when residents of Dunellen protested against the proposed plans of the city to enlarge its sewage disposal plant, has received a letter from Bruce S. Keator, secretary of the board that owing to the earnest request of many of the protestants, another hearing on the subject will be granted by the board at the State Capital on Tuesday, February 27. Following the last hearing the board stated that careful consideration would be given both sides of the question and a decision was eexpected soon.

It is now evidently the purpose of the board to gain more information, and a number of the protesting residents of Dunellen are anxious at the coming hearing to be able to present some definite plans for a proposed turnk sewer which will include all of the nearby towns. Suuggestions have been offered that representatives of Plainfield, North Plainfield, Dunellen, Fanwood, Scotch Plains and possibly Bound Brook arrange for a meeting to discuss the matter with a view to getting an idea as to the probable cost of a trunk sewer.

At the recent hearing it was suggested that State aid be secured in building the trunk sewer and this may be possible. Mr. Gray, who was one of the principal speakers, informed the State board that it was proposed to have a bill introduced in the Legislature early this year making it possible to build a trunk sewer. Many questions naturally arise in connection with such a proposition and those who oppose Plainfield's plans are anxious to reach a definite conclusion as to the probable cost of a joint sewer the pro rata assessment on each town and other details of the proposition.

Dunellen will be largely represented at the hearing in February, and the Common Council will also arrange for a representation that the city's interests may be looked after. At the last hearing Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett stated that he had no objections to a trunk sewer, but something must be done at once to give the cit ythe needed relief as the sewage disposal beds are now overloaded.

PROHIBITIONISTS TO NAME CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENCY

Special from Staff Correspondent.

Trenton, Jan. 4.—It has been decided by Secretary of State Samuel D. Dickinson, that the Prohibition party may, under the Geran election law, nominate a President of the United States, the name to be placed on the primary ticket next May, notwithstanding this party has never polled five per cent. of the total vote. The old primary election law provided that a political party within the meaning of the act was a party which at the last general election cast at least five per cent. of the total vote, and there was some question whether under this provision the Prohibitionists could legally nominate by petition a candidate for President for the primary election next May.

The decision in their favor is based upon the language of Section 5 of the Geran act. This provides that "it shall be lawful for not less than 1,000 voters of any political party in this State to file a petition with the Secretary of State," etc. The decision will permit the Prohibitionists to participate in the Presidential preference feature of the new law by filing the proper petition with the Secretary of State, signed by not less than 1,000 voters of this party.

WHAT THE STATE IS DOING FOR WHITE PLAGUE RELIEF

Special from Staff Correspondent

Trenton, Jan. 4.—The annual report of the board of managers of the tuberculosis sanitorium in Glen Gardner shows that most of the patients representing some of the counties, some from those centers in which the treatment of tuberculosis has been brought prominently before the public. For instance, the board states that most of the Essex county patients came from Newark and the Oranges; the next closest representation was from Passaic county with Paterson furnishing the major portion; and next in order came Union countly, most of whose patients came from Elizabeth and Plainfield.

During the year 393 patients received treatment for a period of more than one month. Of these 46 apparently have been cured; the disease arrested in the case of 148, and 151 patients have shown improvement. No improvements was shown in 42 cases, and there were six deaths. Of the 496 patients who entered the sanitorium, 119 were treated for $5 a week, while the others were maintained by the State.

By economies practiced by Superintendent Samuel B. English, there was a reduction in the weekly per capita cost of maintenance which was $10.04 in 1910 and $9.107. By a further deduction of $6.093 received for board from pay patients, the net weekly per capita cost to the State was $8.33 per patient, in addition to which an unexpended balance of $14,173 was returned to the State treausry.

MORE BUILDINGS NEEDED AT STATE'S SOLDIERS' HOME

Special from Staff Correspondent.

Trenton, Jan. 4.—An appeal for additional accommodations at the New Jersey Home for Disabled Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and their Wives as Vineland, froms the chief feature of the annual report of the board of managers of the institution. They declare that the home is overcrowded, and that there is a lack of proper facilities for the treatment of the sick and infirm inmates. The board asks for an appropriation of $50,000 for the erection of new buildings to remove the congestion. There are 61 persons whose applications for admission have been approved, but who are kept on a waiting list because of lack of room for them. At the close of the year there were 292 inmates at the Home. There were 35 deaths among the inmates during the year.

DR. CHALMERS SPEAKS TONIGHT TO BAPTISTS

Rev. Dr. William E. Chalmers, educational secretary for the American Baptist Publication Society, will speak at the Temple Baptist church, tonight, especially to the young people. Dr. Chalmers at present is working among the Young People's Societies throughout the Northern Baptist Convention and he will tell of that work.

Last night there was the annual roll call of members and 87 out of 150 responded. Rev. Evart C. Conover, the pastor, was in charge of the service. The special services this week are being held in recognition of the third anniversary of the church, the date of which was December 30. Tomorrow night Rev. Dr. W. W. Pratt, of this city, will speak on Sunday-school work.

The Sunday-school Superintendents' Association of this city will hold a mass meeting at the Seventh-Day Baptist church Monday night at 8 o'clock. There will be several speakers and the Convention Choir will sing.

ABROGATION OF RUSSIAN TREATY AND THE NEW ONE TO BE NEGOTIATED

Thirty Years of Trouble Over Passport Question Inspired Taft's Action.

Friendly Relations Between the Countries Will Not Be Interrupted.

THE trouble between the United States and Russia over the passport question is one of thirty years' standing and is due to the refusal of Russia to let Jews from America visit or revisit the czar's empire.

This refusal, it is asserted, is in direct violation of the first article of the treaty of 1832 between the United States and Russia.

Thirty odd years ago the Russian government began to establish for the Jews in that country what was known as the "pale," and many other restrictions and harassments were carried out, so it has been universally charged, the whole amounting to what came to be known as the Pogrom policy. This included expulsion, massacre and refusal to admit Russian Jews who had left there or whose parents had done so.

The Pogrom policy led to Jewish migration to America, which of late years has assumed enormous proportions, with the result that the passport question now and for many years gone by has interested the United States far more than any other nation.

Blaine's Protest.

James G. Blaine, in July, 1881, when secretary of state, sent to the czar through John W. Foster, the American ambassador at St. Petersburg, a note of protest, but it was without avail. The American congress in 1882, 1883, 1884, 1886, 1892, 1894, 1897, 1902, 1904, 1908 and 1909 adopted resolutions protesting against the exclusion of Jews from Russia.

Copyright by Moffett.

PRESIDENT TAFT.

Secretary of State John Hay in 1904 addressed a special note of protest to the Russian minister of foreign affairs, Count Lamsdorff. Then, as on every occasion of the sort, the White Bear grew ruffled, and the protest came to naught.

President Roosevelt in 1905 at the conclusion of the peace of Portsmouth between Japan and Russia wrote to Count Witte, one of the czar's special plenipotentiaries, saying: "I beg you to consider the question of granting passports to reputable American citizens of Jewish faith. I feel if this could be done it would remove the last cause of irritation between the two nations, whose historic friendship for one another I wish to do my best to maintain."

William H. Taft in his campaign for the presidency characterized the exclusion of American Jews from Russia as "needless and opprobrious," and since he became president he has tried, it has often been announced, to get Russia to modify its restrictions.

The treaty of 1832 originally was named to extend to 1839 and continued thereafter on one year's notice.

Other Commercial Treaties.

The next commercial treaty with Russia was concluded on Jan. 27, 1868, and covered trademarks, copyrights, etc.

The third and last commercial treaty with the empire of Russia was executed in June, 1904, by Ambassador McCormick and Count Lamsdorff and was ratified by the senate on May 6, 1909.

This last treaty gave American corporations the right to sue and be sued and to hold real property in the Russian empire, subject always to the laws there prevailing, and also gave to Russia similar rights pertaining to their corporations in this country.

The answer of the Russians to the American demands is that the Jews are oppressors, anarchists and general trouble makers. It is claimed that ever since Alexander III. liberated the serfs in 1861 the Jews in Russia have taken the place of the former slave owners, holding their power by keeping the ignorant peasant in debt to them. The Jews, it is also held, have added nothing whatever to the common weal; have served in the army only under compulsion and have been of no help to the nation.

The Russians have ever considered the Jews in Russia as an alien people with absolutely no rights and have given them no privileges and no standing. They limit the localities in which Jews shall dwell and have placed restrictions on their activities in almost every field.

The exclusion of Jews from Russia is accomplished by the Russian ambassadors and consular agents in America and elsewhere who refuse to countersign passports issued to Jews by the American and other governments.

The New Treaty.

President Taft's notification to the Russian government of his intention to terminate the treaty of 1832 after the expiration of the required year's notice is to be followed by diplomatic discussion looking to the negotiation of a new treaty. However, the new treaty if negotiated probably will not contain a provision for the reciprocal and unrestricted admission by one government of all citizens of the other. It is expected, on the other hand, that though the new treaty will make less broad the reciprocal pledges of the two countries regarding treatment to be accorded each other's citizens the net result will be a considerable improvement in the situation now so strenuously objected to by American Jews.

The solution of the problem is expected by both governments to be found in a system whereby each government will admit citizens of the other country vouched for by the government of that country. This suggestion, already under consideration, has not yet been worked out in detail. It has been proposed, however, that a plan similar to that by which Japanese laborers are kept out of the United States will be adopted. The United States government does not exclude Japanese directly, but through a solemn pledge by the mikado that he will not issue passports to any of his subjects to come to this country except under certain prescribed conditions.

It must be borne in mind that in a treaty the language is identical for both countries, and what one is pledged to the other is equally bound to fulfill. As the Russian government has already reminded the United States that this country excludes millions of Russian subjects who are either Mongolians or polygamous peoples, like the Mohammedans, this government cannot ask the czar to let down all the bars regulating admission of aliens to Russia in the case of American citizens.

Wherein Both Sides Will Be Firm.

It may be accepted as a positive fact that neither government will yield one jot of its right to scrutinize all persons of whatever citizenship presenting themselves for admission. Each will insist on its right to declare certain aliens "undesirables." President Taft and Secretary Knox have each publicly proclaimed this right as inherent to every sovereign power. It would thus be diplomatically impossible for their representative abroad to assert anything to the contrary.

AMBASSADOR GUILD, WHO WILL CONDUCT NEGOTIATIONS FOR A NEW TREATY.

Russia also will insist on the retention of the policy she has maintained successfully for years of refusing to recognize naturalized American Jews, native to Russia, as released from all obligations to the czar's government through their American citizenship. This attitude, which the United States does not attempt to oppose, renders Jews returning or desiring to return to Russia as liable to military service and other obligations, which Russia holds are never renounced by her citizens.

The state department has not the slightest doubt but that friendly relations between the two countries will continue uninterrupted between now and the termination of the treaty and even after the termination of the treaty. Diplomatic intercourse is expected to go on just the same even if a new treaty is not agreed upon before the expiration of the treaty of 1832.

SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION IN SESSION

Members of the New Jersey Society, Sons of the American Revolution, gathered in the Historical Society building, in Newark, yesterday in annual meeting. Following luncheon, the following officers were put in nomination: President, Judge Edward S. Atwater, of Elizabeth; first vice president, Thomas Williams, of Orange; second vice president, Edward Q. Keasbey, of Morristown; secretary, John R. Weeks, of South Orange; treasurer, Colonel Oscar H. Condit, of East Orange; register, John J. Hubbell, of Newark.

Trustee of the National Society, Andrew W. Bray, of Orange; board of managers, Henry V. Condit, of Essex Fells; Philip H. Hoffman, of Morristown; Edward P. Holden, of Madison; Joseph Holmes, of Cream Ridge; George R. Howe, of East Orange; Charles S. Kiggins, of Elizabeth; Jay Parmly, of Newark; George H. Richards, of Orange, and Charles W. Sanford, of Montclair.

Former Governor J. Franklin Fort was elected delegate-at-large to the twenty-third annual congress, to be held in Boston in May, and the regular delegates who will represent the society are: John L. Boggs, Perth Amboy; Mr. Holmes, Mr. Hubbell, Frederick B. Lovejoy, of Montclair; Charles M. Lum, Chatham; Raymond T. Parrott, Elizabeth; Peter Quackenbush, Paterson; Mr. Richards, Bird W. Spencer, of Passaic; William F. Whitaker, of Elizabeth, and Mr. Williams.

Judge Atwater presided. The report of the secretary showed a marked growth in the membership of the society during the last year, the total now being nearly 400. The deaths of two members were reported since the last meeting—Theodore H. Freeland and William H. Guerin.

FINED $25 FOR TRACKING AND SHOOTING RABBITS.

Because he violated the State game law relative to tracking and shooting rabbits Frank Derallo, of Roselle Park, was arrested Tuesday evening by Chief of Police Simon Birmingham and brought before Judge Noah Woodruff upon complaint of Game Warden William Hoblitzel, of Rahway.

Derallo was also charged with violation of borough ordinance No. 55, relative to the discharge of firearms within the borough. Judge Woodruff fined Derallo $20 and costs, amounting to $25.50 for violation of the State law and suspended sentence for violation of the borough ordinance.

STUDENTS WILL DISCUSS CLEANING OF STREETS.

Students at Battin High School, Elizabeth, have been permitted to enter the contest recently inaugurated by the National Municipal League, which has offered prizes for the best essays on the subject, "Street Cleaning in My City."

In view of the agitation concerning the condition of streets in Elizabeth and the concerted move that has been made to remove Street Commissioner Thompson from office, Richard E. Clement, superintendent of schools, was impressed with the timeliness of the topic and requested the pupils to try for the prizes that will be awarded the writers of the best compositions.

FLEMINGTON MAN IS BANISHED FROM TOWN

John Latsko, of Flemington, was given half an hour to leave town yesterday when arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court. Latsko was arrested Tuesday night for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He promised to go.

Charles Gray, of East Fourth street, reported to Patrolman Sweeney on Watchung avenue Tuesday night that while passing a doorway a man had jumped out and choked him. Persons who had seen Gray going along the street said that they had seen nothing of the alleged assault. Gray was intoxicated. He was given his freedom.

SURVIVORS OF FIRST SINGER EMPLOYES PLAN REUNION

Of the 1,000 men who came to Elizabeth in 1873 as employes of the Singer Manufacturing Company, only 100 survive, and these will gather in Turn Hall tonight to celebrate. Attendance at the reunion will be restricted to the survivors of those who were among the number employed by the company when its headquarters were shifted from New York to Elizabeth.

Union County Bar Officers.

Officers have been elected as follows by the Union County Bar Association: President, City Attorney James C. Connolly, of Elizabeth; vice-president, W. A. Coddington, of Plainfield; secretary, Paul Q. Oliver, of Westfield; treasurer, N. R. Leavitt, of Elizabeth.

Lost Watch in Newark.

A man giving his name as Jeremiah Nesbit, of West Third street, this city, reported to the Newark police Monday that his watch had been stolen in that city Monday morning. He went there to pay a few New Year calls and saw his watch last at 9:25 o'clock. It was noon when he reported the loss.

$150,000,000 IN BENEFACTIONS

Total For 1911 Was Only Exceeded In 1909.

CARNEGIE HEADS THE LIST.

He Is the Largest Individual Giver, With a Total of More Than $40,000,000 — Rockefeller Far Behind—Some of the Bequests.

The public benefactions of 1911 have amounted in this country to more than $150,000,000, according to the 1912 issue of the World Almanac.

This total was never exceeded except in 1909, when the aggregate approximated $175,000,000.

Andrew Carnegie has this year given away more than $40,000,000. His largest gift was $25,000,000 to the Carnegie corporation of New York, specially organized by the legislature at Albany to carry on the iron man's charities.

Mr. Carnegie, who is now a little more than seventy-seven years of age, has given to the public over $221,000,000.

Rockefeller Far Behind.

The elder John D. Rockefeller's publicly announced gifts this year have not amounted in all to more than $3,000,000, of which $1,315,000 went to the University of Chicago and $1,000,000 to the Rockefeller Institute For Medical Research in New York city. The rest was to colleges far west and south. The donation to the University of Chicago was the second annual installment of the "single and final gift" of $10,000,000 to that institution.

The second largest individual giver was Frederick C. Hewitt, who left $2,000,000 to the Postgraduate Medical school and hospital and $2,000,000 to the Little Missionary Day nursery, both New York institutions.

Joseph Pulitzer bequeathed more than $3,000,000 to public uses.

The missionary societies of America reported that their gifts have exceeded $13,000,000 in the year.

Colleges Big Gainers.

The colleges have been large gainers through the generosity of their wealthy graduates. Columbia university received $2,535,000.

Harvard and Princeton universities were left more than $1,700,000 apiece, and Chicago, Yale and Johns Hopkins universities inherited more than a million each.

The crusade against tuberculosis got a lift to the extent of $2,000,000 from James A. Patten, the Chicago grain operator.

The Presbyterian hospital in New York came into an additional installment of nearly $3,000,000 from the estate of John S. Kennedy.

Prominent women were large givers to public purposes. Mrs. Russell Sage provided $300,000 for a new dormitory at Cornell university and $400,000 for other purposes.

Other Women Givers.

Mrs. Rhinelander King of Great Neck, N. Y., provided nearly $1,500,000 for church charities and $700,000 was dispensed for the same purpose by Mrs. Mary Lathrop Peabody of Boston. Mrs. Emily H. Moir of this city gave $500,000 to charities and colleges, and Mrs. Emily Yarnell of Philadelphia left $500,000 to St. Clement's Protestant Episcopal church there.

Mrs. E. H. Harriman gave $200,000 to the hospital department of the Southern Pacific Railroad company and $125,000 to Yale university, principally for forestry.

Dr. D. K. Pearsons of Hinsdale, Ill., found he still had some of his fortune left, and he celebrated his ninety-first birthday by giving $300,000 to charity.

VERDICT WORSE THAN DEATH

Jury Asked Life Term With Yearly Torment For Wife Slayer.

One of the most remarkable verdicts ever found by a jury in Illinois was returned by the one which fixed the punishment of Henry W. Morris at life imprisonment for the murder of Mrs. Estelle Dumas of Pontiac. The verdict stipulated that on each anniversary of the slaying of Mrs. Dumas the prisoner be placed in a dungeon and put on a bread and water diet. It was further stipulated that no board of pardons should ever parole the prisoner.

Judge Carnes told the jurors the verdict could not be carried out and sent them back to bring in one differently worded. One juror said it was the opinion of the members that hanging was too good for Morris.

WOMAN JOINS LEE CAMP.

Captain Sallie Tompkins Only Confederate Army Officer of Her Sex.

Captain Sallie Tompkins of Richmond, Va., the only woman commissioned as an officer in the Confederate military service, has been elected a member of Lee Camp, Confederate Veterans. The vote was unanimous.

Miss Tompkins established and maintained at her own expense a hospital, where 1,300 wounded and sick Confederate soldiers were treated between July 1, 1861, and June 1, 1865.

When the Confederate secretary of war required all military hospitals to be in charge of an army or naval officer President Davis commissioned Miss Tompkins a captain of infantry.

CAMPAIGN OF WOMEN TO KILL POLYGAMY.

Nation Wide Movement to Give Federal Courts Power Over Mormons.

Prominent women have called an anti-Mormon mass meeting in Carnegie hall, New York, at which will be started a campaign throughout the country to induce one or both the great political parties to adopt a plank for federal action to suppress polygamy.

The meeting will be under the auspices of the International Council of Women For Christian and Patriotic Service.

"Although polygamy is admittedly flourishing in Utah," said Miss C. E. Mason of the committee in charge of the arrangements, "nothing is being done to check it, as it is under state control, and the state officers are under Mormon influence. When Utah became a state it was under the condition that polygamy should cease. Now we want it regulated and punished by the government.

"New polygamous marriages have been entered into by young women and men twenty to thirty years old, and if polygamy should suddenly stop enough young people have entered the relation recently to keep the institution alive in Utah for the next fifty years.

"The Mormon church never kept its promise made at the time Utah was admitted to statehood. The church still teaches polygamy openly as orthodox Mormon doctrine, still keeps in its book of doctrines the principles of polygamy and does not publish the manifesto against it.

"Already twenty-three states have passed the resolution asking for an amendment to the constitution to prohibit polygamy. Only nine states more are needed; then congress will be compelled to act. New York is one of the states which have passed the resolution, but a mass meeting there will have its influence throughout the country."

The committee will also agitate for a resolution in congress to have the Brigham Young piece removed from the battleship Utah's silver service.

1710 PRAYER BOOK.

One Published by First Printer In New York Has Been Found.

A copy of the first English prayer book printed in New York has been unearthed in the Society library. It was printed in 1710 by William Bradford, New York's first printer. The prayer book, which is incomplete, bears the following on its title page:

The Book of Common Prayer, and administration of the Sacraments;
And Other Rites and Ceremonies of the Church, According to the Use of the Church of England.
Together with the Psalter or Psalms of David; Pointed as they are to be Sung or Said in Churches.
Printed and Sold by William Bradford, in New York, 1710.

Only one perfect copy of this book is known, and the Historical Society of Pennsylvania is its proud owner. An imperfect copy was in the Brinley sale and brought $350. There is no copy in the Hoe collection. This was the first issue of the English prayer book before the Revolution and the only issue, except for a corrected edition, which was printed shortly after.

Bradford was a vestryman of Trinity church, New York, from 1703 to 1710.

13 CHILDREN IN 3 YEARS.

Twins, Triplets Twice, Then Five Born at Once—All Are Well.

His complaint that the railway waiting room at Boynton, Okla., was without fire on a bitterly cold day led to the discovery that J. M. Jackson and his wife are parents of thirteen children, born in three years.

Their eldest child, a son, is now fourteen years of age. Twins are now five years old. Triplets succeeded the twins in twelve months, and the next year triplets made their appearance. A year after the last triplets were born five children came on the same day.

The last five are still alive, but the health of the whole family, Jackson says, was impaired by the absence of warmth in the Boynton station waiting room.

URGES A NATIONAL ARCHIVE.

Badly Stored State Papers Need Fire Protection, Say Historians.

Inconveniences attending present methods of storing government records, as well as the danger of destruction by fire of documents constituting the real fabric of American history, were described in a letter presented to Representative Morris Sheppard of Texas, chairman of the house committee on buildings and grounds.

The letter was signed by the executive council of the American Historical association, among them Theodore Roosevelt, and urges the immediate erection of a national archive building.

She Leaves 221 Descendants.

Mrs. Agnes Taylor Schwartz, sister to John Taylor, the late president of the Mormon church and mother-in-law of Joseph F. Smith, now its president, died recently at Salt Lake City of old age. She was ninety years old. She had eleven children, three of whom, including Mrs. Smith, survive, as well as sixty-eight grandchildren, 145 great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren.

Socialist Convention May 12.

Oklahoma City, Okla., was selected for the national convention of the National Socialist party in the referendum vote. The convention will begin on May 12, 1912. Indianapolis was the second choice and Cincinnati third.

BARRICADES HOME AND FIGHTS COPS FOUR HOURS

After holding two detective-sergeants of the Elizabeth police at bay with an axe for more than four hours yesterday, John Balough, 25 years old, is a prisoner in the county jail charged with atrocious assault and battery.

Detective-Sergeants Murphy and Mulcahy sought to arrest Balough Tuesday night on a warrant charging him with having assaulted James Bashak, of New Brunswick. They went to his home at 630 Fulton street, Elizabeth, and were greeted by Mrs. Balough, who barred their progress, giving her husband time to escape to the garret. The detectives forced an entrance and found the stairs barricaded. They started up and Balough shouted that he would kill the first man to ascend. The sergeants then summoned Patrolmen Leonard and Mariga to stand guard outside the house.

Mulcahy and Murphy then started to go up the stairs and were greeted with a fussilade of flower pots, one of which struck the former on the arm, dislocating it. The lamp which Murphy carried was shattered and the men were in total darkness. Another light was obtained and again the men went for their quarry. The axe was then brought into play and in the dim light the detectives had several close calls. After battling for four hours a feint was made for an attack from the front while one of the detectives effected an entrance through a rear window. Attacking Balough from behind, he was able to overcome the enraged man.

MOVING TAVERN WHERE ARNOLD WAS TRIED.

The old Dickerson tavern, at Spring and Water streets, Morristown, where, it is claimed, Benedict Arnold was court-martialed when he was accused of disloyalty, is being moved to a new site in Spring street, that place. The building was recently purchased by Frank Giordano from Thomas H. Meskill and Mrs. L. O. Stiles.

When the tavern was built by Peter Dickerson in 1745 Water and Spring streets were two principal thoroughfares. The first forge in Morristown was erected in the rear of the tavern, near the Whippany River. The first grist mill in the town was on a nearby site, and the first store was in one end of the house, still standing opposite the old location of the tavern.

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICA INSTALL THEIR OFFICERS.

Installation of officers was the feature of the meeting of Martha Washington Council, D. of A., in the Coward building Tuesday night. After the installation exercises a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

The following officers were installed: Councilor, Mrs. Mabel Goodwin; associate councilor, Mrs. Anna Schmidt; vice councilor, George Mobus; associate vice councilor, Mrs. A. Kettenring; conductor, Miss Florence Williams; warden, Mrs. F. Overland; inside sentinel, E. E. Townley; outside sentinel, Harry Mottley; trustee, eighteen months, H. Mottley.

Raise $1,400 for Y. M. C. A. Site.

It was announced yesterday by R. P. Whitcomb, chairman of the building site committee having in charge the purchase of land in Bayonne for a Y. M. C. A. building, that $1,400 has been raised to date, and it will be necessary for $1,500 to be paid on or before February 1, in order to secure a site in Broadway from Thirty-eighth to Thirty-ninth streets. Each of the fifteen members of the committee is now working hard to secure the money required to make up the balance.

Boy With Bullet Wound Better.

Although the bullet which was fired into his body by an unidentified hunter while he was on his way to school, in Summit six weeks ago is believed to be lodged between his right hip and the abdomen the condition of Robert McTernan, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James McTernan, of Morris turnpike, is so much improved that an operation for the removal of the shot will not be performed.

Police Deadlock of Year Broken.

Roselle Park's new Borough Council Tuesday broke the deadlock that has existed for nearly a year over the appointment of a police captain by naming Patrolman Simon Birmingham for the place. Birmingham and Patrolman James Ratchford sought the office before the old Council, and each had an equal number of supporters. Birmingham has been attached to the department for several years.

Install on January 16.

Court Union, Independent Order Foresters, will install its officers on Tuesday night, January 16, after which there will be a banquet. The court now numbers about sixty and at the meeting Tuesday one application was received.

The Christmas cantata will be repeated at Trinity Reformed church Friday night under the direction of Miss Lillian A. Force and Miss Etta Raybert, for the benefit of the library fund.

PLAINFIELD HIGH GIRLS DEFEAT ROSELLE HIGH FIVE

The girls' basketball team of the Plainfield High School added another game to its list of victories yesterday afternoon, when it defeated the Roselle Park High School five by a score of 18 to 12. The visitors played a steady game in both periods, but they could not cope with the superior team work and accurate basket throwing of the P. H. S. five.

The visitors made the first score by throwing a basket from play. This lead was soon overtaken when Miss Stewart threw a basket which was quickly followed by another goal by Miss Mehl from forward. A basket by Miss Miller and two foul goals completed the scoring for Roselle Park in this half, while Miss Stewart and Miss Mehl each threw two baskets. The period ended with P. H. S. leading by the small margin of one goal with a score of 8 to 6.

In the second half the side centers were taken out of the game and Miss Stryker took Miss Moy's place at guard for P. H. S. The local team played a faster game in this half. Both Miss Stewart and Miss Mehl threw their goals with great accuracy. The former scored three points from difficult angles and Miss Mehl shared the honors by throwing two goals from play. Miss Douglas played a fast game at center for P. H. S., and the Misses Phillips and Moy both played a strong game at guard. The lineup:

P. H. S.—Forwards, Miss Stewart, Miss Mehl; center, Miss Douglass, Miss Waldorf; guards, Miss Moy, Miss Stryker, Miss Phillips.

Roselle—Forwards Miss Dennick, Miss L. Miller; center, Miss Hunter; guards, Miss Holland, Miss I. Miller.

Referee, Miss Daisy Day; umpire, Mr. Starry; timer, Fred Clarke; linesmen, Miss Laura Bristol, Miss Moy.

COAL MINERS MAY GO OUT ON STRIKE

Local Dealers Fear Threatening Situation in Anthracite Regions.

DEMAND FOR HIGHER WAGES

To Concede to Terms of Workers' Chief Would Make the Retail Price of Coal Soar Higher—Serious Trouble Is Probable.

For some time past the local retail coal dealers have been receiving messages from the wholesale dealers in Pennsylvania mining district that a strike seemed inevitable and a statement issued yesterday by John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers, seems to warrant these warnings. The miners' chief completed his tour of the anthracite fields yesterday at Wilkes-Barre and after giving out the statement, left immediately for Indianapolis, Ind., where the miners' convention will open Tuesday, January 16.

White declared that he did not find the conditions as good as they are in the bituminous region and would not give up trying to better them until he had gained for the miners the demands they had made at the Pottsville, Pa., convention some time ago. He stated that he was a lover of peace, but would fight if a battle was the only way to get what the miners demand. These demands the coal operators are not going to grant without a struggle, they say, because to do so would be a ruinous policy and would boost the price of coal to an almost prohibitive price.

With these conditions existing the local dealers are preparing to pass through just such an ordeal as during the strike of 1902 when Theodore Roosevelt was president of the United States and was instrumental in getting the operators and miners together, after several months, so that an amicable agreement was reached and a contract for a term of years signed between them. Each time this contract expired there have been rumors of an impending strike, but none was called. This time, however, conditions are much different and relations so strained that the trouble is not expected to terminate so happily.

When asked this morning what effect the strike, if called, would have on the price of coal here, several dealers said none at present as the winter schedule is in effect, but what would happen after the time expiration of the present price would depend entirely on developments and the length of the strike. In the event of the strike being called it would not happen until after the first of April.

CITY REMOVED THE SNOW IN FRONT OF 450 PLACES

That this city is not the only place where residents and business people did not leave their homes Sunday morning to shovel snow became evident yesterday when 80 notices were issued in Westfield to those whose sidewalks are yet covered with a coating of ice and snow. Each person receiving a notice will be arraigned before the recorder at the town hall Saturday morning. Eighteen were arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court yesterday and more are to follow unless the requirements of the snow removing ordinance are fulfilled.

Regarding this measure Street Commissioner Gavett said::

"After each snow storm the police officers turn in a list of walks which have been neglected for twelve hours, and then four or five gangs of laborers are employed to remove the snow. This work sometimes requires several days, and in the meantime the people who have cleaned their walks promptly have the inconvenience of walking over uncleaned sidewalks.

"After the recent storm it was necessary to clean the walks in front of about 450 properties.

"As so many walks are left for the street force to do, it seems necessary to enforce the penalty in some cases in order to prevent the amount of work from increasing beyond the capacity of any force of men which it would be possible to secure.

Chalmers, of Philadelphia, who is educational secretary to the American Baptist Publication Society, made the address at the special service in the Temple Baptist church last night. His subject was "Loyalty." The Young People's Society was in charge. The services will be concluded tonight when Rev. Dr. W. W. Pratt, of this city, will speak under the auspices of the Sunday-school.

GEO. L. BABCOCK HEADS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Assemblyman Re-Elected President and Plans Are Made For Banquet on Lincoln's Birthday.

Assemblyman George L. Babcock was unanimously re-elected president of the Chamber of Commerce last night at the annual meeting. Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., was chosen first vice president, A. E. Force, second vice president; D. W. Littell, treasurer. These were chosen as directors: F. J. Blatz, Paul H. Burns, David J. Carney, Charles H. Hand, James C. Hansen, Daniel W. Littell, Alexander Milne, P. J. McDonough, Charles H. Russell, George M. Clark and J. V. E. VanDerhoef.

Mr. Babcock made a short speech thanking the members for their expression of confidence and said that he was deeply conscious of the honor conferred. That the Chamber has a bright future before it and that it has made itself felt as a beneficial medium in the community he declared he felt sure, and with hearty cooperation by all the members the coming year would see a lot accomplished for the city's welfare.

The report of the treasurer showed that there is a balance on hand of $21.16. The secretary's report was submitted at the December meeting and since then considerable work in the way of raising funds has been done by a special committee. That report conveyed the impression that there would be a deficiency of $2,500. In order to reduce expenses, Directors P. H. Burns and P. J. McDonough were named as a committee to secure other meeting rooms at a more reasonable rental. The Peace Meeting for which the Board of Education declined the free use of the High School auditorium as it would set a bad precedent, was discussed and in all likelihood will be held, however, in that hall, the $15 rental fee to be paid. Announcement of this will be made when arrangements have been completed.

A committee will be appointed at the meeting of the directors Monday night to consider the advisability of giving a dinner on Lincoln's Birthday. A resolution to this effect was passed. The Chamber of Commerce dinner was held on that date last year and at that time it was suggested that it be made an annual feature. Those present at last night's meeting were heartily in accord with holding it again this year as scheduled.

THEY PLEAD NON VULT, SENTENCE NEXT FRIDAY.

Edward Murphy, Edward Hamilton and Albert Vail, the three youths arrested here several weeks ago and held on the charge of burglarizing Benjamin Estrin's tailoring shop on Somerset street, were arraigned before Judge Clarence Case in the Somerset county court this morning. Murphy and Hamilton were held as accessories after the fact. They entered a plea of non-vult as did also Vail, through their attorney, Judge William G. DeMeza.

Judge Case set next Friday as the day for passing sentence. Vail is still in jail while his companions are out on bail.

COUNTY'S TAX BOARD HEARS APPEALS HERE.

The Union County Board of Taxation was in session this morning in the councilmanic committee room in the Smalley building on North avenue and heard ten appeals from Plainfield residents. Seven appeals were filed by citizens of New Providence and about the same number from Berkeley Heights. Hearing on the majority of these was postponed until next Tuesday morning at the county court house in Elizabeth. About one half of the local appeals were granted and action on the others either deferred or refused.

SETTLEMENT WORK DESCRIBED BY HER

Miss Cornelia Bradford, Head of Whittier House, Tells of the Movement.

ITS SUCCESS IS WONDERFUL

Plainfielders Hear of the Undertaking at Meeting Held at Home of Mrs. F. L. Clark—Two Local Men Are Directors.

Miss Cornelia F. Bradford, who for the past eighteen years has been the head of the Whittier House, Jersey City, addressed a company of men and women at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Clark, on West Seventh street, last night, giving a history of the movement and telling something in detail of the work of Whittier House which is well-known throughout the State. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church, and Mr. Clark are both members of the board of directors of the House and it was through their efforts that Miss Bradford came to Plainfield.

Dr. Zelie introduced Miss Bradford explaining in a word the object of her visit and commending the work being carried on at Whittier House. A delightful feature of the affair was the appearance of Ludmila Vojacek, of New York, a pianist of rare ability, who is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Clark. She very kindly favored the company with several of her best selections and her playing charmed everyone.

Miss Bradford began her talk by explaining that the settlement movement was started twenty-seven years ago by five students from Oxford who located on the East Side of London, where a settlement was established, and she said that John Ruskin was really responsible for the idea. These students carried the air of Oxford to the poor people. They were much encouraged and conducted the work with great success. There were thirty other settlements later on as the outgrowth of the original one.

Miss Bradford then told how the movement spread to this country, and she recalled some of the best known ones, such as the University Settlement in New York and Hull House, Chicago, which has been made famous by Miss Jane Addams. The speaker said that the idea although originating out of the church has attracted a band of earnest Christian workers. She said that when she came to this country eighteen years ago she decided to locate in Jersey City, where she at first secured furnished rooms. Here she lived for four months in the First ward in which Whittier House is located.

Miss Bradford said that her entire capital was $10, but through the kindness of a friend the Clark mansion was given to her for the work, provided she raised the money for its support. This has been done and Miss Bradford surprised her audience when she told them that during the past two years she had raised $20,000, a portion of which was used to build a new four and half story house. There is now an average of 2,500 people visiting the House each week, the majority of whom are Poles, Jews and Italians.

"I do not want to criticise Jersey City," said Miss Bradford, "but if Whittier House had to depend on that city for its support it would fail. I consider it a settlement belonging to the State and this is shown by the way that the people of the State contribute to its support. Since we opened the House we have started and turned over to the city a kindergarten, a playground and dispensary. Ten people now live with us at the House, each one paying board. Many of those who were newsboys when the work was started are now members of the board of directors and they are holding responsible positions in the business world.

"Six of us lived during one whole summer on $1 a day. We did our own scrubbing, sweeping and in fact all our work and in this way we were able to get closer to the people than by any other means. We make a great deal of the social and pleasure side. There has never been a time when we had to cater to pleasure as today. It is a fact that cannot be

BOND ISSUE FOR HOSPITAL

Director John N. Cady Appoints His Committees—Confer With Col. Stevens Today on the Road Work Appropriation.

The Union County Board of Freeholders held its first regular meeting of the year at the Court house, Elizabeth, yesterday afternoon, at which time Director John N. Cady announced the full list of committees. A telegram was received from State Road Commissioner Col. Edward Stevens requesting that a delegation from the board meet him at Trenton today for the purpose of considering certain bills regarding road improvements to be presented in the Legislature this winter. The Colonel is planning a number of improvement and Union County will no doubt get a goodly share of State funds.

The board also passed a resolution appropriating an additional $75,000 for the completion of the "Bonnie Burn" sanitarium, which is now well under way. These committees were appointed for the year:

Collector's bond, Hall, McMane, Hennessy; auditing, Wilbur Smith, Jones; jail, Perry, Doane, Bourdon; discharge of prisoners, Crane, Hall, Bourdon; lunacy, Meisel Randolph, Jones; grounds and buildings, Krouse, Smith, Bourdon; publication, Randolph, McMane, Hennessy; stationery Darby, Teller, Bourdon; county roads, Krouse, Wilbur, Meisel, Pierson; miscellaneous, Teller, Darby, Acken; appropriations, Smith, Crane, Hall, Jones, Fay; elections, Teller, Perry, McMane, Fay, Pierson; legal questions Darby, Hall, Acken; settle with collector, Wilbur, Crane, Pierson; hospitals, Doane, Krouse, Wilbur, Greuner, Fay; soldiers' headstones, Doane, Perry, Greuner, Acken, Hennessy; Elizabeth drawbridge, Perry Teller, Hennessy; Rahway drawbridge, Greuner, Randolph, Fay; Legislature, Meisel, Krouse, Pierson; sinking fund, Cady, Krouse, Jones.

The $75,000 bond issue for the Bonnie Burn Sanitorium for Consumptives, will be known as the county hospital bonds. They will be $1,000 each and will be sold to the highest bidder not lower than par. They will bear 4½ per sent. interest and will mature at the end of thirty years.

It was announced that the amount to be raised by taxation in Union county to meet expenses for the coming year is $409,000. Last year it was necessary to raise $442,500, the difference being accounted for mostly by the fact that the enactment of the Geran law required the purchase of many extra booths and ballot boxes.

New York, Jan. 4, 1912.
Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:
Accept my congratulations upon the judgment and ability evidenced in your make-up of the new Daily Press. Your editorial policy, your up-to-date manner of handling the news and your selection of typographical dress should meet with the sincere approval and earnest support of the people of Plainfield.
Trusting that you will be rewarded by the success which your effort deserves, I am
Yours very truly,

Will Repeat Xmas Cantata.

The Christmas cantata, "Topsy Turvy Christmas," which was given successfully at Trinity Reformed church last week, will be repeated at the church tonight, under the direction of Miss Lillian A. Force and Miss Etta Raybert. An offering will be received for the library fund.

IN A PLAYFUL SCUFFLE, BOY IS SHOT IN ABDOMEN

While Chas. Schenck Shows Walter Bowden How Sheriff Holds up Bandits Rifle is Discharged.

Walter Bowden, the fifteen-year-old son of Mrs. Mary Bowden, of 1525 West Third street, is in Muhlenberg Hospital in a serious condition the result of being shot in the abdomen yesterday afternoon, during a friendly scuffle with Charles Schenck, sixteen years old, of Roc avenue and Fourth street. The leaden missile from a .22 calibre rifle entered his body beneath the lower rib on the left side, tearing its way through vital parts. The boy was operated upon by Dr. B. VanD. Hedges and although his condition is not critical, complications are apt to develop at any time. The affair took place in Piscataway township, but the local police took Schenck in charge after making an investigation. He was placed in the custody of Detective Ferguson, of Middlesex county, this morning, and was taken to New Brunswick for a formal hearing.

According to the story told Chief Kiely by Schenck, the rifle belonged to him and he carried it yesterday afternoon when Bowden asked him to take a trip to the Dunn farm at New Market. The injured lad's mother conducts a milk route and the supply is obtained from this place. They had no cartridges for the weapon but secured a box at Fenner's hardware store in Dunellen on the drive to the village. The milk was obtained and as the horse was jogging along New Market road homeward, Schenck attempted to show his companion how the county sheriff in the play of that name had held up the stage bandits. The two boys were struggling for possession of the rifle when it discharged accidentally.

Schenck realized at once that Bowden had been shot and hurried to a nearby house for assistance. A woman there said she could not help him as she was ill herself. He then went to Dr. Nelson's home, but on learning he was out drove to the office of Dr. Pratt, at Dunellen. The latter realized the seriousness of the wound and after giving first aid, had the injured lad conveyed to the hospital in a livery rig.

Schenck accompanied his friend to the institution, remaining in the office. A nurse found him there crying and on inquiring as to the trouble he said he was waiting to be arrested.

"You won't be arrested," Schenck says the nurse told him, "so you can go home."

The youth proceeded to Bowden's home to tell the mother of what had happened, after which he served the milk customers. He was taken to police headquarters early this morning.

In reply to a query from Chief Kiely, Schenck said he had secured the rifle from Michael Crowley, another West End boy. The two met while skating on the "Guinea Egg" pond, a few days ago and Crowley turned it over in trade for a weapon Schenck owned.

Judge Daly paroled Schenck this afternoon.

REPUBLICANS PLAN FOR IDEAL SESSION

G. O. P. Leaders in Senate and House Provide For Business-Like Legislature.

WILL HURRY BILLS THROUGH

To Get Measures in Hands of Governor in Advance of March 22 to Give Him Ample Time to Consider Them.

Special from Staff Correspondent.

Trenton, Jan. 5.—Meet next Tuesday at noon, conduct a session which shall be business-like and no longer than necessary, fulfill every platform pledge and then adjourn sine die at 3 o'clock p. m., Friday, March 22. This is the program for the legislative session of 1912 as mapped out yesterday afternoon by the Republicans at their caucus in the State House. After the lawmakers had conferred and considered the bills submitted on many important questions and had issued their statement outlining their policy, several of the leaders in both Senate and Assembly declared themselves as well satisfied with what had been accomplished. There seemed to be a general feeling that a good start had been made which gave promise of a session that would bring credit to the party.

Senator Edge, of Atlantic, the leader in the upper branch, stated that it was the intention to carry out the plan to adjourn finally March 22. This changes somewhat the original proposition of taking a tentative adjournment on that date and then returning for final adjournment after giving Governor Wilson time to consider the bills in his hands. The program as arranged yesterday afternoon is to get the party measures carrying the platform pledges introduced early in the session, giving them consideration as soon as possible consistent with good lawmaking, and then get them through both houses and into the Governor's hands a sufficient time in advance of March 22 to give the Governor ample time to consider them, and yet permit final adjournment on the day mentioned.

If this plan be followed it will mark a great improvement over the course for many years past. The custom has been to fritter away much time at the beginning of the session and leave the important bills for consideration at the last moment, almost. This is one of the things which has caused the railroading of scores of bills in the last hours of the session.

Speaker Thomas P. McCran, of Passaic; Leader George W. Whyte, of Camden, and Assemblyman Radcliffe, of Passaic, the dean of the House, all expressed themselves as believing that the Republicans had done their best to insure an ideal session. There seemed to be a general desire to do everything possible to make the session notable for good legislation. If all the bills considered at the caucus shall be enacted into law, the session of 1912 will pass into history as one which gave the State one of the best series of statutes ever put upon the books in one year.

A program which includes grand jury reform, thus driving from the State such conditions as exist now in Atlantic and Hudson counties; the abolition of grade crossings which last year caused the death of 23 persons and the injury of 79; the revision of the tax laws to provide equalization of taxes and to abolish the evils of the present system; to correct the new election laws; to develop the inland waterways and make them commercially available; to extend and improve the good roads system; to give further protection to working men and women in factories from injury by machinery and to cure the dust evil, and to provide greater home rule in the municipalities of the State, is an ambitious program and if it be carried out will bring great credit to this Legislature.

Nathan Emory Mead.

Nathan Emory Mead, aged 65 years, of Brooklyn, died at his home in the latter city, Tuesday. He is survived by three sisters and a brother residing here. They are Mrs. J. N. Boylan, Mrs. P. G. Emmons, Mrs. A. B. Noe and G. W. Mead.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS CHARGE IS PREFERRED

Thomas J. Hastings, of Westfield, will be tried before Judge Collins at Westfield, tonight, on a charge of cruelty to animals preferred by Frank A. Stirrup, of that place. Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, agent for the S. P. C. A., is prosecuting the case. Mr. Hastings, it is alleged, has been shooting dogs in promiscuous fasion about Westfield, and among the dogs which got in the way of his revolver, it is said, was one belonging to Mr. Stirrup. It was a valuable bull terrier.

Mr. Stirrup's dog was not killed outright, it is said, but was simply shot and allowed to die slowly. The owner's attention was called to the matter and he appeared before Judge Collins and lodged a complain against Mr. Hastings. The incident has aroused a great deal of interest in Westfield and it is expected that a number of prominent residents will attend the trial.

Baptist Missionary Meeting.

At the regular meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church yesterday afternoon, a paper on "Non-Christian Faiths in America," by Mrs. S. A. Krom, and another on "Buddhism vs. Christianity," by Mrs. F. St. John Fitch, were read.

—Neuman Bros. will have for tomorrow's trade a large and choice assortment of fresh fruits and vegetables from which a selection will be easy.

NEWTON SMALLEY TO BE THE GUEST

Citizens to Hold a Dinner in Recognition of Retiring Mayor's Services.

STOKES WILL BE A SPEAKER

Samuel St. John McCutchen Toastmaster—200 to Attend—Alexander Milne Chairman of Banquet Committee.

Men of prominence in Somerset county and in New Jersey will attend an informal dinner to be given by North Plainfielders in honor of former Mayor Newton B. Smalley by his friends in Saengerbund Hall Wednesday night, January 10, at 7 o'clock. The event will be a recognition of the completion of Mr. Smalley's eleventh year as Mayor of North Plainfield, he having retired from office on January 1.

Alexander Milne is chairman of the general committee of arrangements and the guests will be limited to 200. Samuel St. John McCutchen will be the toastmaster for the occasion and among the prominent speakers will be former Governor Edward Casper Stokes and Rev. Dr. Charles Aubrey Eaton, of Watchung, who is pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York city, and William N. Runyon, warm friends of Mr. Smalley. There will be other short speeches by prominent men in Somerset county, North Plainfield and this city.

The dinner will be served by DeMolli, of this city, and Paroubek's full orchestra will render a popular program throughout the evening. The committee is arranging for several other features to be announced later.

POLICE MAY ARREST MORMONS' MISSIONARIES

It has been brought to the attention of Mayor G. W. V. Moy that Elders Albert J. Newman and Arthur S. Horsley, of Price, Utah, missionaries of the Mormon church, are again engaged in the practice of proselyting in this city, despite his orders. Accordingly he has instructed the police, he says, to arrest the men if they are caught disobeying the order. Right after the Mayor denied the missionaries the right to work in this city, they directed their attention to North Plainfield, where they spent seven weeks.

Recently, it was stated, the elders returned to Plainfield and residents of Westervelt avenue reported to Mr. Moy that the missionaries were calling on people on that street. Then followed the Mayor's second order. The men will be promptly arrested if they continue their work here.

The Mayor is acting under the provisions of the second section of the ordinance providing for the peace and good morals of the city.

FOURTH LECTURE ON EDUCATIONAL SERIES.

The fourth lecture in the series being conducted by the Board of Education was given in the Washington School, last night. The subject was "Japan," and the lecturer was John M. Whiton, who is well and favorably known to Plainfield audiences. His relation of personal impressions gained in a trip to the "Flowery Kingdom" was received with rapt attention by a large gathering. The views were excellent and aided materially in the description. The stereopticon was operated by George Fisher.

The next lecture in the course will be given on Thursday night, January 18, when Louis Armstrong will talk on "Ireland in Song and Story."

WOMAN RESCUES 1. HORSES FROM FLAMES.

A woman's bravery Wednesday night saved from fire fourteen horses owned by her husband, John Seaman, of 161 Van Vorst street, Jersey City. Mrs. Seaman was all alone when she saw flames issuing from the Seaman stable adjoining her home. She smashed the lock on the door and then led out the frightened horses. By this time the firemen had arrived and gave assistance.

Mrs. Seaman kept on working even after the horses had all been rescued. She corralled them in a lot saw that they were blanketed, and cared for. The fire was slight. One of the horses saved was a racer, named St. Louis, and valued, so Mrs. Seaman says, at $8,000.

Frank Eustis, of Arlington, has been spending the past week with John A. Kenney, of Sandford avenue.

NORWEGIAN SCIENTIST FROM FROZEN NORTH.

Brings Moving Pictures of Eskimos Capsizing Their Kyaks.

Christian Leden, explorer and scientist, who arrived in Winnipeg, Manitoba, from the northland on his way back to Norway, where he will complete arrangements for another exploration into the arctic regions and an attempt to make the famous northwest passage, says he learned many things among the Greenland Eskimos that will be of inestimable value to him next year.

"I learned to live on raw meat and to sleep out in the cold with only the shining light of the aurora to warm me and to operate the wonderful kyaks (Eskimo boats), a feat only to be achieved after long practice," Mr. Leden said. "Although they cannot swim, the Eskimos have no fear of capsizing their boats. In fact, they do it for amusement and right themselves immediately. I was the first man to take moving pictures of them while they were performing this feat.

"Almost the only thing to eat we shall be able to procure on our expedition will be raw meat. There is nothing to burn in the north, and we could not take fuel along with us. We shall therefore be compelled to subsist entirely on what we shoot and eat it raw."

The expedition will be financed by the Norwegian government. The principal object is scientific discovery, and Mr. Leden is charged to procure strange and curious objects of the Eskimos for the museums in Berlin and Christiania. His preliminary trip this summer has resulted in his sending to Norway many rare and valuable objects.

IRRIGATION FARMING HARD.

Has a Thorny Side That Daunts Some Settlers, Says Newell.

Life on a government irrigation farm is not the bed of roses which many picture it to be, says Director Newell of the reclamation service in a paper prepared by him for the Smithsonian Institution.

"This awakening to the fact that irrigation has its thorny side," he declares, "sometimes comes as a startling shock sufficient to discourage all but the most enthusiastic or persistent, and the more faint hearted seek further for the promised land.

"Those who remain soon learn that success must be preceded by subduing the soil, getting it into a good condition of tilth, applying water day or night and perhaps all night, wading around in the mud or enduring the heat of long days of brilliant sunshine and the accompanying dust of the arid regions, the troubles with neighbors over division of water, the possible seepage followed by crop losses or ruin from alkali. As a consequence a considerable part of the first settlers on every irrigation system sell out or relinquish their homesteads and seek other fields."

X-SCIENCE IN PANAMA.

Taft Modifies Order Regulating Practice of Medicine In Canal Zone.

President Taft has settled the question of allowing the practice of Christian Science or other nonmedicinal methods of healing the sick on the Panama canal zone. The executive order made several months ago, which members of the Christian Science church feared would prohibit their method of healing, was modified so that there can be no doubt as to the lawfulness of such practice.

The original order provided that any one who wished to practice medicine, surgery, dentistry or pharmacy on the canal zone must be licensed by the board of health. As modified by the president, the order shall not be construed "to prohibit the practice of the religious tenets of any church in the ministration of the sick and suffering by mental or spiritual means without the use of any drug or material remedy, whether gratuitously or for compensation, provided that such sanitary laws, orders, rules or regulations as now or hereafter may be in force in said canal zone are complied with."

ARMY PLANS FOR NEWPORT.

Big Camp Site and Longer Ranges to Be Made Soon, It Is Said.

Extensive plans for the increase of defenses about Newport and Narragansett bay and for the camping of thousands of troops there have been completed in Washington, but will not be carried out until appropriations can be obtained. The plans are reported to include the extension of the gun testing grounds at Fort Wetherill, in Jamestown, to give an unobstructed range seaward.

The reports state that the camp sites selected on the shore of Narragansett bay have perfect sanitation and water supply and that thousands of troops can be camped. At the present time hardly more than half of the defenses are manned because of the shortage of officers and men in the coast artillery corps, some of the defenses being in charge of civilian watchmen.

Uncle Sam Hides His Cash.

The secrets of Uncle Sam's great money storehouse are to be guarded carefully hereafter. In the past visitors have been allowed to gaze upon great bundles of crisp greenbacks in the treasury department. Hereafter they will be allowed to see nothing in the way of money but a few thousands in silver and paper in the cash room.

COURT MARTIAL OF ENSIGN SAUFLEY

He Refused to Take the Torpedo Boat Biddle to Sea.

VESSEL IS KNOWN AS "TUB"

Naval Constructor Says Not a Single Boat of That Class Is In Condition to Stand Rough Weather—Danger to Men on Unseaworthy Craft.

The torpedo boat Biddle, the "tub" of the torpedo boat flotilla, is responsible for the court martial of Ensign Richard C. Saufley on charges of disobedience of orders and for not reporting to his ship. According to the charges preferred against Saufley, the latter was ordered to proceed to sea at night with the Biddle. Ensign Saufley called up Commander Patton, commandant of the Norfolk navy yard, on the telephone and informed him that his vessel was not fit for sea duty; that it was unserviceable and dangerous.

According to Ensign Saufley, he was ordered to take the Biddle from the Norfolk yard to Cape Henry with supplies for a wrecked collier. He did so after he had reported the Biddle unfit for sea duty. He returned from Cape Henry and no sooner tied up than he was ordered to again go to the capes. It was nearly night, and he called up Commander Patton and informed him that the ship was in such a bad condition he did not care to take the responsibility of risking the lives of his crew. He said he did not fear for himself.

Refused to Go to Sea.

Commander Patton refused to take the responsibility of sending Ensign Saufley out. He did offer the services of a pilot. Saufley refused the latter and also refused to go out. The latter refusal is the basis of the charges of disobedience of orders. One of the specifications is that he was personally afraid.

Officers of the navy department say that Ensign Saufley was justified in refusing to go to sea in an unseaworthy boat, but they held that he should have notified the commandant of the Norfolk yard sooner than he did of the condition of his vessel.

"Not a single torpedo boat in the navy is in condition to go to sea and stand all kinds of rough weather," was the statement of one of the naval constructors who said that Saufley ought to be commended for refusing to go to sea at night in the "tub."

In the last year nearly every torpedo boat of the navy has met with a mishap while at sea. During the assembling of the fleet at New York last November three of the torpedo boats came very near being lost with all aboard off Cape Hatteras. They never did reach the maneuvers.

Others In Bad Condition.

Most of these vessels are described by naval officers as "tin cans" and unfit for sea duty. But a few months ago the Stringham while at sea lost both her masts, one funnel and had several seams in her hull opened. She was in command of an ensign who, when he saw the condition of the vessel, called for full steam ahead. He managed to get into Hampton Roads and to the Norfolk yard without further mishap. It took several months to repair the vessel.

It is because these vessels are in bad condition that most of them are in the reserve fleet at Charleston. The destroyers have taken their place so far as fighting strength is concerned.

Both the torpedo boats and destroyers are built for speed. The thickest part of their hulls' protection is less than one-eighth of an inch. It is of sheet steel and is easily punctured. It is this thin sheet of steel which is between the crew of the vessels and the deep sea, or, as the officers term it, safety and death.

DEWEY FOR ARMED PEACE.

Four New Battleships a Year Needed to Maintain It, He Says.

Peace, but with four new battleships each year to assure it, is Admiral George Dewey's wish for the future of the United States in its foreign relations. As head of the general naval board the admiral recommended that four new men-of-war be built each year, but an effort probably will be made in congress to cut the number down to two.

"The United States should build four new battleships this year to keep up the efficiency of the fleet," the admiral said. "I am in favor of peace, but peace with four more battleships as an assurance that it will be maintained. It always is possible that there may be some quarreling among nations as to just how peace ought to be brought about. Such a thing even happens at peace banquets."

Admiral Dewey also pointed out that new ships soon would be needed to replace the Oregon, Indiana and Massachusetts, which are now over twenty years old.

Railway Tunnel Under Lagoon.

It is proposed to unite the city of Venice with the island of the Lido by a railway tunnel passing under the lagoon. The tunnel is to start near the great piazza of St. Mark's at a depth of about twenty-six feet below sea level and to terminate at the four fountains on the Lido.

A semi-official statement made in Paris denied a story of a rupture between Mr. Taft and the French Ambassador and said M. Jusserand went to Panama at the President's request.

A sub-committee of the House Committee on Ways and Means agreed on a bill reducing iron and steel duties by from 30 to 45 per cent. and putting iron ore on the free list.

The main problem not solved at the Unuion Club conferences on subways, in New York, according to President McAneny, was the method of amortization, under which he thought the Interborough would get between $40,000,000 and $60,000,000 to which it wasn't entitled.

Yuan Shih-kai practically reopened negotiations for peace in a letter to President Sun; Wu Ting-fang answered the joint note of the powers and blamed the Manchus for failure of the Shanghai conference; fighting may be resumed tomorrow; the capture of Lanchow by the rebels was reported in London.

Counsel for the government in the trial of the meat packers at Chicago were disappointed at the testimony of W. D. Hiles, as it was expected he would reveal important secrets of the alleged "trust;" it was reported that his testimony would be carefully compared with his statements before the grand jury.

WOULD STAY ORDER FOR FREE CUPS ON TRAINS.

The Court of Errors and Appeals yesterday held its first general conference since the opening of the November term. T. M. Stallman, representing the Erie and Lackawanna railroads, applied to the Supreme Court to stay the operation of the order of the Board of Public Utility Commission requiring railroads to furnish drinking cups free of charge. Former Sheriff Frank Sommer was on hand to oppose the application.

The branch of the Supreme Court presided over by Justice Garrison agreed to hear the argument during the afternoon when not engaged in the Court of Errors conference.

MAYOR SERVES AS HOST AT HIGH BRIDGE FETE.

In response to Mayor William M. Williams' proclamation, "borough night" was celebrated Wednesday night in High Bridge by a reception and ball, at which the Mayor, in acknowledgement of favors shown him by the citizens, was the host. More than 1,000 were present.

Invitations were sent to leading State and county officials and politicians. Assemblyman John J. Matthews presented to the Mayor a gold watch, the gift of his friends. After the presentation there was a stereopticon display of the former Mayors and councilmen.

President Knox Taylor, of the Board of Trade, and Mrs. Taylor led the march. Early in the evening a gasoline stove exploded, but the prompt action of the fire department averted danger. Very few of the guests knew of the fire.

The arrangement committee consisted of sixty members, with James E. McNulty, chairman, and E. P. Kelly, secretary.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Some machine politicians think that the Smith opposition in New Jersey is injuring Governor Wilson. But is it? What would Governor Wilson's chances be if he were tagged as "Jim Smith's man?" Suppose he had used his influence and sent Mr. Smith instead of Mr. Martine to the Senate. What would such an intimate association count for at this time? Anything to Governor Wilson's advantage? Nothing that appears on the face of things.—Washington Star.

A SPLENDID PROGRAM.

If the Legislature carries out the program laid down by the Republican majority at their joint caucus held at Trenton yesterday afternoon, they will make a record of which they well may be proud. The suggestion for a short session is a good one, but similar suggestions have been made in past years, and it has been found impossible to consider the mass of legislation which always puts in an appearance, and finish in less than three months.

Grand Jury reform is one of the principal things promised, and as a method to bring this about Senator Leavitt, of Mercer county, will introduce a bill. His plan is to have the County Judge select a list of names, and from this the sheriff will draw twenty-four men, as at present. The number of names selected will vary according to the size of the county. In Union County, for example, a list of 400 would be submitted by the Court. The theory is that the Judge, being appointed by the Governor, would not take politics into consideration. This would undoubtedly work well in some counties, but there are cases where the judges are just as active and partisan in what they do as are the sheriffs.

Senator Pierce, of Union County, will be the sponsor for two of the principal acts to be considered. While he was in the House of Assembly he made an enviable record and as a result will have much influence in bringing about the enactment of laws to abolish grade crossings and to equalize the methods of taxation, resulting in uniform assessments. The Senator has given much time and thought to the subjects and has evolved splendid ideas for solving both questions.

Other subjects to be taken up include the making of a few minor changes to the Geran election law, which were shown to be needed at the last election; an automobile reciprocity act, which will at the same time increase revenues, thus allowing for the construction of additional good roads; necessary amendments to the Public Utilities law, and an act making municipal charter changes easier to procure, thus strengthening the home rule principle. A number of other laws are also proposed.

The entire program is a progressive one, and in line with modern thought, and if carried out cannot fail to meet with the approval of the people of the State.

Another important discovery has been made. Col. George Harvey, who has been Governor Wilson's staunchest supporter, in the columns of Harper's Weekly, and through his influence with public men, has joined the throng of silent ones, and is reported to have combined with James Smith, Jr., whose feeling toward Governor Wilson is too well-known to call for comment. For three weeks Harper's Weekly has had nothing to say about the New Jersey executive. In fact the silence has been made more noticeable by the fact that the Weekly has, as one paper put it this morning, contained the "usual tilts at Roosevelt," and references to "Taft, LaFollette, Underwood, Bryan and Santa Claus," but has been silent on the subject of Wilson. The withdrawal of Colonel Harvey's support is reported to have come as a result of a letter written by Governor Wilson, in which it is said that it was intimated to Harvey that he was hurting, rather than aiding the Wilson presidential campaign. We imagine that is about the truth of the situation.

It would not be amiss for the Chamber of Commerce to take up the proposal of Mayor Moy, as outlined in his second annual message, that Park avenue, between Front street and Second street, be widened. Some few years ago when the Plainfield Trust Company was about to erect its handsome structure, that thoroughfare between the railroad bridge and Second street, was thus improved. Every merchant in town, we doubt not, would gladly give his support to such a movement. Each succeeding year that the present cramped situation is allowed to exist only means a proportionately greater cost to the city.

Judging by the activity already shown by him at Trenton, Union county made no mistake in electing Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, as State Senator. We predict that he will have made a big name for himself by the time the Legislature's session comes to a close and that higher honors will be in store for him.

Bill has been drafted for New York's Legislature making it a misdemeanor for Gotham restaurant keepers to provide a vaudeville show. That will bar out many of those diners wearing freaky gowns.

Assemblyman George L. Babcock's re-election as president of the Chamber of Commerce was not unexpected for his first year of service in that capacity demonstrated his marked executive ability.

SETTLEMENT WORK DESCRIBED

denied. The people are constantly searching pleasure and they will not be satisfied unless they get it. The industrial classes do not attract like dancing, games, etc., and we must supply the demand.

"I shall never forget the words of former Governor Fort when he spoke at our House. He said that the settlement was like a lighthouse shedding light from above. The shades are never drawn at Whittier House and the light is always shining out to help the wayfarer."

Miss Bradford then told of the legal aid work, explaining that a Jewish and Catholic lawyer are at the House every Monday night to give aid. A North American Civic League has also been formed the purpose of which is to assist the immigrant. The office and secretary are located at the House, a cab service has been established and many imposter bankers have been put out of business. An intelligence office is to be opened to be in charge of a Yale graduate and also a woman college graduate and in this way it is hoped that to a large extent the domestic question will be solved. Miss Bradford also called attention to the work of the Consumers' League and many other features of the work. At the close of the talk there was an informal discussion during which Miss Bradford answered many questions.

A social hour followed and Mr. and Mrs. Clark entertained their guests by serving refreshments. Mrs. Martin I. Cooley and Mrs. David H. Rowland poured coffee and chocolate and they were assisted by some of the women present. Miss Bradford's visit served to arouse much interest in her work and it is hoped additional contributors may be the result.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT SOCIAL WELL ATTENDED.

The Junior department of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, under the direction of Mrs. Frank W. Jones, superintendent, gave a social yesterday afternoon for the mothers of the children. There were about one hundred children and mothers present to enjoy the informal program. There was also an exhibition of the work being done by the children, such as maps, scrap books, etc.

During the afternoon Miss Emma Verschuur and Miss Charlotte Verschuur rendered piano and violin duets, Miss Gladys Lee and Miss Charlotte Verschuur also gave piano and violin selections and Miss Mildred Boyle gave piano numbers. The children also enjoyed games. Ice cream and cake were served and each child was given a box of candy and an orange.

Entertained "500" Club.

The Neighborhood "500" Club was entertained by Mrs. W. W. Warnock at her home on Craig place, yesterday afternoon. Three tables were used in the play and prizes were awarded as follows: First, Mrs. Fred Sandford; second, Mrs. E. A. Giddes; third, Mrs. Robert Giddes. Refreshments were served in conclusion.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS' HEADS FORM UNION

Men Noted in the Work to Address New Association Monday Night.

MUSIC BY CONVENTION CHOIR

Frank L. Brown, George V. Taylor, Both of Brooklyn, and E. W. Cooper, of South Orange, to Be the Speakers.

Since the State Sunday school convention was held here in November the local superintendents have organized a union with W. C. Hubbard as president; Harold Serrell, secretary, and Arthur M. Harris, chairman of the executive committee.

Next Monday night in the Seventh-Day Baptist church the union will have its first general meeting to which everyone who is interested in the work will be welcome. The presence of the big convention choir which will lead the music and the names of the speakers should ensure a great audience.

Messrs. Frank L. Brown and George V. Taylor, of Brooklyn, and E. W. Cooper, of South Orange, will discuss methods. Mr. Brown is widely known as the superintendent of the Bushwick Avenue Sunday-school in Brooklyn, of which Rev. H. B. Munsen, formerly of Monroe Avenue church, this city, is pastor. This school has 3,890 members and is the second largest in the world. Last year Mr. Brown was sent to the Philippines to aid in the Sunday school work there. He is an authority on the superintendent's job and has written the standard book about it. Ten years ago he abandoned a successful banking business to devote all his time to religious education, paying his own expenses.

Mr. Cooper is another energetic and successful down-town business man in New York, who is building up a superior suburban school in South Orange, and has just been chosen president of the New Jersey Sunday School Association. Everyone who wants to see an improvement in the methods by which the Protestant churches are trying to serve the young people of this community will come out to hear these progressive leaders next Monday night.

STATE PUBLIC LIBRARY IS NOW DOUBLED IN SIZE

Special from Staff Correspondent.

Trenton, Jan. 5.—The New Jersey State Library now has on its shelves 83,441 books and pamphlets or nearly double the number there when the library moved into its present quarters several years ago. After stating this in his annual report to the Public Library Commission, State Librarian Henry C. Buchanan urges that several thousand public documents received from other states and included in the collection, be returned to the states from which they were received, or otherwise disposed of. Mr. Buchanan says that these documents are not likely to be of the slightest use here.

The report shows that since the installation of the steel bookstacks seven years ago, the law library has been overcrowded and poorly lighted. He believes that the extension now being made to the front wing of the capitol, which will give the law library additional space, will relieve the conditions concerning which a great deal of complaint has been made.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST PROGRAM FOR SERVICES.

The church covenant and prayer-meeting will be held at the Seventh-Day Baptist church tonight at 8 o'clock. Tomorrow morning after the preaching service by the pastor, Rev. Edwin Shaw, the Lord's Supper will be celebrated. The Christian Endeavor Societies will hold its consecration services tomorrow afternoon, the Juniors at 3 o'clock and the Seniors at 4 o'clock. Harold Stillman will lead the Juniors and Miss Mary Hunting will have charge of the meeting of Seniors. The Sabbath-school will meet at 11:45 o'clock tomorrow morning, with William C. Hubbard as superintendent.

The Junior Society will hold a social in the church parlors tomorrow night. The monthly business meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society will be held Wednesday night, January 10, at 8 o'clock; followed by an informal social. There will be a meeting of the Plainfield Sunday-school Superintendents' Association at the Seventh-Day Baptist church Monday night. The Convention Choir will provide music for the occasion.

P. T. C. Club Entertained.

Mrs. Robert Gow, of Lee place, entertained the members of the P. T. C. Club at her home Wednesday night. Thirty-five were present in all. The playing of "500" was a feature of the gathering and prizes were awarded to Mrs. E. C. Westcott, Mrs. E. A. Giddes and Mrs. Margaret Wilson. Music was also enjoyed and refreshments were served at the close.

WORLD'S IN A TURMOIL SAYS MISS JANET RICHARDS

In the fourth of the season's series of lectures at the Hartridge School, Miss Janet Richards, of Washington, D. C., yesterday afternoon reviewed the political events of the old year in support of her contention that the world at the beginning of this year is in a state of turmoil. This situation, she asserted, is brought about by nations being more easily able to learn of each other's movements by the use of quicker means of transmitting news. That revolutions in uncivilized countries are partially caused in this manner she felt certain because such countries are able to see that they have not progressed in proportion to the civilized countries. Taking this as the assumption, politicians and ambitious men of affairs endeavor to bring about innovations that result in strife.

America, Germany and England, Miss Richards said, are the most progressive nations, but even in these countries conditions are far from harmonious. The cause for the political unrest in England, she averred, is due to the large number of women who work, performing the same kind of manual labor as men; working longer hours and receiving less pay. The assessment of landowners, which has caused numerous bankrupts, the old age pension list and taking away from Parliament the veto power are also contributory acts to this condition, she said.

In Germany the woman suffrage movement and the heavy taxation to maintain the army and navy, Miss Richards said, are questions that breed socialism which is fast growing in that country and will have to be seriously considered by the government. The existing political and commercial conditions contingent thereto, she assigned as the cause of the unsettled conditions in America with the high cost of living as contributory to the general feeling of unrest and dissatisfaction. A large and interested audience heard Miss Richards.

Sterilization Commission.

Trenton, Jan. 5.—The Sterilization Commission appointed by the Governor under the law of the last Legislature, has organized and made arrangements for carrying on its work. Dr. George B. Wight, Commisioner of Charities and Corrections, was made chairman, and Dr. Henry B. Costill, of this city, secretary. The commission decided to notify the various State institutions before visiting them. It is expected that these institutions will take the initiative in calling the attention of the commission to cases needing their attention. The commissioners, however, will not depend entirely upon these invitations, but will call at the institutions from time to time for investigations on their own initiative.

HAROLD SCHENCK PLANS TO STUDY FOR MINISTRY.

Harold Schenck, son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, of West Front street, a junior at Rutgers College, has decided to enter the ministry. He appeared before the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church last night and made known his purpose. His plan is to enter the Seminary at New Brunswick upon the completion of his academic course in Rutgers. Sometime this month Mr. Schenck, accompanied by members of the Consistory, will appear before the Classis of Newark and declare his intentions.

Mr. Schenck was graduated from Plainfield High School in the class of 1909, having completed his course there in three years, entering Rutgers the following fall. Six months later he won the Sloan entrance prize, one of the coveted awards in the classical course of that institution. The Sloan entrance prize consists of a scholarship and $100. Mr. Schenck has been active in college athletics, having been a substitute on the 'varsiety baseball team and a member of the scrub football team. He is a member of the college Y. M. C. A., the Philoclean Literary Society and is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity.

Observed 20th Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. George Carter, of Fritz place, celebrated the twentieth anniversary of their wedding, last night, the affair being a surprise arranged by Mrs. James Coleman and Miss E. Carter. Among the guests was Rev. G. W. Bailey, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, who made a few congratulatory remarks and offered prayer.

Old Glory to Celebrate.

Old Glory Council, No. 62, Daughters of Liberty, will celebrate its sixteenth anniversary in its rooms in the Babcock building tomorrow night and expect to have the State officers as guests. All members are requested to be present.

MRS. C. G. E. LARSSON GIVES BRIDGE WHIST.

Mrs. C. G. Emil Larsson, of Rockview avenue, gave a bridge tea at the Park Club, yesterday afternoon. There were fourteen tables in play. At 5 o'clock tea was served. In all there were about ninety guests. The winners in bridge at each table were presented with a prize.

Mrs. Larrson was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Henry H. Struance, of Wilmington, Del.; Miss Gerda Lundborg, of this city. Mrs. Frank Allen and Mrs. F. L. Sill poured tea and they were assisted by Mrs. Gifford Cooley. The social features during the tea were greatly enjoyed by the guests.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Frank Cullen, president of the senior class, has appointed a committee to select the annual senior play. The committee will select several plays to be voted upon by the class. The committee comprises Miss Evalois St. John, chairman; Miss Mildred Brownlee, Miss Mabel Foster, Miss Gertrude Prior and Dixon Phillips.

About fifty members of the senior English classes attended the performance of "The Merchant of Venice" at the Plainfield theatre, yesterday afternoon, in company with members of the faculty.

Asked to Help New Church.

The Consistory of Trinity Reformed church at its meeting last night, received an application to render such financial assistance as is possible toward the establishment of a Reformed church at Ampere in the Oranges. The plan is to erect a portable church costing with the lot, which has been secured, about $6,000. It is expected that Trinity Reformed church will contribute about $150 toward the fund.

In the Borough Court.

Mrs. Elizabeth VanDoren was arrested by the city police yesterday afternoon, on a warrant issued by the borough authorities, charging her with keeping a disorderly house at Grove and Howard streets. The North Plainfield police had been seeking her for the past week. She was arraigned before Recorder Gano this morning and paid a $5 fine in preference to going to jail for twenty days.

Bible Class Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Probasco Bible class was held last night and it was the first that Frederick Thompson, who was asked some time ago to come in as an associate teacher with his seventeen pupils, has attended. This addition gives the class a membership of about 100. Regular routine matters were transacted and was followed by a social time and games.

Rehearse for Operetta.

Rehearsals have been started for on operetta entitled, "The Egyptian Princess," to be given by the Cup Bearers' Circle of The King's Daughters, in the Hartridge auditorium during February. The cost will be made up of forty-five girls and young women of this city, and will be directed and coached by S. Frederick Smith, the organist and choirmaster of Grace church.

ART OF FLIRTATION AIDS TO PERSONALITY.

What has become of the charming flirts who flourished some fifteen or twenty years ago? That they are no longer met with in society is a source of regret to all lovers of graciousness and charm.

Any girl who was happy enough to possess an older sister just budding into womanhood at that time, and was not herself too young to notice such things, will remember with a thrill of awe the charms of the girls of that day and with what consummate ease and poise they seemed to hold an endless string of suitors in hand and with what matchless skill they played one against another, holding the admiration and attention of all up to the very moment they gaily entered the church and deliberately drowned their flirtatious tendencies in the prosaic puddle of domesticity. For these fascinating flirts always displayed an almost religious fervor in becoming absorbed and adoring wives and mothers without a vestige of their one-time flirtatious manner.

It is to be regretted that good form, combined with the casual, inconsequent methods of the modern girl, has decreed the death of flirtation and that this gentle art, so conducive to graciousness and charm in woman, has fallen into disuse.

For to its baffling door may be traced many of the attractive feminine attributes. Tact and allurement, sympathy and comprehension, graciousness and charm, gay commaraderie and sweet, subtle ways all meet on Flirtation's doorstep, and the girl who has mastered the art of flirtation has captured all these priceless things and woven them into the thread of her personality.

As we understand the game there is nothing of tragedy nor heartbreak in it. It is a charming amusement instituted and practised solely with the view of enlivening the otherwise commonplace intercourse of social life, and incidentally developing the fascination and charm of the player.

Unless a girl looks at it from this point of view she would be safer not to try and play the game. Of course, there are pricks and heart burnings occasionally, but the girl who is a true "sport," in the best meaning of the term, will not cry out when she is hurt, but bravely finish the game according to the rules.

And painful as it may be, if she succeeds in playing her game in good form she will be astonished to see how much her nature has been broadened and deepened by the experience.

A wise physician once gave to an overworked, serious-natured woman of 40 this flippant advice. "Take a month's vacation and flirt for all you are worth."

The magic of his prescription was apparent when she returned at the end of the month looking as fresh as a girl of 25—and engaged! No woman who has spent her year in the drudgery and routine of business life should scorn such advice.

"Remember that heart-breaks are tabooed, according to the rules of the game, and that you are playing it merely as a matter of amusement and self-development, and that you will have the courage to drop it the moment it shows the least sign of becoming anything more serious."

FLAGS THAT HAVE BEEN CAPTURED BY THE NAVY.

Movement by Navy League For Their Repair, Preservation and Exhibit.

A movement has been initiated by the Navy League of the United States for the repair, preservation and exhibit of flags taken in or after battle by the United States navy. A bill to this end has been introduced in congress, which has the support of the secretary of the navy.

These flags, numbering about 150, are now stored at the United States Naval academy at Annapolis. Unless prompt measures for their repair and preservation are taken, it is said, many of these historical relics will be lost to posterity. Moths, lack of proper care and other causes have combined to produce their rapid disintegration and decay. It is proposed to back each flag with a mesh of fine linen, a method said to be a certain preservative.

The flags in the navy collection are of considerable historical interest. The collection includes the only English royal standard ever captured and held by any nation. This was taken by Commodore Chauncey in 1813. Others are the ensign of the insurgents captured by the Constellation, ensigns of the Guerriere, the Java, the Boxer, the Macedonian and the Frolic, all taken during the war of 1812. Other flags are Perry's flag hoisted on his flagship, the Lawrence, bearing Lawrence's words, "Don't give up the ship;" a Mexican ensign, the United States ensign hoisted in Japan by Commodore Perry in 1853 and a number of Spanish flags captured in 1898, besides a large number of others of less familiar incident.

PULP DISPUTE TO BE SETTLED

Germany Is Expected to Be Given the Preferential Tariff Rates.

If Germany, as reported, intends to refuse American exporters of tool steel and hard rubber the benefits of the low duties on those commodities accorded to Sweden and Japan in recently negotiated trade treaties the state department has not been informed of that fact. Consequently it has been impossible for the department to make any satisfactory response to various anxious inquirers in the steel and rubber trade.

When Germany was accorded minimum tariff rates on goods entering America that government agreed to grant American exporters the conventional rates of tariff on their goods shipped into Germany. So far this agreement has been respected, but it is reported Germany intends to make an exception now on the ground that America is denying German paper makers free entry for their goods on terms of equality with Canada.

The paper and pulp issue is likely to be adjusted in a manner satisfactory to Germany in the admission of its claim to the Canadian preferential rates within the near future.

WOMEN CONTROL STATE.

Census of Registered Voters In California Gives Them 87,000 Majority.

The women of California control the state by 87,000 votes. This surprising statement was made by the officials of the Women's Progressive league and is backed up by figures obtained by a quiet census of the registered women voters.

The estimate of the male votes is based on the figures officially given out at the close of the last state registration and is placed at 583,000. The woman voters' census gives 670,140 registrations. The woman political leaders talk of controlling the state. Mrs. Oliver C. Bryant, chairman of the civic betterment committee of the league, said that the organization will endeavor to register the number who so far have not availed themselves of the right of citizenship. Mrs. Bryant says the league will make great efforts before the presidential primaries in the state on May 12 to have all these women register.

"They must state whether they are Republicans or Democrats to receive the ballot at the polls if they would cast a vote for president," said Mrs. Bryant.

BIGGEST BONUS YET.

Steel Corporation Distributes $1,450,000 Among Its Employees.

The biggest Christmas bonus this year was announced by the United States Steel corporation, which, in addition to providing pensions for its employees and helping them to make investments in the company's shares on the installment plan, has paid bonuses for meritorious service annually for nine years past.

This year the amount to be distributed aggregates $1,450,000. It was also announced that the corporation would offer to its employees the right to subscribe to 25,000 shares of stock, as it has for the past nine years. The prices at which the stock will be offered have not yet been fixed, but the statement says that it "will probably be a little lower than the market."

Hospital In Heart of a Coal Mine.

The first underground emergency hospital in Illinois has been opened in one of the largest coal mines near Collinsville, Ill. It is designed to give first aid to the injured. Officers of the state mine rescue car gave their approval after an inspection. It will be recommended as a model for similar hospitals. The hospital is built in the heart of the mine and has concrete walks guaranteed agaist cave-ins and small explosions.

FREE COUPONS THIS WEEK AND NEXT

Surety Stamp Coupons Creating a Furore

The people of New Jersey were quick to recognize the difference between what is known as the "trading stamp" and the Surety Stamp Coupon. The ordinary trading stamp is redeemable only in goods presented in premium parlors. The Surety Stamp Coupon is redeemable in the highest-class merchandise carried by any store in New Jersey, in any department in this house. A filled book of Surety Stamp Coupons is exchangeable for a book of twenty-five 10c certificates which are used in purchasing thruout this establishment—just as you would use twenty-five 10c pieces. They are money in every sense of the word. Thus do we give a straight discount of 2½ per cent. on every purchase you make here, even on the meals you eat in the restaurant or the soda you drink at the fountain—every 10c purchase entitles you to a stamp, every dollar purchase to 10 stamps, every $100 purchase to a full book, or $2.50 worth.

No simpler nor more reasonable scheme for allowing you a special discount for being our steady patron could be devised. Some business men, interested in this store in a friendly way, have asked us why we did not give discount at the end of the year on all purchases that were made. But it is easily seen how difficult it would be to operate on such a plan, because we could keep track of only purchases made on charge accounts.

When fully understood this plan of discount will be appreciated by every one, rich and poor alike, cash or charge customer alike, and it will be universally accepted as a reasonable, feasable and most generous proposition—a plan of positive value to the people.

As you enter the door of the store any day this week or next, you will be presented with a book containing 10 COUPONS. When you take this book to our Coupon Station on the First Floor fully 30 additional coupons will be presented to you, giving you a book started with 40 COUPONS without a purchase—an advantage worth coming for surely.

It should be remembered that only one set of these 40 FREE STAMPS are good in any one book.

Land Grab by Russia In China's Territory

Situation Taken Advantage of to Get Control of Mongolia and Turkestan.

Belief at Washington Is That Japan Is In League With Czar's Government.

THE reported intention of Russia to sweep Mongolia and Turkestan from the international chessboard in the far east by putting them in her pocket does not surprise officials of this government. The state department would in no wise be surprised at an attempt on the part of Russia to take advantage of the helplessness of the Chinese government to gain a hold on the vast territory adjoining Siberia. From her own back yard Russia has already placed one foot in the back yard of the Chinese empire, and events of recent years have pointed unmistakably toward a secret but none the less determined intention to push forward with the other foot.

Russia, like all other great powers, is under solemn pledge to maintain the integrity of the Chinese empire. If Russia thinks the opportunity has come, however, it is the belief here that she will readily find an excuse to accomplish her purpose. Already in a controversy with China along the Mongolian border she has pleaded the necessity of protecting her interests, for which the weak Chinese government is unable to care, as a justification for advancing further into the Chinese domain.

United States Would Protest.

In her traditional position of guarantor of fair play for China the United States would undoubtedly be obliged to protest against the extension of Russian control over Mongolia and Turkestan. Pledges made by the other powers would naturally indicate that this government would not be alone in such objection, and of these other powers Japan is the one most vitally interested, because of her proximity and also because of the extensive encroachments she herself has made upon Manchuria. Calculation on her aid is upset, however, by the increasing indications that Japan and Russia are putting their heads closer and closer together for the advancement of their interests in the Chinese empire.

It is a fixed belief at Washington that Japan is in accord with any plans Russia may have for the exploitation of the portions of the Chinese empire which attract her most. In return Japan, it is conjectured, is to be left free, according to the understanding believed to exist, to carry out her own projects. Thus with Japan reconciled to the extension of Russian influence in Mongolia and Turkestan, it is a nice question as to who would be in a position to offer serious opposition to the plans of the Russians. It is not to be believed that the United States would do any more than express objections, and a verbal protest unsupported by anything more forcible seldom counts for much in international rivalry in the far east.

No Word From Japan.

One cause of official surprise at the state department at the reports of Russian plans is the fact that Japan is under pledge to notify this government of any change in the status quo in the far east to which she contemplates becoming a party. This agreement dates from the Root-Takahira note of November, 1908, and was reciprocal. Japan has given no hint thus far to the United States of the Russian plans, of which it is now believed she must be fully cognizant if they really exist.

The United States has little immediate interest in the regions of Mongolia and Turkestan and little to lose by these countries coming under Russian dominance; but, on the other hand, it would have bright prospect of a large share in the commercial development of a rich region when opened up in future years if the region were kept under the open door regime.

Russian dominance of Mongolia would have an aspect more serious in its menace to American interests in the far east by forming the opening wedge for the breaking up of the entire Chinese empire. Japan would undoubtedly demand immense extension of her interests in Manchuria and north China. The result would be to restrict the territory in which American trade would be free to expand, and with the railroad situation in the hands of Russia and Japan discrimination against American shipments would be the logical sequence.

Our Interests In China.

The American commercial interests are now strongest in China proper and are advancing into Manchuria on the north. The path of development is continuing eastward, and it has been the hope of this government to pave the way for sharing largely in the development of Mongolia which is to come. The first project to be undertaken is the construction of a transmongolian railway, which would by its shorter route reduce the time of the journey from London to Peking from thirteen days to nine. This, it is believed, is the immediate object sought by Russia. Dominance of Russia of this region would exclude the United States from participation in the construction of the proposed railroad and limit its share in the commercial development which would result.

Japan is prepared to take advantage of the existence of such a railway by her control of an extensive system of transportation routes in Korea and south Manchuria. She has recently completed a connecting link establishing a through line from the Korean coast with its seaports to Mukden, from which her lines extend north to the Russian railroad and south to the Chinese owned line to Peking. These two governments have within the last few months agreed upon a schedule of reciprocal freight rates over their respective systems which will operate to the advantage of both. This rate agreement is also cited as an indication of the accord with which the two nations are at work in the far east.

Russia opened anew an old quarrel with China on the Mongolian border last spring over the renewal of a long-standing trade agreement. China protested that she wished to revise the treaty which gave Russia liberal privileges of free trade in the border country and also granted her permission to establish factories in certain Mongolian towns. In reply to pleas for a postponement in order to negotiate Russia moved troops to the Mongolian frontier. The question is still unsettled, the revolution having absorbed the entire attention of the Chinese government. It is not to be doubted that Russia has continued to hold what advantages she has already gained in that direction and is extending her interests according to the program she demanded should be carried out by treaty.

Mongolia and Turkestan.

Mongolia and Turkestan have been attached to the Chinese empire since long before the Manchu conquest of China. They never were very closely identified with the government at Peking, however, the native rulers being subject to little more than nominal supervision by the Chinese. In recent years China has endeavored to assert herself in Mongolia. This policy has been resented by the Mongolian hereditary rulers. In their resentment the latter have found ready sympathizers in the Russian traders present in all the larger towns and the net result has been to build up a spirit friendly to Russia as against the Manchus. Russians have been exerting a powerful, though wholly unofficial, influence in Mongolian affairs for some time.

Chinese officials were expelled from Urga, the capital of Mongolia, early in December last, and Mongolian independence was proclaimed. Little attention was paid in Peking to this move because of the more intensely threatening conditions nearer home. It is suggested in some quarters that this declaration of independence was due to Russian activities in Mongolia.

Under the guise of a nominal independence Russia would find it a simple matter to increase her interests in Mongolia and Turkestan, already disposed to receive the Russian in a friendly spirit. The establishment of a protectorate would be the natural and logical step to follow, and thus the annexation of the region to restricted Russian fields of commerce would be obtained.

RAKE FOR TAFT.

Made of Ash and Polished So as to Show the Straight Grain.

Marshall W. Stedman, a rakemaker of Tyringham, Mass., has made a hand hayrake to be given to President Taft. It is of ash—the finest that Stedman could find—and has been polished to show the straight grain.

That the rake might have the proper "hang" in the hands of the president Stedman obtained the length of the president's arm and has shaped the rake to fit his reach.

Stedman is of the third generation of rakemakers on Hop brook, the region where the American Indians first taught the white man to make maple sugar.

COSTLY WAR ON FLEAS.

$1,000,000 Spent In Government's Bubonic Plague Crusade.

Former Speaker Cannon is trying to find out how much it costs "per squirrel or per flea" to drive the threatened bubonic plague out of California.

In a hearing before the house appropriations committee Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Robert O. Bailey said $23,000 a month is now being spent in California in an effort to eradicate ground squirrels, which carry the flea that carries bubonic plague.

"How much does it cost per squirrel or flea?" asked Mr. Cannon.

"A million dollars has been spent, and 10,000 infected squirrels have been found," replied Assistant Secretary Bailey.

SOLVING THE SECRET OF THE FUTURE.

Few subjects are so fascinating as the unsolved riddle of the future. There is in all of us an irresistible desire to probe the secrets that time alone can reveal; and it is quite true that we live more in "hope" and "anticipation" than we do in reality. So it is not, perhaps, to be wondered at that we eagerly grasp at anything which constitutes a medium between the actual and the probable.

Carried to extremes, or fostered unduly in ignorant and uncultured minds, this desire may lead to deplorable results, but, balanced by a madicum of common sense and held in check by a rational and dispassionate analysis there is no doubt that occultism in its various features presents a most interesting and absorbing study and gives rise to the conclusion, even in most scientific and unbiased minds, that there are mysterious forces at work around us fashioning the destinies which we are helpless to mark out on the lines so often longed for.

There are many mediums that conduct us to the mystic region where Queen Fortune sits ready to turn her wheel backward or forward for the helpless mortals who supplicate her favors; and perhaps it makes no difference to the inexorable hand—our puny efforts to pierce her methods and forsee her decisions—but the time old fascination of trying "to know" what turn the wheel will take before the hour has come for it to crush or elevate us still grips humanity, and any new method of wresting her secrets from her must be hailed with interest, if not belief.

Some of the most skeptical of human beings consult the "Oracle" when things become complicated or uncertain—and an "Oracle" is any medium in which we repose faith, as an interpretation of our mental darkness and as a guide to the light which leads us from danger to difficulty. Some pin their faith to cards, some to clairvoyance, to palmistry, to psychology, psychometry, little futile scraps of tea and remnants of undissolved sugar in the bottom of a cup.

"Expect great things and they will come."

We all know the popular axiom—put a good value on yourself and the world will accept you on your own terms. So you might apply the same logic to the "Oracle" adopted. Have faith in, and a rational assurance of gaining the favors you seek, and good results will very often follow.

In solving the secret of happiness the first rule is: "If every human being was entirely brave and fearless, and utterly careless of Fortune's gibes, she would have no power over the world, and everyone would be lucky."

The second one is somewhat involved, but the more you analyze it the more true it seems: "The secret of finding happiness is ceasing to look for it."

These two truths are very true, but for their practical application to make any impression on life they would have to be accepted "en masse." While ever the majority scramble for foremost places, it is little use for the individual pulsing with anxiety for his share of good things, to stand by "fearless of fortune," and ceasing to look for happiness.

So the old quest goes on, the old straining of blind eyes against the impenetrable, the old longing for "mediums" that will impart to us a fore-knowledge of coming changes.

CONCERNING THE DEBUTANTE'S MANNERS.

The position of the debutante in America is unique. In no other country is she given so much pleasure and prominence. In England and France the young girl is a negligible quantity. Not so with us. She is a personage from the moment she makes her bow to society until the season ends, and she either successfully reaches the goal of matrimony or retires to take her place in the unnumbered ranks of the older girl.

Dinner dances, theatre parties, luncheons and afternoon teas lend their brilliance to enhance her glory. She is heralded and discussed by every newspaper in the country. She springs from the comparative seclusion of school life into the full glare of the social limelight. It takes a steady head to keep one's poise under such a fire of flattery, adulation and excitement.

And, unfortunately, steady heads are rare. So another type of debutante has established herself and become the fashion. A restless, noisy, self-absorbed young creature with in different manners.

She flings herself recklessly into the mad rush for pleasure, devouring it at whatever cost. She talks in a vernacular that is often unintelligible to cultivated people. She is lacking in dignity and good taste.

This is a sweeping arraignment, but all of us have met this type often enough to know that it bears the outline of truth, and should point a moral to the girl who does not wish to begin her social career under the banner of false standards.

After all, though brilliant, one's debutante days are brief. Yet it may be that their very brilliance and brevity is the spur that explains the artificial excitement of the modern girl. Yet this manner of enjoying one's first winter is unwise.

It brushes away with relentless hands the charm and simplicity of youth; it stifles dreams and ideals and makes companions of cynicism and hardness; it dulls the clearer, higher vision of life and drags careless young feet through the ugly marshes of materialism.

It throws upon life at the very outset a highly colored artificial light that robs a young girl of a proper sense of values and blinds her to the soft shadows of fine feeling. Such an attitude is as disastrous as it is unattractive. And the girl who has an eye for the future, who wishes to garner for herself during these short days of debutante sunshine the charms that will carry her safely through the years when she no longer holds first place, will have none of it.

To this girl is offered one fact whose truth is proven. They can't possibly be worth the price you are asked to pay for them. Let them go without regret. Saner, better, sweeter things will come to take their place. The pleasure that sacrifices one's dignity, the success that kills a secret ideal, the good time that leaves the tiniest spot on a girl's standard of conduct works harm and is never worth while.

Miss Olive L. Schreibweis, head nurse of the city bureau, who has been ill for the past two week, was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital Wednesday for treatment. Her place is being filled temporarily by Miss Ethel E. Humphrey.

FREE POLICEMAN FROM MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE.

Patrick Horan, a former policeman at Metuchen, was cleared of the charge of manslaughter Wednesday afternoon when the Middlesex county grand jury failed to find a true bill against him. The charge against Horan was made in connection with the death of John O'Brien last December.

Horan ordered O'Brien to move on while the later was loitering on the street at Metuchen, and, upon O'Brien's failing to obey, Horan took hold of his coat and pushed him. O'Brien fell and struck his head upon the curbing, fracturing his skull. He died soon afterward.

The grand jury also failed to find an indictment against Frank Taylor, of Highland Park, who accidentally shot Miss Edna Okerson, of Milltown. The couple were taking a walk after church one night several weeks ago, when in the handling of a revolver, which, Taylor said, he had found on the way to Milltown, the weapon was discharged, the bullet striking the girl in the face. Miss Okerson went before the inquisitors and exonerated Taylor.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 7, 1912.

Topic.—The Christian virtues.—I. Courage.—Ps. xxvii, 1-14. (Consecration meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The topics for the consecration meetings of 1912 will deal with the Christian virtues, and it is most fitting that the one selected for the first meeting of the new year should be "Courage." The future, unknown and impossible of being known, should yet at least by the Christian be faced with indomitable courage. The past may have been disappointing, the future may even look dark and foreboding, yet why should the Christian be discouraged? With the psalmist we also can say: "The Lord is my light and my salvation. * * * The Lord is the strength of my life. Of whom shall I be afraid?" If the Lord be our Lord there need indeed be no cause for fear, for "if God be for us who can be against us?"

Courage is of several kinds. In general we may say that there are physical courage, mental courage and moral courage. Physical courage is to be greatly admired and even desired, but it is not the most desirable form of courage. One may be weak in body, yet mentally and morally courageous, having convictions and the courage of conviction, knowing the right and daring to do the right. A moral coward is far more despicable than a physical coward. The man who can face a cannon without flinching, yet has not the moral stamina to say "No" in time of temptation to do evil, should not be our ideal hero. Pilate no doubt could have bravely led an army on a field of battle, but when through moral cowardice he surrendered an innocent man to be put to death he richly deserved the contempt and condemnation that have been heaped upon him.

On the other hand, the Christian martyr who may have quailed before physical torture yet faltered not in faith, displayed the highest form of courage. While we should not underrate the value and importance of physical courage, we should not overrate it, but give to moral courage the supreme place. Peter met the Roman soldiers with a sword, yet fell before the accusing finger of a woman! It is not difficult to see that his denial of Christ would have been less inglorious and contemptible had he fled from the soldiers and stood firm when it was said, "Thou art one of them." On this occasion he proved himself for the time being a moral craven. Let us cultivate the higher forms of courage. With our convictions let us have the courage of conviction, and, knowing the right, let us ever do the right, even in the face of scoff or scorn.

The source of true courage is in God. To Joshua the Lord said: "Be strong. * * * As I was with Moses so I will be with thee." Which was equivalent to saying, "I will be thy strength." Before Pentecost Peter trusted in himself and fell. After Pentecost he trusted in God and never faltered. Let us not trust in personal strength, in riches or in worldly place or position. Divine strength alone never fails. Let us therefore be strong in His strength alone.

"Wait on the Lord and be thou strong, and He shall strength afford unto thine heart—yea, do thou wait, I say, upon the Lord."

BIBLE READINGS.

Deut. xxxi, 1-8; Josh. i, 1-7; x, 24, 25; I Sam. xvii, 32-36, 48-50; II Sam. x, 12; Ez. x, 1-4; Dan. vi, 10, 21-23; Ps. xxix, 11; xxxi, 24; xlvi, 1; Acts xxviii, 15; Heb. xi, 8-10.

Some Bible Work.

When our Junior meetings opened for the winter we gave each Junior a booklet made of pink paper and prettily decorated with pictures of flowers, birds and children, cut out of postcards and picture cards and pasted on the different pages.

The outside cover bore the name of the Junior, and the first page was inscribed, "Junior C. E. Bible Work For the Winter of 1911," and on the other pages were references given, one for each week, to be memorized.

These were the references: Matt. vi, 28-30, 33; Ps. lxvii, and the Beatitudes. Each Junior who could recite these verses from memory in the fall was presented with a Junior badge.

They were also given pretty cards with an envelope pasted on the back in which to put their offerings for missions during the vacation.

Both the booklets and the cards were prepared by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor and presented to the Juniors.—Anna E. Pierce.

Meeting a Farreaching Need.

The story which Dr. Clark has given us of the thirty years' progress of Christian Endeavor has, I dare say, no parallel. It is a wonderfully fascinating record. It is full of assurance of the future. It is proof of the fact that Christian Endeavor was organized and has continued expanding in power throughout the world in response to a farreaching need in our life. Those of us who are most familiar with what it has accomplished can well believe that it will continue to grow and carry its generous Christian influence literally to the uttermost parts of the earth.

Permit me to congratulate Dr. Clark and all those who are associated with him in the great work which he and they have so splendidly done and are doing.—Hon. Charles W. Fairbanks.

HE SAW INDIANS TURN BACK SUN

Colonel Scott and Government Had to Wait Three Days.

MYSTIC RITE OF THE CHIEFS

Great White Father Sent the Soldier-Diplomat to Make the Papooses Go to School — Scott Understands Indian Sign Languages.

All the people on earth will not freeze to death in 1912. That has been attended to by the Hopi Indians in Arizona. Authority for the statement is Colonel Hugh L. Scott, U. S. A., former superintendent of the Military academy at West Point and at present commanding the famous Third cavalry, one of the regiments now on duty on the Mexican border. He had to wait three days for the wise men of the tribes to conjure back the sun.

Colonel Scott enjoys the distinction of being the one white man now living who thoroughly understands the mysterious sign languages of the North American Indians. There is no more beloved soldier in the army, the Indians being his devoted servitors, and when everything else has failed to settle a dispute in which the Indian is involved Colonel Scott is generally selected to settle the matter, and the records show that he nearly always succeeds.

Took Place In Arizona.

"The turning back of the sun," a feat that the Hopis think they have accomplished, was witnessed by Colonel Scott during a recent visit to the Hopi villages in northeastern Arizona. He had been sent there on request of the department of the interior to find out why the Hopis refused to send their children to the government schools. For months the department had been trying to get them to patronize the schools, but they persistently refused, and finally Colonel Scott was called on to deal with the problem. He is called "Mole Tequop" by the Indians, which in English means "he talks with his hands." The colonel was transferred temporarily from the war department to the interior and intrusted with the mission to go to the Hopi country and settle the differences that had arisen between the Indians and the "white father" at Washington.

A few weeks ago Colonel Scott left Washington and proceeded by rail to Holbrook, Ariz., from which place he went on horseback over the Painted desert to the Hopi villages. After a long and tedious ride he arrived at the village where the head chiefs of the Hopis were assembled. He found them busy "turning back the sun."

They were glad and happy to meet "Mole Tequop," but even one so beloved as he would have to wait until the ceremonies incident to the control of the sun had been completed, they informed him. Colonel Scott accordingly postponed official talks until after the sun had been properly attended to. In a letter to a friend he tells of the interesting ceremony of which he was a privileged witness.

The Indians Like Him.

"Your letter," Colonel Scott wrote, "was delivered to me in the Painted desert of Arizona on my way back to the railroad station from the Hopi towns. I wish you could have been along, for I know you would have enjoyed it, and you would have got a lot of interesting information. The Hopi towns are among the oldest in North America, and the Indians are extremely primitive.

"When I visited them they were engaged in ceremonies preparatory to the turning back of the sun. I was informed that if they did not attend to this for us the sun would get clear away from the earth and never come back again and we would all freeze to death."

Colonel Scott did not refer to the official part of his journey or indicate whether his mission had been successful, but from another source it is learned that he accomplished all he was sent to do and that by now all the little Hopi boys and girls are probably busy with the "three Rs," with everybody in the Hopi country happy.

The records in Washington show that Colonel Scott has seldom failed to settle any Indian controversy that has ever been intrusted to him. Three years ago a little Indian war seemed imminent in the Four Corners section of the west, so named because the states of Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona met there. Colonel Scott and a sergeant went to the scene of the trouble, and in three days the war zone was as peaceable as a New England village.

Colonel Scott for a long time was governor of the Sulu archipelago, in the Philippines. He gained the trust and affection of the Moros just as he has that of the Indians, and when he left the Moros gave him the original copy of the Koran, which had been the most treasured possession of the Mohammedan chief priests for more than five centuries.

Five Above Freezing, Sixty Swim.

More than sixty persons took a New Year's bath in the surf at Coney Island. The water was only 37 degrees above zero and a cold northwest wind was blowing, but a number of the hardy ones ventured to swim far out.

PLAINFIELD'S BOWLERS WON ELKS LEAGUE GAMES

Rolling good ten pins at Rahway last night, the Plainfield Elks' pinners had no trouble at all in making a clean sweep of all three games. This ties the locals with Elizabeth in the league. In the other games rolled, Hoboken took three straight from the champion New Brunswick quintet and Newark annexed two of the three games shot with Jersey City at that place.

A feature of the Rahway-Plainfield contest was a score of 244 returned by Johnny Campbell in the first game. Blatz was the only other local bowler breaking into the double century zone, having totaled 202 in the second game. All the others were in fine form and shot consistently. In the second game of the Hoboken-New Brunswick series, the former team rolled up 1033. Miller was the star of this contest and in all three games made above the 200 mark.

The scores returned are as follows:

PLAINFIELD KENNEL CLUB PICKS ANDERSON PRESIDENT

The Plainfield Kennel Club at its annual meeting held Wednesday night in Coward's Hall, elected these officers for the coming year and received a report of the last bench show:

President, R. W. K. Anderson; vice-president, Rufus C. Finch; honorary vice-presidents, Robert A. Fairbairn, W. J. Buttfield and Charles W. McCutchen; secretary, E. H. Hobbie; treasurer, E. F. Feickert; board of governors, R. W. K. Anderson, Rufus C. Finch, E. H. Hobbie, E. F. Feickert, William Dallas; enteatainment committee, A. Clinton Wilmerding, E. H. Hobbie and Edmund L. Mackenzie. Ralph L. Morrow was elected to membership at the meeting.

A. Clinton Wilmerding, chairman of the bench show of last year, made this report:

"As chairman of the Bench Show Committee, I beg to make my report of our Bench Show held on October 21st last, and if proper to ask for our discharge at this time.

"This show from point of entries was generally conceded to be the best as well as the most popular out of town Bench Show of the year. Its entries footed up to 1218 of which 728 dogs actually entered, and 610 present on the grounds. This number gave us what is known in kennel club sircles a a three point show these three points going towards an American Kennel Club championship. This was the largest one-day show ever held in this country.

"In running off this show the large number of the very best judges officiated. This list was exceeded only by the great New York show. Free trolley cars were furnished by the club; and proved very popular with the exhibitors. Suhr's band of twelve pieces was employed, and a fine luncheon was served to the judges and special guests.

"One hundred and eighty-five specials cups and prizes were offered, and we are pleased to say all specials have been paid and delivered to the winners.

"As far as the financial outcome is concerned the treasurer's report will go into details on this score.

"The horse show grounds, so kindly loaned to us by the Riding and Driving Association, required considerable attention in going over it after the show, owing to the severe and prolonged rain storm, entailing an expense of $60, but this had to be assumed, with the result that the grounds were put in a fine condition, eliciting a pleasant letter of appreciation and thanks from the President of the Riding and Driving Club."

BINDS AND GAGS WOMAN, THEN ROBS THE HOUSE.

A masked robber entered the home of Orlando Halwick, on the Hudson boulevard, Union Hill, late Wednesday afternoon, bound and gagged Mrs. Halwick, tied her in a chair and then stole three diamond rings, three diamond brooches, gold watch and chain, silver mesh bag and a small sum of money.

The thief is described as a short, heavy set man. He wore a black mask and a black slouch hat.

Several children saw the man as he passed the window the second time, and with a scream they ran over to Fourth avenue, where some men were standing. So excited were the children that the men could not understand what they meant at first.

Meanwhile one of the sons of Mrs. Ernest Giggleman, who occupies the ground floor, had been sent up stairs to take a message to Mrs. Halwick. As he entered the apartments on the next floor a man dashed past him and reached the street.

At the same time the men who had been told of the masked man in the Halwick house came running up. They gave chase to the man, but he outfooted them and escaped.

Paint that Stays Painted
That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Praise from those whose words mean much—the newspaper critics—has been bountifully showered upon the newest of Viennese operettas "The Spring Maid," which comes here on Monday night, from the moment it offered its wares of real humor and rollicking melodies in New York. For once there seemed no word of dissention and the vote was unanimous that here was an opera submitted for a public's pleasure which was clean throughout, though invested with a piquant sauciness from the German original and brimmed with waltzes of long lost flavor, two-steps and soldierly marches that compelled the toes to keep their time.

May Irwin's new comedy in which she will be seen here tonight is called "She Knows Better Now," and concerns the interesting adventures of a New York society woman with a near-German nobleman, who, with her, become grotesquely involved in an affair with Uncle Sam's custom officials. Miss Irwin has a role well suited to her comedy genius and the play is said to be of better dramatic structure and of finer literary qualities than any of her past successes.

MT. OLIVE BAPTISTS MADE PROGRESS DURING THE YEAR.

Officers were elected and the anual reports presented at the annual meeting of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, Wednesday night. Rev. Dr. M. W. Vaughan, the pastor, presided. These trustees were re-elected: William G. Wright, Edward Urqhart, Oscar Green, James Whiting, Warner Davis, William A. Kline, while Richard Yetman was elected a trustee in place of C. C. Christmas, resigned. William A. Kline was re-elected church clerk; Edward Urqhart, assistant clerk; James Whiting, treasurer; Thomas J. Banks, superintendent of the Sunday school and James Whiting, assistant superintendent.

The annual report of the treasurer showed cash receipts for the year to be $3,340.92 and the disbursements $3,340.80, leaving a deficit of twelve cents. The reports from the auxiliaries showed a growing interest and the spiritual and financial condition to be very satisfactory. During the year there were fifteen accessions to the membership and five deaths. Dr. Vaughan also gave a brief talk on the work of the year.

The remodeled church, which will be completed soon, will give the members a property worth $22,000. A pipe organ is now being installed. There will also be a reading room for men and women and modern conveniences for church work. It is expected that the church will be dedicated in February.

UNION COUNTY DEMOCRATS ORGANIZED FOR WILSON.

Responding to a call issued by Ray Mayham, of Westfield, State organizer for the Woodrow Wilson League, about twenty-five Democrats met at Mr. Mayham's home, Wednesday night to discuss plans for organizing a Woodrow Wilson Club in the county. The call was sent out to the voters of the county. It was decided to hold a meeting for organization at Democratic headquarters, Elizabeth, on Thursday night, January 11, and efforts will be made to secure a large attendance of voters.

James Kelly, of Elizabeth, was made temporary chairman, Wednesday night. Councilman Patrick J. Reville and Frank J. Shattle, of this city, were among those present, others being Fred C. Hyer, of Rahway; Charles Sorter, of Westfield; Overseer of the Poor Anthony Sattler, Charles F. Platz, W. J. Dunn, J. R. Connolly, James Kelly, J. E. Lowden and Edward M. Meek, of Elizabeth. Mr. Mayham has announced himself as a candidate for delegate to the national convention.

P. S. C. HAS DEMONSTRATION OF HOUSEHOLD ARTICLE.

The demonstration of paper bags for cooking utensels in place of pots and pans being made in the Public Service office in the Sterling building on Park avenue during this week until Saturday night, has aroused interest among thirtfy housewives who see in the innovation a great saving in cost and dish-washing labor if the method is successful. Among the doubting ones who have called, none have left the place unconvinced either as to the efficiency of the substitute or their own ability to do as well with them as the professional demonstrator. The result is that a number of residents will no doubt wonder why it is that their meals are more tasty than in the past and will compliment the wife or maid on her improvement along culinary lines. Miss Gavin is anxious to explain the virtues of the bag to every housewive in Plainfield before her engagement here terminates. Call and see her.

S. P. C. A. Annual.

The Plainfield branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will hold its annual meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Monday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, for the election of officers. A full attendance of members is desired.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Leask, of Jackson avenue, who have been spending the holidays with relatives in Montreal, Canada, have returned.

N Y. AMUSEMENTS.

An important move on the theatrical chess board was made yesterday at a meeting between Mme. Simone, her manager, George C. Tyler, of Liebler & Co., and Henry B. Harris, when an agreement was reached to bring the French artiste into the Hudson theatre Tuesday evening, Jan. 9, in Maurice Donnay's sensational success, "The Return From Jerusalem."

George Arliss, in his manner of celebrating the festal season, has departed somewhat from the tradition which accepts fellow-players, one's author or one's management as the objects of Christmas gift. The star of "Disraeli" believes the fellows who help back of the scenes are of importance sufficient to warrant grateful recognition, and with this idea in mind, Mr. Arliss has invited all the stage hands at Wallack's to be his guests at dinner Saturday night after Dizzy has finished buying the Suez Canal for England and bringing two very loving hearts together in his customary delightful fashion. The ceremonies are to take place at the sign of Tom Kane's in West Thirtieth street.

All the oriental splendor of the Indian Durbar, which King George V. of England journeyed to India to take part in, has been brought to the doors of New York in Klaw & Erlanger's elaborate new production of "Ben-Hur," which is shown at the New Amsterdam theatre. Beautiful women, men of majestic mien, fiery horses bedecked in all the magnificence and opulent splendor of the Orient, gave life and brilliancy to the scenes of General Wallace's masterpiece, "Ben-Hur." Never before in the history of the New York stage has there been so much wealth expended on the presentation of a historical spectacle. Flashing jewels, dazzling armor, magnificent robes, superb draperies, the marvelous rugs of the Far East, the wonderful furnishings of two thousand years ago —all these things are combined and displayed in this wonderful revival. The theme of "Ben-Hur" depicting as it does incidents in the life of the Saviour, makes it a particularly happy and appropriate offering for the Yuletide season.

The performance of Grace George this afternoon at Maxine Elliott's theatre in "Just to Get Married" was a foregone success, for the sparkling comedy already had made most remarkable hits in the other large cities during the preliminary tour of this gifted and popular star. The theatre is crowded to its fullest capacity nightly with an audience of the same brilliant character one might expect to observe on the first night of the grand opera season at the Metropolitan Opera House, and it is clearly evident from the very outset that the keen ironical humor of the play found an instant and delighted echo. The auditorium rings with laughter throughout the lighter scenes of Cicely Hamilton's smart play, and in the one "big" episode, which becomes powerfully moving and dramatic, the house was tensely still until the fall of the curtain, then breaking into round after round of stirring applause. Lyn Harding, the leading actor from Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree's company at His Majesty's theatre, London, scores a pronounced hit and proves a most valuable contrast to the star.

WILLIAM B. CRAGIN, JR., IN 7TH REG'T. TENNIS FINALS.

As the result of the semi-final match of the upper half in the Seventh regiment, New York, indoor tennis championship tournament, played Wednesday afternoon, George G. Moore, Jr., is assured of a worthy opponent when he enters the final contest for the title on Saturday afternoon. William B. Cragin, Jr., formerly of Plainfield, twice champion and holder of several outdoor titles, will be Moore's rival, and a royal battle is expected on the board floor courts of the armory.

"Bill" Cragin gained the right to meet Moore by defeating R. W. Kluepfel Wednesday afternoon, in straigtht sets, the scores being 6-0, and 6-2. Cragin was in top form and it seemed that he could have held Kluepfel down without a game had he chosen to do so. In the first set Cragin repeatedly aced his man on his "cannon ball" service, got Kluepfel's returns with little trouble and smashed them back out of reach for easy points. Kluepfel gauged Cragin's game better in the second set, but could not score until the champion diminished his speed toward the latter half of the match. It was thought that Kluepfel would give Cragin a much harder game, as in the handicap singles Walter Merrill Hall (minus ½ 40) had to play his best to defeat his rival, a scratch man, by 8-6, 6-2.

The Seventh regiment championship, which may go this year to Moore, who was practically unknown until he defeated Hall, has twice been held by the latter, twice by William B. Cragin, Jr., and twice by Calhoun Cragin.

The services at St. Stephen's church on Sunday will be in charge of the Rev. Warner W. Ward, of Summit. There will be holy communion at 7:30 and also at the 11 o'clock service.

NEARLY ZERO HERE SNOW IS PROMISED

Mercury Drops to Four Above But the Weather Won't be So Cold Tonight.

REAL WINTER WEATHER COMES

"Weather Prophet" John Neagle Gives Complete Statistics for Year Just Closed Which Are Quite Interesting.

Although the weather bureau predicted yesterday that the thermometer would be at the zero mark last night, according to Prophet John Neagle the official temperature here was 4 degress above early this morning, and the maximum temperature was 27 degrees. The predictions today are "increasing cloudiness probably followed by snow late tonight and Sunday, not quite so cold tonight."

The sudden drop in the temperature set everybody a-shivering yesterday and today and people throughout the city and borough found it very difficult to keep warm last night even by shoveling on the coal and pushing the fires to the limit. The plumbers are wearing broad smiles today realizing that the cold snap means a harvest for them. The ice men are also pleased and are getting ready to cut a big crop of ice provided the mercury does not suddenly go up and spoil their calculations. While the low temperature prevails the merchants see a fine opportunity to dispose of their winter supply of goods, so that even if some people are suffering because of the change, it is a case of being "an ill wind that does not blow somebody some good."

Many local commuters remarked yesterday that they had never seen the tide in New York harbor so low, drivers experiencing difficulty in getting their teams off the ferryboats.

Weather Prophet John Neagle has just completed an interesting report of the weather for 1911, showing many changes from that of 1910. On the whole the year was warmer. The maximum temperature was higher and also that of the minimum. The rainfall was greater by 9.05 inches than 1910 and went above the normal in 1911. The snowfall was not as great as that of the preceding year. There was no zero weather. The lowest temperature of the year was 8 degrees, while the highest was 103. Below is the record with its normals:

Highest temperature, 103, July 10; lowest temperature 8, January 24, February 16; mean temperature, 52.4; normal temperature, 51.0; total precipitation, 49.77 inches; normal precipitation, 49.32 inches; greatest monthly precipitation was in August, amount 8.21 inches; least monthly precipitation in May, amount 1.66 inches; total snowfall, 31.1 inches; normal snowfall, 34.6 inches; total number of rainy days, 129; average number of rainy days, 129; total number of days clear, 109; partly cloudy, 42; cloudy, 114.

The prevailing wind was southwest summed up as follows: The wind was north 12 days, northeast 93 days, east 26 days, southeast 16 days, south 3 days, southwest 112 days, west 37 days, northwest 66 days. The precipitation for the year, 49.77 inches, is recorded here by months, together with their normals:

1911	Amount inches.	Normal inches.
January	3.36	3.89
February	3.41	3.91
March	3.52	3.81
April	3.94	3.90
May	1.66	3.83
June	3.90	4.13
July	3.85	5.40
August	8.21	4.87
September	2.61	4.45
October	7.03	3.65
November	4.29	3.59
December	3.99	3.89
	49.77	49.32

Excess for the year 0.45 inches. The rainfall for 1910 was 40.72 inches which was 9.05 less than that of 1911.

The snowfall for the year 1911 was:

	Amount inches.	Normal inches.
January	3.5	9.0
February	11.9	11.4
March	5.0	6.4
April	1.6	0.5
November	1.5	1.9
December	7.6	5.4

The record by seasons in temperature and precipitation were as follows:

	Temperature.	Normal
For winter season	33.6	30.5
For spring season	50.3	48.3
For summer season	72.2	71.8
For autumn season	53.4	53.4

KILL HUDSON'S CHANCES BY A 'JOKER' ORDINANCE

Borough Measure For Street Commissioner Would Prevent Appointment of Man Slated For Job.

Assembling in regular session for the first time last night, the 1912 Borough Council took up the proposition of paving the way for the appointment of a new street commissioner who will devote his entire time to the office at a salary of $80 per month. An ordinance stipulating the duties, salary and conditions governing the office was introduced by Councilman Buttfield on first and second readings and will be brought up for final action on February 2.

The reading of the proposed measure brought out the fact that one of the clauses was in the nature of a "joker." It specified that the man securing the appointment should not be interested in the sale of supplies to the borough or be the owner of horses or carts. It further stated that the incumbent should have no other business and devote at least eight hours a day to his work. Inasmuch as W. J. Hudson, proprietor of the Plainfield Cab Company, had been mentioned for the place, it was readily seen that he could not be appointed unless he disposed of his livery business. It is not within reason that he would do this, consequently the Ethiopian beneath the furnace fuel was quickly perceived by the gallery. No comments were offered in voting on the two readings.

Practically all of the session was devoted to routine business. The collector's report showed a balance of $1,725.07. The books of the official are now being audited and an extra appropriation of $25 was made to have the auditors make a comparison of statements for the years 1909, 1910 and 1911. The bonds of former Recorder Dolliver and former Clerk Frederick A. Martin were cancelled and provision was made for the new bonds of officials.

Residents in the vicinty of Verdon street and Grandview avenue and Verdon street and Summit avenue asked the Council to install crosswalks at the intersections of these thoroughfares. The matter was referred to the street committee. Building applications were granted to Richard A. Boyce for alterations to a dwelling on Watchung avenue and Harold Underhill for the erection of a garage in the rear of 11 Rockview avenue. A communication from the secretary of the Board of Health asking for an appropriation of $300 on account was laid over to an adjourned meeting of the Council on Wednesday night, January 17.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Milne and passed to the effect that the rules governing the Council during 1911, should prevail for the coming year. Another resolution was offered by Mr. Rushmore making it compulsory for persons having bills against the borough to place them in the hands of the clerk at least two days before the regular meeting of the Council at which they are to be paid. It was also stated that the clerk should insert notices in the local papers calling attention to the fact at least five days before the meeting. Mr. Van Arsdale offered a resolution that $250 be appropriated to defray the expense incurred in securing extra help in the collector's office during the December tax rush and other busy periods of the year. Permission was granted the fire committee on resolution offered by Mr. Stahl to expend a maximum amount of $25 when found necessary between Council meetings. Another appropriation of $200 was made for rent, light and fuel at the collector's office.

Previous to the meeting, Mayor Clark administered the oath of office to a number of special marshals who had not received it since their appointment on New Year's day.

SONS OF SAINT GEORGE MEET ON TUESDAY NIGHT.

Trafalgar Lodge, Order of the Sons of St. George, will meet in the Queen City Hotel, Tuesday night, for the purpose of completing installation arrangements. The grand president of the order in this State will be present with his staff. Hawthorne Lodge, of Elizabeth, and Birmingham Lodge, of Newark, will also be represented by delegations. William H. Hill and Sam Lion, organizers, of Newark, will also assist at the ceremonies.

Fred Ivamy, of West Second street, was selected as temporary president of the local lodge at the last meeting and was authorized to accept applications for membership.

Allen Overton, of Rockview avenue, has returned to Dartmouth College after spending the Christmas vacation at the home of his parents.

PARK AVE. BIBLE SCHOOL HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

Officers were elected and reports were presented at the annual meeting of the Bible school of the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night. These officers were elected:

Superintendent, George E. Hall; associate superintendent, Miss Florence G. Hawkins; superintendent elemenatary department, Miss Elmira C. Runyon; superintendent intermediate department, Mrs. W. S. Lowry; secretary, Charles VanWinkle; assistant secretary, Henry F. Cuming; temperance secretary, Mrs. L. A. Udell; treasurer general fund, Joseph M. Hawkins; treasurer benevolent fund, Willard M. Maxim; librarian, E. Frank Vail; superintendent Home department, Mrs. David M. Runyon; blackboard artist, Charles VanWinkle; orchestra leader, Arthur S. Mosher.

A vote of thanks was extended to all the officers of the school for splendid work and particular reference was made to the exceptional work of the superintendent, George E. Hall, through whose efforts the school has attained a proficiency never before equaled. Attention was called to his constant expenditure of time and money earning for the school the reputation which it enjoys today, one of the foremost in the country. The outlook for the year is especially bright.

Mrs. Gabriel Reid Maguire made the pleasing statement that her Ladies' Bible class has raised the sum of $160, of which $100 had been turned over to the church debt fund.

Treasurer Joseph M. Hawkins made the following report: Balance on hand, January 1, $37.23; weekly collections, $539.96; donations, $715.65 total, $1,292.84. Disbursements including supplies, printing and stationery, music, Christmas entertainment, Summer school, State convention, etc., $1,265.89.

For the benevolent fund of the school, Willard M. Maxim, treasurer, reported receipts of $290.57; disbursements, including contributions to the Plainfield Day Nursery, American Baptist Missionary Union, Muhlenberg Hospital, chapel car work, State missions, Italian missions, King's Daughters' Baby Camp, missionary barrel, Woman's Algerian mission, Red Cross stamps, $160.73, leaving a balance of $129.84, of which $102 is to be given the Day Nursery.

In the absence of Mr. Hall, who was detained at home, a letter from him was read by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, in which he reviewed the work of the past year. He called attention to the success of changing the hour of the session to the morning, bereavement in the death of Theodore J. Runyon, the Teacher Training Class in charge of Miss May Serrell, that during his eleven years as an officer of the school it has never been more prosperous, attaining the 200 mark in attendance. He commended every officer and teacher of the school.

Secretary Henry F. Cuming also presented an interesting report, showing that there are 13 officers, 18 teachers and 284 members enrolled in the school, a total of 315 against 221 a year ago. The average attendance was 180.

Miss Elmira C. Runyon, of the elementary department, reported a membership of 15, several promotions having taken place. The primary department has a membership of 26 and the junior department numbers 23. Miss Edna Groff and Miss Elinore Stutsman have been secured to take the first year classes and Miss Edith Bush has been added to the teaching corps. During the year a new upright piano was secured. The barrel banks brought in $6.80 and the little beginners gave $10. Mr. Hall presented the school with a large scroll. The attendance in the beginners' and primary departments have continued to increase, the largest attendance for one Sunday being 67 and the smallest 25. The largest contribution on one Sunday was $2.82. The contribution to the general fund was $50.30.

The birthday bank contained $14.65, of which $10 goes to Africa. The Give-Away Bank of the beginners' department contained $16, which has been sent to the Day Nursery. The Teepe Banks brought in $4.50 and the total amount raised by the children was $115.70, an increase of $38.84 over last year. E. Frank Vail, librarian, reported 232 volumes read by the school.

COMMISSIONER FOR HIGHWAYS' SYSTEM

Col. E. A. Stevens Wants French Plan Adopted For State Road Work.

REVIEWS FIRST YEAR'S WORK

Road Supervisors Should Be Regularly Appointed and Serve Under Tenure of Office Act, He Says—The Year's Statistics.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Dec. 6.—In his first annual report submitted to Governor Wilson, today, State Road Commissioner Col. Edwin A. Stevens urgently recommends a change in the law which will make the cost of engineering in road building a part of the cost of the road in which the State shall share and by this means give the State Road Department more power in this respect. He says that the present system of employing men at $3 per day to supervise good road construction is unsatisfactory. The cost of this work is now paid by the State and by the time a man learns his business, his work ends. Col. Stevens says this work should be done by men regularly employed, appointed and serving under the tenure of office act. The cost of supervision should be charged to the work and shared by the State.

The increasing importance of the problem of maintaining the improved roads as compared with their original construction is also emphasized by Commissioner Stevens. He declares that as this problem involves both financial and engineering questions, the State must sooner or later adopt a system of State highways. In general he believes this should follow the system in France which is composed of National, Departmental and Communal roads. Applying this system to conditions in New Jersey, Col. Stevens shows that it would correspond to a system of State highways, county roads, and township or borough roads.

Commissioner Stevens criticises the conditions he found upon assuming his duties as head of the department. He says records were incomplete, plans and specifications were defective and there had never been a sufficient force available to compile this data. The assistant State supervisors who were appointed to oversee the maintenance work were employed much of their time in checking calculations. These and other poor conditions have been corrected.

Information has been obtained through F. S. Tainter, an expert in road building, as to methods of road maintenance in England as a basis to learn if methods can be improved in this State. It is the judgment of the Commissioner that the gravel roads of South Jersey are the best maintained and the most economical roads in the State. Except in winter, they are described as almost unsurpassed. Experiments have been used to treat several of these gravel roads in the hope of economically rendering them satisfactory in winter.

During the year 85 miles of improved roads have been built, making the total since the passage of the State Aid Law, 1,678 miles. Road repairs during the year cost $1,508,765. This was divided as follows: Motor Vehicle Fund, $262,783; Experimental Fund, $9,982; County Funds, $1,236,000. The total receipts from the Motor Vehicle Fund for the year were $335,939.

Columbia Lodge Installs.

Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W., installed these officers last night to serve during the ensuing year: Past master workman, Edward VanWinkle; master workman, Augustus C. Nash; foreman, Frank Megge; guide, John Calder; inside watchman, Joseph Sheppard; outside watchman, Peter Koller; recorder, Robert H. Loughlin; receiver, Henry Leifke; financier, Frank Putnam. The installation ceremonies were conducted by Grand Foreman E. McWhood, of Newark, assisted by Past Grand Master Workman V. W. Nash, Sr.

Benevolent Council Officers.

These officers of Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., were installed last night by Past Councilor A. G. Adams: Junior past councilor, Walter Cubberly; councilor, Charles Bornman; vice councilor, Benjamin Bornman; recording secretary, W. H. I. Cubberly; financial secretary, J. H. Adams; treasurer, Edward Honeyman; warden, John Ayers; conductor, Lawrence Fahn; inside guard, Fred Sheppard; outside guard, G. S. Martin. Following the business session and installation, refreshments were served.

James Hurley, of Belmont avenue, who met with a very painful accident while at business, has entirely recovered.

BATTLE ROW THREATENED BY FIRE FOR A THIRD TIME

Firemen Suffer From Exposure and Some Are Nearly Frozen to Hose Nozzles as They Fight Flames.

Members of the city fire department suffered keenly from exposure and in several instances all but froze fast to hose nozzles in fighting a small blaze this morning, which for the third time threatened to completely destroy the historic "Battle Row" building on West Fourth street. Water turned to ice almost the instant it fell, encasing floors and stairs in a slippery coating that made footholds almost impossible. The dozen or more families tenanting the structure hustled into the biting air half clad, many of them contracting colds before reaching shelter or allowed to return to their apartments.

In the midst of the excitement, Mrs. Addie Henry, whose rooms are in the danger zone, was stricken with a fit, being afflicted with an epileptic trouble. She was carried to a place of safety by neighbors.

The fire originated on the second floor at the northwest corner of the building. George Cline, colored, lived in this portion. His water pipes froze and he thawed them out with a torch lamp but unknown to himself, the laths back of the plastering ignited. They worked up a flame after he had gone out spreading quickly to other walls and the attic before the blaze was discovered by Andrew Lavinski, a ground floor tenant. An alarm was turned in from box 34, bringing apparatus from headquarters, No. 1 and No. 3 houses. The chemical streams were first used but later a hydrant hose was put in action. Two of the nozzlemen, Joseph Clark and John Townley, at one time were all but frozen fast to the brass and had to be released by other firemen. All of the department members were more or less coated with ice. The blaze was extinguished in about half an hour, being confined to three apartments. Many of the tenants were frenziedly carrying out furniture when Chief Doane arrived, but he stopped them as soon as he realized the fire was under control.

The total damage is placed at $150, covered by insurance. Kalman Rothberg, of West Third street, is the owner of the building. It originally extended from the West Fourth street line hal fway to Third street, but the southerly half was destroyed by two fire which have occurred previously. Most of the families occupying the place are colored.

TOOK DEADLY POISON FOR HIS HEADACHE BY MISTAKE

Several grains of strychnine taken by mistake for headache powders nearly caused the death of Irving Ball, of West Front street, Wednesday night. Only heroic measures by Drs. Probasco and Endicott saved his life and today the victim is reported as being out of danger. The poison was taken shortly after 8 o'clock and soon afterwards Mr. Ball became violently ill. The family with whom he boards became alarmed and one member went to the closet where he was directed for the medicine to cure his headache. Upon learning that he had not taken it from the box containing the headache tablets, medical aid was hastily summoned and it was several hours before hope could be given for saving his life.

MRS. MARTINE RECEIVES AT HER WASHINGTON HOME

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—Mrs. Martine, wife of the junior New Jersey Senator gave her initial reception to Washington official society Thursday afternoon of this week. Mrs. Martine received at her apartments in the Cecil from 2 to 6 p .m. She was assisted by her niece, Miss Ruth Saunders, of Boston, who will spend the winter season as a guest of Senator and Mrs. Martine. There were forty callers, among them being Mrs. Hitchcock, wife of the Postmaster General, and Mrs. MacVeagh, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, besides a number of women from the Congressional circle. Mrs. Martine will be at home the remaining Thursday afternoons in January.

The Martine Homestead at "Cedarbrook Farm," on Watchung avenue, is now unoccupied for the first time in a great many years. The house is now closed and the Misses Martine have taken possession of their new home standing at the entrance to the farm on Watchung avenue. The old homestead is to undergo thorough repairs and a general overhauling and when completed will be occupied by United States Senator and Mrs. James E. Martine. Many friends were disappointed in not being able to greet the Senator on New Year's Day, but stress of political matters kept him in Washington.

NEW BORO' OFFICES TO BE IN POLICE HEADQUARTERS.

Provision was made at last night's meeting of the Borough Council to secure a regular office for Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., where he can be seen each day on matters of business pertaining to the municipality. The new executive stated to the councilmen that he would be at liberty a portion of each day and wished a proper and convenient place to confer with the citizens. He had inspected the former firemen's parlor in the police headquarters building, he said, and believed that this location would be suitable. He added that it would also serve as an office for the borough clerk and important maps could be filed there to better advantage than at present.

The Council concurred with Mr. Clark in his views on location and appropriated $30 to secure the necessary furnishings. The front windows will be labelled properly and in the near future the Mayor will announce the hours when he can be consulted there on matters of business.

Somerset Freeholders Organize.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders has re-organized for the coming year by electing the following offivers; Director, Thomas Douglass; clerk, William S. Kershaw; counsel, John A. Frech; county collector, E. B. Allen; county physician, Dr. W. H. Long, Jr.; road supervisor, Thomas E. Gibson. Thomas Gallagher, of Raritan, has been named as inspector of weights and measures. At the organization meeting Frank W. Remsen, Thomas Douglass and Peter H. Smith were sworn in and Mr. Gibson, retiring member, was presented with a ogld watch.

Appointed Trustee.

The State Trust Company has been appointed executor of the estate of the late Captain W. W. Winn.

LARGE RECEPTION FOR A DEBUTANTE

Mrs. Frederick G. Mead Gives Brilliant Affair in Honor of Younger Daughter.

SOCIETY THRONGS 'SUNNYSIDE'

Dancing in the Evening—Over 500 Attend—Home Gorgeously Decorated For the Event—Those Who Assisted in Receiving.

Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead gave a large reception, and dance yesterday afternoon and evening at her home, "Sunnyside," for her debutante daughter, Miss Frederica Rutherford Mead. Announcement of the social function was awaited with great expectancy by the host of friends of Mrs. Mead as well as her daughter, and it was the most brilliant affair of the winter in this city. The large and spacious home, handsomely decorated and re-furnished, was more attractive than ever with its assemblage of beautifully gowned women. The hostess was lavish in her arrangements for the entertainment of her guests for the reception and dance.

Mrs. Mead received with her eldest daughter, Miss Margaret Mead and the debutante, Miss Frederica Rutherford Mead, and they were assisted by a number of prominent society women from this city and out of town, including Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Mrs. W. W. Myers, Mrs. Henry D. Hibbard, Mrs. John Gray Foster, Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Mrs. Chapman Fisk, Mrs. Harry G. Runkle, Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, Mrs. John Doull Miller Mrs. James R. Joy, Mrs. James M. Charles, of this city; Miss Margaret Williams, of Hartford, Conn.; Miss Helen Earle, of Montclair; Miss Dorothy Abbot and Miss Eleanor Ide, of Brooklyn; Miss Ruth Segur, of Waterbury, Conn., and Miss Marjorie Browning, of Llewellyn Park.

Those assisting in the dining room were Miss Louise Booth, the Misses Burke, Miss Blanche Buttfield, Miss Marion Brown, Miss Eleanor DeGraff, Miss Helen Hyde, Miss Dorothy Fisk, Miss Hope Irins, Miss Lillian King, Miss Mary Gray Runkle, Miss Margaret Townsend and Miss Ruth VanVliet.

During the hours of the reception from 4 to 7 and again in the evening from 9 to 2 for the dance, the house was thronged with guests, about five hundred in all attending the function. The fair debutante was showered with congratulations and in the beautiful display of red roses, orchids and pink carnations, artistically arranged there was further evidence of the popularity of the young woman in whose honor the affair was given. Everyone joined in cordial greetings as Miss Mead made her formal entrance into society.

Not the least of the many delightful features was the music by T. G. Austin's orchestra, of Brooklyn. From behind a bank of palms came forth music that was entrancing. An especially selected program was arranged for both the reception and dance. The caterer for the affair was Maresi. Following the reception, the members of the receiving party were guests at dinner. The artistic decorations of the table were greatly admired.

The dance was attended by a large number of young men, and many of the young women who were at the reception including others. All enjoyed the popular program of dances and the orchestra was generous in responding to encores. It was about 2 o'clock when the affair was concluded and all departed for their homes leaving their best wishes with the hostess and her daughters.

SALVATION ARMY CORPS SPECIAL MEETINGS BEGIN.

A special series of meetings will be begun at the Salvation Army tonight which will last for ten days or two weeks and will be conducted by the following visiting officers: Captain and Mrs. Fairchild, Ensign Ida Seiler and Envoy William Evans. The opening service will be begun tonight at 8 o'clock and will be in charge of Captain Goodchild, who is the musical wizard of the Army. The Captain plays at least one dozen instruments. He will be assisted by Envoy Evans. On Tuesday next Mrs. Goodchild and Ensign Seiler will arrive and will remain during the balance of the campaign. Services will be held every evening and all day on Sunday.

Invited to National Meeting.

Councilmen Fred Endress and Patrick J. Reville and Frank J. Shattle, vice chairman of the Union County Democratic Committee, are among those from this city who have been invited to attend the meeting of the National Democratic Committee at Washington on Monday.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

As a business man deeply interested in everything that tends to help Plainfield's advancement, I am glad to note the change of ownership of the Daily Press. To my mind, a daily newspaper is a powerful instrument for good and when rightly conducted is of untold benefit to the community. From the tone of your editorials I judge that you mean to do all you can for Plainfield and from the news columns I am convinced that you have taken a big step forward in standard. I am well satisfied with the results obtained from my advertising in the Press and I wish the new management the greatest possible success.

Respectfully yours,
A. E. FORCE,
A. E. Force & Company.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

Now that you are under new management I trust you will follow up your editorial of today regarding the widening of Park avenue and include portions of Somerset street and Madison avenue in your suggestion. The wonderful growth of Plainfield's residential section and the general use of automobiles demand that the business portion of the city be made more desirable and safe. The public would appreciate the work when once done, which would bring glory and prestige to you as the new owners of the Plainfield Daily Press and reward you as new advocates of government for the people.

Wishing you great success in the new enterprise.

I am yours truly,
N. B. SMALLEY.

BLOOD MONEY IN PERSIA.

Curious Laws In That Country Governing the Crime of Murder.

A Persian murderer may pay blood money in lieu of his own life. The manner in which this is calculated is one of the most complicated things about Persian law. A woman is worth only half a man, and so a man cannot be executed for the murder of a mere woman. A husband whose wife had been killed by his steward was obliged first to pay half the steward's blood price to the man's relations, and thus the steward, having been reduced to the value of half a man, equal to one whole woman, was legally executed.

From this principle it follows that a man who has killed two women can be condemned to death, as equality is not infringed. If the murder of a woman be committed by several men the friends, upon whose initiative alone any proceedings can take place, can demand the death of but one of the murderers and always by paying the difference in the price of blood. On the same ground if two women murder a man the death of both can be demanded.

Evidently one could make a considerable fortune in Persia by getting one's men folk murdered by a woman apiece. Much the same plan is carried out in the case of minor injuries, with this curious addition—that the part of the body paid for is considered to be the property of the one who pays the blood money—London Times.

SAVED BY A SONG.

When Santley and His Party Faced Death In Mexico.

Few people are aware that on one occasion a timely song saved Sir Charles Santley's life. The famous baritone was one of a party traveling under military escort through a bandit infested region in Mexico when the guards suddenly bolted, leaving the travelers to the mercy of a band of booty hunters. These desperadoes, finding the spoil less valuable than they expected, decided to slay their captives and fare forth on another foray.

An inspiration came to Santley. Surrounded by friends and foes, he commenced an aria and sang in his own inimitable way. As the notes rippled forth on the clear mountain air the bandits' faces lighted up with pleasure, and at the finish the leader expressed his delight and asked the senor to sing again.

Santley saw his chance and seized it. He inquired if he might sing for the liberty of the little party, and a reluctant consent was given. For several hours during that never to be forgotten night he enthralled his captors with a generous program of exquisite melodies. The next day the bandits tendered payment by taking the whole party down the mountain side and setting them free. Notwithstanding later triumphs Sir Charles Santley never surpassed that one.—London Graphic.

Helpful Anyhow.

They were discussing an absentee, and not all their remarks were favorable. One, however, spoke in his defense. "Whatever his failings may be," he said, "he thinks of more little ways of being helpful than any other person I know. One day I was with him at a ferryhouse where a crowd was waiting for the boat. Suddenly he left me and walked toward a woman who was struggling with a three-year-old and a number of parcels. Our friend raised his hat, spoke to the woman, and then I saw him grapple her parcels. Soon he returned to my side, and I asked him, 'What was it?' 'Oh, nothing,' he said carelessly. 'She had too many parcels. I put a rubber band around them and bunched them into one.' I was disgusted with myself that I had not thought of that simple little expedient for helping the woman, and ever since that time I have had much respect for our friend, although I can't indorse all of his ways."—New York Press.

War Time Coffee.

This was the formula of a coffee mixture that sold freely in the days of gross adulteration during and immediately subsequent to the war between the states before matters began to right themselves:

Best Java coffee, one pound; rye, three pounds. Carefully clean the rye from all bad grains, wash to remove dust, drain off the water and put the grain into the roaster, carefully stirring to brown it evenly. Roast the coffee separately. Grind the mixture and pack in air tight containers. An essence of coffee was prepared by boiling down molasses until hard and then grinding it to a powder and mixing it with half a pound of good ground Java coffee, using four pounds of the powdered molasses.—Ideal Grocer.

Papa's Past.

Little Helen's mamma was discussing the drink question with a visitor, and the child listened gravely to the conversation.

"Papa used to drink," she volunteered suddenly.

The visitor turned her head to conceal a smile, and mamma frowned and shook her head at the little one.

"Well, then," demanded Helen, "what was it he used to do?"—Lippincott's.

LOOKED ON HER MARRIAGE AS ONLY AN ENGAGEMENT

When Miss Augusta Myers, eighteen ,of Highland Park, near New Brunswick, eloped on June 19 to New York city with Harold Anshed, a Rutgers College freshman, and they were married by Alderman S. S. Smith in the City Hall, New York, it was merely to cement a marriage engagement that the girl's mother had tried to break. At least that was the basis of a suit for annulment heard by Vice-Chancellor Stevens in Newark yesterday. Decision was reserved.

In the petition filed by Freeman Woodbridge for Mrs. Anshen she said she had no intention of becoming the collegian's wife when she fled with him. She looked on the ceremony performed by Alderman Smith merely as a form of marriage engagement, and believed it merely made her mother powerless to part her from her sweetheart.

The youthful husband, in opposing the suit, denied his wife's assertion that they believed the ceremony was merely an engagement.

WHEN IN MONTCLAIR DON'T SPIT AND SAVE $2.

Visitors to Montclair, N. J., within the next ten days who inadvertently expectorate on the sidewalks or floors of public places should not be surprised if a policeman steps up and hands out a leaflet entitled "How to Save Two Dollars."

The leaflet is a warning to the effect that violation of the sanitary code respecting the spitting nuisance, if repeated, will be followed by the imposition of a fine of $2 by the Town Recorder. It also tells why the habit should be suppressed in the interests of the public health. The literature was placed with the police for distribution yesterday, and for the first ten days violators will not be arrested.

ELIZABETH PREPARES TO OPEN NEW ARMORY.

As the time for the opening of the new National Guard armory in Elizabeth to the public draws near there is speculation regarding who will be named as custodian of the big building. The only candidate mentioned so far is John H. R. Corbet, of 528 Walnut street, Elizabeth, who has been a member of the State soldiery for twenty-five years. He has done much for the companies in that city and is popular with his comrades, so that it is generally believed that he will get the appointment.

The date for the opening of the new armory and part of the program will be arranged at a meeting of the officers of the Second Battalion, to be held at the home of General Dennis F. Collins next week, probably on Thursday night. It is expected that the date decided upon will be some time between the middle of March and the first of April. A banquet will probably be held, with a dance afterward. The annual muster and inspection of the Second Regiment will take place on the same night. It is expected that Governor Wilson will be present.

THIRD SUICIDE ENDS HOME-WRECKING CASE.

Woonsocket, S. D., Jan. 6.—The case against former Sheriff Plottner, of Mitchell, accused with Mrs. Kate Quinn, of Mitchell, of a statutory crime, which was being tried in Woonsocket, came to a tragic end Thursday, when the body of Plottner was found a mile north of here. Investigation showed he had committed suicide by taking laudanum.

The death of Plottner marks the third suicide which has arisen out of the case. Two years ago, because of the alleged relations between his wife and Plottner, Albert Quinn took poison.

Last summer, following a series of events in the Plottner household, Mrs. Plottner ended her life. Immediately after her death Plottner and the Quinn woman left Mitchell and were subsequently arrested in Omaha.

The first annual euchre for the benefit of the Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will be held in the parish house, Friday night, February 2, at 8:20 o'clock.

REPORTS HIS WIFE AND DAUGHTER MISSING

Missing since Friday of last week, Mrs. Frederick E. Babbitt is supposed by her husband, a drug clerk of Roselle Park, to be wandering around the country, with their seven-year-old daughter, in a condition of mental irresponsibility. Since last Sunday, when he first learned of his wife's departure from Lakewood, where she had been boarding in the hope of regaining her health, Mr. Babbitt has exhausted every means of learning her whereabouts.

Mr. and Mrs. Babbitt were living at Roselle Park when, on November 5, the wife, taking the daughter with her, went to Lakewood, where she engaged board with Mrs. Mary McWilliams, of 29 Fifth street. She remained there a month, her husband visiting her frequently. At first she appeared to improve. At the end of a month Mrs. Babbitt left the house of Mrs. McWilliams and was away a week. On the day she returned to Lakewood Mr. Babbitt was there for the purpose of visiting her and he met her on the street.

Mrs. Babbitt had taken her trunk and two suit cases with her when she went away, but returned without the trunk. Questioned by her husband, she was apparently unable to tell where she had been or where she had left the trunk. Subsequently Mr. Babbitt learned that she had been in Union, where she spent one day at the home of her father.

Before her marriage Mrs. Babbitt was Miss Anna Haines, of Union, and was a dressmaker. She is thirty-three years old, about five feet eight inches tall, is slender with light complexion and hair and dark eyes. When last seen she wore a white beaver hat, a long, black plush coat, a blue skirt, a solitaire diamond ring and a wedding ring and carried two suit cases and a black patent leather handbag. The little girl, Clara, wore a brown corduroy coat, a white hat, trimmed with brown and with long pink ribbons, wore her hair in two braids and carried a red handbag.

Week of Prayer Services.

Alan Fitz-Randolph, of Madison avenue, has resumed his studies at Princeton University after a vacation of two weeks.

NEW JERSEY S. A. R. TO JOIN IN A CELEBRATION

The members of the New Jersey Society of the Sons of the American Revolution are invited to join the Sons of the Revolution and other patriotic socities in celebrating Washington's Birthday, February 22, at Princeton.

The program is as follows:

First—A religious service in Trinity church, with an appropriate sermon by the chaplain of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution, the Rev. Charles M. Perkins.

Second—A civil service will be held at the close of the religious exercises, and will take place in Thomson Hall. The exercises here will consist of the presentation of the flags of the societies present and an address by Dr. Hamilton W. Mabie. At the close of this program, lunch will be served in the building.

Trains on the Pennsylvania Railroad which will arrive in Princeton in time for the celebration are as follows: New York Hudson Terminal, 8:30 and 9:30; Newark, 8:52 and 9:52; Elizabeth, 9:01 and 10:01; Princeton, 10:08 and 10:57.

Returning: Princeton, 3:29 and 4:50; Elizabeth, 4:46 and 6:14; Newark, 4:56 and 6:25; New York Hudson Terminal, 5:22 and 6:48.

Those who desire the luncheon in the building must notify Secretary John R. Weeks, 192 Market street, Newark, enclosing $1 for each ticket desired. Orders must be sent before February 17. The luncheon will be served by Hildebrecht, of Trenton.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

A series of formal debates will be given by the debating teams in the senior English classes. The first debate will be given Monday morning on the question, "Resolved, That the benefits of immigration outweigh its evils."

Several pupils of the high school will enter a contest open to high schools for the best essay on the subject, "Street Cleaning in Our City." A first prize of $30 and a second prize of $20 will be offered for the first and second best essays on the subject by the National Municipal League. The essay is not to exceed 1,500 words.

Arthur L. Bingaman, of East Ninth street, has returned to Yale University after spending the Christmas vacation in this city and East Orange.

JOHN F. HILL.

He Is the Chairman of the Republican National Committee.

John Fremont Hill, who was recently elected chairman of the Republican national committee, is one of the few physicians of the country who have entered or who have been successful in the political field. He abandoned the practice of his profession many years ago.

Mr. Hill was born at Eliot, Me., on Oct. 29, 1855. His ancestors on both sides included men of distinguished public service. His father, William, was the sixth in direct descent from John Hill, who was born in England in 1624 and settled in Dover, N. H. about thirty years later.

Among Mr. Hill's early ancestors were Edward Rawson, secretary of the colony of Massachusetts bay from 1650 to 1686; John Leighton, a representative to the general court and sheriff of York county; William Leighton, who raised 112 men for the Continental army in 1775, besides being county sheriff and a justice of the peace, and Andrew Leighton, who frequently represented his district in the Maine legislature.

Mr. Hill's grandmother, Sarah Odiorne Leighton, was a direct descendant of Sir John Mason, the original grantee of the province of New Hampshire.

John F. Hill was educated in the South Berwick (Me.) academy and the Putnam school in Newburyport. He afterward studied medicine, being graduated from the Bowdoin medical school in 1877 and later perfecting his studies and receiving a diploma from the Long Island College hospital in Brooklyn.

After completing his medical education Dr. Hill returned to his native state, practicing about a year at Boothbay Harbor. Later he decided to enter business and moved to Augusta. In 1879 he associated himself with P. O. Vickery, the publisher, and later became his partner under the firm name of Vickery & Hill.

Mr. Hill was elected to the house of representatives of Maine in 1889 and was re-elected in 1891. In 1892 he was nominated by acclamation for senator from Kennebec county and served in the legislatures of 1893 and 1895.

In 1896 he was a presidential elector from Maine. He was elected governor of his state in 1901 and again in 1903. For several years he has been the Maine member of the Republican national committee and its acting chairman since March, 1909.

In 1880 Mr. Hill married Lizzie G. Vickery, who died about ten years later. In 1898 he married the widow of Hiram Liggett, son of the late J. E. Liggett, of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco company. Her father was Norman J. Coleman, who was secretary of agriculture under President Cleveland.

The Hill home in Augusta is one of the most notable residences in the state. It was built at an estimated cost of $400,000.

KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN.

She Is Prominent In Organization of Women to Oppose Suffrage.

Kate Douglas Wiggin, the author, who in private life is Mrs. George Riggs, is a prominent figure in the newly formed National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, which is to carry on an active warfare against the granting of suffrage to women. There are already nearly a dozen state organizations.

KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN.

In organizing the new association put itself on record as maintaining that woman can accomplish more for her country without the vote than with it, that the state is like a household and that the work should be divided between men and women. A "catechism" has been prepared containing questions and answers tending to prove the fallacy of the suffragists' statements.

Other women prominent in the new organization are Mrs. Greer, wife of Bishop Greer; Miss Ida M. Tarbell, Mrs. Richard Watson Gilder and Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge. Mrs. Dodge is the president.

"I'M GOING FAST" SAID THIS DYING PARROT

Bloomfield, Jan. 5.—"I'm going fast," were the last words uttered just before it died Thursday by a parrot that had been in the home of Jeremiah Halcomb, of Watsessing, for more than twenty-seven years. The bird had been sick for several months and for two weeks it could take nothing more than a drink of water. The bird was given to Mr. Halcomb when he was a boy by Captain Halcomb, an uncle, who was a sea captain. The parrot was a native of the West Indies and was full grown when the Bloomfield man received it, so that it was probably thirty years old.

The school children delighted to engage it in conversation while on their way to school. When the children teased it, the bird ruffled up its feathers and screamed out the words, "Go to school and take your seats."

ROSELLE WOMAN DEAD; ONCE SAVAGES' CAPTIVE.

Mrs. Ellen Philpot, sixty-six years old, widow of Rev. Herman Philpot, died Thursday at the home of her daughter, Miss Ellen Philpot, in Roselle Park. She was born in London, England, and was married to Dr. Philpot when quite young. She accompanied her husband to Abyssinia, where, for a number of years, he was a missionary. She was captured under the tyrannical government of King Theodore, and was held prisoner for six years. She was rescued by an expedition sent out from England under Lord Napier.

Upon her return to England, Mrs. Philpot was called before the late Queen Victoria, to whom she told the story of her captivity. The Queen was so touched by the story that she embraced Mrs. Philpot.

"FULL CAR" SIGN DIDN'T SAVE THIS MOTORMAN.

If a motorman of a trolley car in Paterson fails to stop to pick up passengers, even though the car is full at the time and the "car full" sign is displayed, he is liable to a fine, Recorder Carroll ruled Thursday.

The recorder said that the ordinance makes no distinction whether the car is full or empty, and that the pospective passenger is the one to decide whether there is room for him on the car.

The complainant was James W. Cooke. He said he signaled John Comerford, motorman, to stop his car a few days ago, but that the motorman refused. The recorder fined the motorman $5 and then laid down the law to him.

SPRING LAKE COMPANY PLANS TO BUILD HOTEL.

Drawings have been completed for a $500,000 hotel for Spring Lake, to be erected, it is said, after the forthcoming season. A company has been formed under the name of the Essex and Sussex Company, in which the owner of the present hotel of that name is associated with Philadelphia capitalists.

The building will be six stories high, of yellow pressed brick. Toward the close of the 1912 season, according to plans, the buildings forming the Essex and Sussex Hotel will be moved or torn down and the new structure will occupy the site. It is the intention of the company to fit the hostelry for all-year patronage.

OCEAN GROVE WILL MAKE ANOTHER TRY FOR BOROUGH

Ocean Grove, Jan. 6.—Notice has again been given of the intention of certain residents and taxpayers of this place to apply to the Legislature on Monday, January 15, to have Ocean Grove incorporated as a borough.

This will make the fourth application to incorporate Ocean Grove as a borough to be presented to the Legislature. Twice both houses turned down the measure. Last year it was passed by the House with a vote of 39 for and 18 against. In the Senate it received two votes, those of Senator Silzer, who introduced the bill, and Senator Low.

A "DRY" TOWN

According to the annual report of Asbury Park's police chief prohibition, so-called, is as rank a failure at that resort as it is in the average Maine town. The total number of arrests for drunkenness exceeded that in all other parts of Monmouth county combined and the ratio of arrests for that offense was higher than in even Atlantic City, probably the most "wide open" town in the State. The chief states in his report that on two single days during the year express wagons of licensed bottlers delivered to patrons 136 demijohns and jugs of liquor and more than 26,000 bottles of beer.

As the Trenton Times says: "Asbury Park is 'dry' theoretically, and is protected by the Ocean Grove 'mile limit' law. Conditions could not be much worse with a license system, under which the city could secure at least $100,000 a year in revenue that it now loses and the police and excise authorities be able to keep a supervision over the hotels and saloons. At least many of the low resorts would be wiped out."

How much better is the high license and strict regulation system in force in this city, whose ordinances served as a model for the Bishops' law. Plainfield's retail and wholesale liquor dealers are all men of excellent standing in the community and prize their privilege too highly to tolerate any abuses or violations of the regulations. The only "speakeasies" have been those conducted by Italians and thanks to Mayor Moy they are put out of business very promptly and effectually. So satisfactory has the high license and strict regulation system proven that the intelligent people of Plainfield, we firmly believe, would never vote for a return to the days when this city was "dry"—dry in name only.

Before the act, designed to bring about the abolition of railroad grade crossings, has even been introduced in the Legislature by its sponsor, Senator Pierce, reports have it that lobbyists are opposing the measure. Former Assemblyman Duane E. Minard, of Essex county, was at Trenton on Thursday, when the Republican joint caucus was held, and told the men who will be sworn in next Tuesday that Mr. Pierce's bill was "unfair, awfully unfair" to the railroads. Then he handed out a carefully prepared statement giving the railroad point of view. The corporation control of the Legislature was pretty well broken last winter, and we doubt whether there is any influence powerful enough to prevent the passage of a law to compel the elimination of these death traps. Public sentiment is too strong throughout the entire State for any legislator to defy it.

Former President Roosevelt's name may be on the New Jersey primary ballot for the election of delegates to the National convention next June. Some of his friends in the State say it will be easy to get the necessary 1,000 names on a petition, which will compel the Secretary of State to place the name on the ticket. The La Follette supporters are planning to do the same thing, and no doubt President Taft's friends in the Republican organization will have him named. This means a three-cornered fight, but it is the best method of determining whom the Republicans of the State favor for the place.

"Taft Still Favors Hook," we are again informed this morning in a news item concerning the vacancy on the United State Supreme bench. He may favor Judge Hook, but we doubt if he would approve of the use of the term, were it to indicate the attitude of the people of the United States toward himself, and his effort to appear in the center of the political stage.

If there is anything more disgusting than the fad for dancing the "grizzly bear," which seems to have taken hold on young people who are otherwise respectable, we have yet to hear of it. In New York the mothers are rising up in their wrath and unceremoniously yanking the youngsters off of the floor, when they attempt the performance.

The weather seems to be making up for the lack of low temperature during November and December. With the thermometer close to the zero mark this morning here, and reported to be at 10 below in Chicago and 28 below in Omaha, no one will dispute that winter has really arrived at last.

There is to be a third big baseball league, composed of independents, who will employ outlaw players. Judging from the excitement of the world's series last fall two leagues are plenty and well able to provide amusement for the nation.

THE FORUM.

A Cruel Rule.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

The police regulation requiring all teams to face the curb on the right force truckmen to head their horses into the cold wind of the winter, exposing their chests to the wind which works a great hardship on horses, and makes them liable to catch cold. The natural way for a horse to stand is with his back to the wind and if the rule was suspended during the cold windy days of winter, it would work great comfort to the horses on our streets. I respectfully submit that the police department arrange for this humane treatment of our horses.

COMMENDS PRESS POLICY.

On Tuesday of this week the Plainfield Daily Press, one of the most influential newspapers in the State of New Jersey passed into the hands of Leslie R. Fort, son of former Governor Fort, and Ralph L. Morrow, formerly of Bristol, who are now the editors and publishers of that prosperous newspaper. We like the tone of the sentiment expressed in the formal "announcement" to the public signalizing the change in ownership. After paying a just tribute to the founder of the paper, A. L. Force, who retires after a quarter a century's service, the new owners cite this truth:

In politics we shall be independent. While the editors are both Republican and expect to remain so, this paper will not be a political organ. Such newspapers no longer have influence. It is just as much the duty of a newspaper to voice public sentiment by just criticism of its own party, when that party is wrong, as it is to support it when it is right. The party which keeps its promises, and nominates men who can be depended upon to do the right thing by the people, and the business interests of the country, is the one which will secure support in the future.—Bristol, Pa., Gazette.

$14,500,000 SPENT IN FIGHT ON WHITE PLAGUE.

$10,000,000 Already Appropriated For the 1912 Campaign.

The sum of $14,500,000 was spent during the year 1911 throughout the country in the war against tuberculosis, according to a statement issued by the National Association For the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

This amount is practically the same as last year's total, but the percentage of public money, such as is received from federal, state, city or county funds, which is 66 per cent for 1911, shows a marked increase over the percentage of the public money appropriated in 1909.

The total sum spent in the United States last year of $11,800,000 went directly toward the treatment of the consumptives in sanitariums and hospitals and the remainder to anti-tuberculosis associations, dispensaries, open air schools, boards of health and other agencies.

New York leads all the other states of the Union in the amount of money contributed toward the war. With the slogan, "No uncared for tuberculosis in 1915," $3,500,000 was raised in the state during the year for the campaign, over $1,000,000 of which represents private charity. Pennsylvania is second, with the contribution of $2,265,000, and Massachusetts third, with $1,108,000.

For the year 1912 appropriations of over $10,000,000 have already been made by the state legislatures and other public bodies.

LEAP YEAR STATUTE.

Made In Leap Year In a Woman's Reign 624 Years Ago.

On the subject of leap year—by the way, this is leap year—the Britannica says pessimistically that "no satisfactory" explanation has ever been offered of the origin of the custom for women to woo and not be wooed one year in every four. But it offers the leap year statute of Margaret, the maid of Norway. Margaret reigned over Scotland from 1286 to 1290, though she died before she could get there. In the year 1288, which was leap year, the following law was passed in her realm:

"It is statut and ordaint that during the rein of hir maist blissit Megeste, for ilk yeare knowne as lepe year, ilk mayden ladye of bothe high and lowe estait shall hae liberte to bespeake ye man she likes; albeit he refuses to taik hir to be his lawful wyfe, he shall be mulcted in ye sum ane pundis or less, as his estait may be, except and awis gif he can make it appeare that he is betrothit an ither woman he then shall be free."

WILL OF 27 WORDS.

Lawyer Wrote It In Hospital on a Prescription Blank.

The will of Robert Candee, a Chicago lawyer, one of the briefest ever recorded in the probate court there, was filed before Philip P. Bregstone. It disposed of personal property valued at $12,000 and names his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Candee, sole legatee and executrix.

Mr. Candee, who died at the Evanston hospital, was taken ill in his office with appendicitis. His daughter Elizabeth was born a short time before he was stricken. He remembered before undergoing an operation that he had written a will leaving his entire estate to his wife and, fearing that the birth of his daughter would invalidate the will, wrote another, which reads:

I, Robert Candee, will all my estate to my wife, Elizabeth Candee, and appoint her executrix without bond. This is made notwithstanding the birth of my daughter. ROBERT CANDEE.

The will was written in pencil on a blank of Dr. William D. Alexander.

A NEW ORANGE.

Great Things Predicted For One Developed by a Chinese Fruit Grower.

The Lue Gim Gong is a new orange, originated by a Chinese fruit grower of De Land, Fla. According to a writer in Country Life In America, this new variety is going to revolutionize orange growing throughout that part of the country. It is declared that the fruit has been known to hang on the tree for one, two or even three years and that the tree bears well even when it is still carrying the crop of the previous year. This is not true of most other varieties. It is also said that the fruit can be shipped as early as June, although it is still too acid then. It is good in July, but better in August and September.

"The fruit is full of juice," says the quoted writer, "and hangs on the trees through the rainy summer weather. It can therefore be placed on the market when oranges are scarce and the highest prices can be secured."

$9,000 Paid For Three Foxes.

Probably the highest price ever paid for fur bearing foxes was recorded in the purchase by Charles Dalton, a millionaire fox ranch owner of Tignish, Prince Edward Island, from J. C. Calhoun of Gaspe, Que., of three black foxes for breeding purposes, the price being more than $9,000. The sale was made after several fox ranch owners had bid for the animals.

Total Cost of Raising Maine.

General Bixby, chief of army engineers, and Colonel Black, in charge of the work of raising the Maine in Havana harbor, informed the house committee on appropriations that about $250,000 is needed to complete the work. This will make the total cost $900,000.

DON'T MAKE ENEMIES.

A man cannot afford to have an enemy, even a humble enemy. The shabby fellow who storms your office today may be a power in the community next year. Therefore speak to him gently; send him away with a smile. Never affect a contemptuous manner. That is the way of the fool. In the day of small things plan patiently for the day of great things. A polite word costs nothing. It may turn out to be a good investment, and it will never make an enemy.

Short Lived Insects.

The wonderful brevity of insect life is curiously illustrated in the case of those that prey upon different species of mushrooms. The life of the mushroom itself is measured by hours, yet it is often entirely ruined by an insect which deposits its eggs upon the fungi while it is in the vigor of youth. The entire span of life of this mushroom insect is so brief that the grubs hatch from the eggs and the creature becomes fully developed and capable of laying eggs itself before the mushroom dies, even though the latter's life may not extend over a period of forty-eight hours from the moment it first pushes through the soil.

Courtship In Holland.

The etiquette of Holland is exceedingly strict in all classes. The young girl is most carefully chaperoned, and she never goes anywhere, even to church, unless accompanied by her parents, some male relative or other equally trusty attendant. At a dance the parents sit round the walls sipping their coffee or wine, and the young men must make the best of their chances in the opportunities afforded by the dance, for when it pleases the guardians to depart there is no help for it, but the girls must go too. An unmarried girl always takes the right arm of her escort, while the matron takes the left, perhaps because it is nearer the heart.

When Washington Was Abused.

In the Morris house on Aug. 12, 1795, Washington signed the Jay treaty with England, losing thereby most of his remnant of support in the house of representatives. Abuse culminated in the serious suggestion to impeach him. The constitution having for obvious reasons confined the treaty making power to the executive and the senate, Washington refused to grant the request of the house of representatives for the correspondence leading up to the treaty. The storm of indignation that followed did not spare even his personal character. "A Calm Observer" stated in a newspaper that Washington had stolen $4,750.

Leander's Feat.

Stories of the ancients who performed prodigious feats pale into insignificance compared with modern accomplishments—for example, the story of Leander, who swam the Hellespont with the praiseworthy object of passing an hour in the presence of his sweetheart. Now, the body of water known in ancient times as the Hellespont is in these days called the strait of Dardanelles, and the distance across is rather less than a mile. Compared with such a swim as that of Captain Webb, who first swam across the strait of Dover, a distance of twenty-one miles, Leander's performance seems not only credible, but insignificant.

Telling the Bumps.

The antiquity of palmistry is in striking contrast to the modernity of "telling the bumps," with which it is often associated in popular estimation. Wrongly associated, since the phrenologist merely reads character without attempting any predictions of the future. Phrenology was invented by Gall the German physician, who, as a boy, had studied the heads of his schoolfellows. Gall gave his first lecture in 1796, but six years later his teaching was prohibited by the Austrian government. Phrenological societies were soon formed in London, and the science, after being "refuted" by Lord Jeffrey and others, gradually made headway.—London Chronicle.

The "Only Child."

When parents have an "only child" it seems to get as much attention as six or eight children in a large family. Some statistics show that out of a hundred "only children" eighty-seven were nervous and eighteen of them had severe nervous trouble, the girls suffering worse than the boys. And then the statisticians say the only child lacks self reliance, is precocious, vain and unsociable, is often extremely timid, being afraid of dark rooms and of sleeping alone.—Exchange.

The Cause of the Trouble.

"What is the matter with that baby?" growled an irascible husband as the little one persisted in howling and kicking to the extent of his little might.

"The matter is, sir," calmly replied the wife as she strode up and down the room—"the matter is that this baby inherits your temper."

And the husband returned to his paper with a gloomier look than before.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The congregation of the Methodist church will inaugurate a week of prayer beginning January 20. The pastor, Rev. William A. Knox, will be assisted by a conference evangelist.

The new house being erected on Center street for Mrs. M. P. Chamberlain, has been enclosed and is rapidly nearing completion.

Court Dunellen, I. O. F., will hold a smoker Monday night, in connection with the installation of its recently elected officers.

The W. C. T. U. will hold a business meeting next Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jacob Fisher.

The First National Bank, of Dunellen, will hold its annual election of directors next Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. J. C. Smith, wife of Dr. Smith, has been taken to Muhlenberg Hospital for treatment.

Assistant Overseer Appointed.

Overseer-of-the-Poor Henry L. DeForest has appointed Garret T. Dunham, of West Front street, as his assistant. The latter has entered upon his new duties and can be found at the office in the Kenney building during Mr. DeForest's absence.

MOOSE QUINTET TOOK TWO FROM THE RED MEN

A bombardment of strikes from the strong arms of Vanderbilt and Smith enabled the Moose team to crush the Red Men in two games last evening, at Walters' alleys, in the first series of the local fraternal bowling tourney.

The Red Men never had a chance for victory in the first two games, as the Moose members shot in phenomenal form, making almost impossible spares and splits at pleasure.

Vanderbilt succeeded in getting high score for the evening by rolling 233 in the first game, while "Bill" Smith showed that the Moose team had made no mistake when they captured him as a member by rolling 221.

Harry Radin, who has for years led the Red Men bowlers, had high average for the evening of 200.1.

The scores:

October	53.6	53.0
November	40.6	42.0
December	37.4	31.9
Mean for year	52.4	51.0

The highest temperature of 1911 was 103 degrees on the 10th. The previous record was July 26, 1892, when the highest temperature was 105. In the year 1910 there was only two months of that year, June and July, that the mercury got above 90 degrees, in June four times, in July thirteen times. In the year 1911 it got above 90 degrees in four months, as follows: May, six times; June twice; July, thirteen times, and August seven times; total, twenty-eight days. In 1911 it was below freezing 119 days as follows: January, 24 times; February, 25 times; March, 24 times; April, 7 times; May, once; October, twice; November, 16 times and December 20 times.

NORTH PLAINFIELD GIRLS 36, KEARNY HIGH SCHOOL 11

The N. P. H. S. girls' five defeated Kearny H. S. at Kearny yesterday by a score of 36-11. The home team played a fast and exciting game and surpassed the Kearny five in team work and accuracy in shooting. Helen Hummel caged sixteen field goals. The score in the first half resulted 16-4 in N. P. H. S.'s favor. It took several minutes before either side was warmed up to the game. Both Miss Clara B. Smith and Miss Bessie Carson were largely responsible for the ball being at the home end. After the game the Kearny five served refreshments.

The line-up:

N. P. H. S.—Forwards, Helen Hummel, Marion Mair; center, Mildred McAuliffe, Bessie Carson; guards, Clara B. Smith, E. Debele.

Kearny H. S. —Forwards, E. Karling, Iris Ferrie; center, Marion Jewel; guards, L. Klein, M. DeLong, Queenie Ringold.

P. H. S. FIVE NO MATCH FOR THE YONKERS TEAM

The Yonkers High School basketball team defeated P. H. S. in a return game on the local courts, last night, by a score of 52 to 11. The locals were badly crippled on account of regular players being down in their studies. Woodhull did all the scoring for P. H. S., except one basket, which was shot by Sattels at the end of the first half.

By their fast team work the visitors kept the ball in their possession continually and threw baskets at will. During the first half both teams lost many chances to score by poor shooting, but Wallace, who played center for the visitors, soon located his basket and threw eight goals in the first period, while Longworth and Archibald shared honors with three baskets each.

Woodhull threw two baskets from play and shot one foul goal in this half. A basket by Sattels completed the scoring. The visitors were leading at the end of the first half by a score of 33 to 7. The Yonkers team defeated the locals early in the season by a score of 35 to 10. Since then the visitors have developed exceptional team work and have not been defeated in any game of the season. The lineup:

P. H. S .—forwards, Woodhull, Good; center, Sattels, Carty; guards, Nash, Rosenson.

Yonkers H. S.—forwards, Longworth, Vredenbaugh, Archibald; center, Wallace; guards, Williams, Barnes.

Referee, Paul Collier; timer, James Buckle; time of halves, 20 and 15 minutes.

DR. W. H. MURRAY AGAIN HEADS HEALTH BOARD.

The Board of Health held its first meeting of the year last night for organization. Dr. William H. Murray was chosen president, Dr. T. S. Davis was re-elected secretary, while Stephen H. Voorhees, one of the new members, was selected as treasurer. The other new member is William M. Wherry, Jr.

The board did not take up any regular business at this time, but that of the past year was reviewed and a general policy for the coming year was discussed in an informal way.

Want House Building Regulated.

The Borough Council, at its regular meeting, last night, discussed at some length a proposition to amend the fire ordinance in order to regulate the erection of small frame houses. The matter was broached by Councilman Buttfield, who said there is a tendency to place such buildings close together and not in a manner to encourage a better class of dwellings in the neighborhood. A resolution to appoint a committee to inquire into probable remedies was offered but afterward withdrawn. Probable action may be taken at a future meeting.

Wife Deserter Caught.

John Jarzarerski, of East Second street, was brought back from Phillipsburg yesterday by Detective-Sergeant Flynn to answer a charge of desertion preferred by his wife. He was remanded for further examination Monday morning, when arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning. Mrs. Jarzaberski is a patient in Muhlenberg Hospital.

Repeated Xmas Cantata.

The cantata, "Topsy Turvy Christmas," was repeated at Trinity Reformed church, last night, under the auspices of the Sunday-school. Considering the severe cold weather there was a good attendance. Miss Etta Raybert had charge and Miss Lillian A. Force was the accompanist for the evening. It was for the benefit of the library fund.

Talk On Mission Funds.

The quarterly meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church was held in the church parlors, yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Mary Gildersleeve, associate secretary of the Women's Board of Missions, gave a talk on the administration of the board, explaining how the funds contributed by the societies are applied.

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Kidneys.

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say good bye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of the urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K1239 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich. and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

As we never carry any stocks from one season to another, we are now offering our entire showing of winter fabrics which are of PURE WOOL and EXCLUSIVE DESIGNS, at prices ranging from 15 per cent. to 25 per cent. below our normal quotations.

NOW is your chance to secure a perfect fitting, correctly styled, splendid suit made to YOUR measurements at a price equal to cost.

LEGISLATORS PROTEST AGAINST TRAIN PASSES

Trenton, Jan. 5.—There was a lively protest from a number of legislators Thursday morning, when, upon offering their free passes on the Pennsylvania Railroad, they were informed that by an order just issued the passes were not to be honored unless such person using them placed his signature at the bottom of the printed statement on the back.

This statement sets forth that the user expressly assumes all risk of accident and of personal injury and loss, regardless of cause and absolves the company from all liability.

When Senator Hand and Assemblyman-elect Hildreth, of Cape May, and Assemblyman DeUnger were asked to sign their names the refused. They informed the conductor that they would reimburse him if their action caused him loss but they declined to sign until they had had a chance to protest to the company.

On reaching Trenton they laid their case before the company's representaticve, "I'll send my pass back and pay my fare, before I'll sign any such thing as that," said Mr. Hand. "My life wouldn't be worth any more than a dog's with such a contract."

The same formula has always appeared on the back of the passes, but this is the first year the road has asked for signatures.

ENDED HER LIFE WITH NINETY-FOUR QUININE PILLS

Taking ninety-four quinine pills, aggregating 188 grains, Miss Martha Maas, nineteen years old, committed suicide Thursday night at the home of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Braun, with whom she lived in an apartment-house at 1160 Broad street Newark.

In courting death through this drug, usually used to give relief, the girl is said to be the first in this country to hit upon this means of ending life.

Mystery surrounds Miss Maas' motive for self-destruction. She had suffered from a cold and was weak from a recent operation. Despondency following her illness, is ascribed as a possible reason for her act.

Miss Maas came to this country from Germany about three years ago. She was employed as cashier in the grocery store of S. Scheuer & Sons, at 92 Park place, until about six weeks ago, when she was taken ill with appendicitis.

An operation was performed on her at that time, but she did not recover sufficient strength to enable her to resume her position in the store. She had been despondent ever since.

It was about 6 o'clock when Miss Maas took the fatal dose, and it was two hours later when Dr. Hagney was summoned to attend her. The girl was seized with convulsions, but revived when the doctor came. She told him what she had taken, but before she had a chance to explain why she again lapsed into unconsciousness. Miss Maas did not regain her senses and she died about 9:30 o'clock.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE SNUBBED BY TRADE BOARD.

An effort to secure co-operation between the Bayonne Board of Trade and the newly formed Chamber of Commerce failed Thursday night. At a meeting of the Board of Trade President H. C. Colville thought it might be a good plan to work in connection with the Chamber of Commerce for the industrial interests of Bayonne.

Dr. B. S. Heintzelmann, however, opposed the proposition to have anything to do with the Chamber of Commerce. He said it was organized to further some ulterior move and some of the promoters of the new organization were chairmen of committees in the Board of Trade. The matter was finally dropped after W. W. Miller declared that the Chamber of Commerce should seek the co-operation of the Board of Trade.

UNION TAVERN LICENSE ONCE AGAIN REFUSED.

Judge Atwater denied the license application for an inn and tavern made yesterday by John Schaible for a place at Seven Bridge and Foxall roads, Union Township. It had been laid over from last Tuesday.

Schaible is one of several persons who have tried to reopen the place, but the court has refused to grant the license each time. Howard Benedict, representing property owners, protested against the grant yesterday.

BERNARDSVILLE BANK WILL HAVE NEW HOME.

Bernardsville, Jan. 6.—The Bernardsville National Bank has broken ground for its new building opposite the railroad station. The structure will be fireproof, with buff-colored side walls and Indiana limestone pillars and trimmings.

The first floor and basement will be devoted to the bank's needs and the upper floors to offices. The new building will have a frontage on the Pine Brook road of thirty feet, with sixty feet on the Claremont road.

"Fighting Bob" Evans Was a Picturesque Navy Figure

Took Part In Spanish War and Started Battleship Fleet on World Cruise.

How He Won Title In Valparaiso Harbor In 1895—Incidents of Notable Career.

ROBLEY DUNGLISON EVANS, the "Fighting Bob" of the American navy, who died recently, was perhaps the most famous American naval officer since David Glasgow Farragut. Like Farragut, he was a southerner, and yet, like Farragut, when in the stormy days of the sixties it became necessary for every southern born man in the army or the navy to make a choice of flags he unhesitatingly resolved to remain true to the Union, in the service of which, at Fort Fisher, he was later to be maimed for life.

Admiral Evans was born in Floyd county, Va., Aug. 18, 1846, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Andrew Jackson Evans. When he was ten years old he was sent to Washington to live with an uncle so that he could get the advantage of the Washington schools. In 1859 he decided that a naval career would suit him, but there were no Annapolis vacancies from Virginia, his native state, at that time. William Hooper, a territorial delegate in congress from Utah, offered him the appointment from Utah, but before he could make the appointment he told the future admiral that he would have to go to Utah and live there long enough to establish a legal residence.

Evans never hesitated. He accepted the offer and made the long journey, much of it on horseback or in stage-coaches, to Salt Lake City, and a year later he entered Annapolis as the cadet from Utah. The situation between the north and the south was then acute. Dr. Evans, his father, had died several years before that time, and when the war between sections commenced Mrs. Evans, his mother, who was a Virginian of Virginians and loyal to the south, sent in her son's resignation as a cadet at Annapolis, but Cadet Evans could not see his duty in the light she did and refused to leave the academy, from which he was graduated in 1863 and immediately went to sea in defense of the Union.

In the engagements around Fort Fisher he was wounded while leading a charge of marines. The charge was one of the bravest in the annals of the service. Evans was shot in both legs and was left on the beach, supposedly in a dying condition. A fellow Yankee, who was hiding behind a friendly sand dune was appealed to for assistance. The Yankee had his own troubles and refused, whereupon Evans whipped out his pistol and compelled the fellow to drag him to safety. The next day, when the doctors decided that it was necessary to amputate his legs, he once more whipped out his pistol, and the result was that he lived to walk on those same legs for the rest of his life.

Fifteen years after the war ended Evans had a chance to prove his worth in the Bering sea, where he was sent to keep track of the British seal poachers, a job he handled so well that he stopped poaching and at the same time kept from offending Great Britain. It was in 1895 that he got the name "Fighting Bob." It was in the harbor of Valparaiso, Chile. There was a diplomatic tangle that had become so serious that the government had sent a number of naval vessels to those waters to show that the United States meant business.

The Chileans were peeved, and they let Evans know it, whereupon he warned them. The Chileans came down off their perch.

Once in Tunis Admiral Evans had an experience that was similar to his Chilean one. The American consul at Tunis reported some trouble, and Evans was sent to straighten matters out. He told the bey that unless he apologized and fired a salute of 100 guns in honor of the American flag he would change the boundaries of Tunis and that the result would be an inland Tunis. The bey did not have enough powder to fire the salute that was demanded and appeased "Fighting Bob" by giving a banquet in his honor that was the greatest in the history of Tunis.

When the Spanish war came Evans was assigned to command the battleship Iowa. Before the Iowa sailed for Cuban waters he casually remarked that if he had his way "Spanish would become the most popular language in hell." The Iowa made a great record in the battle of Santiago, and her skipper was among the first of the Spanish war officers to be raised to flag rank because of meritorious services in that war.

When President Roosevelt decided that it would be a good thing to send the Atlantic fleet around the world Admiral Evans was its commander in chief when it sailed out of Hampton Roads. Owing to ill health he relinquished the command when the fleet arrived at San Francisco.

CHILD LABOR.

Conference Will Talk on How to Make Schools More Attractive.

The national child labor committee has just issued the call for its eighth annual conference to be held in Louisville from Jan. 25 to 28. The program will be devoted to "Child Labor and Education," and elaborate preparations are being made to bring together experts on child labor reform and on new methods in education from all over the country.

The national child labor committee, which has helped to get better child labor laws in thirty states this year, will bring together representatives of its twenty-seven affiliated state committees and has also invited the governors of all states to send delegates to the conference.

Owen R. Lovejoy, the general secretary of the committee, said that "the employer is usually blamed for child labor. But there are other reasons, and one of the most perplexing elements in the problem is the fact that the children themselves are against us. They want to get out of school at the earliest possible moment and enter wage earning industries. The live school men are helping to change all this."

The conditions in which children work in cotton mills, glass factories, coal mines, sweatshops, oyster and shrimp packing houses, street trades and other industries will be described in addresses and by an extensive exhibit of charts and photographs.

SIGNAL FOR SUBMARINES.

Raft to Carry Wireless Antennae Invented by Two War Veterans.

John S. and Daniel W. Shea, veterans of the Spanish war, have invented a method of signaling from submarine boats which, they say, will put an end to submarine disasters. An attempt was made by the German government to get the exclusive rights to the inventions, but the Sheas say they refused it. In describing it Daniel said:

"The arrangement will enable the crew to communicate with vessels or land stations from the bed of the ocean.

"The invention proposes the mounting of a mast on a buoyant support or raft carried by the submarine boat. The mast is equipped with a yardarm to carry wireless antennae and also for the use of flags when the ship is on the surface. When the boat is submerged the raft may be released from within the boat to float on the surface, thereby bringing the vessel into communication with other points."

LOCOMOTIVE 98 FEET LONG.

Freight Service Tests For P. R. R.'s Biggest Engine.

One of the largest locomotives in the world has just been built for the Pennsylvania railroad. It will be tried out in freight service on steep grades of the mountains in western Pennsylvania, and if it proves satisfactory, this type, known as the "H-H-L," may be adopted.

The new engine is longer than the Pennsylvania's new all steel coaches. From the point of the pilot to the pulling face of the coupler on the rear of the tender, the distance is ninety-eight feet three and three-quarter inches. The weight of the engine in working order and the tender loaded is 668,900 pounds. This is 238,900 pounds heavier than the class "K-2," the heaviest passenger engine, and 272,600 pounds heavier than the class "H-8b," the heaviest freight engine which the Pennsylvania is now using. It is 644,275 pounds heavier than the John Bull, the Pennsylvania's oldest locomotive.

There are four cylinders, each having a diameter of twenty-seven inches and a stroke of twenty-eight inches. Each of the sixteen driving wheels is fifty-six inches in diameter. The steam pressure is 160 pounds, and the total heating surface 7,723.6 square feet—3,103.7 more than on the "K-2." On the John Bull the heating surface was only 213 square feet. The inside dimensions of the firebox are 12 feet ⅛ inch by 8 feet ¼ inch. The tender will hold 9,000 gallons of water and 30,000 pounds of coal.

ADVERTISING OUR SCENERY.

Government Will Send Official Abroad to Tell Europeans of America.

The "See America First" propaganda, preached so extensively throughout the country, at last has reached the federal government. Plans are in contemplation for sending abroad a government official to give illustrated lectures in the important cities of Europe on the beauties of America.

It is believed by government authorities that a considerable part of the $500,000,000 spent abroad annually by Americans can be diverted into the pockets of American railroad stockholders, hotel keepers and guides. The scheme is not being considered altogether in its commercial sense, the real purpose being to prove that this country has mountain, lake and moor scenery as beautiful and varied as any to be found in the foreign countries.

U. S. IRON CAGE MAY HOUSE ORTIE M'MANIGAL

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 6.—Witnesses who appeared yesterday before the Federal Grand Jury in the dynamiting conspiracy investigation included P. J. Moorhart, of Portland, Ind., and several persons from Peoria, Ill.

They are said to have testified to the alleged destruction of property in Peoria by dynamite, the alleged purchase of the explosive in Portland by Ortie McManigal, its storage in Muncie, Ind., and its subsequent shipment by rail to Peoria.

Considerable interest is felt here in the arrival of McManigal. He is not expected until the early part of next week.

It is said that it has not been decided just where McManigal will be kept while in Indianapolis. He may be taken to the county jail or he may be kept in the iron cage in one of the offices of the United States marshal.

The Peoria case was investigated at this time in order, it is said, that it might be completed with the testimony of McManigal when he comes. He is expected to show that it was a part of an alleged general conspiracy, of which certain officers of the iron workers organization, besides J. J. McNamara, had full knowledge.

TO DEFER MAC FARLAND TRIAL FOR MURDER.

Prosecutor Wilbur A. Mott, of Essex county, N. J., gave notice yesterday that he will make application today to Chief Justice Gummere to postpone the trial of Allison MacFarland, charged with the murder of his wife, Evelyn, at their home in Newark, October 18, last, by substituting cyanide of potassium in solution for bromide. The trial is set down to begin next Monday.

Mr. Mott refused to state his reason. It is known that he objects to certain members of the special panel drawn to provide the jury to try the case. The panel is the first selected by the present sheriff, John F. Monahan. In a trial last week, Judge Martin abruptly discharged the entire jury, of which three members were on the special MacFarland panel. Another of the panel is said to have been convicted of robbery. Mr. Mott said he is prepared for trial, so far as the preparation of the evidence is concerned.

GIVEN RECORD FINE FOR SHORT WEIGHT.

Elizabeth, Jan. 6.—Max Bloch, manager of the Jersey Beef Company, of Elizabeth, yesterday paid the heaviest fine ever imposed in this State for giving short weight. Bloch pleaded guilty to a charge brought by City Sealer Bender and was fined $100.

The scales used to defraud buyers were of the computing kind and were so arranged that they could be manipulated by turning a thumb screw. When they were seized by the sealer, it was found that they registered a pound when but fourteen ounces was placed on the pan. Bloch complained because of the heavy fine imposed on him by Judge Mohan when he was arraigned in the Police Court yesterday and Sealer Bender agreed to return the scales to him after he had adjusted them so that they would give the proper weight.

FUGITIVE NINE YEARS AFTER CHICKEN THEFT.

Henry Soden was returned to the county jail in New Brunswick Thursday by Detective Richard Pelitier after an absence of nine years as a fugitive.

Soden, in February, 1903, was sent to jail for two months for chicken stealing. About a week later, while in the courtyard at work as a trusty, he walked off. This week he returned to Spotswood and was rearrested. He will serve out his time, the charge of jail breaking being barred by the statute of limitation.

OLDEST PRINTER RETIRES AFTER 66 YEARS' LABOR.

Middletown, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Geo. N. Heath, who has worked at the printing business for sixty-six consecutive years, has now retired at the age of 83 years. He is believed to be the oldest printer, in point of continuous service, in the United States. Mr. Heath is the father of George H. Heath, of this city. His wife died a short time ago and this led him to decide to quit work at the case. He is now stopping at North Tarrytown. He has three sons, who are printers.

RAILROADS MUST PROVIDE DRINKING CUPS ON TRAINS.

The Supreme Court yesterday afternoon denied the application of the railroads for an order staying the operation of the order of the Public Utility Commissioners requiring individual drinking cups to be provided on all trains upon which drinking water is furnished.

The order became effective last Monday and a number of railroads are contesting its validity. The stay was asked for pending a determination of the litigation.

CRYING FOR HELP.

Lots of It in Plainfield But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help.

Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed;

Not one so important to health.

The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood become foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble.

It is the kidneys' cry for help. Heed it.

Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted.

Are just what overworked kidneys need.

They trengthen and invigorate the kidneys; help them to do their work.

Read the proof from a Plainfield citizen.

Thomas Haskard, 927 South Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I never hesitate to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills, for my experience with them has shown me their merits. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's Drug Store, relieved me and time and time again when I have been suffering from kidney trouble and I owe a great deal to them. You may continue to publish my former testimonial."

THIS YEAR'S AEROPLANES.

Features of New Models Exhibited In Paris Salon.

NO FREAK MACHINES SHOWN.

Green or Slate Color Used With the Object of Making the Aeroplanes Invisible In the Air—Protection Against Rifle Fire.

There are no freak machines on view at the Aviation salon this year, according to the Paris correspondent of the London Daily Mail. There is a marked preference for the fish or torpedo outline. The surface of the wings has decreased, and progress has been made in reducing everything that offers wind resistance. Wood is generally being discarded in favor of steel and aluminium.

Nearly one-half of the aeroplanes shown are green or slate colored, with the object of making them invisible in the air. In several cases the air men are protected against rifle fire.

The attempt made last year in the Paulhan biplane which was acquired by the war office, to obtain flexibility of wing, is repeated this year, though to a less extent, by the biplane shown by the German Albatrosswerke, which, in addition to a wooden chassis of unusual construction, has very flexible edges to its birdlike wings. The fact that there are only fifteen biplanes to thirty-nine monoplanes in the show indicates the predominant position for military purposes at present held by the monoplane, but there is on view more than one biplane which possesses important merits from the military point of view.

Among the latter machines, besides the Albatross, may be mentioned the Savary with its two big tractor screws and the Sloan, which follows in its lower plane the curving of a bird's wings and has big ailerons which are said to give it an exceptional sliding angle. Ailerons (movable panels attached to the edge of the wings), by the way, seem nearly extinct. Even the biplane makers who used to try them in all sorts of shapes appear to have dropped them this year and to rely on warping instead.

Several firms show the impressive engine rooms of airships, and there is one complete airship, the Astra.

SUMMONED PENN'S SONS.

But as They Have Been Dead Century or More They Didn't Appear.

Beyond the shores of the River Styx, the shades of the sons of William Penn probably chuckled derisively when, with punctilious observance of court customs, they were solemnly summoned to appear in common pleas court No. 4, in Philadelphia, in answer to an advertisement which appeared in Philadelphia papers a trifle more than a year ago. The sons of the founder of Pennsylvania certainly did not read the notice. The longest lived of them has been dead about 150 years, says the Philadelphia Press.

After this burlesque-like routine was gone through with and the ancient worthies, yclept Richard and John Penn, who held title to nearly all the land in the state, failed to appear, attorneys for Rudolph W. Birdsell, a property owner, whose land was originally held by the Penns and who under present conditions is supposed to owe the Penns ground rent, moved that the claim of the Penn brothers be made void because they had not appeared to defend their claim.

The unwinding of this voluminous roll of red tape was made necessary by an oversight when the state wiped out the Penn ground rents in 1759. In that year all the land still belonging to Proprietor Penn was bought by the state, and this act in itself wiped out all ground rents on land in Pennsylvania.

Birdsell owns property at 161 North Front street, on which ground rent was supposed to be owing to the Penn heirs. When the ground rents were wiped out no record was made of the redemption of that on Mr. Birdsell's property. The law required that a record of each redemption be made in regular legal form.

Hence John C. Hinckley attorney for Mr. Birdsell, instituted legal proceedings to repair the defect in Birdsell's title and he summoned the Penn brothers into court to prove that the rent is owing to them. An advertisement was published November a year ago summoning the Penn brothers to appear for this purpose.

Brookline Still the Richest Town.

The Brookline (Mass.) assessor's report for the year just closed shows that the town is still holding its reputation of being the richest town in the world and of being richer by far than thousands of cities. The total valuation of real estate and personal property is $112,270,600, an increase of $3,636,600 over last year's valuation.

Schwab Will Punch the Clock.

For the purpose of putting a stop to the late arrival and early departure from work of his hundreds of salaried officials, from the highest official down to the clerk, Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel works, has installed time clocks in all departments. He has assigned a "number" to himself.

NEW PARTNER IN FIRM OF J. P. MORGAN & CO.

He Is Horatio G. Lloyd of Philadelphia, Who Helped Still 1907 Panic.

Horatio G. Lloyd of Philadelphia has become a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., bringing the partnership list up to eleven. Four new men have gone into the firm in the last four years, and each is a young banker whose mettle was tried in the panic of 1907.

For two years Mr. Lloyd has been a general partner of Drexel & Co. of Philadelphia, and the Morgan and Drexel interests have remained closely allied since the dissolution of the original partnership of Drexel, Morgan & Co. Mr. Lloyd went into the Philadelphia banking house after holding the presidency of the Commercial Trust company of Philadelphia for about eight years. He was one of the leaders of the Philadelphia bankers who helped to stem the panic of 1907. He was credited with the successful handling of the situation in that city and engineered the transaction by which nine financial institutions of that city were relieved in 1908 of the unnegotiable collateral of a collapsed Canadian reorganization syndicate. The nine institutions eventually got the face value of their loans with interest.

The Morgan firm had been unchanged for many years when H. P. Davison was taken into partnership on Jan. 1, 1909. He had distinguished himself in the panic and resigned a vice presidency of the First National bank of New York to join Mr. Morgan. This was the first addition to the firm since the admission of George W. Perkins seven years before. When Mr. Perkins retired last year William H. Porter, former president of the Chemical National bank, and Thomas W. Lamont, a former vice president of the Bankers' Trust company and Mr. Davison's successor as vice president of the First National bank, were admitted.

The partners now are J. P. Morgan, Edward T. Stotesbury, Charles Steele, J. P. Morgan, Jr., Henry P. Davison, Temple Bowdoin, Arthur E. Newbold, William Pierson Hamilton, William H. Porter, Thomas W. Lamont and Horatio G. Lloyd. J. P. Morgan, Jr., and Temple Bowdoin hold Stock Exchange memberships.

Mr. Lloyd also becomes a member of Morgan, Grenfell & Co. of London and Morgan, Harjes & Co. of Paris.

TO RUN EASTERN CAMPAIGN.

Republican Congress Committee to Make Fairchild Vice Chairman.

Arrangements for the reorganization of the Republican congressional campaign committee have been practically completed. A new plan will be tried this time, and a vice chairman chosen to have charge of the eastern headquarters. Representative McKinley of Illinois, who was chairman of the committee last year, will be re-elected to that place, and Representative David Fairchild of New York will be vice chairman. Mr. Fairchild will have the direction of the congressional campaign in the eastern states, while Mr. McKinley will devote himself chiefly to the middle and western states.

The committee maintains a permanent bureau in Washington, which keeps close watch on the doings of congress, and is constantly compiling material for campaign use. Preparations are making for an unusually vigorous congressional campaign in 1912.

TO SAVE THE CHESTNUT.

Not the Ancient Joke, but the Nut Tree That Is Threatened by Blight.

The invitations sent from Harrisburg, Pa., to the various governors whose states are interested in the checking of the chestnut blight for the proposed conference to be held there in the first week of February has aroused widespread attention.

The state forestry department is planning for the presentation of some data covering the national spread of the blight, and the members of the commission, in order to prevent the spread of the blight, will urge the creation of a dead line district, which will be watched by every state interested.

Informal correspondence about the conference shows interest in every one of the states between Massachusetts and Ohio. Virginia may also come in.

WORD COSTS A LEGACY.

Omission of "Sisters" In Banker's Will Bars Niece From Sharing.

Mrs. Henrietta Goodloe of Denver, niece of former Banker James Armstrong, will not share in his $1,500,000 estate, according to a decision by Common Pleas Judge Swing of Cincinnati in a suit brought by the trustees to expedite the distribution of the estate.

Her share was lost to her because of the omission of the word "sisters" in the will. The document provided that the property was to be distributed among the heirs of the brothers, nephews and nieces.

Mrs. Goodloe is a daughter of a sister of Mr. Armstrong. Her attorneys held the omission was unintentional.

BABY TO TALK ESPERANTO.

Only the "Universal" Language to Be Taught to Buetler Child.

A girl baby born to Mrs. John Conrad Buetler of Detroit will be educated to speak only Esperanto. Mr. Buetler is one of the leaders in America of the so called universal language. He and his wife use it exclusively when conversing together.

Mr. Buetler is fifty-eight years old. Mrs. Buetler is much younger and is his second wife.

NAGEL ON THE TRUST PROBLEM.

Secretary Urges Development of Bureau of Corporations.

FOR MORE FEDERAL CONTROL

Holds Some Degree of Combination Essential—Mere Breaking Up of Trusts Into Parts by No Means Meets the Whole Question, He Says.

"The mere breaking up of large combinations into a number of separate parts by no means meets the whole trust question," says Secretary Nagel of the department of commerce and labor in his annual report.

Secretary Nagel declares that the Sherman law has been proved to be an effective statute beyond all doubt and that a degree of combination of capital is quite necessary, but he adds that the supreme court decisions in the Standard Oil and tobacco cases have demonstrated that the next step in the control of great industrial corporations will be the creation of a permanent federal agency.

How such control shall be exercised, whether by commission, federal incorporation or other means, Secretary Nagel does not definitely say. He favors, however, a development of the powers and scope of the bureau of corporations. He says:

"We must have a permanent authority which shall by steady and continuous supervision and publicity safeguard the public interests and at the same time allow full scope for necessary and proper business efficiency and development.

Bureau of Corporations.

"The recent decisions and reorganizations which followed have made it clear that another imperative step remains to be taken and that this is the establishment by appropriate legislation of a broad system of supervision and publicity for all those industrial and commercial organizations engaged in interstate and international business.

"Whether this shall be done by means of federal incorporation or by a federal office or commission exercising powers of regulation and supervision may be a secondary question. The first consideration appears to be the establishment of permanent administrative publicity, regulation and supervision. The time is peculiarly ripe for such action. Public opinion and the views of many corporation managers are as one."

Secretary Nagel recommends that the bureau of corporations be developed to take up the form of supervision he suggests. It would be but a logical expansion of the bureau's operations and policy, which, he says, have relied solely on publicity for the last eight years and have demonstrated beyond question what a system of permanent supervision can do.

In connection with the immigration service the secretary recommends any amendments to the immigration laws that tend to relieve immigrants of undue hardship without letting down the bars against undesirables. Larger discretion should be lodged with officials, he thinks, to admit unfortunate members of incoming families where it is shown that society would be protected against burden and danger. He recommends also that examinations of immigrants be made before they embark for this country and that the time for deporting confessed criminals also be extended.

Refers to Criticism.

Secretary Nagel refers in passing to recent criticism of the immigration service. He says the bureau has endeavored to obey the general mandate of the law and relieve the individual of hardship wherever the statute allows it.

A very important investigation of the cost of living is now being carried on by the bureau of labor.

"The report promises to provide a basis for intelligent discussion of this mooted question," says the secretary.

PREFERS RUINS TO SOCIETY.

Baltimore Girl More Interested In Archaeology Than In Frivolity.

Miss Lucy Buckler, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Buckler of Baltimore is planning to give up social life and accompany her parents on their expedition to Asia Minor, where Mr. Buckler will take part in the archaeological studies to be carried on at Sardis.

It is not the custom of archaeologists to have young women as companions on such trips, but Miss Buckler is so interested in the subject that she will spend considerable time there if her health permits. The young woman accompanied her father last year on a similar expedition.

Mr. Buckler and Dr. David Robinson, his companion in the researches, are both affiliated with John Hopkins university. There will be several other scientists in the party. Miss Buckler expects to enter the archaeological department of Oxford university.

Election In Ecuador Jan. 28.

Jan. 28 has been fixed as the date of the election of a successor to President Emilio Estrada, who died on Dec. 22. The polling will end on Jan. 31. The majority of the Liberals give their support to ex-President Leonidas Plaza for the presidential office.

Exquisite Cars at Moderate Cost

Self-Starting Chalmers Limousines

Chalmers closed cars offer you maximum value in comfort, durability and style. They are exquisite cars in every detail and yet their cost is moderate both in purchase price and in upkeep.

They are big cars inside and out. They have capacity for five passengers, all facing forward, yet the car is light.

Big long stroke "Thirty-Six" motor develops ample power for the hardest Town Car use. The four-speed transmission assues the utmost flexibility in crowded traffic. The dependable Chalmers self-starter and Continental demountable rims give the final touch of convenience for both passengers and driver.

Bodies are built and finished by the same expert coach builders who finsh bodies for the leading $5,000 and $6,000 cars.

Berlin Body, $3,250; Cab Side Body, $3,000.

GASOLENE. Do you know that FRANKLIN owners get 25 miles to a gallon of Gasolene?

WHY? Because the temperature at which FRANKLIN MOTORS run is the best for complete combustion.

WHY IS AUTOMOBILING SO EXPENSIVE? Because most cars are hard on tires, only ten or fifteen miles from a gallon of gasolene is obtained, and they ride so hard that repairs to Motor and Chassis are necessary all the time.

BUT. If you own a FRANKLIN motoring is cheap and therefor a pleasure.

HALLET & DAVIS PIANOS

The HALLET & DAVIS PLAN

IS THE PRICE OF THE BEST PIANO TOO HIGH?

The fundamental principle of Hallet & Davis construction is, and always has been, to make the best possible pianos—yet, the world has moved since the first Hallet & Davis was made in 1839, and our high manufacturing science today does much to keep the cost of these superior instruments down so that one of these pianos is within reach of the average music lover.

Consider the price of the semi-colonial model, known as Style B, $365. Where else can you get such value as this—the highest grade of piano?

First, we have the finest piano factory in the world—every modern labor saving device; secondly, we have been making pianos since 1839, and these years have taught the science as nothing else could; thirdly, an ample capital allows us to buy all materials in money saving quantities.

We feel our 72 year record, our endorsements by the great artists, speak for themselves. What we think music lovers want to know is, that they can afford a Hallet & Davis piano.

Come in and see the new designs of these magnificent pianos. Old pianos taken in exchange.

FOREST CONDITIONS ARE MUCH BETTER

State Board Says It Has Been Demonstrated That Woodlands Can be Revived.

CONTROLLING THE FIRE EVIL

Commission Believes Most Country Roads Should Be Bordered By Trees and Is Ready to Help That Plan Along.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 8.—The State Board of Forestry in its annual report to Governor Wilson expresses the belief that under the improvements wrought by the work of the department place in this State. Eleven years nent place in this State. Eeven years ago when the commission was created the report says that the woodlands of New Jersey were so degraded that few believed it possible for the remnant to be saved. Reckless cutting in North Jersey and disastrous fires in South Jersey it is stated, were chiefly responsible for this condition. Today the situation is far more promising. Interested owners are taking control of the woodlands in the north, while the security against fires in the south as the result of the efforts of the commission has demonstrated that the forests there are still capable of reviving.

Not only are the forest conditions improving, but forest fires have been less destructive then in former years, many penalties have been imposed during the year for violations of laws which are being strictly enforced, and much work has been accomplished in planning for shade trees in various sections of the State. Continuing, the report says, in part:

"The chief effort has been to meet the situation in a practical way, and to solve the problems presented rather than to say what should be done, or how. The fact that nearly one-half of New Jersey's area is classed as woodland gives ample ground for a strong effort to develop this resource. Justification for the commission's policy of setting fire control above all else is found in the south in the fact that fire, or the fear of fire, heretofore has made a forest a poor investment. In a word forestry is a practical proposition so long as the fire evil continues. In the effort to better this situation, we have made material progress in spite of an unfavorable season. The fires of the year were fewer in number and less destructive than has been our experience for a long time past. Compared with last year the number of fires, large and small, was thirteen per cent. less, and the total loss thirty-two per cent. less. And, what is even better, our fire organization is much better as a preventive force than it has ever been, as well as more effective for fighting fires."

It is shown by the commission that by promptly controlling 37 forest fires at a cost of $1,022, property valued at $67,000 was saved. It is pointed out that the most significant feature of the new fire service is the patrol maintained in North Jersey under a co-operative agreement with the United States forest service. The Federal Government allotted to this State $12,000 which was used to pay a patrol of 44 men who on hunting days and holidays traveled regular beats, layed out where fires might be expected, and six watchers who looked for fires from convenient observation points.

The State's forest reserves now aggregate nearly 14,000 acres and each tract is under the care of a warden who is active in protecting the property against fire by improvement fellings, by experimental plantings anu in various other ways are being made to serve as examples of what forestry will do for such properties. The commission believes that most country roads should be tree bordered, and says it stands ready to do its part in any effort to that, and may be determined upon as wise and expedient. It suggests co-operation with the State Roads Department in this work.

State Forester Alfred Gaskill, in his section of the report says that except for the chestnut blight which threatened the destruction of practically every chestnut tree in the State, the danger from tree pests is less serious than the average citizen imagines, for practically all the dangerous insects and some of the diseases are capable of control.

PAR HANDICAP SYSTEM, A TRI-CORNERED DISPUTE

Is Leighton Calkins, L. H. Graham or Walter J. Travis Entitled to Credit For the Golf Marking Scheme?

The question as to who invented the par system of golf is agitating all devotees of the game, and an interesting article on the subject appeared in the New York Times, of yesterday. Leighton Calkins, of this city, president of the Plainfield Country Club who has been prominent in golfing circles for several years, figures in the discussion. The New York Times says among other things:

"Who invented the par system of golf handicapping? Too bad that the patent office at Washington can't be appealed to for aid, but even that overworked department apears to have been spared labors along these lines. The question is up for settlement, however, and it has dragged into the discussion such prominent devotees of driver and iron as Walter J. Travis, L. H. Graham and Leighton Calkins.

"As many close followers of the game will recall Graham first began on the system for handicapping on a par basis. That was about ten years ago. In the early stages of this work Travis, who had previously suggested par as the basis had considerable correspondence with Graham on the subject.

"A few years later Calkins took up the matter where Graham left off, made some improvements and in a short while became the moving spirit in what latterly was known as the Calkins' system.

"In some way or other as time went on it seems to have differed as to what part each of this trio of thinkers played in the handicap drama." Mr. Calkins, as well as Mr. Travis and Mr. Graham then devote considerable space in support of their arguments as to who really invented the par system of golf handicapping, and it would appear that Mr. Graham was really responsible for introducing the system, which latterly was greatly improved upon by Mr. Calkins. Now that the argument is on, it will doubtless provoke no end of discussion before the matter is finally settled.

WOODBROOK FARM FILES INCORPORATION PAPERS

The Woodbrook Farm, of this city, has filed articles of incorporation in the office of County Clerk James C. Calvert. The company will, as in the past, deal in all kinds of dairy and farm products and is captilized at $150,000. The incorporators are Daniel F. Ginna, William W. Whelan and Ulysses G. Clark. Mr. Ginna when question about the above matter today said that the reason for incorporating where that the business has grown to such an extent that it is now too big for one man to handle it alone.

Mr. Ginna said that he started the business several years ago as a pastime, but it had continued to grow so rapidly that he soon found he had a large proposition to handle. Mr. Clark, who has been associated with him for the past eighteen years, is a graduate of Cornell University. Mr Whelan has also been associated with the concern for a time. There are 350 milch cows on the farm at present, and while Plainfield gets the bulk of the milk, a considerable quantity is shipped to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York.

SCHOOL SUP'T WAR ON IN WARREN TOWNSHIP

There was a stormy meeting of the cftizens of Warren township and the school board Saturday, when efforts were made to settle the dispute regarding the position of school supervisor which is now held by Edmund E. Sage. It was held by the State school authorities that Grover Kipsey was illegally deposed and should be restored, but unfortunately for him the entire board has not been with Kipsey, rather favoring Sage. Citizens generally have supported Mr. Kipsey.

After a lively discussion a committee of five comprising John E. Flammer, John F. Mundy, Minard G. Smith, Herman Myer and Israel V. Adams were appointed with a view to settling the dispute without further litigation. There is an impression that Mr. Sage will be continued and that Mr. Kipsey will receive pay for his previous service. At present Mr. Kipsey is school supervisor at Roycefield and it is said he is willing to keep that position.

The board also decided to appoint a committee with a view to having a medical inspection made of every pupil in the township. This is required by law and has been urged by County Superintendent H. C. Krebs.

ARCHIBALD HACQUER ASSUMES CITY EDITORSHIP.

Archibald Hacquer, a newspaperman widely known in this city, assumed the city editorship of the Plainfield Daily Press today. Mr. Hacquer is a newspaper worker of eleven years experience, trained in all departments of his profession.

He was for a number of years a general reporter in this city. Between connections with local papers he served in an editorial position on the Newark Evening Star, in the days when it was known as The Advertiser. Three years ago he went to the Philadelphia Times as a special writer, and resigns as a special writer on the Philadelphia Bulletin to take the city editorship of the Plainfield Daily Press.

EVENING SCHOOL FILLS A NEED OF FOREIGNERS.

The evening school for foreigners opened last week seems to be meeting a decided want. The school already includes four nationalities, Danish, Polish, Italian, Greek. It meets at 7:30 o'clock, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, in the Stillman School, at the corner of Arlington avenue and Fifth street.

Superintendent Maxson says there is room for all who will come, women as well as men. There are already five girls in the class.

Salvation Army Meetings.

The special meetings which began at the Salvation Army hall Saturday night, will be continued every night this week. Captain Robert Goodchild and Envoy Evans conducted yesterday's services. A short open-air service was held at Cottage place in the afternoon, after which an elderly man in the neighborhood was visited and after a service of song and prayer, he professed conversion. At the evening service there was another conversion. Captain Goodchild will render special selections tonight and tomorrow night there will be a welcome to Ensign Ida Seiler and Mrs. Goodchild, completing the quartet.

COUPLE MARRIED FIFTY-FIVE YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. John Ross Receive Hearty Congratulations on Wedding Anniversary.

MARTINE SENDS GREETINGS

Cards and Flowers From Friends and Relatives—They Were Born Near South Plainfield and Are Well Known In This Vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ross, of East Sixth street, celebrated the fifty-fifth anniversary of their wedding yesterday. Throughout the day neighbors called to offer their congratulations and letters, cards and flowers were received in large numbers from relatives and friends at distant points. The first congratulatory letter was received from United States Senator James E. Martine. Owing to their advanced years, Mr. and Mrs. Ross gave up housekeeping several years ago and since then have been making their home with their neice, Mrs. George H. Davey on East Sixth street.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Ross were born in the vicinity of South Plainfield, the latter being Miss Jane M. Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Runyon Walker, one of the oldest families in that section. For many years Mr. Ross was a successful farmer. The couple were married at Souht Plainfield and removed to this city in 1880. Since that time Mr. Ross has lived in retirement. Since coming here he has been an active member of what was known as the Asbestos Club, which meets every day in the Babcock building. They are both members of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

By the union there were four children, Peter Ross, who died in infancy and Louis R. Ross who died two years ago. There are two children living, Mrs. C. A. Baynon, of New York, and Mrs. rFank Runyon, of Stelton.

PASTOR PRAISES PRESS FROM PARK AVE. PULPIT

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, preaching last night on the text, "Is Thine Heart Right?" diagnosed local conditions and Plainfield as a city of culture industry, good business men and a clean press. Incidently he said: "We hail with delight and satisfaction the Daily Press under its new management. It is edited by men who think and are therefore aggressive along all lines for the city's welfare."

Continuing on his text the clergyman said he would like to know of all the problems his flock have to face daily, financial, business, domestic, physical and mental, and in the later regard would like to hear of their attitude on the saloon question and the saloonkeeper. He then proceeded to denounce this traffic and those who are in it saying that it is the American abomination.

As to his people's habits he said the question he wanted answered was "Is thine heart right?" In order to be right it must be a repenting, forgiving, sympathetic heart. "Something we can all give is a handshake, a look, a word." None are too poor to give these, he said, and asked why it was we appreciated the Christmas presents received. It was not on account of the price, but on account of the love which prompted the gift, and love is but another name for sympathy.

FREEHOLDERS WANT VERDICT SET ASIDE.

The Union County Board of Freeholders, through Counsellor S. S. Swackhamer, has petitioned Judge Benjamin A. Vail to set aside the verdict of $600 given James Park, a Cranford contractor, who sued to recover for work done on a road between Roselle and Elizabeth.

Affidavits were presented from jurors in the case that they took exception to the judge's charge and therefor the verdict was compromised. Judge Vail postponed the case to January 20, when further argument will be heard.

M. F. ELLIS OFFERS $1,000 REWARD FOR ASSAILANT

Lumberman Banker Who Was Shot at Basking Ridge Home Gives Police Incentive to Press Search.

For the discovery of the unidentified person who shot him through the window of his home as he sat at dinner, Monroe F. Ellis, of Basking Ridge, widely known in this city, has offered a reward of $1,000. For many days after he was shot last November, Mr. Ellis hovered between life and death, but has now almost entirely recovered.

The announcement of the offered reward signed by Mr. Ellis reads as follows:

$1,000.00 REWARD. $1,000.00

"I will pay one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who shot me at my residence at Basking Ridge, N. J., on the evening of November 20, 1911. This reward will be paid upon the certificate of the Prosecutor of the Pleas of Somerset county."

When the attempt was made to kill Mr. Ellis his assailant stood on a knoll in the yard not far from the house and discharged a shotgun loaded with heavy slugs through the wnidow. Four of them hit Mr. Ellis and he fell off his chair to the floor. His wife and children had a narrow escape, a piece of the broken window glass cutting his young son.

Mr. Ellis is a wealthy lumberman and bank director. There were rumors that he had been assaulted by some enemy he might have had before going to live a few years ago in Basking Ridge, but this and similar rumors weres all denied, the identity of the assailant still remaining unknown.

SOME INNOVATIONS AT THE PARK AVE. BAPTIST.

The Board of Deacons of the Park Avenue Baptist church yesterday morning put into effect several changes that will add to their active work in the church's affairs in general. The most marked of these changes is that the young men who act as ushers will in the future be relieved from gathering the collection. Another is that on the first Sunday of each month the deacons will report to the congregation decisions made on all questions brought before them for consideration. In assuming the responsibility of passing the plates the deacons feel, they say, that they will become more closely identified with the church and will get better acquainted with the members of the congregation and do not wish their act to be taken as a reflection on any of those who have been performing the service.

It is understood that there has been some unpleasantness in connection with the change being adopted and specific mention was made of several instances as a reason for the new plan. Deacon Hadley, however, denied this and said the only reasons were as stated—to bring the board members in closer touch with the church members.

PLAINFIELDERS WILL SEE "SPRING MAID" TONIGHT

Judging from the unusual amount of interest being displayed by local music lovers, the engagement of the Viennese operatic success, "The Spring Maid," at the Plainfield theatre tonight, will be the event of the musical season. The management reports one of the largest advance sales they have ever had this year and strongly advises those who intend purchasing tickets, to do so as soon as possible.

In sending "The Spring Maid" to Plainfield, Messrs. Louis Werba and Mark Luescher give their personal guarantee that it will be the same production that ran for over 300 nights at the Liberty theatre, New York city, and will be the same magnificent chorus and ballet of 50 trained singers and dancers. There will also be an orchestra of twenty musicians, many of them from the forces of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. Miss Gene Luheska will sing the role of Bozena, while Charles McNaughton, a comedian, who has scored tremendously both in America and England, will handle the comedy role of Roland, the tragedian.

MISS ELIZABETH LANE SUCCUMBS TO APOPLEXY

Miss Elizabeth Lane died suddenly yesterday morning in a bungalow on the valley road near Watchung, where with her sister she had been making her home for several months or since their removal from Pearl street and Watchung avenue, North Plainfield, where they resided a number of years. Death was caused by apoplexy. The remains were sent to the home of her sister, Mrs. Davies, in Somerville, where the funeral will be held on Wednesday morning. Burial will be made in the family plot in the Readington cemetery.

Mrs. Lane and her sister were retired school teachers. She was in her sixty-sixth year and after giving up her profession resided in the borough. The years of her activity in the educational field were all spent in Hunterdon county and among the former residents of Whitehouse, Readington, Lebanon and other places now living here Miss Lane was well known, many of them having been her pupils at different times.

UTTERS INCORPORATE THE WESTERLY "SUN."

Articles of incorporation for The Utter Company, under which name the printing and publishing business at Westerly, R. I., popularly known as The Sun office, will hereafter be conducted, have been filed with the Rhode Island Secretary of State. The incorporators are George H. Utter, George Benjamin Utter and Henry E. Utter. The officers of the company the: George H. Utter, president, and George Benjamin Utter, secretary and treasurer.

The name of Utter has been identified with this business since 1855, when J. Herbert Utter started the Narragansett Weekly. In 1858 he was joined by his brother, former Governor George H. Utter, a native of this city, and well-known among the older residents. Later the business passed into the hands of the latter, under whose name it was conducted until the present time.

Mayor's Office Sans Frills.

Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield, and Borough Clerk Deliver were busily engaged this morning in getting in shape the room over the police station which is to be their office. The furnishings are to be simple. Aside from the desks, necessary chairs and cabinets for filing maps and papers, the room is to contain but one other article—a stove. There will be no rugs on the floor and no paintings on the wall, but all citizens are assured by mayor and clerk of an audience when they have anything of importance to discuss.

FOR STATE WATER CONSERVATION PLAN

Commission Advocates Development of Supply From Wanaque River in Report.

END OF WATER DIVERSION

Defiance of Preventive Statutes Abandoned, Commission Thinks—It Wants Jurisdiction Over Dams

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 8.—Obstacles which for a time effectually barred the way to practical State conservation of water are being gradually surmounted, declares the State Water-Supply Commission in its annual report to Governor Wilson. The Commission presents with its report a plan for a joint municipal water supply under its ownership, which affords every assurance of complete success. This plan involves the development of a water supply from Wanaque River.

The commission says that this plan appeals with a special force to those communities lying within the metropolitan district in the northern part of the State, whose rapid growth in population has brought them face to face with the urgent necessity for new or augmented water supplies. Ten of these municipalities during the year joined in defraying the cost of the preliminary investigation on the Wanaque water shed. The commission says that since the receipt of the engineer's report showing the entire feasibility of impounding the water of the Wanaque in a great State reservoir for the benefit of those municipalities interested in the project, the majority of those included in the perliminary investigation have advised the commission of their duties to enter into the contract with it. The report shows that the commission has reached the decision that the Wanaque River offers the greatest advantages as a source of supply for the cities and townships which have made joint application to be included in the plan. Continuing, the commission says:

"The campaign for education which the commission has pursued, touching chiefly upon the broad question of awter conservation in northern New Jersey where the needs of many of the communities are most pressing, has been largely responsible for winning public sentiment over to the State's plan as recommended."

The past year, the commission reports, has witnessed the apparent abandonment of the effort to divert water out of the State in defiance of the statutes drawn for the express purpose of preserving for the uses of the people of New Jersey all the potable water, both surface and subsurface, within the State.

The commission recommends that the Legislature makes the necessary appropriation for a complete appraisal of the properties of the East Jersey Water Company, including the plant at Little Falls and its distributing system to the end that there shall be no delay in pushing the conservation project to an early consummation. One of the attractive features of the suggested acquisition of the East Jersey's plant, the commission says, is found in the fact that with the State in possession of this plant it would come into an immediate and substantial revenue from the earnings of an operatin gconcern.

The commission renews its suggestion that supervision over the water powers of the State be vested in it; also, it recommends the extension of its jurisdiction over the dams within the State. The commission says it feels that State oversight over the dams would go far toward affording immunity from such appaling disasters from alleged faulty structures as have occurred in various parts of the United States during the past year.

The report gives the following list of municipalities and companies which are liable for water diverted in excess of the limit fixed by law, the figures in each case denoting excess consumption in millions of gallons: Acquackanonk Water Co., 58.40; City of Burlington, 9.76; East Jersey Water Co., 587.6; Jersey City Water Supply Co., 1825; Hopatcong Water Co., 33.37; Newark, 1152.79, exempt; New Brunswick, 160.67; Rahway, 209.18; Somerville Water Co., 70.65; Tintern Manor Water Co., 236.30; Trenton, 894.54; Woodbury, 38.38; Atlantic City, 198.19; Elizabeth Town Water Co., 1379.12; Middlesex Water Co., 1251.82; East Jersey Coast Water Co., 11.01; Perth Amboy, 162.50; United Water Supply Co., 11.12.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society a dime social will be held at Hope chapel Friday night.

Our Sixth Annual January Clearance Sale

BEGINS TOMORROW WITH GREATER VALUES THAN EVER OFFERED BEFORE. The reason we say GREATER is because the cotton market is at its lowest and because OUR STOCKS in all DEPARTMENTS are too LARGE and MUST be REDUCED BEFORE we INVENTORY the last of this month. THEREFORE, REDUCTIONS WILL BE MADE REGARDLESS OF COST. ALL FALL AND WINTER GOODS MUST BE SOLD THIS MONTH as we never carry any goods over from one season to another. This ad is a large one and will take some time to read it carefully. But it will pay you to read every item. If we don't increase our business this month 50 per cent. it will be because there is a scarcity of money, not because our prices are not low enough. ALL EYES ON OUR OPTICAL DEPT.

Good eye sight is a most valuable gift. Many diseases and nervous breakdowns are caused by defective and neglected eyesight. Importance and effect of glasses properly fitted and adjusted cannot be too highly estimated. Bring your defective vision to our examining room and have them scientifically examined by a graduate optometrist with the most modern appliances

FREE OF CHARGE

When the Hudson Optical Co. offered up this surplus stock of 1,000 Spectacle and Eyeglass frames at a ridiculously low price we immediately saw a way of including our Optical Department in our Sixth Annual January Sale and bought the entire lot with a stock of lenses which would be hard to duplicate.

For the next ten days we will have an extra registered and graduate Optometrist to examine your eyes FREE OF CHARGE and furnish you a pair of solid Gold Shell Spectacles or Eyeglasses, fitted with the now famous Brazilian Crystal lenses, guaranted for ten years.

Please note that the frames to these glasses are GOLD FILLED—not merely gold plated—and guaranteed to wear ten years. Five styles of frames, rimmed or rimless. A special low price on specially ground or bifocal lenses during this sale.

A careful examination of your eyes will be made and the glasses perfectly adjusted by a practical, graduated optometrist or refractionist as your case may require. You may be sure that the glasses will be correct in every way even though they were bought at the ridiculously low price of $1.00, including the examination.

Our Optical Department is Open from 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

IMPORTANT.

These frames are absolutely gold filled. They occupy the same space in the optical world as Rogers Bros. 1847 do in the silverware line or Elgin or Waltham do in the watch business and are guaranteed by the manufacturer to wear 10 years. All standard styles of frames.

MILLIONAIRE TELLS HOW TO GET RICH.

Frederick Weyerhauser, the St. Paul multi-millionaire, in an interview Saturday gave the following rules on how to get rich:

"Make up your mind to work at something really worthy of work and work hard.

"The surest way to make money is to save money and to use what you have.

"Don't be afraid of long hours or constant attention to your work.

"Work can be made a joy, an economy, a pleasure, if you combine an object worth while with the determined ambition to win.

"Work, where the interest of the man who works is centred, becomes a source of real gratification, of honest pleasure and accomplishment.

"Any young man can get rich, can succeed in business if he saves, if he has a definite and honest purpose and is so filled with the purpose that work ceases to be a hardship and becomes a privilege.

"Look at things with optimism in your heart.

"Go in some small business and work to make it into a big one."

MORRISTOWN EX-FIRE CHIEF IN RANKS AT BLAZE.

Fire swept the Salny Building in Morristown, Friday, and did $75,000 damage. The cold made it hard for the firemen, many of whom resembled walking icicles.

There was no friction between Chief Engineer Wilbur F. Day, Jr., Assistants Fred J. Sharrett and John H. Madigan and former Chief Frederick A. Trowbridge and his assistants, who contend that they are still in office by the provisions of the Exempt Firemen's Tenure of Office act.

Chief Day had declared himself in command, and Trowbridge went to work as a member of the hook and ladder company. When First Assistant Chief Sharrett shouted, "Truck 1, break open this cellarway." Chief Trowbridge was the first man on the job with an axe.

Prefers Jail to Marriage.

Rather than marry the young woman who had accused him, George Higham, a Trenton business man, preferred to submit to a sentence of six months in the county jail and a fine of $50. The punishment was imposed Saturday by Justice Gnichtel. Highham's accuser is Miss Harriet Harbot, who lives near Whitehouse. The prisoner was a nephew of the late Emma Riley, who led the life of a hermit, although worth close to $100,000. When she died he was one of the chief beneficiaries under the will.

Auto Club Pays Big Reward.

The Automobile Club of America has paid to Reuter Cohen, Jr., of Philadelphia, $1,000 as a reward for procuring information that led to the arrest of the highwayman who held up Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dumas, of Somerville, in their automobile last summer. The highwayman was William Diamond, who is serving fifteen years in State prison for the crime. Dumas was shot twice when he refused to give up his money and watch. Mrs. Dumas' rings were also taken.

The regular communion service will be held at Hope chapel next Sunday night.

MISSIONARY TO CHINA RETURNS TO HIS HOME.

Rev. Gilbert Lovell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leander N. Lovell, of Crescent avenue, who has been a missionary in China for several years, is now en route for home, with his wife and two children, coming across the continent from San Francisco. They arrived in San Francisco from China on December 22, remaining there to visit Mrs. Lovell's relatives for a few days.

Mr. Lovell has been in China for seven years, where according to reports, he has been doing a great missionary work among the natives. He is supported in his work by the Crescent Avenue church, of which he is one of the ministers, and he is under the general supervision of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. This will be Mr. Gilbert's first visit home since he went to China.

Asbury Park's Beach Front Pays.

The beach front returned a net profit last year of $12,033, according to the annual report of the Asbury Park Commission. The amount is the excess income over annual interest insurance, repairs and all maintenance charges. The rental receipts totaled $59,556.

—The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce, elected last week, will meet tonight to discuss plans for the coming year.

STATE BOARD MOVES TO CUT OUT NON-ESSENTIALS

The State Board of Education took the first practical step Saturday toward compelling closer attention in the high schools to the teaching of fundamentals. A report by a subcommittee, consisting of the Messrs. Murray and Rice, was adopted, and this report, after a full analysis of the situation, suggests that the board request the State Board of Examiners to prepare an entrance examination for pupils desiring to attend the State Normal Schools.

The report of the Messrs. Murray and Rice is an elaboration of a former report by them in which it was charged that many of the pupils at the Montclair and Trenton Normal Schools, who are chiefly high school graduates, are lacking in elementary training, making it necessary at the Normal Schools to teach the pupils much they should know before going there.

The report quotes Dr. Chapin, of the Montclair School, and Dr. Green, of the Trenton School, quite freely, and shows that these educators recognize the existence of the conditions complained of. It asserts that under present methods our elementary school system is framed for the 5 per cent. who enter high schools, and not for the 95 per cent. who never get beyond the eighth grade.

SOCIALISTS MAY HOLD CONVENTION AT ELIZABETH

Councilman Harry F. Kopp and Fred W. Rahm, of Elizabeth, are candidates for national committeemen of the Socialist party, for which votes are being taken at branch meetings of the party all over the State this month. The place for holding the State convention is being determined in the some way. Elizabeth, Atlantic City, Jersey City, Camden, Paterson and Rockaway are being voted on.

Secretary Wilson B. Killingbeck, of Orange, and William G. Doughty, of Camden, are aspirants for corresponding secretary. Other nominees are: For recording secretary, Milo C. Jones, of Newark; financial secretary, Charles F. Dingman, of Jersey City; Charles Kaser, of North Haledon; Timothy O'Leary, of Newark; treasurer, Edward L. Klump, of Newark; William Morton, of Kearny.

Besides Kopp and Rahm, these are candidates for the two positions of national committeemen: A. V. Alexander, of Paterson; Henry Carless, of Newark; Mathey J. Flynn, of Camden; Frederick Gillair, of Jersey City; Leo M. Harkins, of Camden; G. W. Hopping, of Hackensack; Ferdinand Kadel, of Paterson; Alfred Koehn, of Jersey City; Frederic Krafft, of Ridgefield; George H. Strobell, of Newark, and Robert J. Victor, of Arlington.

Ladies' Aid Society Election.

At the annual meeting and election of officers of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church last week, Mrs. Theodore VanFleet was chosen president. The other officers elected were vice-president, Mrs. Frederick Wenzell; secretary, Mrs. John Praed, and treasurer, Mrs. J. Stephen Higham.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Junior Epworth League of the First M. E. church will meet Friday afternoon in Vincent chapel.

The official board of the First M. E. church will meet Wednesday night after the prayer meeting.

The Junior Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church will meet Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Miss Katherine Bushnell, contralto soloist, will continue as a member of the First Baptist church choir.

The quarterly meeting of the Board of Trustees of the First Baptit church will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

Miss Jessie Billett and Miss Ethel Prior were the leaders of the Epworth League meeting at Vincent chapel of the First M. E. church last night.

Owing to the union prayer services this week the bi-monthly meeting of the Sunday school board of the First M. E. church will not be held tomorrow night.

Rev. James A. Cubberly, Early B. Pierson, Albert L. Kennelly and Howard M. Case received the right-hand-of-fellowship at the communion service at the First Baptist church, yesterday morning.

Mrs. A. S. Burnell, of New York, will speak to the women of the Crescent Avenue church tomorrow afternoon, telling the story of Chundra Lela, the Hindu Priestess.

The annual meeting of the Y. W. C. A. will be held tonight at 8 o'clock. There will be election of officers, reports, etc. and Miss Sarah Wills, city secretary of the Northeast territory, will be the speaker of the evening.

The Laidies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church will not meet this week, but on Tuesday afternoon, January 16, at 4 o'clock the women will meet and the men are invited to be present at 6:30 o'clock. After a supper the men will provide an entertainment.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will meet Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. A. L. Kennelly, 826 West Seventh street. Mrs. Robin Brown will be the leader. Prior to that hour the young women will have a sewing meeting.

Rev. Dr. W. W. Pratt, of this city, gave an interesting talk at the Temple Baptist church, Friday night, on the topic, "Conversational Evangelism," in which he emphasized the advantage of the personal touch over the work of the professional evangelist. The meeting was largely attended, closing the series of special services for the week.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Madame Alla Nazimova's recent New York appearance in "The Marionettes" fell upon a date exactly seven years subsequent to the day Charles Frohman first brought this actress to America as one of a small group of Russian players whom he found in the obscurity of London. Between then and now Madame Nazimova has made herself as familiar with English as any native; she has appeared under various managements, always with success. Of all living actressses Madame Nazimova enjoyes the distinction of having acted more dramas and comedies of the new school of playwriting than any of her contemporaries. And yet this expert in all departments of dramatic efficiency is not yet thirty-three years of age. Operated by the force of literally deafening applause, the curtain of the Lyceum Theatre stage rises and falls nearly one hundred times during each performance of "The Marionettes."

Jan. 8 In American History.

1815—Battle of New Orleans. Jackson's extraordinary victory was gained with only a trifling loss. Over 2,600 Britons fell. Jackson's loss was 8 killed and 13 wounded. His triumph was enhanced by the fact that it was wholly unexpected and seemingly impossible and against enormous odds.

1821—James Longstreet, distinguished soldier born in Edgerfield district, South Carolina; died Jan. 2, 1904.

1910—General Newton Martin Curtis, "hero of Fort Fisher," died in New York city; born 1836.

Plainfield, N. J., January 8, 1912.

THE LEGISLATURE OF 1912.

Tomorrow the Legislature of 1912 will organize. It has selected good officers. It has a splendid opportunity for public service. If it shall be true to the people and fulfill in sincerity and good faith its promises made in the platform adopted by the convention held at Trenton last September, under the act of 1911, it will win public approval and assure Republican success this fall; and a Republican United States Senator next winter. It is perfectly safe to assume that Governor Wilson's message, which will go to the Legislature tomorrow, will be progressive and will stand-pat on all the legislation of last year. And it should. That legislation was adopted by a Republican Senate and a Democratic Assembly—hence was non-partisan. Most of it was wise, what was not is easily amended; but any attempt at a general repeal or unjust modification of it will meet with public condemnation.

The people are in no mood for trifling on any question of popular rights. The Geran election law has demonstrated its worth and that it is easy of operation and that under it the people can express individual choice. The objections urged against it are all trivial. No act must be done to destroy its vital principle, of every man marking every candidate for whom he votes. That affords and requires discrimination and eliminates partisanship and makes the candidate count for much. Neither party will nominate bad men under such a ballot system. So with the other reform legislation of last session. Let it stand. Most of it is what the Republican party declared for in 1907 and what the Republican Governor advocated from 1908 to 1911, but which the Legislature of those years failed to enact as promised. The Republican Senate of 1911 simply responded to the promises of the Republican convention of 1907.

A clean Legislature in 1912 with Legislation extending and strengthening that of 1911 and adding an excellent jury reform statute and a safe and sane grade crossing act, will make the Republican party invincible in the election this fall. It is easy to keep in the road. Will the Legislature have the wisdom to do it? Let us hope so. Any other course is political suicide.

AN OFFICIAL'S SALARY.

Some adverse criticism has been heard in the borough regarding the salary provision of the proposed street commissioner ordinance, but as in many such cases it is all based on a misapprehension. The misguided objectors appear to believe that the salary for the office is fixed at $80 per month and they hold that it would be too much, inasmuch as that amount is all the police chief receives. It is a fact, however, that the suggested ordinance provides for salary of not more than the figure stated, which does not prevent the borough fathers from agreeing upon half the amount if they so desire.

But, anyhow, why shouldn't a street commissioner, in these times of high prices, be paid $80 a month? If he is at all qualified for his job, and if his services are worth anything to the municipality, they certainly are worth $80 a month. What the police chief is paid is not germane to the question, but we certainly do consider that his salary is too niggardly.

Governor Wilson's letter to Adrian H. Joline written in 1907, about which there has been so much comment, because of the New Jersey executive's present tendency to favor many of William Jennings Bryan's radical ideas, has been made public. In it the Jerseyman said: "Would that we could do something at once dignified and effective, to knock Mr. Bryan once and for all into a cocked hat!" Judging from the Governor's present attitude it is evident that he has had a change of heart toward the Bryan propoganda. But it must be remembered that all of us are entitled to change our minds.

There is a demand for a hundred new houses in Plainfield, which will rent at from four to six hundred dollars per year. With our fine train service and our delightful attractions as a place of residence, it would seem as if any one would prefer this place to uptown New York. An investment of four thousand dollars in a well appointed modern house will net any one making it an assured income of from twelve to fifteen per cent. per annum, and there is no investment more secure than Plainfield property.

Communications on all subjects of interest in the city and borough are invited by the Plainfield Daily Press. Your views on any matter will be given publication, the only condition being that you permit us to attach your name to whatever opinion you express. Anonymous communications, we consider, are not only valueless, but reflect discredit on any reputable paper. Come out and say what you think and stand by it. In other words, have the courage of your convictions.

The Republicans of New Jersey are expecting much of Senators Pierce, Smalley and Colgate. These men are believed to be in touch with progressive ideals. They have a great opportunity. Senator Pierce especially has a fine chance to make the people of Union county proud of their representative. He is conceded an able man and he should lead the Senate.

The new Chinese government brings the total list of Republics up to twenty-five, the oldest being that of the Star Spangled Banner. The total represents one for every six years since 1776. It is safe to predict that within the next half century most of the governments of the world will be "of the people, for the people and by the people."

It seems difficult to get Colonel Roosevelt to talk these days and the newspapers are complaining. They seem never to be satisfied, they used to object because he talked too much.

It appears that James Smith, Jr., has been overlooked in the guest list for the Jackson dinner in Washington. But they won't serve "crow" anyhow.

Deer hunting as a sport is liable to lose some of its popularity in Maine. A man has been indicted up there for shooting his guide.

Coal men and plumbers do not seem to mind the cold spell, anyway. No matter what the elements bring forth someone is happy.

Until that Joline letter came to light, Wilson's friends considered him a huge success as an author.

And some weather sharps were predicting a mild winter!

THE FORUM.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

In regard to the $1,000 the liberal dentists of Plainfield wish appropriated for a free clinic, why don't they save the taxpayers that amount by donating about an hour a day at their offices for free treatment of the poor. The taxes are going up every year and the poor pay their part.

Yours respectfully,
SAMUEL SLOAN.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD JOYFUL OVER TOWNSHIP PLUM.

William Coulter, of South Plainfield, has been appointed overseer-of-the-poor for Piscataway township by the Township Committee, and South Plainfield is rejoicing. For more than a generation the office had been held by New Market residents, and South Plainfield's congratulations to the new overseer, who is popular with his fellow villagers, carries a loud note of local pride.

Mr. Coulter and South Plainfield got the appointment because the Democratic party took over control of the township government on January 1 for the first time in forty-two years. The Republicans held the reins all that time.

Mr. Coulter is a former deputy keeper of the State prison at Trenton, an ex-Secret Service man. He was one of the Government operatives at the World's Fair in Chicago.

Tore Bluecoat's Buttons Off.

When Patrolman McCarthy arrested Joseph Donnelly for drunkenness on West Front street Saturday night, Donnelly objected to the proceeding. He was ripping the buttons off McCarthy's coat when Patrolman Nolan swung into action beside McCarthy. Nolan laid the button-ripper on the sidewalk and put handcuffs on him. City Judge DeMeza told Donnelly today that sentence would be suspended if he brought a signed pledge into court tomorrow.

Fined for Noiseness.

William Banks, colored, was fined $5 in the city court today by Judge DeMeza for raising a disturbance in a lunch cart on Second street Saturday night.

Making Her Trunk Safe.

"No safety deposit vault red tape for me!" declared the woman who cannot help being the wife of a very rich man. "I keep my jewels in a shabby old trunk in my own room. There isn't even a lock on it. I had to force it off one time when I'd mislaid the key."

"Evidently you don't encourage enterprise in burglars," observed one of her hearers. "All a man would have to do would be to raise the lid. You might at least make him a little trouble."

"He'd have trouble enough," said the woman, mysteriously. "Our coachman's brother is an old sailor—a perfect artist in knots—and he showed me how to bind up the trunk in the most complicated way, and no burglar could possibly untie it. He wouldn't know the combination.'

The only man in the group grinned.

"Of course," he murmured reflectively, "no mere second story man would ever dream of cutting those knots."—Youth's Companion.

Saved.

A lazy negro who let his wife take in washing without demur had a dream one night and a policy dream at that. He borrowed money from her to play the combination, and before he left home he stated his conviction.

"Mandy," he said, "Ah's goin' uptown to play dis combine, what am sho' to come out. When you see me comin' home in a hack you break up yo' wash tubs."

The "combine" didn't come out, and Sam, in great dejection, acquired a lot of gin. Then he was messed up a bit by a dray, and some other negroes hired a hack to take him home. Sam was nearly out and was breathing heavily when the hack turned a familiar corner, and his wife was standing in the door. With his last ounce of energy he stuck his head out of the window and yelled:

"Mandy, spare dem tubs!"—Chicago Post.

Looming Mirages.

In what are called "looming mirages" distant objects show an apparent extravagant increase in height without alteration of breadth. Distant pinnacles of ice are thus magnified into immense towers or tall, jagged mountains, and a ship thus reflected from far out at sea may appear to be twelve or fifteen times as tall as it is long. Rocks and trees are also shown in abnormal shapes and positions, while houses, animal and human beings appear in like exaggerated shapes. Before the sandy plains of our southwestern states and territories were converted into verdant fields by the ingenuity and tireless energy of man mirages were very common in those regions, the Indians regarding the phenomenon as being the work of evil spirits.

The Horse's Pedometers.

The whorls of hair on the coats of horses and other animals are natural pedometers, inasmuch as they register the locomotive activities of the animals on whose bodies they are found. The best examples and the greatest number of these hairy whorls and crests are found on the domestic horse. A notable instance is the graceful feathering that extends along the hollow of the flank, dividing the trunk of the animal from the hind quarters. There are also crests and whorls on the horse's chest and other parts of its body. A study of the action of the underlying muscles explains the origin of these peculiarities in the lay of the hair and furnishes the justification for calling them pedometers, although the analogy is, of course, merely superficial.—St. Louis Republic.

Pittsburgh In 1784.

When General Forbes captured Fort Duquesne in 1758 he renamed it Pittsburgh in honor of the great English inspirer of victory. Later it dropped the "h" and became Pittsburg, only finally to tack the "h" on officially and revert to the original spelling. In 1784 Arthur Lee described the place in language which seems strange to those who know "the Smoky City" of today: "Pittsburgh is inhabited almost entirely by Scots and Irish, who live in paltry log houses. There are in the town four attorneys, two doctors and not a priest of any persuasion, nor church or chapel, so that they are likely to be damned without the benefit of clergy. The place, I believe, will never be very considerable."

Cheaping.

In parts of Switzerland the baker's wife carries round the bread in a sort of hamper, and she has not a fixed, immutable charge, but chaffers for a price with the customers. The old English word for this process was "cheaping," which in many places in England has been corrupted into chipping. Chipping Norton, for instance, is really Cheaping Norton, or the place where goods were cheapened—that is, sold by chaffer.

Wise Exceptions.

"You really believe that a man should always be truthful to his wife?"

"Certainly I do, always."

"And do you always tell your wife the truth about her cooking?"

"Oh, well—er—there are exceptions, you know."—Houston Post.

A Fluent Talker.

Whangs—Is your wife a good conversationalist? Bangs—She would be but for one thing—she talks so fluently that she interrupts herself.

Cruel.

"Doesn't it annoy you to hear a woman talking slang?"

"Why mention slang especially?"—Exchange.

The officers-elect of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps, the auxiliary, will be installed at Reform Hall, tomorrow night.

The installation of officers in Perseverance lodge, No. 74, K. of P., announced to have been held Friday night was postponed until next Friday night owing to the inability of District Deputy W. J. Edgar, of Neshanic Station, to be present and officiate.

Frozen Pipe; $200 Fire.

Attempts to thaw out a frozen water pipe at the home of Isaac P. Sachar, 506 West Fifth street, led to a $200 fire at noon yesterday. The blaze, which damaged an upper room was extinguished by the fire department, summoned on a call from box 34, in fifteen minutes. Plumbers, who used a torch on the frigid pipes, are blamed for the fire.

Real Sacrifice Sale.

The entire stock of Levy Bros. is being sold at prices that represent a big sacrifice. The sale started Saturday morning and from the time the doors opened until nearly midnight the store was a scene of unabated activity. The big forec of extra salespeople found is hard to keep up with business.

Ice Harvest Near.

A test of the thickness of the ice produced by the recent cold snap was made yesterday by Councilman Stahl, of the borough; and according to his measure registered five and a half inches. A day or so longer of the same temperature, he said, will mean a start on harvesting the crop.

Cragin Wins Championship.

William B. Cragin, Jr., formerly of this city, won the law tennis championship of the Seventh Regiment for the third time on Saturday. In the final round he defeated George G. Moore, Jr., a former member of the Columbia University team, by a score of 6-1, 6-2, 6-1.

The next meeting of the Men's Club of Hope chapel will be held in the chapel, Tuesday night, January 16. The speaker of the evening will be Rev. William Torrence Stichell, of Rahway.

PERSONAL.

Herman Klinsman, of Steiner place, who has been very ill with stomach trouble, is slowly convalescing.

Mrs. Alfred K. Willett, of Craig place, continues to improve following an operation performed at the hospital recently.

Miss Elizabeth Ecktein has returned to her home in Jersey City, after spending the week with Mrs. Walter Loomis, of John street.

Dr. George W. Endicott, of Park avenue and East Seventh street, left Saturday for Texas to be gone a month. He travelled in a special car with a friend.

Peter A. VanFleet, who received serious injuries when he fell twenty feet off a building at Clinton avenue and Greenbrook road, last week, is improving slowly.

Mrs. K. C. Walbridge and daughters, the Misses Walbridge, of West Eighth street, will leave in a few days for Barbadoes, where they will spend the rest of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Thompson and Miss Adele Runyon, of Putnam avenue, will leave on Wednesday for a pleasure trip to Florida and Cuba. They will be away the balance of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Sandford, of Sycamore avenue, leave on Tuesday for Virginia, where they will spend three week on a plantation. Mr. Sandford expects to do considerable gunning.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Ball, of this city, and Mrs. Frank Wood, of Bradford, Pa., will leave Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock for Bermuda. They secured their passage through Mulford Estil's agency.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Gilbert, of Plainfield, who were in New York to attend the farewell dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Percy Sandford, of Washington, D. C., at the Hotel Wolcott, were guests at the Wolcott.

Frank Terwilliger, of Plattekill, Ulster county, N. Y., spent Sunday at the home of A. L. Force on Duer street, as the guest of Miss Danielson, who is visiting there. Mr. Terwilliger recently received his diploma from the New York Law School.

Malcolm Schakelford, humorist and impersonator in songs and stories with banjo, will provide an entertainment for the Dutch Arms, men's association of Trinity Reformed church, Monday night, January 15. It will be "ladies' night."

Rev. Royal A. Stout, of the Netherwood Reformed church, who exchanged with Rev. J. Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning, delivered an excellent sermon on the subject, "Living in the Present," taking his text from Ecc. 3:15.

Mrs. T. H. Sullivant, formerly of Watchung avenue, has been the guest for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob VanDeventer, of Woodland avenue. Mrs. Sullivant and her daughter, Miss Eudora Sullivant, recently returned from a long trip abroad. They now reside in Philadelphia.

Miss Maizie Gray, of East Second street, left Saturday afternoon for Seattle, Wash., where she will visit her aunt for three months. Miss Gray who holds a responsible clerical position in the office of J. O. Osgood, chief engineer of the New Jersey Central, has been ill of late, and she believes that the change will be beneficial.

Arnold Bennett Their Subject.

The Rasores will meet tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. W. D. W. Miller, 209 East Seventh treet. The subject will be "Arnold Bennett."

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The visitors of the Home department of Hope chapel will meet Wednesday night. The executive committee of the Men's Club will also meet the same night.

"An Answered Prayer" will be the subject of the Jr. C. E. Society meeting at Trinity Reformed church Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

G. Harry Squires, of West Eighth street, who met with an automobile accident a month ago, suffering a fracture of the leg, is convalescing.

Frank H. Howard, who is now in the navy, has returned to his ship in Boston, after a visit with his sister, Mrs. G. Harry Squires, of West Eighth street.

Mrs. Elmer E. Wheeler has been appointed assistant superintendent of the Home department of Trinity Reformed church, and Mrs. Charles M. Dolliver, assistant secretary.

Mrs. John T. Kerr, president of the Presbyterian Foreign Missionary Society, will speak at a missionary meeting to be held at Hope chapel Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Acting Street Commissioner.

Until the new ordinance governing the solution of the street commissioner in the borough shall become operative, Walter Conover is supervising the work made necessary by the snaw fall. He had several men out yesterday morning to get crossings cleared for churchgoers.

Wall Street's Name.

Wall street got its name from a military wall or earthworks that was thrown up by the Dutch in 1654. The English colonists in Connecticut, laying claim to all the land "as far as the ocean," moved down and settled on Westchester creek in what is now Bronx borough. The Dutch of New Amsterdam were in great fear of a hostile move down on them and sent an armed force to arrest the approach of the invaders. At the same time they hastily built the wall from river to river to make sure of effective resistance if the enemy should decide to make a hostile move against New Amsterdam. For a time a regular patrol of soldiers was distributed along the military wall, detachments being assigned to keep close guard over the two gates in the wall, one at what is now Broadway and the other at the East river end. At that period the wall marked the northern boundary of the town of New Amsterdam.—New York Times.

Not Discouraged.

"There's a New York man," said a Brooklynite, "whose daughter during a winter in Nice got engaged to a certain Count Beau de Beau. The New York man was rich at that time, but a few weeks before the date set for the wedding he went to smash.

"'My dear Count Beau de Beau,' he groaned that night, 'I'm very sorry for you. You are to marry my daughter—you were to have had $35,000 a year—but the crash has come. I'm ruined now. How sorry I am, count!'

"But Count Beau de Beau gave the New York man a reassuring slap on the back.

"'Oh, don't you worry about me, sir,' he said, with an easy laugh. 'With a title like mine, you know, I can find another heiress tomorrow.'"—Exchange.

"Overhang" Houses.

By the year 1670 wooden chimneys and log houses of the Plymouth and Bay colonies were replaced by more sightly houses of two stories, which were frequently built with the second story jutting out a foot or two over the first and sometimes with the attic story still further extending over the second story. This "overhang" is popularly supposed to have been built for the purpose of affording a convenient shooting place from which to repel the Indians. This is, however, an historic fable. The overhanging second story was a common form of building in England in the time of Queen Elizabeth, and the Massachusetts and Rhode Island settlers simply and naturally copied their old homes.

England's Silver Greyhounds.

The "silver greyhounds," as the king's foreign service messengers are called, wear a broad silver disk stamped with a greyhound in full gallop, surmounted with a crown. They are intrusted with the most delicate duties. The chief qualification for the post, as defined by Lord Palmerston to a friend who applied to him for the office, is a knowledge of the gentle are of "holding your tongue in several languages."—London Express.

Declined With Thanks.

The Duke of Wellington, who had a taste for anything that Napoleon had liked, applied to David, the artist, who had painted Napoleon's portrait, requesting David to execute one of himself.

"Sir," replied David, "I paint only historical characters."—Life.

He Began to Talk Business.

"I shall make you love me yet," declared Mr. Stinjay determinedly. "I shall leave no stone unturned."

"Ah, that sounds something like!" exclaimed the fair girl. "If the stone weighs not less than a carat and is pure white you may interest me."

Too Short.

"I don't like these modern sermons much."

"Why not?"

"They're over before a man fairly gets to sleep."—Detroit Free Press.

Miss Clifford Entertains.

Miss Esme Clifford, of 961 West Third street, entertained Friday afternoon. It was Miss Clifford's third birthday. She cut a cake after reciting poetry. Her guests brought many gifts. A feature of the party was a "packet scramble."

The Fairviews defeated the Holy Cross church basketball team on the latter's courts Saturday, by a score of 21 to 19.

BRETON PEASANTS.

They Always Treat a Stranger With Generous Hospitality.

In Brittany all peasants carry their own knives, and, as for forks, they have no use for them. George Wharton Edwards tells in "Brittany and the Bretons" of a visit to an inn where he met with the proverbial Breton hospitality.

An old withered Breton woman sat at the fireside busily knitting at a jersey of blue wool, and three men sat at a table playing some sort of game with dominos. The men gave no apparent heed to our entrance, but I knew we were being discussed in their patois.

We asked for bread, butter and a pitcher of cider, which was forthcoming, but no knives were brought. Noting our predicament, the three men at once produced their knives, immense horn handled affairs, and after wiping them very carefully and considerately on their coat sleeves they opened and proffered them to us.

"And now, madame," said I, "what shall I pay you?"

"Five sous for the cider, m'sieur. There is no charge for the bread, for is not that the gift of bon Dieu?"

Thus it is throughout this strange land of Brittany. One may travel from end to end away from the large cities and everywhere meet with the same hospitality. The peasant will willingly share with you what he has in the cupboard and will not ask for pay.

I left an offering of silver upon the window sill among the balls of woolen yarn. I noticed that the act was not lost upon the old Bretonne, who when she caught my eye gave me a charming courtesy and a smiling "Merci, m'sieur."

THE ROCK PTARMIGAN.

A Bird of Storms and Ice, Raw Mists and Bleak Winds.

In order to make the acquaintance of the ptarmigan it is necessary either to journey into the snows and ice of the far north or to climb up to the very highest glacier valleys among the frozen peaks of the Rockies or Cascades, where circumpolar conditions are reproduced. While this curious bird is essentially a subarctic type, it is occasionally found among the isolated fields of eternal snow as far south as Colorado and northern New Mexico.

The rock ptarmigan is a bird of storms and ice and raw mists and bleak winds, in the summer gray as the rocks among which he lives, in winter white as the whirling snows in the midst of which he survives after every other feathered living thing, save only the fearless eagle, has fled to the lower valleys.

His brother, the willow ptarmigan, lives lower down by 500 or 1,000 feet, among the dwarfed shrubs which mark the upper edges of tree life, and, while similar in size and structure, is of a less somber plumage and more friendly disposition than the ghostly gray specter of the upper world, the rock ptarmigan. The males of the willow ptarmigan especially are beautiful birds, brownish gray upon the backs and wings, with rich reddish brown throats almost chestnut in color and dazzling white breasts.—Country Life in America.

Violins Old and New.

There is a general impression that very old violins and violoncellos are much superior in tone to similar instruments of modern construction. The point was debated by a number of Paris musicians, who decided in favor of the modern instrument. Six ancient violoncellos were chosen, including a Stradivarius, a Theckler, a Cappa, a Pressenda and a Guarnerius, together with six modern instruments. These were played alternately by Senor Casals, who was hidden from sight, the instruments being indicated to the jury by a number and marks awarded according to beauty of tone. The modern instruments aggregated 1,484 marks and the ancient instruments only 883, although the six ancient 'cellos represented a value of £6,000 and the modern ones £160.—London Express.

A Chinese Columbus.

According to a Chinese chronicler, Hui Sen, who lived in the sixth century of the Christian era, North America was known to the Chinese under the name of Fusang or Fusu. It was said to be a continent lying 6,500 miles to the east of Asia. The chronicle states that in the year 453 five Buddhist priests sailed from China for Fusu, landing in Mexico, where they taught their religion to the natives, built temples and set up enormous statues of their gods all over the country. Traces of a Mongolian civilization have been found in Mexico. There exists in particular a statue of a god resembling not the Aztec god, but one of the grotesque deities of the Chinese.—Harper's.

Deceit.

'Tis a cowardly and servile humor to hide and disguise a man's self under a visor and not to dare to show himself what he is. By that our followers are trained up to treachery. Being brought up to speak what is not true, they make no conscience of a lie.—Montaigne.

A Pen Pun.

Assistant Editor—Here is an article submitted by a convict in the penitentiary who signs merely with his prison number. Editor—Doubtless that's his "pen" name.—Kansas City Star.

Nothing more completely baffles one who is full of trick and duplicity than straightforward and simple integrity in another.—Cotton.

Red Tape and a Murderer.

This is a tale of a self confessed murderer who wished to be arrested, as related by a writer in Le Matin, Paris.

Some time ago a man named Berges was stabbed to death at Algiers. Three men were arrested on suspicion, but as they proved their innocence they were released and the matter was shelved. A few days afterward a man called at the office of the local police commissary and said to that official:

"My name is Marius Yvorra. I killed Berges, and this is how I did it."

The commissary listened to the man's confession and said:

"You had better see my secretary."

The secretary also listened to the man's confession and after a little reflection said:

"Now, look here, my good man; this is not the way to get arrested. You must write us a letter confirming the oral statement made to us. Then we shall be able to attend to you. Now, get along."

The man left the office, and perhaps because he was not a good writer he has not been seen since in Algiers.

Wu Ting Fang's Good Cheer.

Among the most intimate of the Chinese friends of the late Sir Robert Hart was a high official, Wu Ting Fang, who prided himself on his alert manner, which made him appear much younger than he was, and boasted that he intended to live 200 years. He once explained how this feat was to be accomplished. "The first thing, naturally, is diet," said he. "The man who would cheat Time should live on nuts like the squirrels. Under no condition should he touch salt, and he should begin and end each meal with a teaspoonful of olive oil. I have hung scrolls in my bedroom," Wu Ting went on to explain, "with these sentences written upon them in English and Chinese, 'I am young, I am healthy, I am cheerful.' Immediately I enter the room my eye falls upon these precepts. I say to myself, 'Why, of course I am,' and therefore I am!"—London Chronicle.

One View of the "Terrible Turk."

Speaking of the Turk, an English resident in Turkey writes: "The man I like best is the pure, uncontaminated Turk who has never seen Europe. He is wonderfully hospitable, amazingly kind, essentially a man of peace and a fervent religionist. He is a Moslem, has been reared in Moslemism and believes in his religion. He is honest and straightforward in his business dealings, and his word is his bond. I do not suggest that every Turk possesses all these qualities which I have attributed to the race, nor am I painting him in too rosy a color. I have made many voyages into the interior of Macedonia and Asia Minor; I have entered Turkish villages high up on the snow, stockaded against the bears, where the inhabitants had never seen a European before, and my trust in the kindness and hospitality of these men has never failed me."—London Graphic.

Suspended Animation.

As we descend in the scale of animal life we find that what kills the higher animals does not injure the lower. Cut a polyp in two and you have two living polyps instead of one dead polyp. Break off a lobster's claw and another will grow. You may, it has been said, freeze a fly, but you cannot freeze it to death. There are infusoria called "wheel animalcules." These rotifers have many curious qualities, among which is that of suspending animation for an indefinite period without ceasing to live. Colonies of rotifers may be desiccated and rendered apparently lifeless, and in this condition they may be kept for months and years and possibly centuries. A single drop of water will restore them to life, and the wheel bearers will instantly resume their functional activity precisely at the point where it was broken off.—Harper's.

Bank Checks In Austria.

Banks of Austria are exempt from liability for payment of checks and bills of exchange to parties who may have acquired unlawful possession of the same and forged the indorsements thereon. The banks are not compelled to identify the bearer, and instances occur of such commercial papers being stolen and cashed with forged indorsement, leaving the owner without redress. A check or bill of exchange, therefore, though payable to order and not indorsed is a dangerous form for the remittance of money. Liability for payment on a forged indorsement is incurred by a bank only when it is presumed to have knowledge of the payee's signature, as in the case of well known clients.

Real Estate Enterprises.

Here is one way a piece of land may be made profitable:

Find a clay hole and make bricks out of the clay.

Cut the ice in the hole in the winter if you can get away with it.

Get money from the city to fill the hole as a dumping ground.

Put a top soil over all and sell the lot for a manufacturing site.—Chicago Post.

The Drone.

Son—What kind of a man is a drone, papa? Father—One who stands in a revolving door and waits for some one else to push it around so he can get in, my son.—Judge.

Mean Thing.

Maybelle—See the beautiful engagement ring Jack gave me last night. Estelle—Gracious! Has that just got around to you?—Toledo Blade.

Deliberate with caution, but act with decision; yield with graciousness or oppose with firmness.

The Island of St. Helena.

St. Helena has been an island of tragedies—tragedies that have been lost sight of wailing over the Corsican. On the second day of my visit the governor took me by carriage road through the turns over the island. At one point of our journey the road, in winding around spurs and ravines, formed a perfect W within the distance of a few rods. The roads, though tortuous and steep, were fairly good, and I was struck with the amount of labor it must have cost to build them. The air on the heights was cool and bracing. It is said that since hanging for trivial offenses went out of fashion no one has died there, except from falling over the cliffs in old age or from being crushed by stones rolling on them from the steep mountains! Witches at one time were persistent at St. Helena, as with us in America in the days of Cotton Mather. At the present day crime is rare in the island.

The Ancient Dragon.

The pterodactyl, whose fossil remains have been found in the chalk at Cambridge, England, and elsewhere, with a very varied spread of wings, which in the largest specimens must have reached twenty-five feet, is almost identical with the dragon of fable. A batlike creature, with an elevated body and long neck ending in an absurdly small head with a portentous beak, it could run very swiftly, was a fish eater and could swim, or it flew by means of huge membranous wings, which connected its long fore quarters with its hind legs. The pterodactyl evidently existed down to a comparatively recent geological period, and it is not at all improbable that the traditional dragon is described from the last living specimens as met with by primitive man.

Simplified Spelling Effects.

"We find in the letters we receive," said the correspondence clerk, "some marvelous examples of simplified spelling, some of these unconsciously phonetic, some evidently deliberately intended, some that, though they serve their purpose wonderfully, verge on the comic. For instance, we received yesterday a letter from a man who starts off in this way:

"'What fx would follow'—and so on.

"Of course the meaning of that was perfectly plain, but the bookkeeper and I had to smile over it for a moment, and when we showed it to the stenographer he said that the man who could write words like that ought not to stop at simplified spelling—he ought to go right ahead and invent a new shorthand system."—New York Sun.

Chinese Idioms.

When a Chinese writer wishes to express that the wealthy parent of the heroine has set his affairs in order in her favor before dying his idiom is, "He has settled his plums." "To have plucked the kwei (cassia) flower" signifies gaining the master's degree at the triennial examinations. Their idiom for "Let there be no backsliding" is, "Let there be no absorption of sweat." A runaway wife is said by Liu Chia Chu to "carry her guitar to another door." When you wish to say that you have secured a vindication, you express it, "My adversary has been forced to paint my front door." When a great man dies they say, "A corner of the city wall has fallen."—J. S. Thompson's "The Chinese."

Green Turtles.

The green turtle finds its home in the coral reefs lying to the north of Jamaica, though it is found in other parts of the West Indies. The creature is caught by the employment of extremely strong nets, which are interlaced between the rocks. Once caught the turtle is taken to Kingston, where it is kept in special sea water pens on the seashore. When in the pens the turtle is provided with a peculiar kind of sea grass, which it likes very much. Curiously enough, when it is taken away from the West Indies it refuses to eat this grass. Indeed, it will die of starvation sooner than touch the grass, however carefully preserved. It takes eight pounds of flesh to make a single quart of soup.

Timely Answers.

"Do you remember how hungry I was at seven-thirty last night?"

"I should say I do."

"Do you know how I appeased my hunger in a half hour?"

"No; what did you do?"

"Eight a clock."

"That's nothing. Do you remember how unlucky I was at the raffle at twelve-thirty?"

"I certainly do."

"Well, I wasn't so unlucky a half hour later."

"No? I'm glad to know that. What did you win?"

"One a clock."—Lippincott's.

"I see," remarked the traveler, "you have an anti-horse thief association here. What's the matter? Can't you leave the punishment of horse thieves to the constituted authorities?"

"Not by a durn sight!" said Grizzly Pete. "They ain't anti enough."—Chicago Tribune.

MRS. HELEN H. BRITTON.

She Is the Only Woman Baseball Magnate in the Country.

Mrs. Helen Hathaway Britton, principal owner of the St. Louis National league team, is the only woman baseball magnate in the country. Baseball is nothing new to Mrs. Britton, however. When she was fourteen years old she played the game literally. And she hails from a baseball family. Her father, Frank De Hass B. Robison, a brother of Stanley Robison, was a former owner of the Cardinals, and the Robison name is well known in baseball history.

"I'm in baseball because I love the game," said Mrs. Britton when she was in New York recently to attend the meeting of National league magnates. "I have my horses and autos, but baseball is my hobby. Baseball is not alone a man's game, and there is no reason why women shouldn't be as enthusiastic over it. I'd just as soon eat peanuts and sip lemonade at a ball game as I would attend a select social gathering. Most women like society. I do in my own fashion, but give me outdoor sports first.

"The trouble with lots of women is that they spend too much time inside their homes. They want to get out in the fresh air and have their blood stirred up once in awhile. Baseball would do it. A game now and then would make better mothers of them. If women want to remain young and healthy they must have the outdoor life—something that will stir them up. And I think that baseball is one of the best medicines a person can take. If you are at the game you do not think of the rent man's next visit. In the excitement of the moment you forget everything except the real battle itself."

GENERAL WILLIAM BOOTH.

He Will Undergo Another Operation In an Attempt to Restore His Eyesight.

Once more the best eye specialists in England are to use the knife on the eyes of General Booth, the aged leader of the Salvation Army, in an effort to restore his fast failing sight. The operation of three years ago for cataract is to be repeated, and high hopes are entertained of ultimate recovery. At the present moment the Salvation Army chief is practically blind and is unable even to distinguish the features of a person standing within a couple of feet of him.

But despite this handicap General Booth has lost none of his wonderful vigor and enthusiasm. He is now conducting a campaign in the south of England and previous to the coming operation will visit Germany and Denmark for a flying automobile trip. Typical of the astonishing energy of the man is a meeting which has just been held at Balham, an outlying section of London. Not content with preaching both in the morning and evening, he sandwiched an afternoon lecture in between. In the course of the latter General Booth declared he wished no memorial upon his death excepting a huge collection box at his grave wherein those who come to pray and perhaps to shed a tear might drop a few gold pieces for the support of the great movement he had led.

350° FAR. Some temperature. Yet the air would have to be that warm before a FRANKLIN would become overheated.

THE BIG TRUTH. Cool is only a relative term, and to the motor built to operate at 350°, a temperature of 200° is as cool as a temperature of 100° to the motor built to run at 212°. The FRANKLIN motor cools perfectly in the hottest weather because, with the extreme temperature of 130° in the shade, there is a difference of 220° between the operating temperature of the motor and the temperature of the air drawn in. Where water only has a difference of 82° between its boiling point and the outside air. The FRANKLIN motor has over 200° temperature.

DO YOU KNOW? That the second car in the Phoenix, Arizona-Los Angeles, California, Road Race was a FRANKLIN air cooled car. This car was beaten by a car of much more horsepower and at that might have won out but for an accident. This is the hottest region in the United States. Are you convinced that air cooling is right?

OVERHAULING? Yes, we do repair work in all its branches as it should be done.

WEDDING POSTPONED; HE TOOK HIS LIFE.

Because he was to be operated on for appendicitis on the day that had been set for his marriage, Otto Wirsing, Jr., twenty-six years old, of 203 Washington street, Hoboken, committed suicide by shooting himself in Cranford Saturday afternoon. The young man killed himself in the home of Mrs. John Grobstein, of 213 North avenue. A peculiar feature of the case was the fact that although Wirsing shot himself at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and died shortly before 7 o'clock, the authorities say it was nearly 11 before they were notified.

The Wirsing and Grobstein families had long been friends, and young Wirsing was a frequent visitor in the Grobstein home. He was usually accompanied by his fiancee. He told Mrs. Grobstein that since he had last seen her he had suffered a severe attack of appendicitis and that his physicians urged an operation, suggesting that he postpone his marriage. When he consented the physicians set next Wednesday for the day they would operate on him. This happened to be the day on which it had been planned to have the wedding. The invitations which were all ready to be sent to the prospective guests were withheld and the ceremony was indefinitely postponed.

MEN AND RELIGION SCHEME EXPLAINED

Local Laymen Attend Big Meeting in Newark When Movement is Theme.

A CAMPAIGN IN PLAINFIELD

Rev. Roy B. Guild, An Expert On the Plan, Tells How It Is Conducted and of the Results To Be Obtained.

Several Plainfield laymen, representing various churches, yesterday attended a meeting in the interest of the "Men and Religion" Movement held in the First Presbyterian church, in Newark. The speaker, Rev. Roy B. Guild, told of some of the remarkable results accomplished by the movement through campaigns already held and many suggestions to the committees which are preparing for campaigns in Newark and out-lying cities. The dates of the Newark campaign are January 27 to February 4. Mr. Guild has served as leader of the team of experts which has conducted campaigns in Des Moines, Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth and other western and southern cities, and he will have charge of the Newark campaign.

The speaker said that the unit in "The Men and Religion Movement" is the local church. Unless the movement vitalizes the workers in the church, it fails. The big mass meeting is not the important feature of the campaign. The educational meetings to be conducted by members of the team of experts are the important feature. The purpose of these meetings, called institutes, is to prepare the men already at work and the men who want to get to work in the local church for efficient service. In these institutes, every department of church work is considered under the leadership of a specialist of the first rank. The Newark institutes will be held at 6:30 p. m. on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, January 30, 31, February 1 and 2, and will be in charge of the following leaders: Bible study, Prof. M. A. Honline; boys' work, C. C. Robinson; social service, Dr. J. W. Magruder; evangelism, Rev. Dr. John H. Elliott; missions, H. F. La Flamme. These institutes will be free to all men and it is hoped that every church in Plainfield and North Plainfield will be represented at some of them by their committeemen.

Mr. Guild said that the movement offers no prescription by taking which churches and committees may be cured of their troubles and evils. It means work of the hardest kind to the men accepting its program. But it presents a program which inspires a man to undertake difficult tasks. He characterized the church as one of the great unused forces of the time, comparable to a six-cylinder automobile running on or or two of its cylinders. The movement would take the unused power of the church and turn it into a mighty power for God. He instanced one church in the middle west with 700 men in its membership, only 26 of whom were found to be doing anything. Now, in that church, under the leadership of one of its members, one of the foremost laymenn of the country and chairman of the men and religion committee for that city, work is being assigned to every man of the 700.

Among the suggestions made to the Bible study committee were these: First, that they try to secure in their churches recognition of the principle that Bible classes for boys over fourteen should be taught by men; second, that they make a study of Bible study conditions in their churches and in the homes represented in their churches; third, that they attend the institutes to be led by Professor Honline. To the committee on evangelism he suggested the vigorous promotion of personal evangelism as the most effective form of evangelistic work.

OLD GLORY COUNCIL HAS 16TH BIRTHDAY PARTY.

The sixteenth anniversary of the organization of Old Glory Council, No. 62, Daughters of Liberty, was celebrated in the meeting room in the Babcock building, Saturday night. The annual installation also took place, the following being inducted into office:

Councilor, Mrs. Gertrude Rittenhouse; vice councilor, Mrs. Rise; associate vice councilor, Mrs. VanPelt; past associate vice councilor, Miss Meta Rose; secretary, Mrs. I. N. Wyckoff; assistant secretary, Mrs. Ketenring; financial secretary, Mrs. Lottie Ammon; treasurer, Mrs. Benjamin Moore; guide, Mrs. Ida Mulford; inside guard, Mrs. VanPelt; outside guard, Mrs. Ganun.

Following the business session and installation a program of vocal and instrumental selections was enjoyed and speeches on the tenets of the order were made in an informal way. Refreshments were served.

The ushers for the Sunday evening services in January at Trinity Reformed church are A. W. Dunavan, Arthur Gaskill, LeRoy S. Hann, Russell C. Doeringer, Herbert B. Renninger and Lester Renninger.

The State Trust Company in a little over fifteen months has established itself in the confidence of the community. This result has not been brought about by passive methods but by an aggressive policy of publicity and an active campaign for new business on one hand and by a carefully studied effort to faithfully serve our customers on the other.

To those of our friends who have entrusted us with their business we are grateful. To those who have not yet favored us, we extend a cordial invitation accompanied with the assurance that in our hands their interests will be conscientiously furthered.

FINISH OF NEW YEAR'S KEG LEADS TWO TO COURT.

Mike Loncovitg and John Devorck, neighbors in a tenement on Muhlenberg place, completed the conquest, yesterday, of a barrel of beer that came to them with the New Year. They got everything out of the barrel, including a row that will cost Loncovitg $25 or 60 days in jail and Devorck $5 or 20 days.

Patrolman Saunders broke up the row, which was going full tilt at 11:35 o'clock last night, and took both men to the station house. City Judge William G. DeMeza told them what it would cost them today.

Accessions to Membership.

Communion services were held in several of the city churches yesterday with accessions to membership. At the Crescent Avenue church twenty new members were received, ten on confession and ten by letter. At the First Presbyterian church, Rev. Dr. C. E. SUNDAY SCHOOLS' WORK THEIR THEME

F. L. Brown, G. V. Taylor and E. W. Cooper Address Superintendents' Association.

CONVENTION CHOIR'S MUSIC

Timely Hints On How Best to Build Up Sunday-schools Given by Men Experienced in the Work—Arthur Harris to Dine Convention Choir.

Frank L. Brown, superintendent of the Bushwick Avenue Sunday-school, Brooklyn, said to be the second largest in the world; George V. Taylor, superintendent of the Lenox Road Baptist Sunday-school, Flatbush, and E. W. Cooper, of South Orange, superintendent of the State Sunday-school Association, were speakers at a meeting of the Sunday-school Superintendents' Association at the Seventh-Day Baptist church last night. The "convention choir" was present and furnished the music under the direction of David E. Titsworth. Despite the storm there were about two hundred people present.

William C. Hubbard, superintendent of the Sunday-school of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, presided, and Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor, conducted the devotional exercises, while the choir sang several selections. Mr. Brown was the principal speaker of the evening. He directed the attention of his audience to the necessity of devising ways and means to stop the outflow of young people from the Sunday-school; something to offset the strong attraction of the theatre and the moving picture entertainment.

In this connection Mr. Brown said that the international committee has appointed a committee of one hundred experts to solve the problem. Mr. Brown asserted that he recently had a conference with Jacob Riis in which he secured the moral support and good wishes of the latter in the movement. Mr. Riis admitted that he had had no idea of the importance of the question.

Mr. Brown declared that the Sunday-school is the world's greatest institution for popularizing the Great Book; secondly, that the Sunday-school is the Bible teaching service of the church. The speaker said that in his Sunday-school there are more members over twelve years of age than under, a healthy condition. He held to the idea that sooner or later it will be necessary to give up the regular preaching service Sunday mornings for the session of the school. He declared that the Sunday-school is an organized and scientific effort for religious education and that it is a Christian training for service in the extension of the Kingdom. Save a generation and you will beat the devil, said Mr. Brown. He presented many suggestions for enlarging and increasing the interest in Sunday-school work, emphasizing the importance of the teacher training department.

Mr. Taylor conducted a round table, in which he assisted in answering eleven questions presented for consideration. A digest of these were that there is no reason why a school should not be graded, that if the superintendent is orderly he will have an orderly school, that an organized class should not be independent of the school, that an assistant superintendent should not be a figurehead, that the superintendent should be brief in closing the session of the school.

That the material for the teacher training class should come from the intermediate department, that the department superintendent should be dependent upon the general superintendent, that there should be no set program for opening and closing the school and that organized classes should be at the opening and closing of the school.

Many other helpful suggestions were made by the speaker and brought out in the discussion. E. W. Cooper, of South Orange, the last speaker, was brief in his remarks, confining them chiefly to the work that is being done by the executive department of the State association. He called attention to the new State paper which he hoped all Sunday-schools would support. He also urged that the schools be prompt in paying their per capita of assessment for aid of the State work.

At the close of the meeting it was announced that the Superintendents' Association will hold a banquet at Vincent chapel of the First M. E. church, Monday night, February 5, and Arthur M. Harris, superintendent of the First Baptist Sunday-school, will have the members of the convention choir there that night as his personal guests.

EQUITABLE BUILDING A ROARING FURNACE

Broadway Structure Destroyed—Loss May be $30,000,000.—Six Dead and Three are Reported Missing.

Flames today destroyed the massive Equitable Life Assurance Society Building, with at least six known dead and three missing, with a loss estimated between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000 before the fire could be checked. The destruction of the great building, bounded by Broadway, Cedar, Pine and Nassau streets, furnished the most spectacular fire the downtown district has known, and the most disastrous. The conflagration ran away from the firemen, who were unable to get a heavy stream on the flames owing to the terrific wind blowing and the fact that they were outside of the high pressure disrict.

For five hours the fire raged uncontrolled within the confines of the block, the heat and smoke hiding the number of dead and missing so that no accurate list could be learned. Under a rain of granite blocks dropping from the ornamental walls valiant rescues were accomplished by the firemen. Every piece of apparatus below Fifty-ninth street, was moved on the five alarms, and the two borough calls brought engines from Brooklyn, the first time in years.

Three men, supposed to have been waiters, plunged to death from the sixth floor while making their perilous way along a ledge, holding to a rope. Conrad Siebert, a special policeman employed in the Mercantile Trust safety vaults, was found dead in the basement. William Cantio, a head porter, was found dead under debris in the basement.

Battalion Chief Walsh, sending three firemen and a fire patrol captain ahead of him to safety, was last seen by them in the third floor of the building. Four hours later he had not reappeared.

It was a gigantic, roaring bonfire that started about 5:30 o'clock this morning in a storeroom of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company in the half-basement at the corner of Broadway and Cedar street. Employes of the building who had reported on an early shift turned in an alarm and then tried to put out the flames.

The building, which was erected in 1868, was not fireproof. The fire chiefs were not certain at noon that they had the flames under control, for the flames had shot out on the Pine street side toward the big American Surety Company building, but they believed they could keep it within the Equitable block.

An official of the New York Telephone Company stated today that two of the heaviest Central stations, "John" and "Cortlandt," had been practically ruined by the Equitable building catastrophe. It will be some time before operations can be resumed through them, and a great many subscribers in the Wall street and downtown financial districts will be practically deprived of telephone service.

The Stock Exchange closed at 10:30 o'clock on account of the large amount of securities impossible to reach in the safe deposit vaults and all trading was declared illegal to prevent failures.

There were a number of narrow escapes and thrilling rescues, and at least a dozen firemen were injured.

During the height of the fire the flames could be seen for miles, lighting up the tower of the Singer building as when it is displayed by the sixty searchlights which play upon it at night. The heat was so intense that the firemen were forced back time and again, only to return to the attaock.

It was only five minutes after the first alarm was turned in for what appeared to be a small fire back of the Cafe Savarin that all the upper floors were ablaze from about the centre of Pine street back to Nassau street.

MR. MENZENBACH HAS PASSED AWAY

Well Known Resident of the Borough Succumbs to Bright's Disease.

ACTIVE IN GERMAN SOCIETIES

Aged Sixty-seven Years—Widow and Son Survive—Funeral Services on Thursday Afternoon From German Reformed Church.

Matthias Menzenbach, one of the most widely known German-Americans in this section, died this morning at his home on Somerset street, in the borough, after an illness of several months with Bright's disease. He was sixty-seven years old and had been a sufferer with kidney ailment for several years. A few intimate friends, his widow and son were present when the end came shortly before 9 o'clock.

Mr. Menzenbach resided in the borough for twenty-five years, coming here from Elizabeth, where he located after coming to America from Germany, as a young man. He purchased the shoe repairing business of the late Solomon Flagg on East Front street and continued in that trade, except for intervals when he acted as steward of the Westfield Golf Club and janitor at Saengerbund Hall. The last time he re-opened his shop was about three years ago. For years this shop was located on Somerset street.

As one of the charter members of the Kranken Verein, he had served the society in different offices and also for many years held offices in the Gesang and Turn Verein and the Independent Schutzenbund. He was fond of children and they of him, and his friends and acquaintances among the grownups were legion.

Surviving him are his widow and one son, Louis Menzenbach. The funeral will be held from the German Reformed church, Craig place, of which Mr. Menzenbach was a member, Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE NAMES NEW SECRETARY

Paul H. Burns, local agent of the New York Telephone Company, was chosen secretary of the Chamber of Commerce at an executive meeting of the board of directors last night. He succeeds former City Judge John Ulrich, who declined re-election.

He accepted the position with the understanding that his duties with the telephone company were not to be interfered with. The only other business was an informal discussion of thrre prospective meeting places instead of the present quarters. Nothing definite was decided upon.

In an interview with a Plainfield Daily Press reporter this morning, Judge Ulrich said, "from my knowledge of the workings of the Chamber as a civic institution of this city, the existence of the Chamber of Commerce has been justified. Of course it requires some money to conduct an institution of such a character, and if there had been a sufficiently strong membership connected with the chamber, not the least financial difficulty would have been experienced. Experience has demonstrated that there must be retrenchment which will lead to the taking of smaller quarters and a curtailment of official salaries."

Judge Ulrich stated that the office had taken a great deal more of his time and work than he had anticipated, but he appreciated the need of a civic institution of this character in the interest of the city, and has not begrudged his efforts which he trusted would redound to some advantage to Plainfield, to which he is much attached and where he has resided since boyhood. With his retirement as secretary of the chamber, Judge Ulrich said, he would also give up the practice of the law and intended to give his undivided time and attention to editorial work, in connection with which, at the strong solicitation of friends, would probably take the lecture platform. Just now he feels need of a rest, and will go to a warmer climate for a short time.

Governor Woodrow Wilson.
Who Sent His First Annual Message to the Legislature Today.

GOVERNOR WILSON'S MESSAGE AT A GLANCE.

Recommends that for efficiency and economy various State Boards and Commissions be greatly reduced, suggesting departments of public works, public welfare and conservation. He would have commission created, consisting of experienced and trusted business men, to simplify and co-ordinate administrative agencies.

State tax methods at present are declared to be unsatisfactory, and uniform standards should be established under authority of a central board. Whole system should be thoroughly examined to discover weak places in bases of taxation.

Recommends more thorough conservation of State resources under single head.

Would have control of State penal and charitable institutions directly in charge of Commissioner of Charities and Corrections and a small responsible board, similar to plan adopted last winter, for schools of the State.

Urges need of Reformatory for women.

Thinks more effective department of health should be created.

Recommends Constitutional amendment providing for Assembly districts.

Court proceedings should be greatly simplified.

Jury reform urged.

Better regulation and inspection of factories and workshops suggested.

Full crew bill for railroads needed.

Abolition of grade crossings, under direction of Public Utilities Commission, should be brought about as rapidly as possible.

Changes needed in road law, to make administration more efficient, and remove them from political influences.

WILSON MESSAGE TO LEGISLATURE

Law-Making Body Organized at Trenton—Prince President of Senate—McCran Speaker of House.

ECONOMY PRINCIPAL TOPIC IN GOVERNOR'S FIRST ANNUAL MESSAGE

Suggests Reforms in Tax Matters — Other Important Subjects Discussed.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 9.—Governor Woodrow Wilson sent his first annual message to the Legislature here at noon today, and it recommended numerous changes in exisiting laws of the State. He suggested that the State service be made more efficient and economical by a reduction in the number of boards and commissions; advocated tax reform more sweeping than ever before suggested; proposed the submission of another constitutional amendment to the people which would allow for Assembly districts, and took up a number of other matters of vital interest to the people of the State. The message is the shortest that has been sent to a legislative body in years, and reads in full as follows:

To the Legislature:

With the opening of another legislative session it is my privilege to call your attention to several matters with regard to which we have the opportunity to serve the State by well considered changes in its law. It has interested me very deeply to note that in recent years in this State the platforms of the two great parties, which come every year into competition at the annual election for the control of the legislative body, have usually been in substantial agreement so that one is encouraged to believe that our elections are not so much contests for party advantage or aggrandizement as for the opportunity to serve the people of the State—contests for the honor and satisfaction of accomplishing the reforms which the conditions obtaining in the State naturally suggest. If this is true the winning party may count upon the co-operation of the minority in carrying out its platform program. When the legislative session opens we become colleagues in a common service, and our standard is not party advantage, but the welfare of New Jersey. We are, first of all, citizens and public servants; our party differfences are secondary to our duty as representatives and trustees.

I venture upon this preface to my recommendations in order to afford myself the opportunity to say with how much pleasure I shall co-operate with the present Legislature in carrying out every program that is judged to be for the common benefit. It is my duty, as governor of the State and representative of all its people to be the leader of my party in the State,, indeed, but not a partisan or a strategist for mere

SAYS BARTENDER DROVE HEEL OF SHOE IN HIS EYE.

Martin Duffy and John Dunn, the latter a bartender employed in a local hotel, will appear before City Judge William G. DeMeza tomorrow morning, charged with fighting. Duffy and Dunn are alleged to have quarreled in the bar-room where the latter was on duty, last night, and Duffy carried evidence about his face and head today that he had been in something stormy besides the weather.

Duffy told Judge DeMeza today that Dunn, after the fight got under way, hit him on the head with a bottle of beer, and drove a heel in his eye after he dropped under the smash. The two men were summoned to appear for a hearing today by a policeman who heard of the alleged row, but Duffy told the court he had to go to a doctor to have his injuries attended to. The judge put the hearing off until tomorrow.

REPUBLICANS CONTROL BOTH HOUSES, AND PLAN FOR PROGRESSIVE LAWS

Pierce Sworn in as Senator; Babcock, Otto and Groves as Assemblymen.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 9.—With the Republicans again in control of both Houses, the one hundred and thirty-sixth annual session of the New Jersey Legislature met here this noon, and after going through various formalities of organization, and hearing the reading of Governor Wilson's first annual message, adjourned until next Monday night, when the real business of the session will be commenced. The eighty-one members of the Senate and House, with the aid of Governor Wilson, are planning to pass much legislation, promised in the party platforms of last fall. They have decided to make the session short and business-like, and have set March 22 as the date for final adjournment.

The opening of the Legislature was a picturesque ceremony, and brought to the State House not only the usual large crowd of politicians, but also hundreds of spectators. The galleries in each legislative chamber were crowded with people eager to witness the starting of the law making machinery for 1912. All the morning the Capitol corridors buzzed with the conversation of State leaders and the smaller fry politicians from all over the State. Here and there knots of politicians were gathered in earnest conversation, denoting that arrangements were being made for various kinds of wire pulling in the hope to secure some political advantage early in the session. There was a hurry and scurry of State officers in the preparation to have everything in readiness for the fall of the gavels at noon.

The executive offices were one of the great centers of attraction, as scores of legislators and political leaders called to pay their respects to Governor Wilson. The Senate and Assembly chambers presented more the scene of a floral exhibit than of a place for cold, hard, partisan combat over the making of new statutes. Banks of palms graced either side of the dais in each chamber, on which is located the desk of the presiding officer. The desks were adorned with cut flowers. American flags were tastefully draped above the heads of the presiding officers. In the Assembly chamber practically every desk was a floral bower, the desks of the new members having the more elaborate displays of bloom, sent in by their constituents. The display in the Senate chamber, owing to the greater conservatism of the Solons, was not as elaborate as that in the other end of the lawmaking halls, but, here, too, there were many elegant floral pieces from admiring constituents.

The Senate was called to order by Senator Edge, of Atlantic, the Republican leader. Then a certificate from Secretary of State Dickinson was read, naming the Senators-elect, who were, William T. Read, of Camden; Cal. Austin Colgate, of Essex; George W. F. Gaunt, of Gloucester; William W. Smalley, of Somerset, and Carlton B. Pierce, of Union, Republicans; and John W. Slocum, of Monmouth; J. Warren Davis, of Salem, and Thomas Barber, of Warren, Democats. Of these, Senator Gaunt was re-elected, and the others are new members. This makes the Senate stand 11 Republicans to 10 Democrats.

Through the courtesy of the Republican Senators, the Democrats were given the temporary presidency, and Senator George S. Silzer, of Middlesex county, was given the honor. After he had been escorted to the President's chair the credentials of the new Senators were presented, and the oath of office administered to them. The organization of the Senate came next. Senator Edge in a brief speech nominated Senator John D. Prince, of Passaic, for president. Col. Edge paid a high tribute to Senator Prince's ability, and referred to his long legislative experience. Senator Fielder, of Hudson county, the minority leader, nominated Senator James A. C. Johnson, of Bergen county, as the Democratic candidate for President. Senator Prince was elected by a party vote.

CAPTAIN KITCHELL ASSIGNED TO DUTY

First Lieutenant Charles A. Peterson Appointed to Command Local Military.

KITCHELL GOES TO ELIZABETH

He Is Assigned to Organize a Company at County Seat to Take Place of One Recently Disbanded at Lambertville.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 9.—Captain Harry B. Kitchell has been assigned to special duty at Elizabeth and relieved from the command of Company K, of this city, by order received from the National Guard headquarters. As a result of the change, Lieutenant Charles A. Peterson has been put in command of Co. K, the order to become effective at once. Co. K was organized in 1901 and Captain Kitchell was one of its few commanding officers and under his direction the company continued to make a satisfactory record.

Major W. B. Martin was one of the earlier captains of the company and during his regime the members attained a high standard of efficiency on the State range at Sea Girt, which has continued ever since.

Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler has issued general orders regarding the inspections of the National Guard of the State. The inspections will be made by Major Johnston of the regular army. The local battalion inspections will be as follows: Co. K, drill hall, Plainfield, March 21, 8 p. m.; Co. M, Somerville, armory, March 20, 8 p. m.; Co. C, Elizabeth, March 19, 8 p. m.; Co. I, Elizabeth, March 18, 8 p. m.

REV. DR. NEILSON HEADS THE PLAINFIELD S.P.C.A.

Officers were elected and reports for the year were presented at the annual meeting of the Plainfield branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, held at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance of members and much enthusiasm over the work of the society in this vicinity. These officers were chosen: President, Rev. Dr. W. H. Neilson; first vice-president, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson; second vice-president, Stephen Krom; third vice-president, J. D. Loizeaux; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Edgar S. Hyatt; board of directors, William F. Arnold, W. L. Smalley, Dr. F. C. Ard, Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Jr., Mrs. H. J. Letcher; finance committee, J. D. Loizeaux, W. L. Smalley, Dr. F. C. Ard; membership committee, Stephen Krom, Mrs. Edgar S. Hyatt and Mrs. S. G. Van Hoesen.

Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, the special agent for the society, presented an excellent report of the past year's work and was commended by the officers and members for her activity in getting after violators of the law. Five new members were elected as follows: Morris C. VanArsdale, David J. Carney, H. W. Marshall, Miss Louise Holly and Mrs. William Haines.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS AT Y. W. C. A'S ANNUAL.

At the fifth annual meeting of the Y. W. C. A., held last night, Mrs. F. G. Mead, Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, Mrs. Robert Lowry, Mrs. F. H. Andrews, Mrs. Henry L. DeForrest and Mrs. Lewis A. Williams were re-elected members of the board of directors. Mrs. Howard McWilliams was elected to take the place of Mrs. Charles King, resigned. The resignation of Miss Ethel Titsworth was accepted with regret.

Mrs. E. T. Barrows, treasurer, reported total receipts, $16,229.80, and the expenditures, $15,736.99, leaving a balance of $492.81. The receipt of a legacy and the payment of $1,100 mortgage, makes the budget appear much larger than the year before. Miss Elizabeth Goddard reported a paid up membership of 831. Miss Margaret McCutchen, chairman of the physical department, reported six classes with an enrollment of 75.

Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, chairman of the junior committee, reported an enrollment of 126.

Clan Mackenzie Installs.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Fanwood B. and E. Co. held its regular monthly meeting last night in the company's rooms. After the regular order of business was transacted the members talked over plans for the year. The committee on the dance held two weeks ago, reported a neat little balance over and above expenses.

Edward Heath, who has been ill for several weeks, with a serious eye trouble, has recovered and resumed his work with John Albert the liveryman.

The snow and rain yesterday put and end for a time to the excellent skating which has been enjoyed for the past week.

The annual township report is being made up and will be ready for the taxpayers about the twentieth of this month.

Mrs. Elliott T. Collins, of Brooklyn, is spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. R. Buckley.

Miss Susie Parse has returned from a visit with friends in New York.

WESTFIELD.

The organizers of the proposed club to take the place of the Westfield Club that went out of existence five years ago, held a meeting in the postoffice building recently and looked over plans submitted for a clubhouse. No plans were adopted. The organizers have several thousand dollars subscribed toward the purchase of the lot selected, corner of Elm and Walnut streets, and expect to have the subscriptions up to $25,000 by next Saturday.

The work of determining the accurate location of the line between Westfield and Fanwood is under way. H. C. VanEmburgh, of Plainfield, is working on one end of the line and L. C. Churchill, of Westfield surveyor's office, is working on the other end. The two parties will work to a meeting point.

SOMERVILLE.

V. J. Sisser and family have moved to the Raritan House, Raritan, recently purchased by Mr. Sisser.

Mrs. Arthur Beckner, of East Millstone, is entertaining her mother, from Hagerstown, Md.

Dr. Fred L. Brown, of New York, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Brown, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Welsh, of East Millstone, are visiting in Newark.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The members of the Boys' Athletic Association who have earned the right to wear the school insignia have been presented with their letters. It is customary to present the insignia at the Christmas exercises, but they were not ready at that time. Those who received their P. H. S. were James Lindzey, Franklyn Newell, Bruce Conlin, Walter Harrington, Edward Jenkins, Harold McDowell, John Denny, William Davenport, Edson Woodhull, Inon White, William Peacock, Frank Cullen, Jack Ricketts, Arthur VanZandt, Dixon Phillips and Arthur Grisley.

Frank Cullen who is a member in the course of public speaking at the High School, recited "The Slave's Remonstrance" before assembly yesterday morning. The selection was well presented.

REGULATIONS AFFECTING TEACHERS' CERTIFICATES.

Notices have been sent out by Commissioner Calvin N. Kendall, of the department of public instructions, informing county and city superintendents of two amendments to the rules which have been adopted by the State Board of Examiners and indorsed by the State Board of Education. The action of the examiners was as follows:

"Rule 12 shall read as follows: 'An applicant for any class of State certificate may between the dates of the regular examinations be granted a provisional certificate, valid until the last day of the second month following the date of the next regular examination.'

"Rule 20 shall read as follows: 'There shall be two examinations for State certificates each year. Said examinations shall be held on the last three Saturdays of April and the first three Saturdays of November, at places arranged for by the State Board of Examiners with the county and city superintendents of the respective counties and cities. Other examinations may be held by the State Board of Examiners at such times and places as said board may determine.'"

WASHINGTON, N. J., ASKS BETTER MAIL SERVICE.

Washington, N. J., business men are not satisfied with the early morning mail service to New York and points east of Washington, under the new schedule on the Lackawanna Railroad. At present the first mail is sent out at 6:10 a. m. and goes on the milk train is on time it connects the milk train is on time ti connects at Stroudsberg with a train over the cut-off. If, however, the milk train is late, which frequently happens, the mail is sent back over the first train, and may come back through Washington in order to get to New York.

A petition containing the names of nearly 100 men, representing the business interests of the community and the largest patrons of the office, which had postal receipts of more than $8,000 for the three months ending December 30, was presented to Postmaster J. E. Fulper yesterday. The petitioners request that the postmaster take up the matter with the postal auhorities for better service.

SHOW NEW BRUNSWICK FARM STATION SYSTEM.

A farmers' institute on wheels will visit thirty towns on the Pennsylvania Railroad's lines in Central and Southern Jersey this week. The "agricultural special" operated by the railroad company in co-operation with the State Board of Agriculture and the State Agricultural College, strated from Camden yesterday.

The itinerary provides for a six-day trip. Night sessions will be held at Allenwood Thursday and Flemington Friday. A feature of the train is the exhibit car.

The State authorities say that the principles of intensive farming can be better brought out by showing the farmers exactly what has been done at the experiment station at New Brunswick. The car contains apples and pears, with some packed for shipment, corn, alfalfa, poultry and poultry feed, nests, eggs packed for shipment, and printed charts showing results obtained at the experiment station.

SAYS 1912 WILL BE YEAR OF WAR

Mme. de Thebes of Paris Makes Direful Predictions.

EVIL DESTINY FOR ENGLAND.

Downfall of the Kaiser, Ruin of French Capital and Bloodshed in Spain Prophesied—Zadkiel of London Also Sees Danger.

Every year at this season there are anxiety and suspense among worldly, superstitious Parisians. Eagerly they ask one another, "What will she say?" Still more eagerly they continue, "When will she say it?" Then, their eagerness and impatience increasing, numbers of these particular Parisians visit a certain tranquil thoroughfare and strain their eyesight by staring up at the first floor windows of a certain tall house, but see nothing, for the windows are closely curtained.

And well may they be closely curtained, for behind them sits Mme. de Thebes, most celebrated of French soothsayers, also an ornament of smart Paris society. And as thus she sits, unapproachable, invisible, she is importantly engaged in casting the horoscope of the whole of the world and the whole of mankind for anno Domini 1912.

This year Mme. de Thebes has been later than usual in issuing her annual and international horoscope. But the delay is doubtless due to the overwhelming events that are going to happen in 1912, for 1912 is going to be lurid and sinister. Here, briefly, on the word of Mme. de Thebes, is the history of odious, atrocious 1912:

War, which will wreck Europe and other continents as well.
Conspiracies.
Assassinations.
Total ruin of Paris.
Downfall of the German emperor.
Riots.
Epidemics.
Evil destiny for England.
Fusillades and bloodshed in Spain.
Tears and misery elsewhere.

Zadkiel's Almanac, London's popular book of prophecy, is out, and it is unable to prophesy anything very favorable for the sovereigns of Europe. For the first four months of 1912 the kaiser will be busy with negotiations with his allies and other potentates and will find difficulty in keeping clear of entanglements and awkward controversies.

The czar and the king of Spain are threatened with some rather unpleasant experience of the power of old Saturn in or about the month of June.

As far as Great Britain is concerned, the sixpenny prophet states that the spring will be marked by political tumult and a serious risk of foreign warfare, consequent upon the breaking of a treaty binding upon Great Britain by a foreign power.

However, it will all end happily, because King George's horoscope is stronger and more fortunate than that of any other living monarch.

MODEL ARMY POST BUILDINGS

Regimental Instead of Company Barracks to Be Constructed at Hawaii.

Plans have been approved at the war department for the construction at Fort Schofield, Hawaii, of what officers of the general staff of the army believe will prove to be the most economical and satisfactory set of army post buildings ever built for the United States.

The plans embody the ideas of General Wood and other staff officers regarding concentration of buildings. The number of buildings will be one-twelfth of the usual number through the erection of regimental barracks instead of company barracks. Each regimental barracks will also include storehouse space in the one building. These have usually been separate buildings.

The new barracks will be in the form of a horseshoe, with a double line of buildings for officers' quarters extending down the center of the horseshoe. Instead of separate houses for each officer double houses will be built to accommodate three or four bachelor officers each. It is intended to discourage the practice of early marriages among the officers by providing quarters adequate and comfortable, but not so liberal as to form an inducement to early ventures in matrimony with resultant expense to the government.

The construction will be of re-enforced concrete throughout. The cost is expected to be about $500,000, which is said to be 50 per cent of the cost of constructing posts to accommodate a like number of officers and men in previous years.

China Breeding Horses.

The Chinese government has taken up the matter of breeding horses for general purposes and particularly for cavalry mounts. It is understood that the breeds introduced from Europe some time ago have not led to the desired improvement in the native animals. There are two strains of horses in northern China, the Mongolian, a small sized but very vigorous animal, and the Ilian, a tall, handsome horse much resembling its Arab and Persian relatives. It is thought that a proper crossing of these breeds will secure the desired strain.

Ortie E. McManigal arrived at Indianapolis and testified before the federal grand jury.

Four peasants were killed and twenty were wounded by soldiers in an uprising in Portugal.

It was decided at Dunfermline, the birthplace of Andrew Carnegie, to erect a statue in the latter's honor.

The armstice between Chinese imperialists and Republicans came to an end and some military operations were reported.

The Singer will contest began in New York, court being held in a hospital long enough to take the testimony of one of the witnesses.

Mayor Garynor, of New York, said he did not aspire to the Presidency and that he would give a good deal to be "let alone" in his present office.

John McNamara alias "Australia Mac," was arrested in New York on account of the theft of $375,000 from a Canadian bank last September.

An English suffragette, praising Asquith's firmness, said women were deserting the Pankhurst party in England because of its unnecessary violence.

The paying teller of a New York bank who had taken $2,200 when he stopped stealing ten months ago, went to police headquarters and surrendered.

Fighting occurred between the government forces and the revolutionists in Ecuador; Ecuadoreans were warned to desist from destroying American property.

Louis Martin, the New York restaurant man, was held for trial in Special Sessions for conducting professional dances in his place of business without a license.

A Jackson Day dinner was held in Washington, at which William J. Bryan, Governor Woodrow Wilson, Speaker Champ Clark and other Democratic leaders spoke.

Seven United States torpedo boat destroyers were reported safe in the Bermudas and one at Norfolk, Va., after Sunday's storm; two were unaccounted for, the Mayrant and the McCall.

Jerome H. Pratt testified at the trial of the Chicago packers that meetings to fix the prices of meats were held at homes of members after Judge Grosscup had ordered the packers' pool dissolved.

The plea of guilty of the Rev. C. V. T. Richeson was deferred until today; it was said Governor Foss and the Executive Council probably would be asked to commute the expected entence of death.

Justice Lehman, of New York, denied the motion of Charles H. Hyde for a change of venue declaring the defendant could have a fair trial, and saying the newspapers had not created an atmosphere of prejudice which might influence jurors.

Russia demanded the withdrawal of all Chinese from the seceded Chinese province of Outer Mongolia, the abandonment of all Chinese garrisons there and the discontinuance of Chinese colonization; she also expressed a desire to "assist" in the internal administration of China; the Peking government did not reply.

William Jennings Bryan made his fight in the Democratic National Committee meeting at Washington and lost; he made Colonel James M. Guffey, member of the committee from Pennsylvania, the issue, and the committee declined to unseat Colonel Guffey by a vote of 30 to 18; Mr. Bryan once appealed from a decision of Chairman Mack and was defeated 33 to 13.

Remove Bullet From Boy.

Stricken with intense pain in the abdomen, Robert McTernan, fourteen years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McTernan, of Morris turnpike, near Summit, who had been about his home with a bullet in his body for several weeks, was Sunday taken to Overlook Hospital, Summit, where the leaden pellet was removed. The bullet, which was fired into the boy by some unidentified hunter, while the lad was on his way to school six weeks ago, entered the left thigh. It was found in the bladder. The boy quickly recovered after the operation, and was taken to his home, where he is doing nicely.

An Opportunity to Save Money

This month we will make a clean cut in the price of the discontinued patterns and unmatched pieces of Furniture that has accumulated during the busy season. We have special offerings in all lines, BEDROOM, DINING-ROOM, LIVING-ROOM, and DEN. You will find something for every place in the home, and at prices that are below the real value.

We are not offering the kind of furniture that is usually bought or made up for a "SALE," but pieces taken from our regular stock of well made and finished Furniture and marked at a low price to close them out. There is a big variety of matched pieces as well as odd designs and all the popular Woods are represented, MAHOGANY, MAPLE, CIRCASSIAN WALNUT and OAK, in the GOLDEN AND EARLY ENGLISH finish.

May we have the pleasure of showing you no matter if you wish to purchase or not?

C. L. RILEY OFFICER OF A SUFFRAGE COMMITTEE.

A legislative committee was formed and officers elected at a meeting of suffragists representing the Men's League for Woman's Suffrage, the State Woman's Suffrage Association the Equal Franchise Society and the Woman's Political Union, held in Newark.

Those elected were the following: Chairman, Mrs. George T. Vickers, of Jersey City; secretary, Miss Paula Laddey, of Arlington; treasurer, Champlain L. Riley, of Plainfield.

It was decided that members should interview their own legislative representatives, and that some member should be appointed to keep in touch with affairs in Trenton.

Mrs. McKim Garrison of Llewellyn Park, will be asked to take charge of suffrage interests at the State capital.

Old Farmer's Odd Things.

Odd articles of farm use, such as hand-made plows and harrows, the handles of which were of cow horn, were disposed of at a public sale of the personal property of David Gass, of Washington, N. J., Mr. Gass, who is more than eighty years old, has been a familiar character of the town for nearly a third of a century. One of his most prized possessions is a vest he made from the hide of a spotted dog that was a farm pet for years.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

Governor Wilson's first annual message to the Legislature is remarkable in that it is the shortest State paper of the kind that has been submitted in years. It consists of but eight printed pages. Although brief it takes up the many subjects now being discussed by the people of the State so convincingly that there is no room left for doubt as to need of the reforms suggested.

There is an entire lack of partisanship in the suggestions, the Governor calling attention to the similarity of the platforms of the Republican and Democratic parties in his opening paragraph, and stating that it has "interested me very deeply to note that in recent years in this State the platforms of the two great parties, * * * have usually been in substantial agreement; so that one is encouraged to believe that our elections are not so much contests for party advantage, or aggrandizement, as for the opportunity to serve the people of the State—contests for the honor and satisfaction of accomplishing the reforms which the conditions obtaining in the State naturally suggest. If this is true, the winning party may count upon the co-operation of the minority in carrying out its platform program. When the legislative session opens we become colleagues in a common service, and our standard is not party advantage, but the welfare of New Jersey."

The first suggestion, that the number of State boards and commissions be greatly reduced, with an idea of increasing the efficiency of the service, and at the same time reducing the expense and doing away with much confusion, is splendid, and one that was proposed by his predecessor in a slightly different form. A large number of salaried and non-salaried boards could be done away with by creating departments of public works, public welfare and of conservation. The Legislature would do well to authorize the appointment of a commission, such as the Governor suggests, to thoroughly look into the matter.

In his treatment of the subject of taxation, Governor Wilson shows that he has thoroughly familiarized himself with the situation in the State in regard to the many and unwieldy boards which now have tax affairs in their control. There is nothing that needs greater reform in the administration of the government—local county and State—than does the tax situation. In some counties the men on the tax boards have been put there because of their political activity and some are absolutely incompetant. No Governor can personally look into the qualifications of every appointee, and the executives have been frequently imposed upon by Senators and others. Governor Wilson asks some very pointed questions, which probably no one can answer, and shows clearly how much "the whole matter needs reconsideration."

A single body to take charge of the various resources of the State and work out proper conservation methods is suggested, and a much needed reorganization of the administration methods of the various charitable and correctional institutions, with a commissioner who will be more than a figure head, is also proposed. This latter plan, the Governor proposes, should be worked out by forming a board similar to the State Board of Education created last winter with a salaried head and a "small, responsible board" to advise with the active heads of the various institutions. There is no better suggestion than this in the whole message and if it is carried out and the new head given power to do the purchasing for all institutions, it will result in a great saving to the State.

Immediate construction of the women's reformatory, for which land has been purchased in Hunterdon county; creation of a more effective department of health; thorough changes in the methods of court procedure, and in the drawing of grand juries; further factory inspection, and the passage of a railroad "full crew" bill; the abolition of grade crossings under the direction of the Utility Commission, and changes in the road law to make administration of the department more effective are other topics ably discussed.

The Governor also urges the presentation of the people of a constitutional amendment which will provide for Assembly districts, in place of the present county delegations. This opportunity was offered three years ago and the people voted it down by a big majority. There is little agitation of the subject now, although the suggested method is the only one which assures true representative government.

As a splendid paper on the important needs of the State, we commend the entire message, which appears elsewhere in this issue, to the careful consideration of our readers.

THRILL OF POLITICS STIRS CIVICS CLASS

Dramatic Features of Statesmanship and Government Drawn by Miss Philbrook.

URGES STUDY OF EUGENICS

Women Must Take the Leading Part, Lecturer Holds, In Conserving "The Right to Be Well Born"—Next Lecture February 12.

The women who braved the storm to attend the meeting of the civic class at the rooms of the Equal Suffrage League, yesterday afternoon, when Miss Mary Philbrook gave an admirable lecture on "Government," were well repaid. Heretofore, the class has possibly found the subject of its chosen study a trifle dull, but under Miss Philbrook's masterly treatment yesterday the women became thoroughly aroused to the dramatic and vital interest that attaches to the game of politics and to governmental form.

The class had previously been asked to inform itself as to the men who represented New Jersey in the national and State Legislatures, and also as to the length of their terms and the legislation passed by the session of 1911 affecting Plainfield and North Plainfield. In this connection Miss Philbrook read two interesting letters. One was from former Assemblyman Calvin E. Brodhead concerning some of the bills that were passed and others that were defeated in which he and other citizens generally were most interested, and the other from Dr. Henry M. Maxson on the question of school legislation.

In pleading for an awakened and continued interest in all legislation, Miss Philbrook laid great stress upon the importance of the study of eugenics and insisted that in the study women must take the leading part. "The right to be well born is the coming problem of the day," she asserted.

In response to an inquiry from Miss Mary Philbrook, regarding the question of school legislation, Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield Public Schools, has written the former setting forth his ideas on the subject and making suggestions. The letter, which was read at the meeting of the Civic Class of the Equal Suffrage League, yesterday afternoon, follows:

"In the brief time I have had to give consideration to the question of school legislation, which you raise in your letter, I have not been able to find much to suggest to you.

"You probably are aware that our school system had very marked revision, you might almost say revolution, at the last session of the Legislature. Nearly all of the measures were, in my judgment, a step in advance. They provide for a commissioner with a salary to command the best talent the country affords, with three new deputies, (which we have greatly needed) one for high schools, one for elementary schools, and one for the broad field of industrial education. This latter I think holds out every promise if the right man is secured, for there is room for greater unification, and perhaps elimination, and also extension or broadening in the work done in our city schools. There is also a wide field of opportunity in the country communities, in the way of establishing central schools that shall be not only school centers but social, agricultural and community centers, building up the neighborhood as an organized civic center.

"One measure of the law is a step backward; that which provides for uniform examinations in all school districts for admission to the high school. This means that no pupil in my grammar grades, for instance, can be promoted to the high school until he has possed an examination set by the officials of Trenton. This will inevitably result in keeping more or less pupils out of the high school that would benefit by attendance there. I never permit the advancement or non-advancement of any pupil to depend solely on his examination. If he can pass the examination, that is pretty conclusive proof that the pupil should go on, but failure to pass the examination is by no means conclusive that he ought to stay back. This law prevents the school authorities from advancing any one to the high school on trial, as is done in most schools to the advantage of many pupils.

"That part of the law which provides for wiping out present Boards of Education and substituting in their place Boards of Nine, to be appointed by the Mayor, was excellent in the matter of creating smaller boards. On general principles, the smaller the board, the better. The Plainfield board has but five mem-was as follows:

"Fellow Senators:

"My deep appreciation of the very high honor which you have conferred upon me I shall endeavor to show by an impartial and conscientious conduct of the Senate throughout this session. To the Republican members my gratitude shall be demonstrated by an unswerving loyalty to the basic principles of those policies in and by which our party has lived and triumphed in the nation for more than forty years.

"It seems timely to mention with a word of warning the growing tendency which has shown itself all over our country of late years to ignore the original intention of the fathers of the National and State constitutions with respect to the character and functions of legislative bodies. The founders of the American Republic clearly meant such assemblies to be representative and consequently deliberative. In these days, however, we hear advocated, often from sources whence we should least expect it, the heresy that the legislator should be reduced from his noble constitutional status as a real representative to that of a mere delegate. Such a man must enter his law-making body soleiy as a mouth-piece, pledged before election to every vagary of the hour, hedged in on every side and thus shorn of the right to use his experiense, his mental power and even his conscience with regard to many questions of importance. This system is subversive of all true American ideas of representation and shows, in those sections of the country where it is in use, a striking lack of confidence on the part of the electorate in the ability and judgment of their candidates. We have in New Jersey at present an excellent law which provides that the legislative representatives of a party shall meet after election and with due discussion and deliberation formulate a policy. This is not only a proper method of agreeing upon pledges but is consistent with common sense and in perfect accord with the original American theory of representation. The best political service can surely not be had by means of the new doctrine of legislation by the direction action of the voters and equally surely would the general acceptance of this theory of socialistic democracy kill the deliberative character of legislative assemblies.

"I say this to you not because I think that our Senate is in imminent danger of being dominated in this manner, but simply because this kind of doctrine is in the air all about us.

"The policy adopted by the last Republican legislative convention and since then amplified and expound by the recent conference of the Republican members of this Legislature is too well known for me to enlarge upon now. I trust that the general principles therein laid down may be successfully carried out, but I think we should also remember that radical alterations in the practices of a commonwealth such as have been already wrought in this State should be followed by a period of legislative adjustment rather than by the heaping up of further changes. I believe it is our duty this year to adjust rather than to innovate further, in order that the voters of New Jersey may have a period for political digestion before they are again entangled in the meshes of complicated and puzzling legislation. I venture to hope therefore, that we shall have a business-like session not flooded as has been the custom in past years with a multitude of new laws to add to the already vast list of our statutes.

"I recommend to the Senate the creation of a new committee to be entitled 'the Committee on Highways,' whose function it shall be to deal with this class of growing legislation which is of such vital importance to the State at large."

The other principal officers then chosen, all being Republicans, of course, were as follows: Secretary, Francis B. Davis, of Gloucester county; assistant secretary, Edwin Nichols, of Cumberland; sergeant-at-arms, Guadaloupe A. Holl, of Mercer; assistant sergeant-at-arms, Joseph Fitzga, of Somerset county; journal clerk, John W. Clift, of Union county; calendar clerk, Tuttle C. Walker, Atlantic; bill clerk, Charles C. Bohm, Cape May county. The oath of office was administered to Secretary Davis. Then a committee of three Senators was appointed to wait upon Governor Wilson and inform him that the Senate had organized and was ready to receive any communications from him. A similar committee was appointed to proceed to the Assembly and inform it that the Senate had formally organized.

At this juncture Sergeant-at-arms Holl announced Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the Governor, who presented the Governor's first annual message. It was read and the usual number of copies ordered printed. A communication was received from the Assembly that it had organized and was ready for business. President Prince announced the list of committees for the session and this completed the organization:

The Assembly was called to order by Judge Daniel A. Dugan, Democrat, of Orange, clerk of the last House, who presided during the temporary organization. The roll was called and the sixty members presented their certificates of election. Then the oath of office was administered to them. They included Messrs. Babcock, Otto and Groves, of Union county. All the members stood at their respective desks and, with right hands uplifted, swore to support the State Constitution, the United States Constitution and properly to perform the duties of the office. Each member was required to sign the oath, which had been engrossed for the purpose. The formal organization followed.

Thomas P. McCran, of Passaic, was nominated by the Republicans as their candidate for Speaker, and was elected by a party vote. He was escorted to the chair and in accepting the honor made a brief speech.

It was in part os follows:

Fellow members of the 136th Assembly:

"To members of the majority of this House I am most grateful for their act of confidence in me, and I shall, I believe, best evidence my appreciation by an unswerving loyalty to the principles of that great party of which we have the honor to be members.

"With the policy which the majority have recently outlined to the people I am in hearty accord. To carry out that policy each Republican member must do his part. In recent years the sessions of the Legislature have been unduly and unnecessarily prolonged. The two principal causes of this have been want of expedition in committee work and failure on the part of members to meet promptly. The former cause we can eliminate by slight effort and by setting aside Tuesday morning for committee work alone, the House to have no session on that morning; the latter can be remedied by the chair calling the House to order promptly at the time fixed for convening and insisting upon the attendance of the members at roll call. This I shall do."

By a strict party vote, the following Republican officers were then elected: Clerk, former Assistant Clerk Upton S. Jefferys, of Camden; assistant clerk, former Assemblyman Gillen, of Essex; journal clerk, Donald H. McLean, of Union; assistant journal clerk, Harry J. Gratton, of Mercer; supervisor of bills, Wallace Zeliff, of Essex; assistant supervisors of bills, Charles Trexler, of Essex, and VanVorst Wells, of Bergen; sergeant-at-arms, John Flavell, of Essex; assistant sergeant-at-arms, Theodore Kunkely, of Atlantic, and Louis E. Kurtz, of Cumberland; bill clerk, Richard J. Chaplin, of Morris; assistant bill clerk, William R. Swan, of Essex.

Committees were appointed by the Speaker to notify the Governor and the Senate that the Assembly had completed its organization and was ready to proceed to business. A communication was received from the Senate that it had organized.

Governor Wilson's message was presented by Secretary Tumulty and was read by the Clerk and ordered printed. Speaker McCran announced the Assembly committees.

The usual minor routine resolutions were introduced and passed and this completed the work of organization for the session of 1912.

Former Overseer of the Poor Alexander Ayers was among those to share in the distribution of plums in the Senate. He was made assistant bill clerk for that body. Charles Knudsen, of Kenilworth, was appointed file clerk of the Senate. Senator Pierce was given a page but he has not made his appointment as yet. In the House, the assistant supervisor of bills and a doorkeeper were alloted to the Union county delegation. Both appointees are from Elizabeth.

Senate Closely Divided.

The party majority in the Senate, eleven Republicans to ten Democrats, has not been so close since 1894, when the political complexion of this branch was the same as now. For this reason the Senate will be the chief battleground of the session. The State Constitution provides that no measure can pass without a majority vote of all the members, hence every one of the eleven Republican votes will be needed to get any measure through. This makes the delicacy of the situation apparent.

The Assembly has passed from the Democratic control of 42 to 18 last year, into Republican hands, thus giving the latter party a majority of 15 on joint ballot. In the executive chair of the State site a Democratic Governor who aspires to be President of the United States, and with the legislative session facing a Presidential campaign which already promises to be one of the fiercest in the country's history, this session of the Legislature is expected to furnish one of the sternest political battles in many years on Jersey soil. On the Republican side there will be the struggle to win every possible advantage for the sake of the vote next November. The Republican State leaders are bending every effort that there shall be no party sins of omission nor commission that shall throw this State into the Democratic column. The Democrats in the Wilson camp are not only fronting the Republican opposition, but enemies in their own party ranks. Without a doubt, these elements will combine to make the struggle which began today a remarkable one.

If the Republican members of the Legislature and the party leaders persist in their present frame of mind, the session bids fair to be a Republican record breaker in the way of good behaviour and the keeping of party pledges. This is apparent from the fact that the Republicans already have drafted for early introduction bills covering many reforms and meeting the platform promises.

Body Found by General Porter Not That of John Paul Jones?

Declaration Made In Book by an Authority on Historical Portraiture.

Hart's Findings Are Based on Measurements of Two Busts by Houdon.

CHARLES HENRY HART of Philadelphia, who ranks as an authority on American historical portraiture, has reopened the controversy as to whether it was the body of John Paul Jones that was discovered in Paris on April 14, 1905, by General Horace Porter, then ambassador to France.

This body, escorted by a squadron of warships under command of Rear Admiral Sigsbee, reached the Naval academy at Annapolis on July 24 of that year, and on April 24, 1906, was given sepulture in Bancroft hall with great ceremony.

In a book that has just been published Mr. Hart makes categorical denial that this could have been the body of John Paul Jones. The book, entitled "Memoirs of the Life and Works of Jean Antoine Houdon, Sculptor of Voltaire and Washington," has been intended by its author for private circulation.

One chapter of the book is devoted to Mr. Hart's denial of the authenticity of General Porter's discovery. The subject finds a place because the identification of the body was based, in important particulars, on extraordinary coincidences in measurements of the skull and of busts of Jones by Houdon. It is against this verification that Mr. Hart directs his protest. The first of these busts was made in 1781 and the second in 1784, eight years before Jones' death.

General Porter declares that Mr. Hart's assertions are "absurd and silly."

Body In Leaden Casket.

The account of the John Paul Jones commemoration at Annapolis on April 24, 1906, published by the government, gives first importance to the data obtained from Houdon's busts. In this account General Porter's report of his five years' search for the body, which ended with positive identification by a group of French scientists on April 14, 1905, is embodied. This report says:

"Two circumstances combined to render the identification of the remains comparatively easy—the remarkable state of preservation of the body (which was found in a leaden casket filled with alcohol) and the abundance of accurate information in existence descriptive of the dead.

"To furnish the anthropologists with the required data there was obtained permission to make all the desired measurements of the Houdon bust of Paul Jones, a little more than three-quarter size, owned by the Marquis de Biron, a very artistic work, representing the admiral in court dress with the hair curled in rolls upon the temples. These rolls were identical with those found on the body.

"There was procured from the Trocadero museum a copy of the other well known bust of Paul Jones by Houdon, one of the most accurate works of the famous sculptor, who was also an admirer of his subject. It was found more useful for the purpose of making the comparative measurements on account of its being life size. James Madison in a letter dated April 28, 1835, says, 'His bust by Houdon is an exact likeness, portraying well the characteristic features.'

"Dr. Papillault with his delicate instruments made all the necessary measurements of the head, features, length of body, etc., and found them so entirely exact as to be convinced that the busts were made from the subject before him. The greatest differences between any of the comparative measurements were only two millimeters, about seven-hundredths of an inch."

Said the Features Agreed.

The official certification of the American embassy and consulate of the identification sets forth that the "agreement of all the important features of the body and the Houdon bust was singularly exact."

Dr. Papillault, assistant director of the laboratory of anthropology of the Ecole des Hautes Etudes, in his official report of his examination of the body said:

"The dimensions of the bust, life size, by Houdon, are exactly those of the body. The comparison is therefore easier than if the bust had been of a reduced size. Thus all the measurements offer an approximation truly extraordinary. Two experienced anthropologists measuring the same subject would often make as great differences. Thus I could not hope to find between a bust and its model a similar identity.

"I recollect having measured some years ago a cast of the head of Blanqui and the statue which Dalou made from that same cast. Dalou was a very precise and conscientious artist, using and even abusing, as his colleagues said, the caliper compass. I found differences greater than in this case.

"I have not been able to take up any characteristics the divergence of which was sufficiently marked to waive the identification of the bust and the body. Without forgetting that doubt is the first quality of all investigators and that the utmost circumspection should be observed in such matters I am obliged to conclude that all the observations which I have been able to make plead in favor of the following conclusion: 'The body examined is that of Admiral John Paul Jones.'"

The "second" bust of Jones, which was the one used in the identification of the body, is known as the "Philadelphia" bust, because it was made at the order of Philadelphia admirers of "the intrepid Paul." It is now in the National Academy of Design, New York, the measurements used in Paris having been secured from the replica in the Trocadero. The "first" bust was made by Houdon at the order of the Freemason lodge of the Nine Sisters, Paris, and was exhibited at the salon of 1781.

Houdon, who was born in 1741 and died in 1828, had many American friends. In 1779 he made the bust of Franklin which is now in the Louvre, and in 1785 he came to the United States with Franklin to make for the state of Virginia the statue of Washington which now stands in the capitol at Richmond. To obtain his data he spent two weeks at Mount Vernon, although completing the work in France. This statue is signed "Fait par Houdon, citoyen Francais, 1788."

Hunt an Idol Smasher.

Other famous works which bear his name are the draped statue of Voltaire in the vestibule of the Theatre Francais, the Cicero in the Luxembourg Plaza and the Diana which he made for Catherine II. of Russia. This was refused by the salon because it was undraped, but is now in the Louvre. A bronze replica made by Houdon himself belonged to Charles T. Yerkes. At the sale of his works of art this replica brought $51,000.

Mr. Hart, who has now become the historian of Houdon, has written critically since 1885. He practiced law in Philadelphia until 1894, when a railway accident incapacitated him for further activity. Since that time he has devoted himself to research and criticism. He has always had a liking for assailing popular artistic idols and in 1903 published "Frauds In Historical Portraiture." Five years later he upset the accepted notion that Benjamin West was a Quaker.

In 1907 Mr. Hart denied the authenticity of two of the Gilbert Stuart portraits in the Metropolitan museum, New York. The portraits in question were those of Don Josef de Jaudenes y Nebot, first Spanish minister to the United States, and of Dona Matilde Stoughton de Jaudenes. Mr. Hart offered his denial directly to Sir Caspar Purdon Clarke, going into great detail. The controversy that followed lasted for a long time and attained international proportions.

SHIPS PLANNED FOR CANAL.

Six Will Be Ready by Time Panama Waterway Is Opened.

Six large, fast steamers will be in readiness to inaugurate a new passenger line between Valparaiso, Chile, and New York when the Panama canal is completed. This information has been received at the Pan-American union and was interpreted as meaning that a new era of communication between the United States and the Latin American countries of the western hemisphere would dawn with the opening of the waterway.

According to the advices, the South American Steamship company will begin construction of the vessels at once in order that the new service may start simultaneously with the canal opening. American shipbuilders, it is declared, will be given opportunity to bid for the construction of the vessels.

Electric Chair For Cats and Dogs.

An electric chair similar to the ones used for executing murderers is to be installed by the Newport (R. I.) Animal Refuge to end the lives of stray cats and dogs.

GREAT-GRANDMOTHER AT 47.

Mrs. Conklin Heads Family In Which Early Marriages Have Been Rule.

Early marriage seems to run in the feminine ancestry and progeny of Mrs. Hazel Conklin of Denver, who at the age of forty-seven years finds herself a great-grandmother. The fourth generation of the family of which she is the maternal head, was born to her granddaughter, Mrs. Lydia Rauch, recently. Mrs. Conklin was married at Memphis, Tenn., when fourteen years old and in opposition to the wishes of her mother, who herself was no older when she was married.

Mrs. Conklin's first daughter, Mrs. Mildred F. Ferguson, was married at the age of sixteen, and now is a grand mother at thirty-four. Her daughter, Lydia Rauch, was married at fifteen.

Barrett to Tour the Americas.

John Barrett, director of the pan American union, has decided to make an eight months' tour of the Latin American republics. Leaving Washington about May 1, he will visit all of the twenty republics which are members of the union.

GOV. WILSON'S MESSAGE

party benefit. I am glad to think, therefore, that the matters to which I shall call your attention do not lie within the field of party debate. They are matters which we can approach without party bias or prejudice. Whatever differences of judgment may arise with regard to them, they need have no flavor of party feeling about them.

At the last session we united in effecting reforms obviously necessary and long desired, upon which opinion in the state had for many years been centered, but did not address ourselves at all to certain other large questions no less necessary to deal with, which public opinion has not definitely fixed upon, simply because of their complexity and of the fact that only those who can view them from the inside can fully appreciate how vital they are to the integrity and serviceability of the state's government. I mean questions of efficiency and economy. We can get at the heart of these if we choose, and we could not render the state a greater service than by doing so. Without the very best administrative organization the government of the state cannot be administered with entire integrity or with full and candid responsibility to the people, for unless it is efficient and responsible it is in constant danger of becoming corrupt. Wastefulness and inefficiency are themselves virtually forms of graft. They afford fruitful opportunities for every kind of abuse.

Plea For Economy.

It is to questions of efficiency and economy, therefore, that I first invite your serious attention.

The government of New Jersey, like the governments of most of the older states, has developed on its administrative side, not systematically, but by patchwork and mere accretion, by the multiplication of boards and commissions, by the addition of first this piece and then that piece to existing departments. There has been constant addition, no subtraction, no elimination, no co-ordination. It has grown very much as the statehouse itself has grown, but without the necessity of at least some semblance of architectural unity, without the connecting corridors and the common roof which the statehouse must of mere physical necessity be given.

The number and variety of state boards and commissions is utterly confusing. One wonders why there might not be, for example, a department of public works in which would be assembled all the functions affecting roads, parks, bridges and waterways, now divided up among a half dozen boards and commissions, permanent and temporary; why a department of public welfare might not serve as a means of co-ordinating and simplifying the supervision of the public health, the examination of practitioners of medicine, the inspection of tenement houses, of mills and factories and the enforcement of the laws against child labor; why a department of conservation might not combine the work now scattered among numerous bodies concerning the preservation of fish and game, the supervision and regulation of the oyster industry, the safeguarding of the water supply and the disposition of the riparian rights of the state? Why should every oyster bed have a commission of its own? It is necessary to bring order out of this chaotic miscellany, not merely to have the satisfaction of conducting the business of the state in a businesslike and efficient way, but to prevent waste and forestall abuses of many kinds. I suggest, therefore, the constitution by law of a commission, not too large, to act promptly and harmoniously, to take into consideration the whole question of simplifying and co-ordinating the administrative agencies of the state in order that they may be put upon the best possible basis of economy and efficiency. In my judgment the majority of the commission should be experienced and trusted business men, and they should have the benefit of the advice of men who have made a special study of scientific efficiency in practical administration. It should report to the legislature at as early a date as possible. Its report would serve to concentrate public opinion upon one of the most vital matters of government, whether looked at from the point of view of purity or of serviceability, and with public criticism centered upon a particular scheme or reorganization, satisfactory legislation could readily be obtained.

Should Include Tax Reform.

The scope of this commission's inquiry ought to be so wide as to include our whole method of assessing and equalizing taxes. You have only to examine the reports of our state tax boards to realize how unsatisfactory our present methods are. It is not enough that there should be boards to which individuals can resort to remedy inequalities in taxation and assessment. Powers of correction fall short of accomplishing what ought to be accomplished. Uniform standards ought to be established upon the initiative and authority of some central board of supervision. That body ought to have independent and exclusive powers of reclassification within certain general limits defined in the law. In several states of the Union—in Wisconsin, for example, and in Massachusetts—commissions of this kind have been set up with exceedingly satisfactory results, whose powers are powers of active supervision and through whose instrumentality inequalities and inequities are being corrected upon a definite plan, not in individual cases only, not merely for the persons who can afford to appeal and protest, but by systematic means and upon the initiative of the commission itself.

You have only to ask the average taxpayer whom you meet on the street what he thinks of the assessments to which he is subjected to find how many varieties of assessment there are in the state. You have only to examine the average tax assessor's books to discover how little system there is and how little he actually knows of the property he assesses. How many of the tax districts in the state are mapped and plotted? How many assessors can produce definite evidence and data to support their assessments? Undertake to debate with men from half a dozen counties the question whether we should continue to maintain our present system of county tax boards and you will at once discover that in some counties they are valued and deemed efficient; in others smiled at and regarded as entirely unnecessary and unwarrantably expensive. Have the state board of assessors and our state board for the equalization of taxes powers that can bring a satisfactory system out of these varieties and confusions? If they have not, somebody should have, for the whole matter needs reconsideration.

Along with this systematic reconsideration of our methods of assessments and taxation should go a very thorough examination of our tax system itself, its basis and principle. Perhaps we shall be in a better position after making our machinery suitable and adequate to discover the weak places in the bases of taxation. Sooner or later we shall be obliged to examine them to the bottom.

Are we systematic? Have we properly combined our instrumentalities and adequately equipped them with authority in the great matter of the conservation of our naturally splendid and abundant resources? Conservation is not a matter which can now be satisfactorily handled by an occasional act of legislation. We must hit upon a system, and somebody in particular must be charged with the responsibility of administering it—not a half dozen different bodies or even two or three, but some one body served and assisted by the constant and intelligent advice of experts. This great matter, too, should be brought within the scope of inquiry, which I earnestly urge you to authorize and provide for. I do not mean that immediate individual steps toward conservation cannot be taken by statute, but that we must hereafter depend upon system, not upon the casual vigilance of individual legislators.

One important matter of administration can be and should be taken up at once and promptly provided for by legislation. I mean the administration of the charitable and correctional institutions of the state. These institutions have been established and developed in entire separateness. There nowhere exists any authority which can co-ordinate them or bring them into practical and serviceable co-operation. Their inmates cannot be reclassified or redistributed if once, by any mistake, they have been wrongly placed or if they develop in a way not looked for when they were sent for treatment or segregation to a particular institution. The result is that individual institutions are authorized to do several kinds of work at once, for some of which they were not intended and are, therefore, not equipped. They very properly have their separate establishments under separate boards of managers, but these boards and the superintendents of the several institutions should be brought into co-operation and a comprehensive system of charity and correction made possible, which will increase efficiency and prevent waste and ineffectual effort. This can be done by a reform very similar to that so fortunately effected last winter in the administration of our state system of schools, by granting proper supervisory authority to the commissioner of charities and correction and associating with him a small, responsible board, which may in turn, together with the commissioner, advise with the superintendents and directors of the various institutions. Other states have already shown us the way in this important reform of organization, and we should feel impelled to take it by reasons of humanity as well as of efficiency and economy.

Reformatory For Women.

In this connection I would urge very strongly upon the legislature the need of a reformatory for women. A suitable site has already been chosen in Hunterdon county, near Clinton, and purchased by the authority of the state, and men and women whom the whole state knows and trusts have prepared plans for an institution for which all recognize the immediate need.

There is another matter which should no longer be left at loose ends without thorough reorganization. I mean the supervison of the health of the state. I intend no criticism of our excellent board of health, but only repeat the testimony of its own members when I say that our present means for safeguarding the health of the state are entirely inadequate. It is not generally realized how vast, complicated and difficult a matter it has become since we began to perceive what it is really the duty of the state to do for the health of its people. Every sort of infection must be guarded against. A costly war must be waged on the mosquito and the housefly, those active breeders of disease. The dissemination of poisonous gases from factories, from locomotive engines and from the vast bodies of smoke which pervade our cities must be prevented. The dairy business must be sharply supervised along with cold storage and the handling of foodstuffs in the markets. Oyster beds must be inspected and guarded against pollution. The adulteration of foods must be prevented. There must be some thorough and efficient system of keeping our lakes and streams from pollution. Sewage must be supervised and properly regulated. Systematic war must be made with such diseases as tuberculosis, and the state must be guarded against the introduction of fatal epidemics from every quarter. Garbage collection and disposal must be systematized and regulated. Thorough inspection must be carried into a score of places where disease is most likely to originate. Have we the machinery for these great tasks? Have we made sure of the service of experts, doctors, engineers, biologists, whose advice will enable us to feel that we have done our duty by the people of the state in all the important matter of the conservation of their lives and health? Is it not our duty to consider very carefully and at once the creation of a thoroughly effective department of health?

The duty of the state to make every service it renders the people efficient, responsible and economical, seems to be one of the first and most manifest duties of government. Next to that is the duty in a self governed country of making the representative body from which legislation proceeds in fact representative, as nearly as possible a mirror of the character and opinion of the communities of which the state is composed. It seems to me of the first consequence, therefore, that the promise we have made the people of the state, that we would at once take the initial steps necessary to effect a return to a system of assembly districts in place of county delegations to the legislature should be redeemed and that a constitutional amendment for that purpose should be submitted to the vote of the people at the earliest possible time.

It is equally imperative, as it seems to me, that the use of the courts of justice by the people should be simplified and facilitated. Our legal procedure is too technical, too complicated, too expensive, too little adapted to the use of the poor and unschooled. With splendid courts of undoubted integrity, we nevertheless feel that the rich litigant can tire the poor litigant out and that the common run of men have good reason to dread litigation and doubt its outcome. We are proud of our bench; why should we not put ourselves in a position to be equally proud of our administration of justice as based upon the best reformed models? A little expert advice will put us in a way to discover the right legislation for this purpose, without waiting for amendments of the constitution. It is not the courts we wish to change so much as the methods of procedure.

Wants Jury Reform.

Both parties are pledged also to take up the matter of jury reform, to consider in particular the methods by which grand juries are chosen, in order to devise if possible a process of choice by which abuses of a serious kind which have arisen to the scandal of public opinion may hereafter be prevented. I commend this deeply important subject to your very earnest consideration.

We have done much toward securing justice and safety for the workingmen of the state in our factory laws, our tenement house legislation and our employers' liability act, but we have not done enough. Our workmen very justly demand further legislation with regard to the inspection and regulation of factories and workshops, and I recommend legislation of this kind to your very careful and earnest consideration. I recommend, moreover, the passage at an early date of an act requiring the railways operating within this state to provide their trains with adequate crews. Our sister state of Pennsylvania has adopted legislation of this kind, and the railways whose lines cross from Pennsylvania into New Jersey actually carry full crews to the border of this state and then send their trains on through New Jersey with diminished crews, to the jeopardy, as I believe, of life and property, requiring more of the small crew than it can safely and thoroughly do.

The abolition of grade crossings, too, as rapidly as possible under the direction of the board of public utilities commissioners is an imperative necessity if the lives of our citizens are to be properly safeguarded. However difficult it may be to effect the changes needed in this matter, I feel it to be a question of the very greatest moment. The loss of life at grade crossings in this state has been very great, quite inexcusably great, and there is no reform which public opinion more clearly or more justly demands than this.

Possibly it is not necessary to draw your attention to this important matter to which the public opinion of the state has been now for so long a time turned. It is not to be wondered at that opinion has grown very critical and very impatient of the delay in dealing with it.

The report of the commissioner of public roads urges some changes in the road law, for which I bespeak your very careful consideration. They are intended to render the present system of administration more efficient, to remove the care of improved roads entirely from politics and to establish a definite system of highways. The changes in the conditions of road traffic in recent years certainly render many alterations in the existing law very desirable, if not imperative.

These are all matters of serious business, and if will be a great pleasure to me to be associated with you in trying to fulfill our obligations in regard to them in a manner that will satisfy the just expectation of those who have intrusted to our care the interests and the welfare of this great state.

POLITICS STIRS CIVICS CLASS

bers, holding office for a term of five years, one member changing each year, the members being elected at large. This is the plan that receives the most general endorsement by students of education, particularly for smaller cities. It would have been a misfortune to our city if the new law had deprived it of this distinctive feature which gives it a better outlook than practically all the other cities in the State.

"That part of the new law which provides for appointnve boards, instead of elective boards, is probably a good measure in the larger cities. A Board of Education ought to be absolutely divorced from politics, appointed with a view to obtaining the best men that the city can furnish, who will consider nothing but his highest good of the children in their administration. It is difficult to secure this in the larger cities, where the members of the board are put forward and elected by political parties.

"The law was unnecessarily harmful in various particulars, in some cases removing Boards of Education that were already of nine members, appointed by the Mayor, just as the law requires. This part of it was unfortunate. The law as a whole, I believe, will work to the great good of the New Jersey school system."

ANDREW E. KENNEY HEAD OF THE BORO HEALTH BOARD

Andrew E. Kenney, of Watchung avenue, was chosen president of the North Plainfield Board of Health at the annual meeting and election of officers last night. Dr. A. H. Dundon was re-elected secretary-treasurer and registrar of vital statistics, and Louis H. Olliff was re-appointed inspector. J. V. E. Vanderhoef, the member appointed to fill the place on the board created by J. O. Osgood's declination of a re-appointment, was present and took his seat.

Mr. Osgood's decision not to accept another appointment necessitated the selection of a new president for the first time in several years. Regret was expressed by the other members that he found it impossible to continue. Mr. Kenney assumes the office well equipped by his years of service as a member of the board. He was appointed during the term of Mayor Samuel R. Townsend for four years. Like his predecessor, Mr. Kenney is a Democrat.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer and inspector indicated that North Plainfield is in a very satisfactory condition as to health. The death rate for the past year was the lowest yet recorded and there were fewer cases of tontagious disease, with the exception of typhoid fever, than for a number of years. The reason for the typhoid epidemic was not local as it was universal throughout the country in different sections.

Thrown Out, Sleigh Wrecked.

The runner of a sleigh driven by Edward L. Hand, of Scotch Plains, was caught in the car track at Watchung avenue and Third street today, causing the cutter to overturn. Mr. Hand was thrown out and the horse ran away with the overturned sleight. Horse and sleigh parted company at Front street and Wat-Watchung avenue.

BOARD OF HEALTH'S REPORT

President Murray Advocates Increased Systematized Inspections—Emphasizes the Need of Municipal Collection of Ashes and Garbage.

The twenty-third annual report of the Board of Health, just completed, is prefaced by a brief summary by Dr. William H. Murray, the president, who calls attention to several matters of importance. He says that during the year it was necessary to close several houses, which were condemned, and is of the opinion that this work must be continued, with a systematic inspection of various localities.

With the aid of the Anti-Tuberculosis League the board has been enabled to conduct a more vigorous campaign. Dr. Murray also emphasizes the importance of having a municipal system for the disposal of garbage, ashes and rubbish.

Dr. Murray states that the board decided to employ its own physician and Dr. J. H. Carman was appointed April 15 to serve in that capacity, with excellent results, especially regarding an examination of people accompanying traveling shows and circuses. Attention is also called to the importance of safeguarding the local water supply from every possible source of contagion.

Fred W. Dunn, the retiring treasurer, presents the following summary: Receipts, balance, December 31, 1910, $793.60; appropriation from Common Council, $7,500; fees and fines, $965.25; disbursements, general expenses, $7,620.21; fees and fines paid to city treasurer, $965.25, total, $585.46; petty cash fund, $25; bank balance, December 30, 1911, $648.39.

Dr. J. H. Carman, medical inspector, reported a total of 175 inspections and examinations. The greater part of the report is taken up by Health Officer John O'Brien, who covers every phase of the work. He calls attention to the fact that the laboratory work was enlarged providing for the examination of cultures. This work is in charge of Carl T. Pomeroy, sanitary inspector and bacteriologist. Since March 1,192 cultures have been examined.

The work of revising the sanitary code progressed during the year, many changes bein gmade which included the licensing of manicuring, hair-dressing, shampooing and chiropodist establishments. Attention was also given to the subject of burning leaves.

Mr. O'Brien emphasizes the importance of having a system for the collection and disposal of garbage and waste, and urges that the Common Council act in the matter. The death rate was lower than it has been for fifteen years and over 35 per cent. of the total deaths were of persons over sixty years of age.

The number of cases of communicable disease reported was also unusually low. The total number of inspections made during the year was 7,247. The method used in the report for estimating the population is that adopted by the Government in compiling census reports, thus standardizing the records and making records more accurate.

The report states that the estimated population of Plainfield for 1911 is 21,445 and that the 197 marriages represent a rate of 9.19 per thousand population. Of the total number 155 couples were white and 42 were colored. The birth rate was 23.50, there being 504 birts, of which 464 were white and 40 colored; 234 were male and 270 female. There were 26 still-births.

A total of 296 deaths were reported, which number 21 were non-residents. If these were deducted the death rate would be decreased from 13.80 to 12.36. 251 of the number reported were white and 45 colored; 150 male and 146 female. The ages were divided as follows: Under one month, 20; under one year, 22; one year to five years, 17; five to twenty years, 20; twenty to forty years, 54; forty to sixty years, 59; over sixty years, 104.

There were 295 cases of communicable disease reported and a total of 34 deaths, of which 89 were tuberculosis from which there were 27 deaths. There were 23 cases of typhoid fever and in addtion seven imported cases with five deaths.

The 89 cases of tuberculosis was the largest number ever reported in one year and the number of deaths from that disease the smallest in one year. This year special inspections are to be made with a view to discovering unreported and undiagnos-

MEMORABLE SERVICE AT NEW ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH

Rev. Dr. Norris, Former Diocesan Chancellor Widely Known For His Eloquence, Will Deliver the Sermon--Special Program of Music.

A solemn vesper service to commemorate fittingly the completion of the new St. Joseph's church at Watchung and Jackson avenues will be held Sunday night. Rev. William Miller, pastor of the church, will officiate and will be assisted by Father Dietrich, of Bound Brook, and Father Dunphy, of Dunellen. Rev. Dr. Norris, former chancellor to Rt. Rev. Bishop James A. McFaul, will preach the sermon. Special music will be furnished by the church choir under the direction of James Bailey. Mrs. Harry G. DeMeza will be the organist.

A feature of the celebration will be the presence of the fourth degree Knights of Columbus in full regalia and delegations from all the different Catholic societies from nearby parishes. Owing to the large attendance expected, the doors will be opened at 7:45 sharp, and the centre aisle seats reserved for the members of visiting societies. The Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's parish will have general charge of the service, and have invited the following priests to attend, Father Zimmer, of Raritan; Father Ryan, of Somerville, and Father Schwartz, of Stony Hill.

No pains have been spared to make the ceremony an imposing one and worthy of the occasion. The committee was particularly fortunate in securing the services of Rev. Dr. Norris, whose reputation as a speaker is wide.

REFORM MEASURES BY G.O.P. SENATORS

Majority in Upper House, at Trenton, Begins Fulfilment of Party Pledges.

ADMENDMENT TO GERAN LAW

Pierce Introduces Bill for Abolition of Grade Crossings, and Measure for Tax Equalization—No Change in Committee Procedures.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 10.—The introduction of many reform measures promised by the Republicans, the adoption of the Edge concurrent resolution providing for final adjournment on Friday, March 22 at 3 p. m. and the defeat by the Republicans of the Democratic resolution to compel a committee to report a bill upon the written request of seven Senators, were the features of the organization of the Senate yesterday afternoon. The Assembly having also adopted the resolution for the sine die adjournment March 22, the Republicans are now committed to that policy. It is believed to be the first time in the history of the State that the Legislature has fixed the closing date upon the opening day of the session.

Senator Edge introduced the resolution for adjournment and Senator Fielder led the Democrats in opposing it. He claimed it was unbusiness-like to decide upon the closing so early in the session. The resolution was passed by the party vote of eleven to ten.

Senator Fielder introduced the resolution making it compulsory for a committee to report a bill upon the written request of seven members. It stirred up a lively discussion that added considerable spice to the proceedings. Senators Edge, Leavitt and Nichols spoke against it, declaring the majority should rule.

Senator Pierce, of Union, introduced his bill for the abolition of grade crossings. It requires every railroad company to abolish one grade crossing for each twenty miles of track, the most dangerous to be eliminated first. He also put in his bill for the equalization of tax assessments and creating county boards of assessment to carry the equalization into effect.

Senator Edge introduced bills for for the following purposes: To cure the dust evil in factories; to require safety devices on machinery in factories; to require fire alarms in mercantile establishments; and providing for the incorporation of mutual fire, life and accident insurance companies.

The amendments to the Geran election act were introduced by Senator Leavitt. They provide a party column for the blanket ballot and require the marking of the name of every candidate voted for; require that personal registration shall not be required in municipalities of less than 15,000 population; Mr. Leavitt also put in the amendments to the corrupt practice act permitting the hiring of halls by candidates for campaign meetings and permitting volunteers to transport voters to the polls without compensation.

Some of the other bills introduced were: The Leavitt grand jury reform bill making the Supreme Court Justice, the Common Pleas Judge and the sheriff a commission to draw the grand jury; providing automobile reciprocity with other States; appropriating $300,000 for the completion of the inland waterway; abolishing poll taxes; prohibiting the use of rifles in gunning; requiring the State Board of Health to inspect oyster and clam beds.

A joint resolution was introduced ratifying the amendment to the United States Constitution providing for an income tax. Other resolutions put in provide for a suitable monument over the grave of General Phillip Kearny in Arlington Cemetery; for a counselor-at-law in each House to pass on all bills, and for a commission to act with the New York Commission for a bridge over the Hudson River at Jersey City.

UNION WEEK OF PRAYER SERVICES ARE STARTED.

The first of the series of union week of prayer services in which the congregations of the First Baptist First M. E., First Presbyterian and Trinity Reformed churches are joining, was held at the First Baptist church, last night, and considering the weather, it was well attended. Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, stated supply of the church, was in charge, reading the Scripture, while Rev. J. Y. Broek offered prayer.

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring made the address "taking for his subject, "The Church." Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson spoke, as did also J. H. Manning and Oliver B. Leonard.

As to the City's Finances.

The annual report of City Treasurer William F. Arnold appears on page 8 of this issue. It is a full, clean, concise and business-like statement of the city's finances, prepared with the thoroughness and ability characteristic of the city treasurer.

N. J. CENTRAL PLANNING TO LEVEL FANWOOD "HILL"

With a Westfield official as authority it is stated that the Jersey Central is contemplating extensive imrovements to its roadbeds between Cranford and Fanwood, which, if carried out, will eliminate the Central avenue and Broad street crossings in Westfield. The expense, it is reported, will involve one million dollars.

It is planned to grade the roadbed to a level between the places named. The center of the grade between Cranford and Fanwood is at the Broad street crossing, Westfield, which is known as the "top of the hill" in railroad engineering circles.

One of the reasons of the company in considering the improvement is that it will facilitate passenger and freight traffic. An official of the company stated the change will shorten the express train service five minutes between New York and Philadelphia. It will also eliminate the service of "boosting engines" that are required to push coal trains up the grade.

COUNTY COURT UPHOLDS CITY JUDGE DE MEZA

The appeal of Richard T. Hone from the decision of the city court made by Judge William G. DeMeza last July, requiring him to pay five dollars a week to the overseer of the poor for the support of Mrs. Hone, came up for trial in the Court of Quarter Sessions before Judge Atwater and a jury at Elizabeth yesterday. It occupied the court the entire day.

The case was interesting as the first appeal that has been taken from any of Judge DeMeza's decisions, and although former Prosecutor William R. Wilson tried the case for Mr. Hone and used all the tactics known to the successful trial lawyer, and raised innumerable legal questions in the course of the trial, Judge DeMeza's legal rulings were sustained at every point by Judge Atwater, and his final findings on the facts involved were sustained by the jury, which brought in a verdict of guilty.

Corporation Counsel William M. Stillman and Counsellor W. S. Angleman appeared for the city, and Counsellor J. Henry Crane represented Mrs. Hone. Overseer of the Poor DeForest was present in court as a witness, the case coming under his department. Former City Judge Runyon, Judge DeMeza and Dr. Lufburrow, the city physician, gave testimony.

Hone will now be obliged to continue his payments of five dollars a week to the overseer of the poor for the benefit of his wife. He was arrested in New York after indictment by the Grand Jury for desertion. Chief of Police Kjely went after him, and brought him back to this city after extradition proceedings.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

My hearty congratulations to you and let me express a hope that the "Press" will stand for all that is good and generous in the field of journalism. Get up into the high places and extend your horizon and make the "Press" a factor throughout the State.

The paper has a very "smart" appearance in the new dress and looks like something doing from the start. Success attend your efforts.

Cordially yours,
HENRY L. HALL.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

Accept my good wishes for a very prosperous and happy new year, and particularly upon the occasion of your advent into the ownership of the "Daily Press". You have started a very good pace and I sincerely hope that you will make a steady advancement along the lines already well begun. You have made a very good selection of a "dress" that is appropriate as well as modern. You have signified your intention to add suitable modern facilities that will give you the opportunity to favor the citizens of Plainfield the best there is of late news up to the supper hour. Another thing you have started to give your editorial opinions on all matters, politic and timely. This is every newspaper's particular function and is as much expected as the news feature of a real daily paper. This evening, I noticed that you pushed the ads which have received too much prominence on your editorial page to other sections of the paper; for the sake of preserving your editorial page intact it is necessary that the ads be placed somewhere else, and that to my notion is best done by making each page contain reading matter, the addition of the new press which you say is coming will no doubt fill this need. With best wishes for your success, I am,

Very truly yours,

COLD SNAP INCREASES DEMANDS FOR CHARITY

Organization Society and Overseers of City and Borough Kept Busy Distributing Coal Among Poor--Warm Clothing is Also Sought.

The severe cold snap has caused an increased number of appeals to the overseers-of-the-poor of both the city and borough and to the Charity Organization Society for warm clothing, milk and other needs particularly coal. Fred Becker, overseer in North Plainfield, said today that he had given out more coal during the present cold snap than he has been called upon for during any whole winter in some years past. The Carity Organization Society has also distributed a much larger quantity than in the same length of time for many years. Several donations of anthracite received from members and subscribers thoughtful of the needs of the poor made this possible. The city poor department has also supplied a larger number of applicants than for some time past.

Mr. Becker stated that he had been able to meet the increased demands since his appropriation was received only a short time ago, but very likely will have to request additional funds sooner than otherwise.

A local patient sent to the tuberculosis sanitorium at Glen Gardner by the Anti-Tuberculosis League was obliged to return to his home in this city on Monday on account of not having sufficient warm clothing to enable him to withstand the rigors of outdoors. He reported his plight to Miss Holly and she is endeavoring to supply him with the needed articles such as a sweater, warm underclothing, a rug or robe and other necessities for comfort in the open at this season.

The demands for milk also increased with the low temperature and in all cases was immediately supplied, being really more of a necessity than those made for coal and clothing. A much larger supply could be made use of and the society would be pleased to hear from any residents who would like to do something alone this line towards relieving the less forunate on whom the continued low temperature is a severe hardship.

SERIES OF MEETINGS FOR THE YOUNG MEN.

Beginning with Sunday afternoon, and continuing on each succeeding Sunday afternoon, a series of twelve meetings for young men will be held in Y. M. C. A. hall. At the first six meetings illustrated lectures on "Bible Heroes and Their Home Lands" will be given by members of the Board of Directors of the Association. These give the life stories of "Joseph, the Man Who Understood," Moses, the Man Who Laid the Foundation for Us," "Joshua, the Soldier of Conquest," "David, the Best Loved Hero in Hebrew History," "Elijah, the Fearless Champion of True Religion," "Paul, the Messenger Who Gave the Good News to Our Ancestors."

Following these will come three lectures on the "Journey of Jesus" and three on "Conditions in Christ's Time." Both lectures and slides have been carefully prepared. Fifty beautiful slides made from photographs, many of them colored, will be used to illustrate the subjects.

The meetings will be held at 4 o'clock and admission will be free to all men and to boys over fifteen.

COLLEGE CLUB'S ROLL NOW OVER ONE HUNDRED.

The College Club met with the Misses Goddard on East Ninth street yesterday, and there was a large attendance in spite of unfavorable weather. The principal business was that of making some changes in the constitution and in discussing the needs and work of the girls, who is just now being added by the scholarship fund. The membership committee reported an increase of twenty-one members since the last meeting, making the number now something over one hundred. An informal tea followed the business meeting.

The work of the College Club aside from promoting a feeling of good fellowship among the college women of Plainfield, has been the maintaining of a scholarship fund to be used in aiding girls, who have the desire and ability for a college education, but without help would be unable to meet the expense. Since the organization of the club in 1907, several girls have been helped in this way.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Netherwood Reformed church last night at the home of Claude Gunod, on George street, elected these as officers: President, Oscar P. Wahlig; vice-president, Arnold E. Finkle; secretary, Miss Maude A. Disbrow; treasurer, Miss Iona Wood.

SCOTT POST, G.A.R. INSTALLS OFFICERS

Past Department Commander Atkins Conducts Ceremony Local Organization.

VISITING VETERANS SPEAKERS

Officers of Women' Relief Corps Installed by Past Department President Lizzie Wilkes, Assisted by Mrs. Risden.

A joint installation of the officers of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the post, took place at the rooms of the organizations in Reform Hall, last night. There were a number of visitors, including a delegation from Ulric Dahlgren Post, of Elizabeth; Department Chaplain William Abbott, of Asbury Park; Alexander Smith, of Keyport, in addition to the installing officers. Following the ceremonies, there were short speeches by the visiting women and veterans, and also by Past Department Commander William C. Smith, who gave the post and corps some excellent advice. Afterward the women served refreshments and there was a social time.

The post officers were installed first by Past Department Commander Alfred Atkins, of Roselle, as follows:

Commander, Stephen R. Struthers; senior vice-commander, Isaac Houston; junior vice-commander, John Green; surgeon, William Unax; officer of the day, I. L. McVoy; quartermaster, John R. Naylor; officer of the guard, Edward Vanderweg; patriotic instructor, William Hand; chaplain, Nathan C. Pennington.

Miss Lizzie Wilkes, of Trenton, past department president, assisted by Mrs. William Risden, of Trenton, senior vice-department president, installed the officers of the Women's Relief Corps as follows:

President, Mrs. Harriett T. Gibbons; senior vice-president, Miss Try Mattox; junior vice-president, Mrs. Willia Myers; chaplain, Mrs. Sarah Mattox; treasurer, Mrs. S. R. Struthers; conductor, Mrs. Emma K. Frazee; color-bearers, Mrs. Jennie D. Bergman, Miss Evelyn Manly, Miss Clara Barton Smith, Miss Vida Whitney.

TEMPLE BAPTIST CHURCH BIBLE CLASSES' ELECTIONS.

The senior Baraca Bible class of the Temple Baptist church at its annual meeting last night elected these officers for the coming year: President, David Rockefeller; vice-president, William LaRue; secretary, Charles Smith; assistant secretary, George Howell; treasurer, Ira LaRue; financial secretary, Richard Elliott; librarian, Christopher Myers; organist, George Staats; teacher, Rev. Evart C. Conover; assistant teacher, Frank Stewart.

The Junior Philathea class also held its annual meeting at the same place and time, and the following officers were elected: President, Bessie Carson; vice-president, Helen Myers; secretary, Gladys Mead; treasurer, Ruth Wahlig; lookout committee, Helen Carson, Fannie Randolph, Jane Touchon; social committee, Bertha Touchon, Mildred McAuliffe, Esther Johnson. A social time with refreshments were enjoyed by both classes after the election. Miss Marguerite Smith, of Westfield, rendered several piano solos; Mrs. Mellick gave two humorous recitations, George Staats sang, as did also Charles Brewin, U. B. Crane told stories, William LaRue told an original story of "My first present to my first girl," and William C. LaRue recited a ne wversion of "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

APPOINTMENTS AT COUNCIL SESSION

Sewer Assessments Commissioners Confirmed and Asst. to Collector Named.

FIREMEN'S FUND TRUSTEE

Petitions and Reports Occupy Much Time at Adjourned Meeting of the City Fathers—Janitor's Salary Raised.

The adjourned meeting of the Common Council last night, was devoted largely to cleaning up a number of tax matters, which were reported back by Mr. Mygatt, chairman of the finance committee, in some caoses being accompanied by an opinion of Corporation Counsel W. M. Stillman. In accordance with resolutions offered by Mr. Mygatt and adotped, $2.20 was ordered refunded to N. H. Saxton assessed in error on his property at 1055-1121 West Eighth street, and $26.28 was authorized refunded to the Mutual Land Improvement Company, assessed in error on Dixie Lane property.

The Board of Health requested that the usual appropriation of $7,500 be made for the year, with the understanding that all fees, fines, etc., be truned over to the city treasurer. The twenty-third annual report of the board was received and filed. The bond of Constable Peter V. Weaver was presented, referred to the finance committee and then to Corporation Counsel W. M. Stillman for approval. It will be recorded afterward if found correct.

Mayor G. W. V. Moy re-appointed H. B. MacDonald, Edward A. Laing and Howard C. Tracy as commissioners for sewer assessments. They were confirmed.

The offer of W. R. Way to purchase property on Midway avenue at $150 a front foot was refused and the offer of Patrick McDonald to buy the same property for $1,000 was also refused on motion of Mr. Mygatt. George W. Cole's offer to make a settlement of taxes on property at 1309-1315 upon which he holds a mortgage for $500, by paying $250, was accepted following an opinion from Corporation Counsel W. M. Stillman informing the Council that it could settle for any amount thought best in its judgment. The taxes remaining unpaid on the property amounted to $475.

The request of Elston M. French for the return of $21.59 paid for property at 1631-1633 South Second street, which he had since learned was originally staked out for a graveyard was denied upon advice of Mr. Stillman, who in a letter informed the Council that Mr. French had waited too long for such a settlement, having had the property twelve years. This property was originally owned by the Estate of Enos W. Runyon and was sold for taxes in 1900 under the Martin act. Mr. French's objection was that he was unable to complete the title.

N. C. Sears in a communication requested the return of $33.50 paid for a piece of property on Myrtle avenue or that the Council give him the parcel he bought, he claiming an error in the sale. Mr. Stillman advised the Council not to grant the request, that the whole tract was sold for taxes and that if there was an error in the proper division of the tract, it was up to the owners to adjust the matter and the property could be redeemed in the way provided by law.

James H. Daley, secretary of the fire department pension fund, informed the Council that the term of C. C. Graves as trustee had expired and upon his recommendation, he was re-appointed for a full term of four years. It was also reported that the present balance in the pension fund is $16,021, and a copy of the financial statement had been sent to the State Commissioner of Banking.

The Public Service Corporation reported that twelve electric lights have been located as ordered.

In accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Mygatt and adopted, Frank M. Dunham was employed as an assistant in the office of the Tax Collector at a salary of $83.33 a month, an incerase of $23.33 per month over that of last year. He is required to furnish a bond in the sum of $5,000 the same to be approved by Mr. Townsend. William A. Kline, janitor, was voted an increase of $5 a month, Mr. Mygatt's resolution that he be given $45 a month this year being adopted. The Council adjourned to meet on Monday night, January 15.

HOW SOLONS ARE SEATED IN HOUSE AND SENATE

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 10.—In the reseating of the Legislators in the Assembly made necessary by the passing of the control in this branch from the Democrats to the Republicans, seven of the Republican members have been placed upon the Democratic side, which is to the right of the Speaker. The seven Republicans who are seated among the Democrats are Assemblymen George L. Babcock, William F. Groves and George C. Otto, of Union county; William D. Anderson, of Somerset; George F. Ten Broeck, the one Republican member in the Middlesex delegation, and William E. Ogden and Frank M. Stevens, the two Republican members in the Bergen delegation.

Leader George W. Whyte and the other Camden members occupy the center of the second row of desks on the Republican side, which gives the leader a commanding position. Essex county has the twelve seats occupying three rows on the extreme left of the Speaker. The three Mercer members, Adams, Gill and Weart have the three seats next the center aisle on the third row. Passaic county occupies its old position on the rear row of desks on the Republican side, and Morris county has the two desks adjoining Passaic and next the center aisle. The seats of the two Atlantic Assemblymen are near the center of the Republican side. The other Republican members are scattered among those already mentioned. The Hudson delegation, with its twelve members, occupies its old position on the Democratic side, namely, the two rear rows running in from the center aisle. The other Democratic members extend from this delegation through the five remaining rows.

The many new members in the Senate made necessary several changes in the seating in this branch. Senator Edge, the Republican leader, has the old seat of Senator Mills, of Morris county, next the center aisle on the Republican side. Senator Pierce, of Union, has the desk formerly occupied by Senator Ackerman, of the same county, which is near the center of the rear row of desks. Senator Leavitt, of Mercer, occupies his old seat next the center aisle on the first row immediately in front of Senator Edge. Senator Colgate, the new member from Essex, has the old seat of Senator Lewis, of Burlington, while Senator Lewis has been moved to the front row in the seat formerly occupied by Senator Frelinghuysen. Senator Read, of Camden, has the old seat of Senator Bradley, his predecessor. Senator Smalley, of Somerset, has the seat formerly occupied by Senator Brown, of Monmouth who was succeeded by a Democrat. Senators Hand, Gaunt and Nichols have their old positions.

The Democratic Senators are grouped together on their side of the chamber which is on the right of the President.

TROT PROTEST SUSTAINED; HOPPLES ARE NOT LEGAL

Horsemen in this section were particularly interested in the decision of the National Trotting Association on the appeal filed by John G. TenEyck, of Westfield, owner of Reta Ambulator, and by "Win" Rule, of Metuchen, owner of Greenmore, following a dispute over the action of the Westfield racing officials in placing the winner in the 2.17 trot at the Labor Day meet, at which Buena Vista, the entry of William R. Hutchings, of Westfield, was awarded first money.

Ten Eyck and Rule protested the actions of the local officials on the ground that Buena Vista, who is a three year old, wore hopples in the race, claiming it was an infraction of national trotting rules. The dispute was aired before the Board of Review, of the national association in December, and yesterday Mr. Ten Eyck received notification, that the association had decided in his favor and gave Reta Ambulator first money.

According to the local officials the horses were placed as follows: Buena Vista (W. R. Hutchings, Westfield) first; Reta Ambulator, (Ten Eyck, Westfield) second; Little Bride, (John Osborne, Plainfield), third; Colon, (H. Keenan, Elizabeth), fourth; Greenmore, (Rule, Metuchen), fifth.

The decision of the National Association switched the awards as follows: Reta Ambulator, first; Little Bride, second; Colon, third; Greenmore, fourth. By the decision Ten-Eyck is awarded $135.

DISGRUNTLED DEMOCRAT TURNS CITY REPUBLICAN.

The reputed "deal" between Alderman Peter F. Kinney, Democrat, and the six Republican members of the New Brunswick Common Council, which has been stirring up the political situation for some time, has gone through. A slate of nineteen officers has been elected, thirteen Republicans and six Democrats. Nearly all were elected by a vote of 7 to 6, the seventh and necessary vote being that of Kinney, the board normally being seven to six Democratic.

Kinney, for some time, has been trying to get Street Commissioner Abraham Jelin ousted, but the other six Democrats would not vote against him. Kinney refused to vote to fill the places of any hold-over Republicans with Democrats until he got Jelin out. This situation existed throughout all of last year.

A vain effort was made by the Democrats to elect enough aldermen last November to make the board Democratic without Kinney's vote. The election gave the city government to the Republicans, the Common Council standing seven to six Republican.

John J. Kinney, son of Alderman Kinney, was elected one of the tax assessors at a salary of $500 a year, and Cornelius McCrelis was made street commissioner to succeed Jelin. McCrelis is related to Kinney by marriage. A resident of Kinney's ward was made comptroller and another was put on the police force.

The Board of Water Commissioners was made solidly Republican, thus forecasting the election of a new superintendent of the water supply system.

Operate on Coasting Victim.

Following an operation by which blood clots near the brain were removed, the condition of Margaret Chrystal, fourteen years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Chrystal, of Franklin place, Summit, who was injured in a coasting accident Saturday night, is much improved. Dr. William H. Lawrence, Jr., of Overlook Hospital, found yesterday that the girl had ssutained a slight fracture of the skull. Because of the location of the clots the operation was a delicate one.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Henri Brisson was re-elected President of the French Chamber of Deputies.

The Lancashire cotton lockout continued without prospect of speedy settlement.

The New York Board of Alderman named standing committees and adopted rules.

Russian troops began a movement toward clearing the Mongolia frontier of wandering bands of Chinese.

The Wisconsin Supreme Court held constitutional the income tax law passed by the last Legislature.

The Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson was sentenced in a Boston court to die in the electric chair during the week beginning May 19.

The Equitable Life's plans for a new building, filed in New York on June 29, 1908, call for a sixty-two story structure, 909 feet high.

The Norwegian Cabinet resolved to propose a large appropriation for naval purposes, in anticipation of a future war among the great powers.

The disabled torpedo boat destroyer Terry arrived at Norfolk in a crippled condition under her own steam, convoyed by the cruiser Prairie.

The United States Supreme Court, in a series of decisions, extended the power of the Interstate Commerce Commission over the commerce of the country.

News reached Peking that five hundred American troops had been ordered to North China to assist in protecting the railway from Peking to the sea.

Justin de Selves, finding himself unable to substantiate in the French Senate a statement of the Premier, resigned his portfolio of Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Many changes were made in directorates of New York banks, chief among which was the retirement of James Stillman from the boards of several institutions.

The change in temperature brought suffering anew to New York city's homeless poor, and many accidents occurred both to persons and horses from the terribly slippery condition of the treets and sidewalks.

Congress.—The report of the Monetary Commission was submitted in both branches: House: Mr. Hill, of Connecticut, attacked the Democratic record at the extra session; an additional $9,000 was voted for the steel investigating committee.

The Democratic National Committee selected Baltimore as the convention city and June 25 as the date of the national gathering, when candidates for President and Vice-President will be nominated; a "permissive" primary resolution was adopted.

Big tenants of the Equitable Building, New York, following President Day's example, who had the insurance departments housed by 9 o'clock, moved quickly, but left fully a billion in securities in the vaults, which were found to be intact, though buried beneath the ruins.

Five persons, including Battalion Chief Walsh, were killed and nineteen injured at a fire early yesterday morning which destroyed the eight story building of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, New York, covering an entire block in the financial district, and the curious net result to the society was a gain rather than a loss in property value, though millions had been spent on the building, for the site is of greater value without such an incumbrance on it as the antiquated structure practically was.

SAYS THREE SUMMIT SCHOOLS ARE UNSANITARY.

That the sanitary conditions existing in two of the four Summit public schools and in one private school are antiquated and require radical changes, is the statement contained in the annual report of Plumbing Inspector Timothy J. Scott, submitted to the Summit Board of Health.

Defective lavatories, wet cellar, improper ventilation, lack of a sanitary drinking fountain and insufficient light, are conditions which the inspector declared are detrimental to the health of the pupils.

Some of the unsanitary conditions permitted in the schools, Mr. Scott states are in open violation of the Health Board's sanitary code. He urged that the ordinance of the board be strictly enforced in the schools.

The board has reorganized for the year with the election of Dr. William H. Lawrence, Jr., as president.

J. Edward Rowe has been reappointed secretary and health officer for one year at the same salary as he received last year, $600. Mr. Scott was reappointed at a salary of $75 per month, the same as was paid him last year.

Chatham Man Divorced.

A. Philetus Konkle, of Chatham, has been granted a decree of divorce in Reno from Mrs. Irma M. Konkle. The decree was signed by Judge Moran. Konkle said that his wife simply packed up her personal belongings and left him. She failed to appear in the proceedings. The couple were married June 9, 1897, in Chatham, where the wife continues to live.

Al G. Fields.

AL. G. FIELD MINSTRELS HERE NEXT WEDNESDAY

"Better than ever," is the phrase symbolic of the Al. G. Field Greater Minstrels, that supreme aggregation of mirth-producers who have surpassed the most elaborate of the veteran minstrel's earlier productions. This splendid aggregation of gloom-dispellers will play here next Wednesday afternoon and night. The advance sale has been large and indications are that a capacity house will greet Field and his Greater Minstrels. He is a general favorite here and his annual coming is always featured by a cordial reception from his old and new patrons.

Field is now making his twenty-sixth annual tour of the country and he has come to be a familiar figure in the many towns included in his route. He has a number of friends here and his yearly visit is looked forward to as one of the season's events. The show this season is divided in seven parts, beginning with a cotton-picking scene called "Night and Morning," followed by the big feature acts, "The Garden of the Fountains," "Forbes Field," "Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party," "The Pom-ander Walk," and ending with a splendid act called "Mexico, Ho! Ho!" followed by the closing scenic tableau entitled "The Dreadnaught."

Running through the entire performance is the brilliant work of Bert Swor, John Healey and Gov. Bowen, the brightest stars of modern minstrelsy.

152 KILLED, 1,242 INJURED BY VEHICLES DURING 1911.

During the year of 1911 eighty-seven persons were killed and 773 were injured by automobiles in New Jersey, according to the report of the National Highways Protective Society. Trolleys caused the death of forty-seven, and injured 313. Wagons killed twenty-one and injured 105, making a total for the year of 152 deaths and injuries to 1,242 persons.

In December ten persons were killed by automobiles and sixty-three injured; trolleys caused the death of three and injured seven; wagons killed one and injured eight.

Frank Halloway, arrested in Chicago, confessed to taking part in the robbery of the New Westminster (B. C.) Bank and of a Panama bank; also that he murdered two men.

GARBAGE DISPOSAL.

In their annual reports, submitted to the Common Council last night, both President Murray and Health Officer O'Brien seek to point out the necessity for a municipal system for the collection and disposal of garbage and ashes, impressing upon the city fathers the fact that the present unsanitary and unsystematic provisions for caring for such refuse constitute a serious menace to public health.

As Health Office O'Brien very rightly says:

"While it may be frankly admitted that the garbage problem is more difficult of solution, it is, however, of such grave importance to the residents of Plainfield that the Common Council cannot be too strenuously urged to take some means for relieving the situation that has existed with litte change for many years. This situation has been described year after year in the annual reports of the Board of Health and in special reports, so that the Council is well aware of the disgraceful conditions which are practically the same as in former years. There are a few more collectors—a total of twenty-five as against twenty-one last year—to increase the unpleasantness of the situation; the garbage is still being fed to hogs to be returned to Plainfield in the form of pork; an approximate two-thirds of the householders are still paying from fifty cents to two dollars a month for the removal of their garbage, while the other one-third, who cannot pay these prices, are disposing of it as best they can, often by burning it or throwing it on the ground, thus creating a nuisance.

"It has been suggested that the establishment of a municipal system of garbage collection and disposal would mean a higher tax rate; this is unquestionably true, but the householders are already paying more than the increase in the tax rate would amount to. Hard as the problem may be, it has been solved by other municipalities and some attempt should be made without further delay to solve it for Plainfield."

WILSON AND THE PRESIDENCY.

Around the State House at Trenton yesterday the general feeling among the host of New Jersey Democrats who had attended the big gathering of that party at Washington on Monday evening was that Governor Wilson had clinched the party nomination for the presidency at that time. It was stated that the speech he made then had made him stronger than ever with the party representatives, and that as a result he would be chosen as the standard bearer next June, when the convention is held at Baltimore. This led to conjecture as to what course he would pursue, in case of the nomination, as to the New Jersey Governorship. Republicans thought he would resign, and thus give the Governorship to President John D. Prince, of the Senate, while the Democrats expect that he will hold the place until a year from now, with the hope that in case of his nomination his strength at the polls would be such as to elect a Democratic majority to the Senate next fall. This would mean a Democratic president of the Upper House, who would succeed Governor Wilson upon his retirement. It would hardly be fair for the latter method to be pursued. If the Governor should be nominated he would be unable, during the months of his campaign, to perform the duties of his office, and the work would fall on Dr. Prince. Under the circumstances he should be more than a mere "acting governor." Of course there are plenty of reasons why this program might not work out, the chief of which would be the failure of the Governor to land the nomination.

STREET WIDENING.

Now that the Plainfield Common Council has got down to hard work for the year, we suggest that its street committee take up the suggestion of Mayor Moy that Park avenue, between Second and Front streets, and Somerset street, between Front street and the borough line, be widened. In a communication to this paper the other day, former Major Smalley, of North Plainfield, commended the city's executive's stand.

For years Mr. Smalley has advocated the improvement, in fact ever since he caused Somerset street, between the dividing line and Jackson avenue, to be widened. On at least two occasions, Elston M. French has petitioned the Common Council to do something in this direction, but his request has met with about as much consideration as that of the Plainfield Board of Health, for the last ten consecutive years, that a sanitary system for the collection and disposal of garbage be inaugurated.

That the public generally approves of the scheme to widen these two thoroughfares, where traffic is frequently congested, cannot be denied. Let any member of the governing body who has the slightest doubt as to the sentiment of the people feel the public pulse. Procrastination is costly. Each year of delay means an increased cost to the taxpayers to bring about the improvement, which must ultimately come. Why not, then, "do it now?"

President Prince, of the Senate, in his speech of acceptance of the office yesterday expressed the hope that the present session will be a business-like one, "not flooded, as has been the custom in past years, with a multitude of new laws to add to the already vast list of our statutes." In this sentiment he is speaking for a long suffering public. Lawyers know that it is next to impossible to tell just what the law is on any subject, and the attorney general's office, when asked for opinions in some cases lately has been compelled to give them with the qualification that "so far as they know" the statutes provide thus and so. Numerous efforts have been made in recent years to have a compilation made of the laws of the State, but it has not yet been done, and until it is there should be a minimum of new legislation.

An amendment to New York's sanitary code prohibits the public towel in hotels, schools, stores, cafes and railroad stations, and hereafter to permit more than one person to use a towel in a public place constitutes a violation of the code. New Jersey, which like New York has abolished the common drinking cup, should lose no time in banishing the common towel.

Twenty-four bills were introduced in the Senate at the opening session, many of them to carry out party platform pledges. It looks as if the members mean business, and really want to get through on March 22, as they voted to do.

Aside from the naming of Senator Pierce as chairman of the committee on revision and amendment of the laws, it can hardly be said that Union county fared well at the organization of the Legislature.

HOW HINDOO PRIESTESS FOUND RELIGIOUS TRUTH.

Mrs. A. S. Burnell, of New York, lectured in costume before the Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church yesterday afternoon on "The Life Story of a Hindoo Priestess." She told, in the first person, Chundra Lela's search for religious truth.

Chundra Lela, after going from shrine to shrine, found the truth when she met a missionary in Northern India. Mrs. Burnell lived in India for a number of years, and her impersonation of the Hindoo woman was vivid and highly interesting.

At the business meeting of the society the committee in charge of the campaign for new members reported an increased enrollment of 27.

High School Debate.

The first of a series of debates in the senior English classes was held at the High School this morning. The question was "Resolved, That Labor Union Do More Harm Than Good to the Cause of Labor." The debate was won by the affirmative side, led by Miss Helen Woolley. The other members of the team were Miss Ruth Wahlig, Miss Madeline Noonan. Those on the negative side were Miss Janette Neighbor, chairman; Miss Hannah Nelson and Miss Mildred Brownlee. Schuyler Line was chairman of the debate and Miss Helen Ryder the critic.

Mrs. John Doyle.

Mrs. John Doyle died this morning at her home in West Fifty-fourth street, New York, after a year's illness. She was sixty years old and since leaving Plainfield had made her home in that city. The husband with three sons and a daughter survive. The boys are Edward, John and Joseph Doyle and the daughter is Miss May Doyle, all living at home. The funeral will be held from the Cathedral, Friday morning at 10 o'clock and interment will be made in Calvary cemetery.

SAKUMA WROTE AS DEATH CAME

Lieutenant's Last Words Were Penned at Sea's Bottom.

FAST IN SUNKEN SUBMARINE.

Commander of Foundered Vessel Had Little Thought of Himself, but Urged Emperor to Care For the Families of His Brave Crew.

A letter showing exceptional devotion to duty, written by Lieutenant Tsuma Sakuma, commander of the Japanese submarine No. 6, after the boat had foundered during maneuvers in Hiroshima bay, April 15, 1910, has been photographed by the Japanese government, and one of the prints has just been presented to the library of congress by Commander Tokutaro Hiraga, naval attache of the Japanese embassy at Washington. It has been placed on exhibition at the library among other remarkable documents.

The letter was penned by Lieutenant Sakuma while approaching death after the sinking of the boat. He began it about 10 a. m. and ended at 12:40 p. m., when he felt himself losing consciousness. The last few words are hardly readable and show plainly the difficulty with which he was writing.

The letter follows:

"Words of apology fail me for having sunk his majesty's submarine No. 6. My subordinates are killed by my fault, but it is with pride that I inform you that the crew to a man have discharged their duties as sailors should, with the utmost coolness until their dying moments.

Gave Lives For Country.

"We now sacrifice our lives for the sake of our country, but my fear is that the disaster will affect the future development of submarines. It is therefore my hope that nothing will daunt your determination to study the submarine until it is a perfect machine, absolutely reliable. We can then die without regret.

"It was while making a gasoline dive that the boat sank lower than intended, and in our attempt to close the sluice the chain broke. We endeavored to stop the inrush of water with our hands, but too late. The water entered at the rear, and the boat sank at an incline of twenty-five degrees.

"When it touched bottom it was at an angle of thirteen degrees. The current submerged the electric generator, put out the light, and the electric wires were burned.

"In a few minutes bad gas was generated, making it difficult to breathe.

"It was at 10 a. m. on the 15th inst. that the boat sank. Surrounded by poisonous gas, the crew strove to pump out the water.

"As soon as the boat sank the water in the main tank was being pumped out. The electric light was extinguished, and the gauge was invisible, but it seems the water in the main tank was completely pumped out.

Vessel In Darkness.

"The electric current has now become useless, and the hand pump is our only hope. The vessel is in darkness, and I note this down by the light through the conning tower at 11:45 a. m.

"The crew are now wet, and it is extremely cold. It is my opinion that men embarking in submarines must possess the qualities of coolness and nerve and must be extremely painstaking. They must be brave and daring in the handling of the boat. People may laugh at this, in view of my failure, but the statement is true.

"We have worked hard to pump out the water, but the boat is still in the same position. It is now 12 o'clock. The depth of the water here is about ten fathoms.

"The crew of a submarine should be selected from the bravest, the coolest, or they will be of little use in time of a crisis in such as we are now. My brave men are doing their best.

"I always expected death when away from home. My will is therefore prepared and is in the locker. But this is of my own private affairs. I hope Mr. Taguchi will send it to my father.

"A word to his majesty the emperor. It is my earnest hope that your majesty will supply the means of living to the poor families of my crew. This is my only desire, and I am so anxious to have it fulfilled.

Last Words to Friends.

"My respects and best regards to the following: Admiral Saito, minister of the navy; Vice Admirals Shimamura and Fujii, Rear Admirals Nawa, Yamashita and Narita (the air pressure is so tight that I feel my eardrums will be broken); Captains Oguri and Ide, Commander Matsumura, Lieutenant Commander Matsumura, Captain Funakoshi, Mr. Narita and Mr. Ikuta. It is now 12:30 p. m. My breathing is very difficult and painful. I thought I could blow out gasoline, but I am intoxicated with it—Captain Nakano. It is now 12:40 p. m."

This letter was found in a pocket of Lieutenant Sakuma's coat as he lay in the conning tower of the submarine after it had been raised.

PERSONAL.

Edgar Serrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Serrell, of Myrtle avenue, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at Muhlenberg Hospital, is much improved.

Thomas N. Anderson, aged fourteen years, formerly of Irvington, but now of this city, is recovering from an operation performed by Dr. F. Ard for the removal of a cataract on the eye.

A Birthday Surprise.

A surprise was tendered to James Doig, of Morris street, marking his birthday when last evening twenty-five of his young friends gathered to wish him many happy returns of the day. The evening was enjoyably spent with games and instrumental and vocal music. Refreshments were served at midnight after which the company all joined in singing "Auld Lang Synge."

Thomas Jackson.

After an illness of several months, Thomas Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Jackson, died yesterday afternoon at the home of his parents on Somerset street. He was seventeen years old. Death was caused by heart trouble. The funeral service will be held at his late home tomorrow night at 7:15 o'clock and burial will be made in the Somerville cemetery Friday morning.

Week of prayer services will be held at Warren chapel tonight. Rev. Dr. G. E. Read will be the speaker and the subject will be "Faith." William D. Murray will be the speaker tomorrow night and Rev. Dr. S. T. Carter will have charge Friday night.

—L. H. Hummer, the Somerset street butcher was severely cut on his left hand by a cleaver several days ago. The stroke severed several tendons and cords.

IMMORTALITY.

When I consider the wonderful activity of the mind, so great a memory of what is past, and such a capacity of penetrating into the future, when I behold such a number of arts and sciences and such a multitude of discoveries thence arising, I believe and am firmly persuaded that a nature which contains so many things within itself cannot be mortal.—Cicero.

What Words Can Do.

Our language is a flexible affair. One may take the same assortment of words and by arranging them in two sentences express entirely different ideas.

For example, one might say, "I made a million dollars honestly," or with the same words rearranged he could say, "Honestly, I made a million dollars."—Judge.

The State Trust Company in a little over fifteen months has established itself in the confidence of the community. This result has not been brought about by passive methods but by an aggressive policy of publicity and an active campaign for new business on one hand and by a carefully studied effort to faithfully serve our customers on the other.

To those of our friends who have entrusted us with their business we are grateful. To those who have not yet favored us, we extend a cordial invitation accompanied with the assurance that in our hands their interests will be conscientiously furthered.

Elmer V. Ackor Heard From.

Elmer V. Ackor, formerly of this city, but who is now located at Robinson, North Dakota, where he is engaged in survey work, was given a postal card "shower" at Christmas time by his many friends here, and the latter are now beginning to receive cards in return. He says that there is real winter weather in Robinson, temperature 40 degrees below zero with a blizzard on January 5.

Liquor His Downfall.

Charles Base, of Berckman street, fell on the slippery pavement on Somerset street yesterday afternoon and cut a large gash in his scalp. The wound was dressed by Dr. A. H. Dundon after which Base was locked up at police headquarters on a charge of drunkenness. This morning Recorder Gano suspended sentence with a warning.

DROP FROM TIE LEAD IN ELKS BOWLING LEAGUE

The tie for lead in the Elks' Bowling League between Plainfield and Elizabeth, was broken last night by the New York quintet, who took of the three games rolled on the Olympia alleys on Second street from Plainfield. This ties the local pinners for second position in the race with Rutherford.

Newark bowlers got two games rolled at Rahway with the antlered pinners of that place, and by winning one of the series the Rahwegians marked their first victory of the tournament.

Both the New Yorkers and the local pinners shot erratic ten pins. The rigidity with which the pins stood up was very much in keeping with the frozen aspect of everythink effected by the weather. They were hit and hit hard but stubbornly refused to topple when strikes and spares were earnestly desired.

Following the bowling the visiting knights were royally entertained at the Elks club. They brought a large delegation along and one that knew how to root.

Lecture on Gladstone.

Rev. Dr. Thomas Chalmers Easton, of East Orange, will deliver the third of a series of lectures in the Netherwood Reformed church Friday night. The subject will be, "Gladstone, the Grand Old Man," and will be based on personal experience and reminiscences of Dr. Easton's acquaintance with the statesman.

Andy Coakley, well known locally as a diamond star, has been signed up as manager of the Wilmington, Del., baseball team.

CITY'S DEATH RATE 13.80

ed cases, to prevent a spread of the disease. There was one case of hydrophobia reportel, that of a boy in the West End. There was a total of 158 houses, 508 rooms disinfected, together with two disinfections of clothings, four of hospital wards and five of carriages.

There were 570 permits given for plumbing work and a total of 1,064 inspections, and 185 smoke tests of plumbing systems. The ice supply was reported to be of the usual good quality. During the year milk was distributed in the city by sixty-six dealers, 23 retailed by means of wagons, 13 sold a few quarts only and 30 sold from stores. There were 2,043 inspections of dairies. 377 samples of milk were analyzed, 332 of which were samples taken from regular dealers each month. The remaining 45 were either brought to the laboratory or taken as special samples. It is noted that the 78 per cent. of the samples analyzed contained less than 50,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter as compared with 68 per cent. for 1910.

Considerable portion of the report is devoted to the local water supply in which a general review is made by Mr. O'Brien. The slight contamination of the past summer is cited and the work of the board in clearing it up is described; also the suggestions made to the Common Council to prevent any possible contagion of the supply.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The following were elected directors of the First National Bank yesterday afternoo nat the annual election. They will meet for organization and election of officers Monday night, January 22: Alvah Gray, W. L. McCauley, A. J. Hamley, Paul Reusch, H. L. Pierce, B. K. Burke, G. W. Harris, John P. Fenner, Joseph Kuldoshes, L. L. Block, L. D. Walker, Jr.

The Council held an adjourned meeting Monday night at which harmony prevailed. Nothing aside from some unfinished routine matters was transacted.

Professor Guy Rentshler, principal of the High School, is confined to his home with an attack of rheumatism. Miss Rita Brokaw is acting as principal and Mr. Francis is assisting with classes during his absence.

Robert Lowrie, one of the oldest residents, if not the oldest, is confined to his home seriously ill.

Paul Reusch has recently moved into his new home on Washington avenue.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Jimmy Emory, who played shortstop with the Middleport-Palmeroy team in the Mountain States League last summer, received word yesterday that the question regarding the winning of the pennant had been awarded to that nine. This settles a controversy between the twin-town team and the Montgomery, of "Aches and Pains" nine, over a disputed forfeit, the legality of which had to be decided in order to award the pennant. Jimmy is wanted in the same league with the same team for next season but has as yet not signed up.

Mrs. Ida Collender and her daughters, the Misses Gladys and Ruth Collender, of Galesburg, Ill., have been visiting Mrs. Archer Lawrence, of Madison avenue. Mrs. Collender has returned to Galesburg, and the Misses Collender are visiting in Austin, Pa.

DEMOCRATS CONVENTION AT BALTIMORE, JUNE 25

Representative Joshua C. Talbot, of Baltimore, Md., laid down a certified check for $100,000, yesterday at the adjourned meeting of the National Democratic Committee in Washington, D. C., while making a plea for the National convention to be held in that city. On the second ballot that place was chosen and the convention will be held there Tuesday, June 25.

There will be 1.074 delegates and under the two-thirds rule for nominating, Governor Woodrow Wilson will need 716 votes to capture the nomination for the Presidency. The State committees are to determine the method of selecting delegates, except where otherwise designated by law.

In an endeavor to secure the convention for New York, James B. Regan and E. J. Tierney, of that city, tendered a check for $25,000 and promised a guarantee of $75,000 more. This amount was guaranteed by Herman Ridder, proprietor of the "Staats-Zeitung," but New York received only one vote on the first ballot. Chicago, Denver, St. Louis and other cities were also bidders.

Smalley Banquet Tonight.

The complimentary banquet to former Mayor Newton B. Smalley will be given at Saengerbund Hall, tonight at 7 o'clock. The guests are limited to 200. Samuel St. John McCutchen will be the toastmaster and the speakers will be former Governor Edward C. Stokes, Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York; Charles W. McCutchen and former City Judge William N. Runyon. The hall has been handsomely decorated for the occasion.

Alexander Hamilton Small.

Alexander Hamilton Small died at his home on Westervelt avenue, yesterday, following a long illness. He formerly lived in Brooklyn, removing to this city six years ago. For many years he held a position in the office of Comptroller Pendergast in New York city. He was a member of the Frist M. E. church; also Plainfield lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E. He is survived by a wife and one son, Charles Small. The funeral will be private.

To Observe "Missionary Day."

"Missionary Day" will be observed at the Holy Cross church Sunday morning at 9:45 o'clock under the auspices of the Sunday-school. This is a world-wide observance in the Episcopal churches, and Rev. W. S. McCoy, the rector, has arranged for a special service in his church. He will also make a missionary address and the offering will be for missions.

The Bright Side Circle, of The King's Daughters, will hold a meeting at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Maria B. Claypoole, 68 Grandview avenue.

After the regular mid-week prayer service at the Netherwood Reformed church tonight, an election for members to the Consistory will be held. Two elders and one deacon will be chosen. The topic for the meeting will be "Humble Service."

The Career of "Fighting Bob" Evans

REAR ADMIRAL ROBLEY DUNGLISON EVANS, who died recently at the age of sixty-five, was one of the most popular officers in the navy. He was born in Floyd county, Va., in 1846.

Evans was a boy of sixteen when he was sent to the Naval academy at Annapolis. Before he had got far with his studies the civil war broke out and he went to sea and was assigned to blockade duty.

It was in one of the two attacks made by the northern navy upon Fort Fisher that young Evans received the wound through the thigh that made him a cripple for life.

He suffered three other wounds, but as soon as he was discharged from the hospital he again plunged into the fighting and served until the end of the civil war with great credit. It is said that when he was wounded he kept the surgeons from amputating both his legs by threatening them with a revolver.

With the ending of the war Evans drifted for a time into civil pursuits, although never relinquishing his connection with the service. In fact, under Secretaries Chandler and Whitney he became one of the leading spirits in planning the rudiments of what is now the American modern navy. It was Evans who took the little dispatch boat Dolphin on a cruise around the world to test the structural strength of this first product of the infant steel shipbuilding art of the United States.

Evans won his title of "Fighting Bob" in 1891. It happened that with the gunboat Yorktown he dropped in at Valparaiso that year. Some of the

THE LATE ADMIRAL EVANS.

American sailors had been maltreated and murderously assaulted, and Evans felt it his duty to demand protection and reparation. The tiny Yorktown lay in the harbor under the guns of the whole Chilean fleet, yet Evans served notice that if another of his men was touched he would bombard the town. He carried his point and sailed away to the accompaniment of sullen salutes from the Chilean forts and warships.

After a few busy years engaged on the construction board which planned the modern battleships and cruisers came the Spanish-American war. He was given command of the battleship Iowa.

When Cervera's fleet made its fatal dash through the blockading ships off Santiago July 3, 1908, Captain Evans' ship took a notable part in the fifty mile running fight that followed. For his gallantry in this action he received the thanks of congress and was promoted.

As a rear admiral Evans was called upon to take the Atlantic fleet around the world. It was he who organized the first world cruise of an armored fleet of that size and power. By the time he had reached San Francisco he was unable to leave his bed of illness, and it was necessary to relieve him from the command at that place.

Active duty terminated for Admiral Evans at that point, and he went on the retired list Aug. 18, 1908.

Just before the fleet sailed the admiral was the guest of the Lotus club, New York, and in the course of a farewell speech he caused a lot of talk when he remarked that the fleet was "ready for a fight or a frolic." That remark was cabled all over the world, and all sorts of constructions were put on it, but Evans never retracted a word of it.

Once, the story goes, Admiral Evans attended a service in Trinity church and was ushered into the pew of a wealthy New Yorker. The New Yorker, coming in, saw the admiral and, not knowing him, took a card from his pocket and wrote on it, "I pay $1,000 a year rent for this pew," and handed it to the admiral. The admiral looked at the card a moment and, pulling out one of his own, wrote on it, "You pay too much," and handed it to the New Yorker.

DR. BLUE, NEW HEAD OF THE MARINE HOSPITAL SERVICE.

Has Fought Yellow Fever and Bubonic Plague—His Distinguished Career.

Dr. Rupert Blue, a surgeon of the Marine hospital and public health service, has been appointed surgeon general of that service, succeeding the late Dr. Walter Wyman, who died several weeks ago. Dr. Blue was formerly on duty at Honolulu investigating the yellow fever situation.

President Taft has also amended the regulations governing the service to limit the term of the surgeon general to four years. Formerly the surgeon general had an unlimited tenure of office. Mr. Taft thought it more advisable to limit the term to four years, so as to place the service upon the same basis in this respect as the other departmental bureaus.

Dr. Blue was born in Scotland county, N. C., on May 30, 1867. He was brought as a boy to Marion, S. C., where his home now is. He was graduated with the class of 1892 from the University of Maryland, at Baltimore. Entering the marine hospital service in 1892, he has passed through all the grades and has had the rank of surgeon since 1909. His most recent duty was in Honolulu investigating the yellow fever mosquito with a view to its extermination. He is now in Washington on leave of absence.

He was on special duty at Genoa and Naples in 1899 and 1900 in cooperation with the officers of the immigration service. In 1905 he was on duty at New Orleans in connection with the yellow fever epidemic there.

Dr. Blue's most important service in recent years was his work in charge of the government's crusade against the bubonic plague on the Pacific coast in 1907 and 1908.

He is a fellow of the Royal Society of Tropical Medicine of England. He has represented the United States government at several important medical conferences, among them the international congress of physicians and medicine held at Buenos Ayres last summer. He afterward traveled through Chile, Peru and other South American countries investigating plague conditions. He was the first to discover that ground squirrels were carriers of plague, and before going to Honolulu he was engaged in the extermination of infected ground squirrels in California.

Dr. Blue is a brother of Commander Victor Blue of the navy, who is now on duty with the general board.

CELEBRATION AT KEY WEST.

Foreign Nations Will Join In Marking Completion of Railroad.

Many of the foreign embassies and legations in Washington will send representatives to the special international celebration at Key West, Fla., on Jan. 22, to mark the completion of the Florida East Coast Railway company's line connecting the mainland of the United States with the island city of Key West.

President Taft, in behalf of the city of Key West, invited all foreign nations to send representatives and naval vessels to participate in the celebration. Formal acceptances have been received from Italy, Mexico, Portugal, Costa Rica, the Dominican republic, Ecuador, Guatemala, Salvador and Uruguay. Each of these nations will be represented by official delegates, selected in most instances from the embassies and legations.

Portugal is the only foreign country to be represented by a vessel of its navy. The Portuguese cruiser Aramda is now at Key West. The United States navy will be represented by the fifth division of the Atlantic fleet, consisting of the armored cruisers Washington and North Carolina, and the scout cruisers Salem and Birmingham, which will reach Key West about Jan. 21, to remain there a week.

DIRECTOR OF POSTAL SAVINGS

Theodore L. Weed Appointed to New Office by Postmaster General.

Theodore L. Weed, chief clerk of the postoffice department, who is Postmaster General Hitchcock's principal executive assistant in the management of the department, has been appointed director of the postal savings system at $5,000 a year. He will assume his duties immediately.

Because of the extraordinary development of the postal savings system, which now is receiving deposits aggregating a million dollars a week, Mr. Hitchcock, who thus far has directed the system personally, found it necessary to organize a special bureau to take up the work. As an initial step he made Mr. Weed director. The latter, who was appointed to the government service from Connecticut in 1898, has been Mr. Hitchcock's chief aid in extending the postal bank operations.

CHURCH 225 YEARS OLD.

Structure Built In the Time of Lord Baltimore Is Destroyed.

The St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic church at Warwick, Md., near the Delaware state line, a historic landmark of the Maryland-Delaware peninsula, was destroyed by fire recently. It was built 225 years ago in the time of Lord Baltimore.

The church was of brick, two stories in height. Some of the altar vestments and chalices were saved.

New Zealand's Railways.

New Zealand now has over 2,760 miles of railway. Electrification of certain sections is now under contemplation.

JUDGE W. C. HOOK, CHOICE FOR THE U.S. SUPREME COURT

Kansas Man Has Had More Than Eleven Years Experience on the Bench.

Judge of Circuit Court, Eighth District, Since 1903—Has Splendid Record

WILLIAM C. HOOK of Leavenworth, Kan., President Taft's choice for justice of the United States supreme court to fill the place of the late Justice John M. Harlan of Kentucky, is a judge of the United States circuit court in the Eighth circuit.

Judge Hook has had more than eleven years' experience on the bench and has participated in some very important decisions. He was appointed to the United States district court in Kansas by President McKinley in 1899 and was advanced to the United States circuit court by President Roosevelt in 1903. Judge Hook is the only member of the bench of the Eighth circuit which sustained the United States government in the recent decision in the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific suit. Judge Hook also participated in the circuit court's decision in the Standard Oil case, and several of his decisions on the anti-trust law, notably his statements that mere bigness does not constitute a violation of the law, have often been quoted by Attorney General Wickersham in his briefs.

Judge Hook was strongly urged by Republicans of Kansas, including progressives, for appointment to the supreme court when Justice Brewer died. He was never active in politics, having stepped directly from the active practice of law to the federal bench. He is, however, a stanch Republican.

President Taft seriously considered the appointment of Charles Nagel, his secretary of commerce and labor, but Mr. Nagel is sixty-two years old, and President Taft desired to appoint a younger man to the bench at this time.

It has always been the president's contention that he ought to name a man under sixty years of age to the supreme bench. Justice Lurton of Tennessee is the only instance in which Mr. Taft has departed from this rule, not counting, of course, his appointment of Mr. White as chief justice.

Judge Hook was born at Waynesburg, Pa., in 1857 and attended school in his native state. He was graduated from the Leavenworth high school in 1875 and from the St. Louis law school three years later. He had practiced law in Leavenworth until his elevation to the bench.

JUDGE WILLIAM C. HOOK.

GIRDLED THE GLOBE AFOOT.

Captain Seaton Says He Covered 34,200 Miles In All.

Captain H. M. Seaton of Chicago, who arrived at New York recently from Southampton, said he had walked 34,200 miles on his tramp around the world, visiting every country. To prove his statements the bronzed man of six feet seven inches, weighing 250 pounds, showed a book full of postmarks from the different offices he had visited. He started from New York on April 6, 1908, and walked 5,483 miles to the Pacific coast at an average of forty miles a day.

During his three and a half years' tramp Captain Seaton said he had met many adventures in which his life was in peril. In walking 3,000 miles across the Australian desert he was near death from starvation and thirst and saved his life by cutting the telegraph wires so a lineman would be sent to repair them.

In his journey into Tibet from Darjheling, in the Himalaya mountains, he was captured on his way to Lassa, the Forbidden City, by the vigilant natives, who live in trees and warn each other of the arrival of a stranger by uttering a peculiar wail. After being tortured with iron spikes and burned on the soles of his feet he managed to escape and got into China. He also says he walked through Africa from Cape Town to Cairo and never took a conveyance on his entire journey except to cross water.

National Disaster Fund Proposed.

The establishment of an $8,000,000 national fund, to be used in case of disaster by fire, flood, earthquake or mine explosion in any section of the country, is under way. Congressman W. W. Wilson of the Third Illinois district will introduce a bill providing for it. The plan provides for an annual tax of $5 against each listed business in the United States. There are now 1,600,000 such concerns in the country.

TO LIGHT LAMPS BY THE SUN

Its Rays to Be Harnessed at Panama Canal's Lighthouses.

The Panama canal engineers are trying to harness the sun for the job of lamplighter.

In the acetylene burning lighthouses along the banks of the canal will be installed copper cylinders exposed to the sun. When the sun rises in the morning and the rays fall upon these cylinders they will expand and close valves that admit gas to the burners. As night approaches and the sun's rays diminish in power the cylinders will contract and again turn on the gas, which will be ignited by small pilot jets.

Thus a considerable economy will be realized in the hire of lighthouse tenders and in the consumption of gas.

NO MINCE PIE FOR GIRLS.

Mount Holyoke Students Also Will Find Apple Dumpling Off Menu.

Pie is under the ban at Mount Holyoke college. There is to be no more mince pie on the college tables. Apple dumpling also gets the faculty hook, so to speak. By this means the faculty will try to keep the girls awake after lunch.

Recently professors and instructors have noticed that the girls appear at 2 o'clock recitations sleepy and sluggish.

Inquiry developed that mince pie made up the larger part of the college luncheon. Apple dumpling ran a close second.

"We'll cut out the pie and dumpling, and the girls will wake up," said the faculty.

$17,150,000 In Alaska Gold.

Alaska has produced $17,150,000 in gold in the year 1911. The mines of the territory have turned out 22,900,000 pounds of copper—five times as much as in 1910—and $390,000 in other mineral products, such as silver, tin and gypsum.

STATE'S EXPENDITURES GREATER THAN RECEIPTS

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 10.—Showing that the gross receipts of the State for the fiscal year ending Oct. 31, 1911, were $8,917,795,03; the gross disbursements, $10,153,202.51, leaving a balance in the treasury at the end of the year of $3,309,781.20, State Comptroller Edward I. Edwards yesterday submitted his annual report to the Legislature. It will be seen from these figures that the expenditures exceeded the receipts to the extent of $1,235,407.48. The large balance carried over from the previous year prevented a deficit. This balance amounted to $4,545,188.68, and the balance left in the treasury October 31, last, was $3,309,781.20, a reduction in the surplus as compared with the previous year equal to the amount of the payments over the receipts.

Comptroller Edwards shows that the decrease in the gross balance is accounted for from the fact that of the balance at the close of the preceding year, more than $2,000,000 was payable to counties for school purposes, while of the balance at the close of the current fiscal year approximately $1,000,000 is payable for school purposes. The increase in receipts for the year compared with the previous year, was $382,825, and the increase in disbursements amounted to $2,482,538.22. Included in the disbursements was the sum of $2,419,987.44, being the amount of railroad tax collected previous to 1911, and paid to the various counties for school purposes during the year. This, Mr. Edwards shows, would account for the increase in disbursements over those of last year.

The three largest sources of income were as follows: From railroad corporations, $3,918,996.31; miscellaneous corporations, $2,618,213.16; collateral inheritance tax, $745,777.16. Each of these items shows an increase over the preceding year, these increases being as follows: Railroads, $197,016.52; miscellaneous corporations, $24,560.65; collateral inheritance tax, $87,135.48.

The chief disbursements were: Apportionment of railroad tax for school purposes, (previous to 1911), $2,419,987.44; apportionment railroad tax for school purposes, 1911, $1,578,678. 42; maintainance of charitable, penal and reformatory institutions, $2,426,418.84; education, not including the railroad tax, $637,379.93; State Courts, $342,250.81; public roads, $335,324.59; National Guard, $292,404.22; refunding of collateral inheritance tax under Court decision, $233,109.55. Certificates of the State issued to the Commissioners of the Agricultural College, pursuant to Chapter 417 of the laws of 1895, amounting to $116,000 is the only debt of the State. The assets of the State fund consists of 1887 share of stock of the United Railroad & Canal Co., of New Jersey the market value of which amounts to about $450,000.

Comptroller Edwards estimates that the total receipts for the fiscal year ending October 31, 1912, will be $5,300,056. This estimate, he says, does not include receipts from the institutions and commissions as such receipts are available for maintainance.

Allen B. Endicott, formerly judge of the Circuit Court, of Atlantic County, brother of Dr. George W. Endicott, of this city, was drawn as foreman of the new Atlantic grand jury selected by Sheriff Robert H. Ingersoll yesterday. Another former judge and two ministers were drawn.

BROWN BEAR IS BECOMING A PEST

Alaskan Governor Would Repeal Law Protecting the Beast.

ARCTIC GAME INCREASING.

Deer Falling Off Owing to Heavy Snowfall of the Last Two Winters. Tells of Many White Men and Indians Killed or Crippled by Bears.

In his annual report to Washington on the game law Governor Clark of Alaska makes a special plea for the repeal of the law protecting the brown bear. The governor says:

"The least that can be said of the legal protection of the brown bear in Alaska is that it is an absurdity. If this protection is continued the menace to human life will be still more serious, and agriculture and stock raising in some of the more favored portions of the territory will be discouraged.

"The superintendent of the government's experiment station stock farm on Kadiak island makes a strong appeal for the protection of settlers and live stock from the brown bear, declaring that it has become a question whether we shall have a game preserve or a great agricultural and stock raising region on Kadiak island. The existence of this feature of the law, which has nothing whatever to commend it, is so strongly opposed by the residents of the Kenai and Alaska peninsulas that the enforcement of the just provisions of the law is rendered more difficult."

Maimed by Bears.

Thomas W. Hammond, United States commissioner at Iiamna, in a letter now on file in the governor's office says that he personally knows of more than 100 white men and Indians who have been killed or crippled in encounters with brown bears in the brush or grass. "I doubt very much," he says, "if there is a single village in Cook inlet that does not have among its inhabitants one or more men who have been maimed by bears. She bears attack both men and beasts when their cubs are young."

In his report the governor says: "Game is still plentiful in almost all parts of Alaska. This statement applies to both animals and birds. The consensus of opinion among the wardens, licensed guides and residents generally seems to be that moose are increasing in the Kenai peninsula, a fact of significance when it is considered that this peninsula is the region selected by nearly all the nonresident hunters as their hunting ground. Caribou are increasing, it is believed, in the Alaska peninsula and in one or two of the larger islands west of the peninsula.

Deer Falling Off.

"On the other hand, there has been an enormous falling off in the number of deer in southeastern Alaska, a fact which is due principally to the abnormally heavy snowfall of the last two winters. The prohibition of the market selling of venison in 1911 has proved to be a wise measure and is supported by local public opinion. The prohibition should be extended by regulation to include 1912.

"There has been no large general decrease in the supply of game birds. There has been an increase in many localities and a decrease in several places where forest and brush fires have swept over the country, killing young ptarmigan and grouse."

Eight or ten convictions were secured during the year of persons guilty of violating the law.

AWARDS FOR NAVAL HEROES.

Bravery In Philippines Brings Medals and $100 Each to Five.

The secretary of the navy has awarded a medal of honor and a gratuity of $100 to each of five men of the crew of the gunboat Pampanga, who showed great bravery when their party, in command of Ensign Charles E. Hovey, were operating against outlaws in the island of Basilian, Philippine Islands, last September. Ensign Hovey lost his life. The men are J. Volz, carpenter's mate; F. H. McGuire, hospital apprentice; B. R. Harrison, seaman; G. F. Henrechon, machinist's mate, and J. H. Catherwood, ordinary seaman.

They were attacked by the outlaws, who fired a volley at them from an ambuscade. The guide was killed at the first shot. Hovey and Catherwood were hit and fell, but kept on fighting. The others charged after they emptied their rifles, clubbing the Moros and killing several of them. Harrison, with a double barreled shotgun, blew off the heads of three of the attackers, and Volz accounted for several more. The Moros fled.

In the party was a scout soldier, Private Nisperes, who had his right arm shot off above the elbow and was knocked down. He dug the stump of his arm in the ground and kept on firing his rifle. He will be rewarded by the secretary of war.

"Pepsin King" Santa Claus.

Representative Andrus of Yonkers, N. Y., rated as the wealthiest member of the house, used to be known as the "pepsin king." Mr. Andrus, who has a perfectly white beard, was nicknamed "Santa Claus," because he handed a two dollar bill to every attache of the house.

Questions and Answers for Automobile Owners and Those Who Would Become Owners.

The Cars that look to cost twice their price.

And the Cars that are as good as they look.

MODEL "G," DE TAMBLE ROADSTER, Price $1,100
With Self Starter and Full Equipment.

COMPLETE SATISFACTION? To know you can pass any car on the road. You can if you own a Model "G" DE TAMBLE ROADSTER.

CAN I GET A CAR FREE FROM TROUBLE? Yes, DE TAMBLE owners don't know the meaning of the word.

HOW CAN I CLIMB HILLS ON HIGH? Buy a DE TAMBLE, any model.

ARE PLAINFIELD AUTOMOBILISTS SLOW? We hate to think so, yet there are some who fail to take advantage of our SPECIAL RATES to REGULAR CUSTOMERS.

CAN I GET MY CAR OVERHAULED AS THE FACTORY WOULD DO IT? Yes, if you go to the WOODHOUSE ENGINE & MACHINE CO. They know how the Factory would do it.

DOES MY CAR COST ME TOO MUCH TO RUN? Ask WOODHOUSE, he will tell you.

HOW MANY MILES SHOULD I GET FROM A SET OF TIRES? At least 6,000.

BUT I ONLY GET 3,000, SOMETIMES NOT THAT? There is a reason, call and see us and we will tell you why. Troubles of this kind can be remedied by those who have made a study of these problems.

CO-OPERATION? Means that the man who sells you a Car, or who does your repair work, or who furnishes your supplies should have a personal pride in seeing you get Results and you on your part should support him by giving him your trade and recommending him to your friends. The average Garage does NOT co-operate with their customers. It is not profitable according to their view point. They would rather have you make mistakes and have you pay THEM for it. WE look at things differently, believing that every customer who comes to us is doing us a personal favor and we are going to have him come to us again when he is in need of service.

AUTOMOBILE SCIENCE? We have made a study of the Automobile under service conditions and our advise to you will mean a saving of many dollars annually.

Paint that Stays Painted
That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

MANY PAPERS READ BEFORE WOMEN'S CLUB

The meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club Monday at the Hartridge Auditorium was in charge of Mrs. Henry C. White. A summary of current events of the year was participated in by the following:

Mrs. Chaplain Riley spoke on woman's suffrage, Mrs. Charles Rice on Turkey and Italy; Mrs. D. M. VanFleet, conditions in China; Mrs. B. J. Shreve, conditions in Russia; Mrs. Allan Cowperthwait, Persia; Mrs. H. M. Maxson, on trusts; Miss French, threatre and plays; Mrs. E. H. Hatch, the labor question; Mrs. Samuel Carter, religion and philanthrophy; Mrs. Ruben Knox, inventions and discoveries.

Another delightful feature was a paper by Mrs. S. R. Herrick, of New York, on "Goethe, the first great modern." This paper was to have been prepared by Mrs. C. C. Wheeler, but she was unable to do so owing to ill health. Following the reading, Mrs. Charles Sykes gave an analysis of Faust.

FORREST F. DRYDEN PRUDENTIAL'S HEAD

Taking the action that had been generally expected since the death of former United States Senator John F. Dryden the board of directors of the Prudential Insurance Company, in annual meeting Tuesday afternoon at Newark, elected Forrest F. Dryden president of the company. Mr. Dryden had been the first vice-president. The vacancy in this office resulted in a general change in the makeup of the executive officers of the company, the following being the elections First vice-president and actuary, John K. Gore; second vice-president, Jacob E. Ward; third vice-president and comptroller, Wilbur S. Johnson; fourth vice-president, Edward Gray; and secretary, Willard I. Hamilton.

The election of these officers followed the organization of the new board of directors of the company, three new directors having been chosen at the annual meeting of the stockholders yesterday morning. The new members of the board are Bennet Van Syckel, of Trenton; Gilbert Collins, of Jersey City, and Edward Gray. One of these was chosen to succeed Frederick Blanchard, who declined a re-election. As now constituted the board of directors has the following membership: Theodore C. E. Blanchard, Edward Kanouse, Forrest F. Dryden, Jerome Taylor, William T. Carter, Jacob E. Ward, Anthony R. Kuser, Uzal H. McCarter, Wilbur S. Johnson, Richard V. Lindabury, John K. Gore, William J. Magie, Bennet VanSyckel, Gilbert Collins and Edward Gray.

Mr. Martine's Good Work.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, Jan. 9—Senator Martine and Representatives Kinkead and Hamill co-operated yesterday in securing through the State department a commendation to the American Embassy, at Rome, of Mrs. E. A. Stevens, wife of the State Road Commissioner of New Jersey, and Miss Lewis, her sister. The latter is spending the winter in Italy and has been stricken with typhoid fever at the Hotel Italic in Rome. Mrs. Stevens is on her way to join her and the action of the State Department assures them of attention from the officials connected with the American Embassy.

State Mosquito Commission.

Trenton, Jan. 10.—Discussing today the progress of the work in New Jersey, State Entomologist John B. Smith, of New Brunswick, referred to the bill which is to be introduced into the Legislature, providing for a Mosquito Commission of three members in each county. Much of the work in the crusade against the mosquito must be done by the local authoities, and he thought that the creation of County Commissions would result in hastening the final extermination of this pest.

Approaching Marriage.

Invitations were received here today for the wedding of Miss Hazel Margaret Walters, daughter of Mrs. Christina Hildesheim, of Pasedna, Cal., and William Lawson Heath, of this city. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride Wednesday, January 24, and the young couple will be at home here after February 1. William Nischwitz, of Fairview avenue, who accompanied Mr. Heath West several weeks ago, will act as his groomsman.

Turkey Supper at Trinity Church.

The Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church at its monthly meeting yesterday, decided to give a turkey supper at the church on the evenings of Thursday and Friday, January 25 and 26, beginning at 5:30 o'clock. Mrs. Edward T. VanWinkle, who is president of the society, is also chairman of the committee of arrangements for the supper. A special meeting of the society will be held Tuesday to complete arrangements.

Miss Autumn DeLany, who has been spending some time at her home here, has gone to Rochester, N. Y. for a week, prior to returning to her studies at Whitby College, Whitby, Ont.

FOR A SLENDER SILVER RING

It Was Better Than a Diamond One, After All.

By M. MAUDE WRIGHT.

"'I never will marry a man who does not think enough of me to give me anything less than a diamond ring.' Those are the very words I used," said Amelia Jones as she flashed a diamond before Mrs. Berkley's astonished eyes.

"And Bob?"

"Oh, he first looked surprised, then angry; muttered something about the ring being set with my birthday stone and that it was the best he could afford. Then he walked off without another word."

"Of course he came back or you would not be wearing the ring."

"I must confess that I was a little bit frightened, for I do think a heap of Bob, and you never know what a man will do, but he came back the very next day and brought me this beautiful diamond ring. You see, he really cares for me," said Amelia.

"Well," said Mrs. Berkley. "I don't see how he could afford it, for he is not as well off as Joe was before we were married."

A sudden thought struck her, for she slyly concealed her left hand, but not before Amelia had noticed the action.

"Oh, Mrs. Berkley," she said impulsively, "do let me see your wedding ring. I do not remember noticing it. I know it must be something fine, for they do say that Joe Berkley was heels over head in love with you before you were married."

A flush spread over Mrs. Berkley's face.

"It is not a diamond," she faltered.

"I am sure, then, it is something equally nice. Now, Mrs. Berkley, please don't be so modest," said Amelia as she wickedly pulled the hand from its hiding place, revealing a very slender band of silver.

"Oh!" Perhaps Amelia put more meaning into this exclamation than she intended, but there certainly was scorn. "Is this the kind of a ring Mr. Berkley gave you? He should be ashamed of himself, and he could have afforded to give you a diamond ring better than Bob could afford to give me one. Of course he cared for you, but men have strange ways of showing their love sometimes."

The flush on Mrs. Berkley's face grew deeper as she pulled her hand away.

"It was made out of a dime." There was no further explanation. "I left some beans in the oven and must go," said she and left.

When she reached her home she went up to her room and snatched the ring from her finger as if it burned and threw it into a bureau drawer out of sight.

"I never will wear it again—never!" She stamped her foot angrily on the carpet. "He didn't care for me or he never would have given me a ring that would hold me up to scorn. Oh, yes; he has been good to me, but then he is good to his clerks, his dog and everything else." Her pride had been wounded sorely.

She hoped her husband would miss the ring and thus give her a chance to say something, but if he did not miss the ring he missed something else—her usual cheery chat.

"Are you ill, Frances?" he asked, with real concern in his voice.

"No," she answered curtly.

"Has anything happened, then?"

"Oh, enough has happened," she said coldly.

Her tones caused him apprehension.

"Amelia Jones and Bob Dalesford are engaged," she said finally, not knowing just how to begin.

"Is that all?" he laughed.

Mrs. Berkley did not smile.

"Bob gave Amelia a beautiful diamond ring, which showed that he cared something for her."

Something in her tone made him look down at the finger that should have worn the wedding ring.

She noticed his glance and answered it. "I never will wear it again, for you did not care anything for me when you gave me such a ring as that—a paltry ten cent ring, a target for ridicule. You could have afforded to give me a diamond ring better than Bob Dalesford could afford to give Amelia one, yet you did not even give me a gold one—and—and—and you pretended to love me. I was a fool. I know better now."

Mr. Berkley winced as if he had been struck. He rose and left the room, and Mrs. Berkley noticed, with a pang at her heart, that his usually straight shoulders were bent as from age, yet she did not call him back.

Nothing more was said about the ring, and things went on much as usual, only instead of cheer, sunshine and a sympathy there were silence, gloom and misunderstanding. Mrs. Berkley could not help noticing the haggard look that had settled down on her husband's face, and when she looked into the glass she knew that her own face was getting pale.

Several days had passed thus when another diamond was flashed before Mrs. Berkley's eyes. This time the ring was in the hand of her husband.

"I have brought you a diamond to show that I care for you—yes, I care very much indeed," he said earnestly. "Give me your hand, and we will see how it will fit." He tried to speak playfully.

"I don't want the diamond. How can I wear two wedding rings?"

Then he noticed the slender silver band on her finger. A happy light lit up his face.

"I want you to wear the diamond ring anyway. Give me the silver ring, and I will wear it next my heart out of sight."

"I am going to wear the silver ring always." said Mrs. Berkley determinedly Then, suddenly and severely, "Joe Berkley, how much did you pay for that diamond?"

"Three hundred dollars."

"Where did you get the money? You told me when you bought that last lot of goods that you only had $50 left in the bank." A frightened look came into her face. "You didn't"—

"No, I did not borrow or steal it. I sold the store, and tomorrow I take my old place as clerk in it, just where I was when we were married."

"Joe Berkley, I had just come to the conclusion that I was a fool, but I never dreamed you were one too!"

"I thought a diamond was necessary to show that I loved you."

"Well, if you care for me now you will take that ring back to the jeweler's, and then you will march right down the street and buy back the store. Make whatever explanations you wish, but buy back the store."

The very next day Mrs. Berkley went to call on Amelia Jones.

"Oh, Mrs. Berkley, how glad I am to see you! I used you so horrid the other day. Can you ever forgive me?" exclaimed Amelia as she drew her into the room.

"Certainly. There was a little bit of romance in connection with the ring made out of a dime that I thought you would be interested in," began Mrs. Berkley without any preliminaries as soon as she was seated. "I first met Mr. Berkley on a street car. I pulled out a dime to pay the conductor when it slipped from my fingers and fell to the floor. Joe Berkley, who was sitting near, sprang up to search for it, but just then the car stopped at my destination, and I had no time to wait for the lost coin. Mr. Berkley slipped a nickel into my hand, saying he would pay my fare and keep the dime when he found it. I thanked him and left the car. The next day we met on the car again, and of course it was natural that I should ask him if he had found the dime. He had, and this opened the way for further conversation. We met often after this, and—well, you know the rest. Mr. Berkley had the dime made into a ring, and he asked me to wear it always.

"You see why I prize it above any diamond ring he could give me." Her voice was full of feeling as she finished.

"How fine!" Amelia's eyes were shining with a new light. "No, the kind of ring does not matter, after all," she added softly as if to herself. "'I believe I will tell Bob that I prefer the ring set with my birthday stone. He really could not afford the diamond anyway."

Destroyed His Enemies.

It is related of a Chinese emperor that on being told that his enemies had revolted in one of his distant provinces he said to his officers, "Come, follow me, and we will quickly destroy them." He marched forward, and when they saw him and his great army the rebels submitted and laid down their arms. His army expected him to have all the rebels put to death, but instead he treated the captives with the greatest kindness and humanity and in many cases set them free. Great indignation with his conduct was felt in court circles, and at last his chief officer approached him and said:

"Sire, is this the way your majesty fulfills your promise? Your royal word was given that you would destroy all your enemies, and instead you have pardoned them and even set some free."

"But I have kept my word," said the emperor. "I promised to destroy my enemies. Do you not see that these men are no longer my enemies? I have made them my friends."

When Mistletoe Was Sacred.

The Druids with ceremonies of great solemnity used to collect mistletoe "against the festival of winter solstice." Only the oaks bearing mistletoe were sacred to this ancient order of men, and they made solemn processions to such oaks, a prince of the order cutting the mistletoe with a golden sickle. It is recorded that the people's reverence for the priests proceeded in great measure from the cures which the priests effected by means of the curious green plant of the pearl like berries. It was collected thus ceremoniously by the Druids because it was supposed to drive away evil spirits. The reason among the Druids for bringing in bits of evergreen from the woods and adorning the house is a most charming and lovable one. "The houses were decked with evergreens in December that the sylvan spirits might repair to them and remain unnipped with frost and cold winds until a milder season had renewed the foliage of their darling abodes."—Craftsman.

Petrified Forest Giants.

Three petrified redwood trees that have been pronounced the very largest in the world that have thus far been discovered have been uncovered from the debris of the mountain side only a short distance from the famous Bohemian club grove in Sonoma county, Cal. This point is near the town of Occident. One of these prehistoric monsters, that make the pyramids of Egypt modern by comparison in their ages, measures twenty-three feet in diameter and is 350 feet in length. The two other petrified trees are thirteen and twelve feet in diameter, respectively.—Scientific American.

"The Lack of Money"

said Mark Twain, "is the root of all evil." Certainly the lack of ready money at the right time is responsible for many failures, hardships and lost opportunities

Did it ever occur to you that one hundred dollars in time of urgent need could do a world of good? Have you ever experienced hardship because of non-employment, sickness in family or some other unexpected emergency?

It is just such emergencies as these that you should be prepared for and guard against.

PLAINFIELD CLERICUS MEETS IN ELIZABETH

Rev. C. H. Mallery, Rev. Dr. W. H. Neilson and Rev. John G. Currier were included in the sixteen members attending the regular meeting of the Plainfield Clericus, Monday, the clergymen being guests of Rev. Otis A. Glazebrook, rector of St. John's church, Elizabeth. The meeting was held at the rectory. Two new members were elected, Rev. William S. McCoy, the new rector of the Holy Cross church, and Rev. H. A. L. Sadler, of Elizabeth.

Rev. Dickinson Miller, of the General Theological Seminary, presented an interesting paper on the subject of "Religion and Science." This was followed by a discussion. The next meeting of the clericus will be held at Somerville on Monday, February 5, when the members will be guests of Rev. C. C. Silvester, rector of St. John's church.

HERE AND THERE

William Jeffery, of Berkeley Heights, Plainfield and all of Union county, who is rediscovering his native town, Penzance, Cornwall, England, sends to this paper the following description as to how he spent Christmas eve:

"I am staying at an old inn, built in the twelfth century, and on Christmas eve I enjoyed a feast as only Englishmen can. We had roast beef (real roast beef) and plum pudding and ale (good musty ale) which we topped off with hot toddy and a clay pipe smoke. Then we listened to the Christmas carols."

HOLD ANNUAL MEETING AT UNITARIAN CHURCH.

A new member of the board of trustees was elected at the annual meeting of the Unitarian church Monday night. He is Ernest Ransome, who succeeds hCamplain L. Riley. Henry C. Weels was re-elected to the board, and Samuel Huntington was re-elected president.

Owing to the weather there was a light attendance at the meeting. Reports showing generally satisfactory conditions in all departments of the church were received. A slight deficit was met with immediate subscriptions and the church starts the new year with accounts balanced, and an increased membership.

Proctor's Fine Show.

"The Real Q" is a clever chap appearing at Proctor's theatre. The sketch is presented by S. Miller Kent & Co., and it has a deep plot that cannot fail to hold the interest. "Those Four Boys" comprise a fine vocal quartet and they present a popular program. Dunlap & Folk, refined instrumentalists, are above the average in operatic and popular selections on harp and violin. There is also a great dog and monkey act, well worth seeing. The Gould Sisters, singers and dancers, are clever, especially in the imitations of Trentini and Cohan.

Meditations Upon the Master.

The general theme for the meetings of week of prayer in the Congregational church this week, will be "Meditations upon the Master." The subdivision for the rest of the week will be, tonight, "The Master and Prayer," address by Fred H. Andrews; Thursday, "Looking to the Master;" Friday, "The Master and His Friends." This will be young people's night. The meetings will begin at 8 o'clock and special music is expected at each meeting.

Walter Bowden Improving.

Walter Bowden, the fifteen-year-old boy, who was accidentally shot by Charles Schenck, a companion, while engaged in a playful scuffle to get possession of a rifle, was reported at the hospital today as being in good condition with excellent chances for recovery. The physicians have not made any further effort to locate the bullet and will not for the present.

Pledge Wins Freedom.

Joseph Donnelly, who tore the buttons off Patrolman McCarthy's coat in resisting arrest Saturday night, brought a pledge, properly and penitently signed, to a further hearing in the city court yesterday. Judge DeMeza accepted the pledge at face value and suspended sentence.

New Contracting Firm.

Messrs. Arthur Robinson, of West Third street, and B. Bohl, of Terrill road, have formed a partnership to carry on a general mason and plumbing business. They have already secured a large contract from J. Schiff, of West Third street, and commenced on it today.

Singer Works Resume.

After two weeks' idleness the 9,000 employes of the big Singer Sewing Machine plant resumed work Monday. They will have to labor two weeks, however, before they get any pay, which will be quite a hardship to the men and much inconvenience to Elizabeth storekeepers.

Mrs. William Townsend and children, who have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Townsend for the holidays, will leave on Thursday for Denver, where they reside and where Mr. Townsend is engaged in business for the Ingersoll-Rand Company.

A STATEMENT ON POTATOES.

Government Bureau Shows Imports and Exports For Decade.

SIZE OF THE WORLD'S CROP.

It Is Between Five and Six Billion Bushels—New York the Largest Producing State, With Michigan Next and Maine Third.

The recent announcement that large quantities of potatoes are being imported into the United States lends interest to a statement prepared by the bureau of statistics, department of commerce and labor, showing the imports and exports of potatoes during a term of years. While the production of potatoes in the United States is usually sufficient to meet the requirements of its population, there have been a number of occasions following short crops in the United States on which considerable quantities were imported. On other occasions when there were shortages abroad and large crops in the United States considerable quantities were exported.

The total imports of potatoes into the United States in the last ten years aggregated 22,845,634 bushels, valued at $10,985,770, or about 48 cents per bushel, this valuation being based upon the wholesale market price in the countries from which imported, and does not, therefore, include the cost of transportation or duties paid, the rate of duty being 25 cents per bushel of sixty pounds both under the present law and its immediate predecessor. The exports of potatoes from the United States during the same decade amounted to 10,900,566 bushels, valued at $8,413,675, an average of 77 cents per bushel.

Potatoes imported into the United States come chiefly from Canada, Mexico and Bermuda, in America, and Scotland, England, Ireland, Germany and France, in Europe, while in recent years small quantities have also been brought from China, Australia and the Canary islands. The potatoes exported go chiefly to the West Indies, Central America and Canada, the largest quantities usually to Cuba, Canada and Panama and lesser quantities to other Central American states and the West Indies islands. Small quantities have also been sent in recent years to China, Hongkong, British Guiana, the Philippine Islands, French Oceania and certain of the South American countries, but practically none to Europe, which, although a large consumer of potatoes, is also a large producer.

The world's potato crop, so far as it can be measured statistically, runs between five and six billion bushels per annum, but these figures do not include the production of China, north Africa and most of South America, the original home of the potato, which was found under cultivation in South America by the Spanish discoverers and transplanted to Spain and thence to other parts of Europe. Germany is by far the largest single producer of potatoes, her total crop for 1909, the latest available figures, being 1,716,000,000 bushels against 1,173,000,000 in European Russia, 613,000,000 in France, 480,000,000 in Austria, 184,000,000 in Hungary, 137,000,000 in Great Britain, 120,000,000 in Ireland, 99,000,000 in Canada and 377,000,000 in the United States.

New York is the largest potato producing state in the United States, her product in 1910 being 44,500,000 bushels against 35,000,000 in Michigan, 28,000,000 in Maine, 28,000,000 in Pennsylvania, 25,000,000 in Wisconsin, 15,000,000 in Ohio, 12,666,000 in Illinois, 12,225,000 in Iowa and about 10,000,000 bushels each in Minnesota and New Jersey, while practically all the remaining states are represented with totals ranging from one to eight million bushels each.

The largest importation of potatoes during the past decade was in 1909, being 8,333,000 bushels; the largest exports of the decade were in 1911, being 2,333,000 bushels.

SENDS MONSTER PACKAGE.

Had Area of Twenty-five Square Feet and Cost $40.82 Postage.

What is pronounced by C. I. Lynch, superintendent of mails of the Seattle (Wash.) postoffice, probably to be the largest single piece of mail ever handled at the local office was forwarded to Melbourne, Australia, in the shape of a package having an area of twenty-five square feet. The bundle is incased in a wooden frame 5 feet long by 5 feet wide and several inches thick. A large painting is believed to be the contents, although the exact nature has not been disclosed by the sender to the postal authorities.

Forty stamps, each of the $1 denomination, and several minor stamps, representing a cost of $40.82, were required to pay postage on the package, going as first class mail. The total weight is eighty-two pounds.

The Philippine bureau of science is making a determined effort to introduce the growing of silk in the Philippines, not only for the purpose of increasing the productive possibilities of the islands generally, but also as a means of furnishing silk for use in connection with industries already established.

WOMEN OF ARMY TO URGE RESTORATION OF CANTEEN.

Mass Meeting Will Be Held In New York—Bartholdt's Bill Indorsed.

Women of the army will hold a great mass meeting in New York city, Jan. 18, for the purpose of urging the restoration of the canteen at army posts. Representative Bartholdt of St. Louis has introduced a bill providing for the restoration of the canteen and will take advantage of the first opportunity to lay before the house a petition signed by nearly 300 well known physicians who live in all sections of the country, advocating the restoration of the canteen. "This petition," said Mr. Bartholdt, "is one of the strongest arguments I have seen in favor of the restoration of the canteen. Coming as it does from physicians of the highest standing, it should have much weight with members of the senate and house, to whom it is addressed."

The physicians urge the senate and house to pass the Bartholdt canteen bill. "Since the abolition of the canteen in 1901," states the physicians' petition, "the practically unanimous testimony of general officers and post commanders, from General Leonard Wood (formerly an army surgeon) and General Fred D. Grant (a total abstainer) down, is that intemperance has increased, with a corresponding increase in infractions of discipline and desertions."

The United Spanish War Veterans have appointed a national committee on legislation, which includes Representatives Dyer of St. Louis, Anderson of Minneapolis, Crago of Pennsylvania and Stone of Illinois, who have called formally upon President Taft and urged him to assist in the efforts to have the canteen restored.

SCHOOL FOR BRIDES.

Carnegie Institution to Teach Household Duties In One Month.

A valuable boon for young women who marry in haste, without having prepared for the duties connected with keeping house for two, has been announced by the Margaret Morrison Carnegie School For Women at Pittsburgh. The scientists of that institution have arranged a thorough course for brides, and Miss Dorothy B. Scott, assistant registrar, gives assurance that it will include instruction of all the attributes necessary to make a husband happy so far as his purse and appetite are concerned.

An additional feature is the announcement that the course will not interfere with household duties, but may be assimilated by devoting the few hours a week formerly given to matinees and afternoon teas. The subjects include cooking from the boiling of eggs and plain frying to the making of pastry, ten lessons for $18; theoretical dressmaking and practical shirt waist and sensible sewing, each, ten lessons for $10; millinery, $10 for fifteen lessons, and garment design, $15 for twenty lessons. The bride's entire course costs $63 and requires only one month.

MISUSE OF NATIONAL FLAG.

No National Statute to Punish Such Acts—Law Needed.

Recent charges and denials of abuse and misuse of the American flag have developed the fact that there is no national statute making such acts punishable. Several states are said to have severe laws on the subject, and the war department officials are hopeful that agitation will lead legislators of other states to adopt similar laws.

Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army, contends that the national ensign should never be used as a table covering or be tacked up as drapery, but that it should always be suspended from a line or staff or hung against the wall. It is a common practice on shipboard to spread the flag over the chaplain's table or desk during services, and this practice is condemned in some quarters as a misuse of the flag.

An attempt probably will be made to secure national legislation on this subject, but it is said that so many private interests would be adversely affected that the success of the attempt is doubtful.

CORNELL GETS $100,000.

Jacob H. Schiff Would Promote Study of German There.

President Schurman of Cornell university announces a gift to Cornell university from Jacob H. Schiff of New York city of $100,000 for the promotion of studies in German culture.

Mr. Schiff explains that the gift, which was made on his own initiative, is intended as a tribute to the good work done by Cornell university and to the broad and liberal spirit which animates it. This feature of the donation is particularly gratifying to the authorities and friends of the university, as Mr. Schiff has never had any kind of connection with Cornell. The fund will be designated "the Jacob H. Schiff endowment for the promotion of studies in German culture." Except for its assignment to the object named the gift is without restrictions, the trustees being free to use the income for salaries or for other purposes coming within the scope of the endowment.

Princeton Enrollment.

The enrollment of Princeton university is greater than at any time in the history of the institution, there being 1,543 men enrolled as compared with 1,118 last year. The biggest gains are to be found in the senior and freshman classes.

WORK THAT TELLS.

Here In Plainfield.

Cures that last are cures that tell. To thoroughly know the vtirues of a medicine you must investigate the cures and see if they prove permanent. Doan's Kidney Pills stand this test, and plenty of proof exists right here in Plainfield. People who testified years ago to relief from backache, kidney and urinary disorders, now declare that relief was permanent and the cure perfect. How can any Plainfield sufferer longer doubt the evidence?

Mrs. S. Driscoll, 1009 South Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "There was a dull pain across the small of my back and in my sides that slung to me constantly and any hard work made my condition worse. I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells, expecially when stooping and I felt weak and run down. I tried plasters and various remedies but nothing helped me until I procured a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Drug Store. They did such good work in correcting my trouble that I heartily recommend them." (Statement given August 25, 1908.)

Re-Endorsement.

Mrs. Driscoll was interviewed on January 29, 1911, and she added to the above: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as I have been for the past five years. They made a lasting cure in my case."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

HOSPITAL WARD IS NEAR ITS LIMITS

Cots Pressed Into Service to Care For Overflow of Men Patients.

ALL ROOMS RESERVED AHEAD

Women's Ward Only Half Filled, Which is Unusual Under the Circumstances—Men Mostly Accident Victims.

A steady influx of patients has brought the men's ward of Muhlenberg Hospital to the verge of overcrowding. Every bed in the ward is occupied and cots are being pressed into service to take care of the overflow that new cases will create.

Rather oddly, the women's ward is only half filled. Ordinarily the hospital is called upon to take care of great many more women than men. It is interesting to note that of the twenty-two cases in the men's ward, all but one are surgical, while in the women's ward, the majority of cases are medical. Nine of the cases in the men's ward are the result of accidents of various kinds, such as a boy shot by his playmate, a boy who was struck by an automobile, and a man who was thrown from a runaway and kicked by the horse.

This is regarded as an unusual list for the first part of the month. It is a bit surprising that the recent severe weather with its extreme cold and ice pavements, hasn't contributed in any way to the overcrowding of the men's ward. Not one case of exposure, or of fracture, due to falling on the ice, has been received at the hospital.

There has not been a vacant private room since the third of the month. Rooms have been engaged far in advance, and those desiring admittance have had t wait until the occupant was discharged. Any emergency case wanting a private room would have to go in the ward temporarily, or whatever room could be found for it. There has been a steady demand for private rooms for some time which the hospital has not been able to meet.

There have been twenty operations so far this month, an average of two a day. Eight of these operations were performed in one day.

COLD KILLS RARE BIRD IMPORTED BY DR. COLES

A large African flamingo imported to this country by Percy Cook for Dr. J. Ackerman Coles' estate in Scotch Plains, has succumbed to the cold snap. The carcass is being mounted by T. W. Sisty, of Dewey Park.

The bird stood nearly six feet tall and was a splendid specimen if its species, which is rare. It is the first of the kind that the taxidermist has been asked to mount in the twenty years he has been in the business, and in many respects required special treatment on account of its peculiar shape and anatomy.

During the hunting season, Mr. Sisty was swamped with work by gunners who wanted quarries stuffed. In all he mounted twenty-eight English pheasants besides a number of quail and woodcock. He also mounted the deer killed by dogs on Dr. Coles' estate several months ago.

R. R. DETECTIVE CHARGED WITH CLUBBING CITIZEN

South Plainfielders Say Lehigh Valley Policeman Arrested and Assaulted Finnelli Without Provocation in Station--Starts Suit.

John Finnelli, fifty-five years old, who lives on a farm on Clinton avenue South Plainfield, retained State Senator George S. Silzer, of New Brunswick, yesterday to bring suit for damages against the Lehigh Valley railroad and to prosecute John Everhardt, a Lehigh Valley detectvie, for alleged assault and battery.

Finelli sought the lawyer a half-hour after he was held in New Brunswick in $200 bail to keep the peace, on Everhardt's charge that he was a suspicious character caught loitering on the railroad's property in South Plainfield. The South Plainfielder charges the railroad detective with clubbing him after exhibiting hotheaded officiousness. South Plainfield residents say the detective made a serious mistake in arresting Finnelli.

For the past seven years Finnelli has lived a quiet life on the Clinton avenue farm. He moved to South Plainfield from New York when he was retired from the Street Cleaning Department of that city. His neighbors have come to regard him highly.

At noon yesterday Finnelli says he went to the freight station of the Lehigh Valley Railroad in South Plainfield to get a shipment billed to him. The frieght agent was at lunch, he says, and the station was locked, so he went to the passenger station to wait for the agent's return out of the cold.

Everhardt, the detective, covering his beat along the road, saw him in the station a short time afterward. Finnelli is an Italian, and swarthy. He was dressed roughly, as men who work about their own farms are apt to dress.

Finnelli says the detective asked him curtly what he was doing about the station. He couldn't see what business that was of the stranger, Finnelli says, and told him so. Then, Finnelli alleges, Everhardt jumped for him with his blackjack out, hit him repeatedly over the head and face, and then informed him that he was under arrest. Finnelli's face and head were bruised and cut.

Everhardt was making ready to take his prisoner to New Brunswick, when Charles Thornton, who conducts a hotel in South Plainfield, and Archie Steengraafe, a prominent resident of the village, came into the station. They were astonished at what they saw, and more astonished when the detective told them his prisoner was a bad character who wouldn't give an acount of himself when found acting suspiciously about the station.

The South Plainfielders told the detective he was mistaken, and advised him to release Finnelli without delay. The detective ignored protests and advice, and took the prisoner to New Brunswick. Thornton and Steengraffe went along.

Everhardt had his prisoner arrfaigned at once after reaching New Brunswick. He told the court that Finnelli had made him fear for his safety, and demanded that he be put under bonds. The bail was promptly furnished by Thornton and Steengraffe, and on their advice Finnelli took action to secure redress.

Senator Silzer was indignant when the account of the alleged assault and unwarranted arrest was related to him, and took steps at once to press both civil and criminal actions. One of the things he did was to have Finnelli's face photographed to show the cuts and welts alleged to have been made by Everhardt's black jack. It is expected to be an important exhibit when the case reaches court.

FAR BE IT FROM ME TO 'TAKE THE HONOR'

Leighton Calkins States That Both Graham and Travis Deserve the Credit.

HE MAKES AN EXPLANATION

"I Devised a Handicap Table by Which at a Glance You Can Read Handicap of Player on Any Course."

And now Leighton Calkins, president of the Plainfield Country Club, arises to explain. It's all apropos of the letters between Walter Travis and Lionel Graham about the origin of the par system of handicapping in golf, letters which urge their own claims as part holders, at least, of the honor of bringing the system into use. Mr. Travis claims the honor of having made the original suggestion of using par as a basis for handicaps. Mr. Graham of having devised the system for determining the par of a given course, the inference of the letters being that there's just as much reason for the whole thing to be called the "Travis-Graham" system as for calling it the 'Calkins system."

Mr. Calkins said yesterday:

'It seems to me that there are too many things which are worth while to justify the manufacture of a fictitious controversy when there really is none.

"Let me say most emphatically that Mr. Graham is absolutely correct in what he has written, and so is Mr. Travis about the origin of the par system. They are merely mistaken in thinking that I have ever claimed that it originated with me. The par basis was established before I became interested in the handicapping problem, as I wrote Mr. Travis; he himself was the first to suggest it, so far as I know, and it was worked out mathematically by Mr. Graham, as he says, about the year 1902. He is entitled to all the credit for the par system which he then established, including the half stroke, which was entirely his own invention, and as valuable a devise as has ever been originated in the history of handicapping. There can be no question that between them Messrs. Travis and Graham share all the honors of suggesting, inventing and establishing a par system in this country.

"The present discussion seems to have had its source in a confusion of thought as to the "par system" and the "system for calculating handicaps based on par." It is the latter system which bears my name, and it is the only contribution to the general theory of golf handicapping to which I would for a moment think of laying any claim.

"My system, originated in 1904 and adopted about 1905 by the Metropolitan, New Jersey and other associations, was a system for calculating handicaps. Up to that time a player's handicap was always the exact difference between his best average score and the par of the course as figured by the Graham or par system. My theory was that if a poor player is entitled to a handicap because he cannot play well, a good player ought to have a handicap because he cannot improve as much. To illustrate: A man who could not play Garden City (par 75) better than 100 would not get a handicap of 25 but of 20. The five strokes taken off the exact difference between the par of the course and his best average game was the measure of his chance to improve, which the scratch player did not have. If he could play it in 80, his handicap would not be 5 but 4.

"Starting with this theory I devised a handicap table by which at a glance you can read the proper handicap of any player on any course if you know its par and his average best game over it. An important feature of the system is a set of rules giving complete directions showing how the table is to be used and how certain exceptions and allowances should be made in the cases of players who by reason of age or infrequency of play have little chance to improve their game.

"In short, the so-called Calkins system is a 'system for calculating handicaps based on par,' par being determined by the Graham system, to be used as a basis for all handi-

POLICE ARREST TWO MORMON WORKERS

Missionaries Taken Into Custody as They Spread Propoganda on E. 2nd St.

DENY POLYGAMY IS TALKED

Say They Have Never Hinted at Plural Marriage—Mayor Ordered Arrest Because They Had No Permit to Canvass.

The two young Mormon missionaries who have been seeking converts in this city and the borough for the past two months were arrested yesterday by order of Mayor Moy. Sergeant Overbaugh took them into custody on East Second street, near Washington street, as they were distributing tracts and making appeals from house to house in company.

The prisoners described themelves as Arthur Horsley, twenty-one years old, of Price, Utah, and Albert Newman, twenty-seven years old, of Murray, Utah. Both of them deny flatly and decidely that they have so much as hinted at polygamy in their propaganda. It is said that the Mayor was moved to act because they proceeded to distribute tracts after they were refused permission to do so. They were granted permits in North Plainfield, and for the better part of their stay here they have confined themselves to the trans-brook section.

Their case will come up in the city court Saturday. They are at liberty on their own recognizance.

M'KENNA DROPS ACTION; BAD DAY FOR SUCH SUITS

One of the first actions brought in Union county under the provisions of the Employers' Liability Act, in which James McKenna sued Woolston & Buckle to recover $5,000 damages for injuries sustained while employed by the firm in painting at the home of George H. Campbell on Grove street, March 14, 1911, was discontinued in the Union County Court yesterday before Judge Vail, on motion of Mr. McKenna's lawyer, J. M. Kiernan.

Former Judge William A. Coddington was counsel for Woolston & Buckle.

ENTERTAIN THEIR GUESTS AT "ADIRONDACK CAMP"

Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Runkle, of West Eighth street, provided an elaborate and rather unique entertainment for some friends at their home last night when they gave a 'camp party." As far as possible they reproduced their Adirondack camp, the scheme being carried out even to minor details. The whole interior of the home was transformed into a large camp, while about the porch and grounds were displayed red and green lights. The family coachman was dressed to represent an Adirondack guide, and he directed the guests through the "camp."

One feature of the affair fully enjoyed was the fact that the guests attended in rough-and-ready camp costume, just as they live when in the Adirondacks during the summer months. The entire absence of formality added greatly to the pleasure of all. The guests were persons who have at various times visited Mr. and Mrs. Runkle at their summer home, and it resolved itself into a reunion and the exchange of experiences in the woods. During the evening elaborate refreshments were served and the guests enjoyed a popular program of banjo and mandolin music, furnished by professional talent. The favors were Indian trinkets.

MAYOR MOY INJURED.

Mayor G. W. V. Moy had just finished taking his bath and was about to step out of the tub at his home this morning, when his feet slipped and he fell foremost, landing with all his weight on his left shoulder. He was unconscious for a few minutes. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan was summoned and he will make an X-ray examination this afternoon to ascertain if any bones are broken.

Choir Straw Ride.

The Grace church choir club will go on a straw ride tonight at 7:30 o'clock. They will start from the Grace church parish house, if it does not snow or of the wind does not blow too hard.

REMARKABLE GATHERING IN N. B. SMALLEY'S HONOR

Splendid Tributes Paid Retiring Mayor of North Plainfield at Banquet by Ex-Gov. Stokes and Leading Men of the Community.

As the happy-veined toastmaster, Samuel St. John McCutchen, explained in his introductory remarks, "the occasion of this assemblage, the dinner given last night in honor of former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, "Is the appreciation of a man." Men of all walks in life, professional and business men, had gathered at Saengerbund hall, fully 150 of them, when the toastmaster, arising to call for order after the menu had been disposed of, glanced about the hall to see representative citizens, not alone of North Plainfield, but of Plainfield and of Union, Somerset and Morris counties, who had come to show their respect, their high regard, for the man who had just retired after eleven years of service as mayor of the borough.

Former Governor Edward C.

Newton B. Smalley.

Stokes had come from Trenton and Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton from what he termed a Switzerland but which to most people is known as Watchung, to tell Mr. Smalley how much the people appreciated him as a man and as a public servant. Former Judge W. N. Runyon, of Plainfield and Charles W. McCutchen, of North Plainfield, also joined in singing his praises, and the sentiments they expressed were roundly applauded. Letters were read from former State Senator J. S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, and W. R. Codington, of Plainfield. "He has been with me and he has been against me," wrote Mr. Frelinghuysen, "and I wish to say that I never want him against me."

This expression of Mr. Frelinghuysen was taken up by the toastmaster, who declared in calling on the guest of honor, "He is with you when you are right and against you when you are wrong. He is always aggressive, always sincere and always reliable. He is a man who fights in the open and who fights for the square deal."

In one of his characteristic talks, Mayor Smalley said: "If this tribute comes to me as a reward for the services I have rendered the borough I want to admit to you that I've been overpaid. If I have done anything for the borough it has been done with the aid and support of the men who have stood for my administration. Should I leave this world without a dollar I would be glad to go leaving the respection and appreciation of the men here tonight." The Mayor said that he was of the sixteenth generation of his family in this country and he wanted to keep the name held in honor. "They have all been hard shell Baptists," said the speaker, and they do say that I'm one of the hardest nuts in creation."

After making some witty retorts to the jibes given him by the toastmaster, Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton said, "I come here to pay my respects to a real man—Newton B. Smalley. It is not the size of a man that counts; it is the spirit that is in him. I loved Newton B. Smalley the first time I saw him. First, I loved him for his simple unadorned manhood. We have a habit in this country of damning our public servants, which is unfortunate, and I tell you it is a heroic deed for one to give eleven years of his life to the public."

Dr. Eaton voiced the opinion that a mayor should not belong to any party for he is the chief executive of all the townspeople. The type needed for the office, he added, is the man of courage and intelligence who can appeal to the moral sense of the community. Such a man, he asserted, is Newton B. Smalley. Before ending his talk, the clergyman pictured the beauty and grandeurs of Washington Valley and suggested that the borough extend Watchung avenue through to that section, making a boulevard.

Toastmaster McCutchen introduced Judge Runyon as the "prince of entertainers." The judge started off by poking some fun at "Czar Newt," incidently saying that when he heard a rumbling noise coming from North Plainfield he was undecided whether

ACKERMAN STAMPS ARE ON EXHIBITION

Former Senator's Collection is the Feature of Trenton Philatelic Show.

RARE STAMPS BEING SHOWN

Canal Zone Collection of Plainfielder Won Highest Award at Vienna, Austria, Exposition Last September.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 11.—Under the auspices of the Trenton Philatelic Society, a notable exhibit of postage and revenue stamps of the United States and foreign countries is being held all this week in the gallery of the Trenton School of Industrial Arts. The exhibit marks the fourth anniversary of the organization of the society. The feature of the exhibition is the collection of Canal Zone stamps owned by former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Plainfield, which won a silver medal, the highest prize for this class of stamps, at the exposition held in Vienna, Austria, last Sepetmber. Other notable collections in the exhibition are those of former State Architect George E. Poole and Edward B. Sterling, of this city. The exhibit is open from two to five and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m.

A delegation of about twenty members of the Philadelphia Stamp Club will come to this city this afternoon to be the guests of the Trenton Philatelists, and to view the exhibit. The Trenton Philatelists sent a special invitation to the fraternity in Philadelphia, which was accepted.

Former Senator Ackerman's collection is contained in two volumes and is practically complete in all minor varieties. There are more than twenty full sheets of stamps, each mounted in two sections. All varieties are carefully noted in neat lettering. The whole collection is beautifully mounted. Mr. Sterling, who is a stamp expert, has given the following description of the Ackerman collection:

The collection is strong in used stamps. Many varieties, especially of the different 5c printings are unknown, except used. Of the first issue of 2c stamps, (only 25 sheets of which were issued), five blocks are shown, including one with Canal Zone inverted on all stamps.

The United States stamps with "Canal Zone" printed on them for use in the zone shown in the collection, are strong in plate numbers, (strips of three, or bolcks), in fact the best in this respect.

The 1c green stamp is shown in four sheets, representing the four printings. The 2c rose variety with the "L" of the word "Canal" printed sideways, a great rarity, is shown in a block. The complicated 5c stamps are well represented in the various settings on the several Panama printings, including four full sheets. Some of these printings are scarcely known, except used.

The variety with "Canal Zone" double is shown unused. The variety "Zone" antique on the 5c bright rose carmine over print, appears unused and used, in either way extremely rare. There a dozen copies of the rare 8c on third Panama issue, of which only four sheets were ever printed of the 8c variety with red-brown surcharge, there is an entire sheet of the fifth setting sowing the rare variety of antique type. Of this variety only about eight sheets were printed.

The block of four of the 10c variety with "Panama" surcharged double is extremely rare. The portrait issues shown give the numerous shades and rare varieties in blocks.

The Ackerman collection if all displayed in frames would fill the entire art gallery. Former State Architect Poole has collected 52 pages from the two Ackerman albums, which are mounted in sixteen frames for exhibtion. The balance of the collection is in the possession of Mr. Sterling, and is open to the inspection of all stamp collectors who attend the exhibit from a distance.

The collection of Mr. Poole shows stamps from two countries, Chile and Siam. The first is complete, containing every variety issued from 1853 to date, mostly in both unused and used conditions; a great many used pairs and some blocks of four and

TAKES BURIAL CASE TO COURT OF ERRORS

DeFestetics Battles Grimly to Inter Son's Body as He Wishes.

CHANCELLOR'S ADVERSE RULING

Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Appointed Special Master to Supervice Interment—Husband Takes An Appeal Wanting a Reversal.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 11.—An appeal has been taken to the Court of Errors and Appeals which will renew the litigation in the famous suit of Mrs. Elsie H. de Festetics against her husband, Gyula de Festetics, and the Hillside Cemetery Association, of Plainfield. The action was in the Court of Chancery and grew out of the separation of the de Festetics, owing to domestic differences. The dispute involved the burial of the son of the couple, and the litigation was so bitter that the Court of Chancery ordered that the funeral of the son be conducted under the supervision of Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of Plainfield, a special master of the court, that it might be decorous.

The final decree of Chancery was against the husband and he has filed the petition of appeal. The decree adjudged that the son should be interred in a plot in Hillside Cemetery, Plainfield, in a plot selected by Special Master Hetfield; required the father, the defendant, to provide for the expense of the funeral, and that no other burial be permitted in the plot or monument erected over the grave except on leave of Chancery; and further, that the plaintiff and her daughter, Elsie H. de Festetics, have equal rights of access to the grave with the defendant and that they all be mutually restrained from interfering with each other. The costs of the litigation were put upon the defendant.

The defendant appeals from this decree on the claim that it is erroneous and inequitable. He asks to have it reversed.

WIND BLOWS WORKMAN FROM HIGH BOARD PILE

While working on top of a sixteen-foot pile of lumber at the Dunellen Lumber and Stone Company's yard in Dunellen Tuesday, John Doty, one of the company's drivers, was blown off by the wind. He fell on a picket fence, severely injuring his left leg in addition to being badly shaken up.

The men with whom he was working did not know of the accident until they heard his cries from the opposite side of the lumber pile from which they were standing. Considerable difficulty has been experienced in handling the boards on account of the high wind and Doty suffered when a gust caught him while lifting a board, which made a wide surface for the wind to strike.

SECOND UNION SERVICE IS LARGELY ATTENDED.

The second of the union week of prayer services held in Vincent chapel, of the First M. E. church, last night, was marked by an unusually large attendance. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the church, was in charge.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, read the Scripture lesson and offered prayer. Rev. J. Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, also offered prayer. The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, of the First Baptist church, who spoke on the subject of "Foreign Missions."

The service tonight will be held at the First Presbyterian church, and Rev. J. Y. Broek will speak. Tomorrow night the service will be at Trinity Reformed church; Rev. Dr. Anderson will make the address.

Central Lodge to Install.

Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., will meet tonight at which time officers for the ensuing year will be installed by Grand Foreman E. M. McWhood, of Newark. There will be initiation and Rahway Lodge, No. 25, will play a series of games with Central Lodge in the quoit pitching tournament.

Cutting Ten Inch Ice.

William N. Tier started cutting ice on Tier's pond this morning, a large force of men being engaged in the work. The ice is ten inches thick and of unusual good quality.

"THE WHITE STORE" We Give S.&H. Green Trading Stamps

Our Sixth Annual January Clearance Sale

IS NOW ON, WITH GREATER VALUES THAN EVER OFFERED BEFORE. The reason we say GREATER is because the cotton market is at its lowest and because OUR STOCKS in all DEPARTMENTS are too LARGE and MUST be REDUCED BEFORE we INVENTORY the last of this month. THEREFORE, REDUCTIONS WILL BE MADE REGARDLESS OF COST. ALL FALL AND WINTER GOODS MUST BE SOLD THIS MONTH as we never carry any goods over from one season to another. This ad is a large one and will take some time to read it carefully. But it will pay you to read every item. If we don't increase our business this month 50 per cent. it will be because there is a scarcity of money, not because our prices are not low enough.

SOMERVILLE.

The funeral of Isaac Clarkhuff, Tuesday, was largely attended. Rev. F. J. Soule, of the Baptist church, officiated. Mr. Clarkhuff was fifty-nine years of age. He was a member of several local organizations. His wife died very suddenly about a year ago. Five boys and two girls survive.

The second annual dinner of the Brotherhood League of the Baptist church will take place Thursday evening, February 1. The speakers will be Rev. Addison Moore, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, New York, and former Judge William N. Runyon, of Plainfield.

Thte week of prayer services at the Second Reformed church are being well attended. Tuesday evening Rev. F. J. Soule, of the Baptist church, made an address. Last evening James L. Griggs, superintendent of the Sunday school, spoke.

The clubhouse of the Somerville Athletic Association will be open for the use of ladies this afternoon from 2 to 6. In the evening there will be a card party and a short concert.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Miss Gertrude Smalley, while driving in the borough yesterday afternoon was thrown out while turning the corner at Midway and Martine avenues. The runners on the sleigh broke on the turn and Miss Smalley and Henry Benner, who was driving, were hurled to the roadway. Both were badly shaken up but fortunately no bones were broken.

The pedestrians abandoned the sidewalks yesterday and took to the roadway as it was impossible to use the walks as they were a perfect glare of ice.

The Bachelor's Club will resume its series of winter dances this month, one being planned for the latter part of the month.

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews had charge of the weekly prayer and praise meeting last night at the Baptist church.

The cold weather has put an end for a time to work at the Fanwood stone crusher.

Mrs. Frederick Clawson has returned from a visit with relatives at New Market.

Arthur G. Stevens is spending a week with relatives at Chatham.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The severe cold snap has not prevented work on H. C. Vogel's bungalow being pushed and the structure will be ready for occupancy early in the spring.

George Huff, formerly in the express business here, was a visitor in town yesterday. He is now living in Raritan.

Mrs. Harry Corbin, of Greenbrook road, is home after a week spent with relatives in New London, Conn.

J. Y. Wilson returned home yesterday after a week spent with his son in Metuchen.

Robert Lowry, whose illness was reported yesterday, was said to be improving today.

John Logan, Jr., is confined to his home with an attack of grip.

WESTFIELD.

The officers elected at a recent meeting of Upchurch Lodge, A. O. U. W., were installed Tuesday evening, after which the local lodgemen played Plainfield Lodge, A. O. U. W., in the quoit tournament.

R. L. Smalley, of the Westfield Leader, in company with his father, of Schenectady, leaves today for a trip to Florida and California.

Robert Miller, the local United States Express agent, will soon be transferred to Cincinnati.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The girls' basketball team of the high school will play the Roselle High School five at Roselle this afternoon.

The boys' basketball team will play the Battin High School five at Elizabeth, this afternoon.

The members in the course of public speaking appeared before assembly this morning. Raymond Manley recited "Chatam's Last Speech." Bruce Conlin gave the speech of Spartacus to the gladiators and Hazel Pitington recited "A Pathetic Incident of the Rebellion."

Seek Royalties of Light Users.

Users of a certain type of acetylene gas lighting equipment in Califon have been considerably stirred by demands for royalties from an alleged owner of patents covering the device. The equipment is manufactured by a New York concern. The Califon people first received a notice of alleged infringement. Then other letters came announcing that since the owner of the patent had been unable to compel the manufacturing company to pay royalties on machines already manufactured, arrangements would be made to collect royalties from the present owners. The royalty was fixed at ten per cent. of the retail cost of the equipment.

The young men of Holy Cross church will meet in the parish house, Thursday night, January 18, for the purpose of organizing a club. Rev. W. S. McCoy, the rector, will be present to direct the plan of organization.

Mrs. Sarah Brown, mother of Mrs Peter Emmons, of West Fifth street, who recently underwent another operation at the hospital for eye trouble, has returned home.

DISPUTE OVER A WORD IN "THE GARDEN OF ALLAH."

At last, the bugbear of "The Garden of Allah" company, at the Centurny Theatre, has been laid to rest. Every since Count Anteoni's translation of the song of the freed negroes: "No one but God and I Knows what is is in my heart," was first uttered at rehearsal, there have been contentions as to the correctness of the usage of the personal pronoun involved. When the point was first brought up, Mr. Hichens admitted that he had no grammatic grounds on which to defend his usage, but declared that no other reading would suit him as well. Moreover, said he, as his novel had gone through 'steen editions, the expression had passed 'steen copy-readers and 'steen proof-readers unchallenged. Despite the author's stand, the actors became violently partisan on the question. "We are divided into two camps," declared one. "Some of us are strong for God and I, while others can see nothing but God and me."

While the controversy was at its height, a letter arrived from a Mr. Vaughan, of Columbia University, mildly reprimanding the management for permitting this violation of grammatical usage in the performance at the Century. Frederick Stanhope, the stage manager of the theatre, an enthusiastic member of the God and I clique, undertook to reply, citing similar usage in the works of the masters, and asking his correspondent to quote his authorities for calling the correctness of the sentence into question. This Mr. Vaughan cheerfully did, adding that he would gladly secure the opinions of Professor Brander Mathews and Dr. Thorndyke on the question. He did so, at Mr. Stanhope's request, with the following result.

"I have consulted Dr. Thorndyke," runs Mr. Vaughan's letter, "who referred me to Dr. Krapp, the great authority here on English usage. Dr. Krapp tells me that according to in the sentence in question. But he contention that 'me' should be used in the sentence in quetion. But he tells me usage will justify the use of 'I.' He tells me that 'I' cannot be justified by any gramatical rule, but that euphony has forced its correctness in such sentences as you quote. He thinks you are perfectly safe in adhering to the expression as it is read in the play. It all goes to show how futile it is for grammarians to insist upon hard and fast rules when these rules are not backed up by good usage."

Loud "Hum" of Industry.

Twenty-eight property-owners and residents in the vicinity of the new power house of the Newton Gas and Electric plant, near Spark avenue, Newton, have filed a petition with the Board of Health, protesting against the noise made by the big gas engines that are run nights to generate current. The petition says the engines are used without mufflers.

TRAIN KILLS CHATHAM MAN AT STATION CROSSING.

While about to board an eastbound Lackawanna train at Chatham yesterday, Harold E. Martin, an architect, of Red road, Chatham, was struck and killed by a west bound train.

Mr. Martin came to Chatham from Brooklyn in September of 1909, when he married Miss Alice H. Whitton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Whitton, of Red road. Less than two weeks ago a baby was born to the couple. Mr. Martin was thirty-two years old.

Pierce Explains Tax Bill.

Before the Summit Board of Trade Tuesday night Senator Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, explained the provisions of his equal tax bill. Mr. Pierce asked his hearers to consider carefully the question of abolishing the personal tax. He was inclined to favor placing a limit on the amount of such a tax, but at present he was undecided. He asked the members of the Trade Board to forward to him their views on the subject.

Poverty!

Poverty has always existed. There is no remedy. It can be alleviated, but not abolished. No matter who preaches any other doctrine, it is a false and not a true preachment. It is against the inexorable logic of all ages. Statesmen have sought a remedy and failed; demagogues have offered their quack medicines and they have been eagerly accepted only to be finally rejected, one after the other. Philosophers, students, teachers and preachers have all had their say and all sought their remedies, but poverty still exists. When there is no more sin we shall have no more poverty.—Leslie's.

Ibsen and Art.

As a young man Ibsen was by no means certain of his vocation. Until he was thirty-two he believed himself to be born for painting. In fact, a fairly large exhibition might be got together of the canvases painted by Ibsen in the days of his early manhood and scattered now through the farmhouses and country villas of Norway. He remained all his life profoundly interested in art, and his judgments of ancient and renaissance art in Italy are always original.

Of Raphael he said: "Raphael's art has never warmed me. His beings belong to the garden of Eden before the fall."—London Mail.

Talleyrand.

Talleyrand's conservatism was summed up by a witty compatriot, Paul de Courrier, who declared that if Talleyrand had been present at the creation he would have exclaimed: "Good gracious! Chaos will be destroyed!"

NOT PREPARED AS YET TO ELECT PRINCETON HEAD.

There is little likelihood, it is said, of the trustees of Princeton University electing a president at the regular meeting of that body today in Nassau Hall. The committee on choosing a president has not signified its intention of offering a name to the trustees, and it is thought that a head for the university will not be elected until just before the summer vacation.

With Dr. John M. T. Finney, of Baltimore, out of the field of men who have been mentioned in connection with the presidency, there is no probable candidate for the office in sight. Dean West, of the graduate school, has been spoken of, but it is the opinion of many that there is little probability of his appointment taking place. The same seems to apply to the name of Dean Fine, of the university.

Charles C. Graves, of South Second street, has been detained at home with an attack of the grip.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks closed higher in New York yesterday.

Incoming steamships arrived with heavy coatings of ice, and reported stiff gales and biting weather.

The census of 1911 showed that the population of France had increased slightly, according to a Paris dispatch.

A Bermuda dispatch said the McCall, the last of the torpedo boat destroyers missing in the recent storm, was safe.

W. J. Bryan said the Democratic party was reasonably harmonious and that its next platform would be distinctly progressive.

A fire broke out in St. Rita's Hall, Villanova College, near Philadelphia, and for a time threatened several other buildings with destruction.

The federal grand jury at Indianapolis investigated the operations of Ortie E. McManigal in New York, New Jersey and other Eastern points.

The French Cabinet resigned after Premier Caillaux vainly tried to reorganize it, following the resignation of the Foreign Minister, Justin de Selves.

Mayor Gaynor, of New York, addressing an organization of commission merchants, absolved the middlemen from the charge of causing high food prices.

Guy E. Tripp was elected to succeed the late Robert Mather as chairman of the board of directors of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

The American Painters and Sculptors, the new rival of the National Academy of Design, elected Arthur B. Davies president, to succeed J. Alden Weir, resigned.

Massenet's opera "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame" was presented at the Hammerstein Opera House in London, a soprano instead of a tenor singing the title role.

W. Morgan Shuster said farewell to the Shah and will leave Teheran today; a St. Petersburg newspaper printed a rumor that he would be appointed Minister to Persia.

Judge Carpenter ruled out of the records letters alleged to have been written by the indicted beef packers on trial in Chicago; the government will insist later that they be admitted as evidence.

The thermometer at Cook, Minn., broke cold weather records, registering 56 degrees below zero; all thermometers there burst at that figure; 56 below was recorded in several Canadian towns, 23 below at Minneapolis and 22 below at St. Paul.

Andrew Carnegie, a witness before the Stanley committee, told how he got the better of John D. Rockefeller in the Lake Superior ore deal, and said that he was "a fool" for selling his properties to the United States Steel Corporation for $439,000,000.

The work of tearing down the ruins of the burned Equitable building in New York will begin today, and it was thought that the three bodies and the billion dollar treasure buried under the ice covered wreckage would not be reached in less than a week.

American troops will sail today from Manila for China; United States military attaches returned to the Peking legation after inspecting the railway section to be guarded; Russia informed China of its willingness to mediate about Mongolia; Dr. Can Yat-sen may lead one hundred thousand rebels in the march to Peking.

SUMMIT WOMEN WANT CITY TO COLLECT ASHES.

Summit, as well as Plainfield residents, are becoming aroused to the need of municipal collection and dispostal of garbage and ashes. Maintaining that the present system of collecting and disposing of garbage and ashes is inadequate and a disgrace to the city the Summit Women's Town Improvement Association is arranging to hold a public meeting to agitate municipal control and work for the establishment of a crematory.

At Monday night's session of the Board of Health the members declared that Summit's system of ashes and garbage collection was one of the best and most inexpensive in the State. The suggestion of a municipally controlled incinerator was ridiculed by the health officials and the Health Board came in for criticism at the women's meeting Tuesday.

WITH N. Y. BANK, 40 YEARS; IS RETIRED ON PENSION.

Having completed forty-six years' service in the Bank of New York, Charles K. Strong, of 68 Elm street, Summit, has been retired on a pension. He was discount clerk, assistant bookkeeper and served in other capacities. Mr. Strong was finally placed in charge of the bankers' and brokers' accounts, which position he held up to his retirement.

Since 1871 Mr. Strong has been a commuter between Summit and New York. His retirement came unexpectedly to him. He was simply notified that in view of his long and efficient services the bank directors had decided to allow him to relinquish his duties on a pension sufficiently large to permit him to spend the remainder of his life in ease.

BIG FUR SALE

At Charles Kurtzman's Fur Store

178 EAST FRONT ST. (Dr. Pittis' Office Building.)

Our fur sale will be the greatest cut price event ever known in Plainfield in exclusive furs. We will show Plainfield people a place where they can make money. I will sell goods at half of our cost prices in order that our patrons may get the highest quality of goods in Mink, Lynx, Natural Foxes, Raccoons, Coats, etc., at prices which, in other stores, they would have to pay for imitation goods. The reason why we are doing this is to still further increase our reputation for bargain giving and square dealing, in order that the public may have this store firmly fixed in their minds for the coming year. To show the people what prices will prevail at this great sale we quote the following:

Genuine Hudson Seal Coats, reg. price $75; sale price $42.50

Brown Marmot Coats, real guaranteed quality $37.50

Big Line of Pony Coats ..... $25.00 to $35.00

Real Eastern Mink Sets, reg. price $90; sale price $45.00

Lynx Sets, reg. price $90; sale price $45.00

One Black French Lynx Set, reg. price $16; sale price $7.50
All styles.

Brown and Black French Sable Coony Coats at $20.00
All styles.

All other furs, such as Natural Foxes, Russian Lynx, etc., between $15.00 and $25.00 per set. You cannot duplicate them elsewhere at any less than $45.00. We will refund the difference to any person who can prove they can buy these goods at lower figures.

JOHN KEAN IS AGAINST CUTTING HIS TOWNSHIP

Former United States Senator John Kean has expressed unqualified disapproval of the proposed plan to separate Lyons Farms and Saybrook from Union Township. As the owner of Ursino, the most extensive and valuable property in the township, former Senator Kean's views are likely to have an important bearing upon the project.

"I am always against these small governments when there is no real need of them," he says. "There is nothing to be gained. What do you have when they are established? Only more positions to be filled."

The entire township would suffer from increased taxed should it be dismembered, in the opinion of the former Senator.

Former Senator Kean's property is located in the Salem section, close to Saybrook.

The residents of Saybrook will put up a fight if the advocates of the movement to make a borough of the Lyons Farms section of Union Township attempt to include the Saybrook territory inside the proposed boundaries, it is declared. There will be no opposition to the movement if this territory is not included, it is said. Township officials also are against including Saybrook.

LONG CREDIT IS BLAMED FOR LIVING'S HIGH COST.

Organization in Summit of a branch of the Merchants' Mercantile Association, of Pittsburg, Pa., is to be effected within the next ten days. Seventeen Summit merchants and professional men have signified their intention of becoming members of the organization, which will be composed of business men of Short Hills, Millburn, Springfield, Chatham and Madison.

Summit business men declare that the primary cause for the high cost of living, at least in communities such as theirs, is the long period of credit which they find it necessary to extend to many of their patrons.

"When several of our customers fail to pay their bill for six and eight months, it simply means that we have to add to our prices sufficient to pay the interest on the money which we are obliged to borrow from the banks or other sources to carry on our business," said one business man.

LAND IS PURCHASED FOR THE CLEVELAND MEMORIAL.

Title was taken Tuesday by George M. Canfield, of the Cleveland memorial committee of Caldwell, to the plot of land at Bloomfield and Arlington avenues, Caldwell, that was originally a part of the Presbyterian parsonage plot, the birthplace of Grover Cleveland.

The present transaction marks the first step in the acquisition of the parsonage property for memorial purposes.

An Opportunity to Save Money

This month we will make a clean cut in the price of the discontinued patterns and unmatched pieces of Furniture that has accumulated during the busy season. We have special offerings in all lines, BEDROOM, DINING-ROOM, LIVING-ROOM, and DEN. You will find something for every place in the home, and at prices that are below the real value.

We are not offering the kind of furniture that is usually bought or made up for a "SALE," but pieces taken from our regular stock of well made and finished Furniture and marked at a low price to close them out. There is a big variety of matched pieces as well as odd designs and all the popular Woods are represented, MAHOGANY, MAPLE, CIRCASSIAN WALNUT and OAK, in the GOLDEN AND EARLY ENGLISH finish.

May we have the pleasure of showing you no matter if you wish to purchase or not?

SOME PLANS FOR THE PRESS.

Because of delays which were beyond the control of the manufacturer, the Plainfield Daily Press has said but little about its plans for a new press. Arrangements were made before the present owners took charge of the paper for much improved facilities for printing the editions each night, the new press being one which will allow the printing of any number of pages up to twenty, without closing any page until a late hour. It will also run off the complete edition much earlier in the afternoon than at present. The new press was promised for January second, but through no fault of the Duplex Printing Press Company, delivery has been delayed. Unless some unforeseen accidents occurs the machinery, which has been shipped from Battle Creek, Michigan, will be in operation in about two weeks.

When this press is installed the size of the paper will be materially increased, thus permitting the news features to be greatly strengthened, including the addition of a news service, illustrations and more suburban news. The State Legislature will be fully covered during the season, and after it is concluded the best service from the capital which is available will be continued. This is furnished by the bureau conducted by W. W. St. John, formerly of Plainfield. Numerous other improvements, which we hope will maintain for the Press the enviable position which it has held in the local field ever since its establishment, will be made.

One feature which has been gratifying to the new owners has been the cordial way in which our efforts have been received. Although no attempt has been made to secure it there has already been a substantial net increase in the circulation of the Daily Press, and hundreds of readers who have taken the paper for years have called or telephoned to congratulate us on the changes which have been made and wish the new management success. We do not care to say anything about what we are going to do, leaving the future to determine whether the paper will continue to receive the splendid support it has received in the past, and merit increased patronage.

PARTY DIFFERENCE, WHAT?

The political conditions in the Nation and our State are unique. Probably the history of the Republic does not show an exact parallel at any time in the past. The dividing line between parties is no greater or more marked than is the same line between the factions within each party. Outside of the tariff there is practically no points of vital difference between Republicans and Democrats; and even on the tariff there are in each party those who do not think like the others. The views held by many who call themselves Republicans are very divergent. A stand-pat Republican and a Progressive do not hold common views; and neither believes, if we may take their utterances for a guidance, in the full sincerity of the other.

A stand-patter has little use for a Progressive and the latter has less for the stand-patter. The Progressive is for real civil service reform with the absolute abolition of the spoils system. He abhors the idea of office giving as a reward for party service. His view is that efficiency, due to experience and competency, should control appointments, and that the only motive for public activity should be to promote principles; not to secure official reward. The Progressive is also for a tariff whose basic principle shall not be personal gain or the building up of some industry for private advantage, but rather the promotion of the public weal and an assurance of the finished product for the people at the cheapest possible cost consistent with the maintenance of the industry. He is against a protective tariff solely for the sake of protection in order that the conductor of business may make a profit simply for the sake of the profit. He is against the present tariff law because it is not a downward revision as promised by the platform of the Republican National Convention of 1908.

The Progressive is against any forms of political machine—under whatever name or guise it may exist; and in favor of all questions being settled by the voter at the polls, and the abolition of bossism in every form. If the people are capable of choosing a governor of the State, why pray, are they not competent to select at the ballot box, a United States Senator? The issue is squarely drawn; neither party can win in our day unless the people feel that its course is clear, and its leaders sincere in an advocacy of a strict obedience to the voice of the people. No other party deserves success.

As usual the game law tinkerers are to be found in the Legislature. In the first batch of twenty-four bills introduced in the Senate on Tuesday there were four included which directly affect the present laws. It would be a good scheme to let this class of legislation alone long enough to find out just what is needed, and then have a general revision of the acts covering the entire subject.

The New York Sun correspondent at Washington discovered "Senator" Dennis F. Collins and "John" R. Nugent down there on Monday. Such is fame! General Collins can stand it, but it must be hard on Jim to have his name twisted, especially when he was so successful in getting it in the newspapers of the country right last summer, in connection with a certain famous toast.

It is very strange, and yet it is not strange, that it is only through the eyes of the members of the staff of the Newark Star, that Governor Wilson seems to be losing ground as a presidential candidate. If there was ever stronger evidence of the wish being father to the thought in New Jersey political history, it is yet to be heard from.

COMMENDS THE PRESS.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

A city is known by its newspapers. Theirs is the vox populi. As a paper thinks, so think the thousands it serves. When a paper fails correctly to voice the sentiment of its constituents it has outlived its usefulness to its patrons. But, when a paper stands securely fixed in the public estimation for two score years or more, the while working assiduously for the public weal, it is not strange it suddenly awakes to find itself outstripped in development by the very community it has nurtured almost from villagehood.

Such, it would seem, is the case with the Daily Press. It has a different field today than that it had when your very able and highly respected predecessor first essayed the role of editor. Ideals have changed and problems new and intricate have arisen to be solved. The age demands strong minds, men resolute of heart and men who can look beyond the present day and see the worthier goal; that of the greatest good for the greatest number, which usually is far beyond the vision of the average man.

The changes you have made since you assumed command most clearly show that you appreciate your opportunities. The type, the view, the character of news, the style, the plan, the editoral, all bespeak the dawn of a new journalistic era for the Queen City of the Watchungs.

Where there are two minds with but a single thought and hearts that beat as one, true tranquility prevails, so I am led to wonder if two papers with but a single aim will hereafter print the "beat" as one.

As an humble private in the illustrious army of writers and newspaper men who have graduated from the "Little Back Office" it gives me great pleasure to see it expand and, while congratulating you and your associates upon your recent acquisition, may I also add my sincere wishes for a very large measure of success in the years to come.

Yours truly,

DISTRICT JUDGES SWAP BENCHES FOR DAY; ONE CASE

Judge William Newcorn, of the District Court, and Judge Clark McK. Wittemore, of the Elizabeth District Court, exchanged this morning. The only case tried before Judge Wittemore was one on contract between Percy G. Allen and Robert T. Skinner. Mr. Allen is a painter and sued to recover a bill for painting he done on Mr. Skinner's stand in the City Market. A verdict for $6.45, half of the amount claimed, was given in his favor.

According to the testimony given by the defendant and his brother, Mr. Allen agreed to do the painting gratis, but was to be paid for the material. Mr. Allen said that he agreed to do the work at a reduction out of friendship for Mr. Skinner. Martin B. Stutsman represented the plaintiff and Francis J. Blatz the defendant.

King and Queen En Route Home From the Durbar

KING GEORGE and Queen Mary are on their way back to England after being crowned emperor and empress of India amid scenes of dazzling splendor. The coronation durbar was the most stirring and brilliant ever seen in Hindustan.

The king in person proclaimed his coronation in the east. The proclamation was read in English and Urdu, and at the conclusion massed bands burst into the national anthem, bringing the multitude to its feet shouting "God Save the King." Then, by command of the emperor, Sir Henry McMahon, master of ceremonies, opened the durbar.

The king announced that the seat of government would be transferred from Calcutta to Delhi and that there would be created a governorship for Bengal. The viceroy, standing in front of the throne, announced the grants and concessions made in commemoration of the occasion, including $2,500,000 to promote popular education.

King George wore a robe of imperial purple with a surcoat of purple, white satin breeches and silk stockings and a crown studded with diamonds, emerald and rubies on a cap of purple velvet turned up with ermine. The queen wore white satin, embroidered in gold roses, thistles and shamrocks, and a purple velvet mantle and train trimmed with ermine and gold braid.

King George's durbar far outshone the coronation durbar in 1903, when King Edward was proclaimed emperor of India. Delhi was overrun by visitors from all lands, and the magnificent spectacle was witnessed by hundreds of thousands.

The durbar camp was a vast canvas city, covering about twenty-five square miles. It was lighted by electricity, served by a perfect water supply and provided with excellent roads and a special railway system.

Many of the roads were constructed by the natives "by hand" in their own peculiar manner. All the camps were linked by railway and telephone connections.

The huge tent in which the investiture took place was capable of seating 3,000 persons. It was decorated in blue, white and gold. Behind it stood the king's state dining tent, hung with blue, where 160 guests attended the state banquet on the evening of the durbar.

When King George arrived for the durbar in state procession he proceeded halfway around an enormous banked up arena in which were assembled not fewer than 80,000 persons. From there he went to a similar amphitheater accommodating 12,000 persons—Indian chiefs, governors and lieutenant governors, imperial and provincial councils, with all the leading officers, notables and gentry of India. After the ceremony and on returning to their camps their majesties completed the second half of the circle in the big arena and then proceeded along the Princes' road through a number of other camps occupied by Indian princes.

A series of fires in the durbar city during the rehearsals preceding the great spectacle caused considerable alarm to be felt for the safety of the king, as fires frequently proceed trouble in India. It is not thought now, however, that the fires were of incendiary origin.

Not the least interesting feature of the durbar was the voyage of the Medina. Two days out the vessel exchanged salutes with Italian warships. The king spent much of his time on the bridge of the ship. There were cricket matches in the evening between the officers of the ship and members of the royal suit; there was a daily drill with dumbbells for the ladies and gentlemen and dancing for the servants. The king and queen generally watched the dancing.

After the durbar the king-emperor went on a tiger hunt to Nepal. The queen-empress went to Agra.

Ask Bryan to Lecture Here.

Charles S. Sminck, secretary to former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county, went to Washington Monday in an endeavor to obtain a promise from William Jennings Bryan to come to Plainfield and deliver his lecture, "The Prince of Peace," for the benefit of Muhlenberg hospital. Senator Martine is co-operating with Mr. Sminck, and although Colonel Bryan has not definitely accepted the invitation, it is expected that he will do so.

HARMONIZING FEAST FOR REPUBLICANS OF WARREN.

State Senator W. W. Smalley, of Bound Brook, and Prosecutor Frederick Pope, of Somerville, were the principal speakers at a dinner given by the Republicans of Warren township at Mt. Bethel Hall, last night. There were about one hundred present. Letters of regret were received from Assemblyman W. de LaR. Anderson and former State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen.

George W. Howe, fire warden for the township, was the toastmaster. Senator Smalley spoke on the probable legislation at Trenton this winter, while Mr. Pope directed his thought to current topics of the day. Afterward "Judge" Hay made a few remarks.

Those who attended the dinner agree that it helped cement harmony in the party ranks. It brought about emphasis of the idea that the best interests of the township should be served with all differences sidetracked.

Churchmen Elect.

Following the mid-week prayer meeting at the Netherwood Reformed church last night a business session was held at which these were elected to the consistory: William Carson and Claude Gonod as elders for two years each; F. A. Cooper as deacon for two years. Mr. Carson was re-elected and Mr. Gonod was elected as elder from the board of deacons.

The funeral service of Alexander Hamilton Small will be held at the late home on Westervelt avenue, tomorrow afternoon and will be private. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, will officiate. The burial will be in Greenwod cemetery, Brooklyn.

HONOR N. B. SMALLEY

it was a blast at the Smalley stone crusher or merely "Newt" throwing somebody out. Then paying his respects to the guest of honor, Mr. Runyon asserted that "whatever he has done he has done from a conscientious conviction that it was for the best interests of his constituents. In season and out of season he is a friend throughout.

When former Governor Stokes arose to speak, Mayor Smalley proposed three cheers for "one of the best governors New Jersey ever had." The governor had some nice things to say about the toastmaster and had some funny stories to dispense. Considering the criticism and fault-finding the day, he observed that it was good to be at a gathering of this sort. The "knockers" came in again for a share of his attention when he asserted that this country cannot go wrong for in his opinion the hearts of ninety-eight per cent. of the people are true and the great mass of the people are honest.

"Every community," said the Governor, "has its good men, men who have fixed opinions, and honest men, men who will not lie. Such men are models to be emulated. Men like these make this great Republic the greatest on earth. Of such men is Newton B. Smalley."

One of the best speeches of the evening was that of Charles W. McCutchen for it was "straight from the shoulder" and "from the bottom of the heart." In introducing his brother as a speaker, Toastmaster S. St. John McCutchen was responsible for a hearty laugh from the diners when he declared that Charles W. McCutchen knew how to lead a prayer meeting but not how to conduct a campaign. "He doesn't know when not to write letters and when not to be interviewed," he asserted with an air of assumed grief.

In defining his idea of a public servant, Mr. C. W. McCutchen said that he regretted that a great many of them were disappointed after they get into office. He evidently had in mind Governor Wilson, for he stated towards the close of his remarks that it was hard to make a hero out of a politician but that he had done so last fall. "I had my hero, a university leader. Now I'm sorry that I did and I'll promise that I'll never do it again."

"Artists and architects tell us of the beauty of the curved lines but I tell you that there is nothing so grand as the straight line. We want the straight line type of men for our public servants; we want men of courage and men who are polite and kind.

The excellent menu, provided by DeMolli, was served in this shape:

Borough Cocktail
Flaked Crab Meat
a la modern Celery Salted Nuts Olives
Tomato Bisque
Crissine
Boiled Halibut
Creamed Sauce
Potatoes Parisienne Dinner Rolls
SMALLEY PUNCH
Roast Stuffed Turkey
French Fried Potatoes
Tomato and Lettuce Salad
Cream and Roquefort Cheese
Bent's Crackers
Cake Ice Cream
Coffee

The guests were as follows:

The music was furnished by B. A. Paroubek, violin, and Joe Denny, piano. Coming from Proctor's theatre, the Misses Duncan and Folk gave harp and violin selections. Miss Duncan also sang, the obligato being by Miss Folk. One of the features of the affair was the handsome menu cards provided by David J. Carney.

The committee on arrangements consisted of Alexander Milne, David J. Carney and M. C. VanArsdale.

Mrs. Ellen C. Britton.

The funeral services of Mrs. Ellen C. Britton, widow of Josiah C. Britton, who died at her home in Main street, Flemington, Monday night, were held from the home this afternoon at 1 o'clock. She was sixty-six years old and is survived by nine children. They are: Mrs. Bertha Barton and Josiah Britton, of Klinesville; George Britton, Copper Hill; Harry W. Britton, of Moorestown; Russell Britton, of Pittstown; Mrs. Morgan Campbell, of Baponne; John A. Britton, of Shamokin, Pa.; Miss Martha E. Britton and Walter P. Britton, of Flemington. The services were conducted by Rev. Howard H. Brown, pastor of the Baptist church.

The North Plainfield High School basketball team defeated the Westfield High School five at Debele's Hall, yesterday afternoon by a score of 41 to 22. Dunning played the best game, scoring six goals in the first half and five in the second.

MME. MAETERLINCK.

Wife of the Belgian Author Is an Interesting Personality.

Mme Maeterlinck, wife of Maurice Maeterlinck, the famous Belgian author and philosopher, and who herself is a famous singer, has been pronounced a most interesting personality by those who have met her during her present visit to America.

Mme. Maeterlinck is a high priestess of the cult that preaches the perfect wifehood, and she has evolved a philosophy of her own for reaching that happy destiny in matrimony. From this philosophy she has evolved ten precepts which she calls "A Wife's Ten Commandments." They are:

First.—Remember always that the true wife is the inseparable half of the only complete human unit in which two small and imperfect individualities have become merged into a large and perfect one.

Second.—Each half of the wedded whole retains special functions. Yours are to discern, to anticipate, to yield, to cheer, to soothe and thus to strengthen.

Third.—Never trust to hirelings the essentials of your husband's physical well being. Understand and frequently practice the art of selecting and preparing his food.

Fourth.—Be sure each day that his garments are whole and clean and suited to the season.

Fifth.—Constitute yourself an infallible barometer whereby to forecast and render harmless those electrical disturbances peculiar to the married state.

Sixth.—Be to your husband's dark moods the subtle, unsuspected antidote; to his joyous mood the companion spirit of joy.

Seventh—Save your caresses until you perceive that his dinner has been without a flaw. Kisses to a hungry man are like froth to a parched tongue.

Eighth.—Your tongue for assent. For argument use only your eyes.

Ninth.—When your husband has an attack of gout depreciate the art of dancing.

Tenth.—If you would convince your husband that you are a better actress than Bernhardt, a better dancer than Pavlowa, prove to him that you are a better cook than M. Escoffier.

TOWER 850 FEET HIGH.

It Will Be Erected on the Site of the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

The first structure sanctioned for erection on the site of the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco was a great memorial tower, which will be permanent and will revert to the city. The tower will be 850 feet in height above the ground level and, with the single exception of the Eiffel tower in Paris, will be the tallest structure in the world.

Private capital is to be utilized in building the tower, which will cost not less than $1,500,000 and will be one of the main architectural features of the exposition. In all probability it will be erected at the summit of Lincoln park, San Francisco, although the site has not been chosen. It will be of steel frame construction with outer walls of marble or terra cotta.

The base of the tower will be 232 feet square and 120 feet high, containing a great memorial hall. From this base will arise the main shaft, 730 feet high and 85 feet square, giving a total height of 850 feet. Four express passenger elevators will be inclosed in this main shaft.

IN THIS WEEK'S SALE

Crepe Meteor Faconne; double width for evening gowns or day wear; a high-class silk fabric with a neat faconne feather design of the same tint; all the wanted shades, such as ciel, gray, tan, navy, peach, helio, pink, Copen, reseda, turquoise, brown, mais, white, cream and black; $1.98 quality at only $1.00

Dress Foulards, 23-inch; all silk; every piece a new design for this year; also every wanted dot, in navy, black, Copen and brown, tan, reseda, and amethyst; mostly the new two-tone printing, only found in the best grades; 69c quality, at only 59c

Corduroys; Hollow Cut Dress Cords of merit; 27 inches wide; in brown, navy, white and black, not to be confused with any other so-called corduroys; a $1.25 quality, at only 95c

Dress Messaline; in black—yard wide; a very firm, bright jet black dress silk of merit; for entire dresses, waists or foundations; not the thin, sleazy kind offered in special sales, but our real $1.00 quality; at only 79c

Striped Tub Silks; full yard wide; a pleasing range of styles, in stripes, for dress wear, shirtwaists, pajamas or men's shirts, in a quality that is recommended for a trip through the tub; our good 79c quality, at only 69c

Dress Satins and Messalines; colored heavy all-satin for evening gowns or linings under marquisettes; every wanted shade in stock; a quality that any store will ask 75c a yard for because it's worth it—offered at only 55c

Velvets and Corduroys at Half

THIS ADDED FEATURE FRIDAY

We have been cutting up velvets at a great rate this season; as a result, we have an excess of short lengths running all the way from one yard to waist, skirt and a few dress lengths—all desirable velvets, of course, because they have been ready sellers—all in good colors and black; many fancy effects included and in order to clear them out quickly we are going to offer them tomorrow—Friday— at just half price.

These Velvets on Sale on Bargain Table No. 2.

Men's Suits and Overcoats

Taken From Our Regular Stocks

PRICED TO BRING MEN A RUNNING

No one who is posted will question the quality of the clothing we sell; there will be no one who will doubt the fact that it is all wool and you can readily see that in cut and fabric they are decidedly up-to-date. We meet every taste and please every purse.

To get such clothing as this so much under price is one of those strokes of good fortune that come rarely, so that we are sure that thruout the next three days, during which this sale will run, there will be plenty doing in the Men's Clothing Store.

$22, $25 and $30 Suits and Overcoats, $16.45.
$15, $18 and $20 Suits and Overcoats, $12.50.
$10 and $12 Overcoats, $7.50.

Good Things for Boys

The offerings for the junior element during this Clothing Sale will be immensely welcome to the parents who have to foot the bills.

There will be Double Breasted Suits with Knickerbocker Trousers; Russian and Sailor Suits; in a variety of popular materials for boys of 2½ to 17 years and hundreds of Overcoats in three-quarter lengths, auto convertible collar, Russian, Jack Tar and reefer styles, and the prices will be clipped like this:

$7.50, $10 and $12 Suits and Overcoats, $5.
$5, $6, $7 Suits and Overcoats, $3.89.
$4 Suits and Overcoats, $2.89.

A Load of Ramie Linens at 18c Yard

This price, 18c a yard, is just about half what these splendid pure Irish Linen fabrics should sell for; they are the bold coarse crash weaves that fashion so largely prefers.

Ramie Linens—Perhaps a cool subject for this very cold weather but they will interest those making early preparations for the spring and summer season.

There will be no question about the value of the goods; the only question will be "how many yards" and how many of our patrons can we make happy with such rare linen values.

Arizona Will Celebrate Admission to the Union

President Taft's Formal Proclamation Expected About Feb. 1.

Movement Started For General Holiday Throughout the Country.

NO date has been set for the inauguration of the first state government of Arizona, which probably will take place about Feb. 1. All election returns have been sent direct from the precincts to the secretary of the territory, in whose office they are being canvassed. The job began on Jan. 1 and is expected to occupy about four weeks. Thereafter the result must be certified to President Taft, whose duty it then will be to issue his formal proclamation of admission.

Plans are in the making for a proper celebration of admission day. A movement has started for the declaration of a general holiday throughout the United States in recognition of the completion of the Union by the addition of the forty-eighth and last state within the nation's concrete area.

The complete list of officials of the new state is as follows: Senators, chosen by advisory vote and subject to ratification at the first state legislature, Marcus A. Smith of Tucson, Henry F. Ashurst of Prescott; members of congress, Carl T. Hayden, Tempe; governor, George W. P. Hunt, Globe; secretary of state, Sidney P. Osborn, Phoenix; judges of the supreme court, Alfred Franklin of Phoenix, Henry D. Ross of Prescott, D. L. Cunningham of Tombstone; auditor, J. C. Callaghan, Bisbee; treasurer, David Johnson, Douglas; attorney general, George P. Bullard, Phoenix; superintendent of public instruction, C. O. Case, Jerome; corporation commissioners, F. A. Jones of Phoenix, W. P. Geary of Winslow, and A. W. Cole of Douglas.

Every official elect is a Democrat, chosen by a plurality that runs from about 500 in the case of Osborn to about 3,500 for Hunt.

Senator Ashurst was born in Nevada in 1875, but has resided in Arizona since he was one year old. He is a lawyer and has served several terms in the legislature.

Senator Smith is sixty years old and a native of Kentucky, where he was a schoolmate of Speaker Champ Clark. He was graduated at the famous Transylvania university, Lexington, in 1876 and soon thereafter removed to San Francisco, where he practiced law. He took up his residence in Arizona in 1881.

SENATOR MARCUS A. SMITH.

By direction of the constitutional convention the first legislature, which will be strongly Democratic in both branches, will have much work to do. There must be legislative reapportionment, submission of the judiciary recall to popular vote, an advisory vote law for senatorial campaigns, election laws, including provision for publicity of campaign expenditures, an anti-railroad pass law, provision for the sale and administration of school lands, involving 2,500,000 acres, much so called labor legislation, a direct primary law and the creation of a number of offices, including several demanded by the labor organizations.

The state officers elected expect to hold office for three years instead of for the remaining part of 1912, as has generally been assumed. The constitution provides that election shall be held in the even numbered years. It is contended that the holding of an election this year would be an absurdity not contemplated by the law. The best estimate made of the situation appears to be that there must be an election in

SENATOR HENRY F. ASHURST.

November, 1912, for presidential electors and for a congressman, possibly also for a new legislature.

It is admitted that the legislature may by enactment prolong the terms of the state officers and, possibly, of its own membership. But the question arises whether the legislature will dare so to do. The general understanding of the electors was that the officers elected were to serve only a single year. If the same officers by their own act were to seek to perpetuate themselves there would be prompt resort to the recall, a method of procedure very strongly supported by the Democracy in the late election.

Under the enabling act the United States court for Arizona is to have its seat at Phoenix, where all sessions are to be held. Other communities are protesting against this arrangement, claiming that the excessive mileage of witnesses, officers and prisoners renders a single court location impracticable. No courtroom at present is available in Phoenix for a continued session, though there will be ample accommodations in the new federal building on which work has just been started.

Congress is to be petitioned to amend the act, so as to permit court sessions also at Prescott, Tucson and Globe. Most of the federal cases are of slight importance, mainly concerning the sale of liquor to Indians and the illegal importation of Chinese.

BRAND WHITLOCK.

Mayor of Toledo, Who Will Quit Politics For Literary Work.

Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo, O., has announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election. He has decided to quit politics at the end of his two years' term, which began Jan. 1, 1912, and will devote his time to literary work. He also has under advisement the writing of three plays.

BRAND WHITLOCK.

Mayor Whitlock's declaration was brought forth due to the persistent rumor that he would be a candidate on the Democratic ticket for congressman in the Ninth district next fall to succeed Congressman I. R. Sherwood.

Elected on an independent ticket in the fall of 1905, taking office Jan. 1, 1906, Mayor Whitlock, known as the successor to "Golden Rule" Jones, has served the city as chief executive ever since and last fall was re-elected to serve his fourth term.

JAMES A. TAWNEY.

Minnesota Ex-Congressman Who Will Direct Taft Campaign In the West.

Ex-Congressman James A. Tawney is to have a prominent part in the management of President Taft's campaign for re-election. Because of his familiarity with conditions in the western states Mr. Tawney is slated to direct the campaign in that section, with headquarters probably at Chicago.

JAMES A. TAWNEY.

In the campaign of eight years ago Mr. Tawney had charge of the western speakers' bureau, and in that campaign and the one four years ago he was vice chairman of the congressional campaign committee in charge of the same territory.

Mr. Tawney was born near Gettysburg, Pa., on Jan. 3, 1855. In 1877 he removed to Winona, Mass. He represented the First Minnesota district in congress from 1893 to 1911.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 14, 1912.

Topic.—How to win young people to Christ.—Prov. xi. 30; Rev. xxii. 16, 17. (Honorary members' meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The young should be won for Christ. It is in "the days of our youth" that we should remember our Creator. Moreover, it is in youthful days that the heart is more easily won and that Christ is found. "They that seek Me early shall find Me." After youth come the evil days, in which we so seldom find pleasure in serving the Lord unless we have already begun to do so. It is a well established fact that the vast majority of conversions take place before the age of twenty years has been reached. How important, therefore, the winning of young people to Christ! They may not understand all things, but who ever does? The oldest saint must confess that he knows but "in part." And why, then, should more be required of youth? The heart that is old enough to love and to obey is old enough to be consecrated to Christ.

The young should be sought. No one is won without being sought. No one comes without the invitation. The spirit says, "Come," to the young. The church also should invite them to come, and he who has heard and accepted should say, "Come."

To win the young the gospel should be attractively presented. The ways of religion should be shown to be ways of pleasantness and of peace. That which is attractive appeals to youth. The mind and heart are just unfolding, and the beautiful and attractive have peculiar charms. And what, after all, if properly presented, is more attractive than religion? What can be made more beautiful to youth than the idea of serving God? What personality in all history is more appealing than the personality of Christ? Having been lifted up, He is able to draw all unto Him, and especially the young.

To win the young the gospel should be enthusiastically presented. Youth is the age of enthusiasm. Too often the young are repelled or made indifferent by the prosaic way in which Christ is presented to them. It was the enthusiasm of the multitude at the time of the public entry of Christ into Jerusalem that moved the whole city toward Him, and only such a presentation of Him can win the world today and especially the young people of the world. The minds and hearts of the young can be made to glow under an enthusiastic appeal, but no half hearted, indifferent message can reach them, and why should not the greatest of all themes be presented with the deepest earnestness and the most ardent enthusiasm?

To win the young the gospel must be practically presented. The desire for achievement is a characteristic of youth. Christian Endeavor has fully demonstrated this fact. It has won and held millions of young people "for Christ and the church" by giving them something to do. The thought of future glory has little charm for youth. It prefers the possibility of present achievement and hence can only be won by the prospect of immediate activity. Nor need it be denied. There is abundance of work to be done.

The young shall be willing to be won. The Spirit is calling. The church and Christians are giving the invitation. To refuse to hear the call in youth is to run a great risk. With advancing years the probability of accepting Christ grows increasingly less. "Now is the accepted time. Now is the day of salvation." "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth."

BIBLE READINGS.

I Sam. iii, 1-10; Eccl. xii, 1, 2; Ps. lxiii, 1; Prov. viii, 17; Dan. xii, 3; Matt. vii, 7, 8; x, 32, 33; I Tim. i, 3-5; Jas. v, 19, 20; I John ii, 14-17.

Christian Endeavor In Wenchow.

In Wenchow, China, twenty-seven natives were recently baptized. Fourteen of these were city men, intelligent and bright, who were nearly all brought into the church of Christ through Christian Endeavor work or developed in the society.

At the Chinese new year eight bands of Christian Endeavor workers spent several days in street preaching and tract distribution in the city and suburbs. Christian Endeavor has been a great blessing to the mission, increasing the members' knowledge of the word of God.

The movement is equally effective among women. Societies have been started in country centers. There is a girls' junior society with twenty-five members, all of whom are striving faithfully to keep their pledge.

The Training School Idea In Christian Endeavor.

How can you expect to raise up an active Christian worker without the preparatory training place where Christian work is done? It is not enough that the engineer should study about the locomotive from books; he must be actually in the shop where it is made and work it before he is fitted to run it. We expect our Christian boys and girls one of these days to be Christian men and women, and we expect them to assume the duties of Christian men and women. Can they do this if they only know about these duties in a theoretic way and not at all by practice and experience?—Francis E. Clark.

APOPLEXY ENDED THE LIFE OF LIGHTNING CALCULATOR.

Griffith Was Famous For Quick Solutions of Intricate Problems.

Arthur F. Griffith of Milford, Ind., a lightning calculator, who has bewildered vaudeville audiences throughout the country for a number of years by his mathematical wizardry, was found dead of apoplexy in his bed at a Springfield (Mass.) hotel.

Griffith, who was known professionally as "the marvelous Griffith," was thirty-one years old. He was considered one of those mathematical wizards born with an inherent attraction for figures.

Without pencil or paper he could raise a figure to the sixth power in about eleven seconds; could multiply three figures by three figures in five seconds and could multiply nine figures by nine figures in eight seconds.

As proof of his lightning calculating system he once did the work of fourteen clerks in the state auditor's office at Springfield, Ill., for three hours on a wager. On three occasions, twice in Indianapolis, and once in Bloomington, Ill., he won races with adding machines.

In a test before professors at Harvard he answered every mathematical question propounded—the fabled "fourth dimension" alone being barred.

Problems that would require hours of figuring by most persons were solved in a few moments by Griffith. The answer to a problem like this would be at his tongue's end:

"What is the compound interest on 1 cent at 6 per cent from the birth of Christ to the present date, and how far would that many silver dollars reach in the air if placed flat and against each other on every square foot of a clear and level tile floor 25,000 miles in circumference?"

Questions such as this were regarded as "light mental exercises" by Mr. Griffith.

NEW ALPHABET.

Professor Scott of Michigan University Cuts Out Nine Characters.

More time is to be saved for the stenographer, more space is to be placed at the disposal of the letter writer, and thoughts are to be expressed direct, without waste, in a new alphabet adapted to meet the modern demands of scientific management. The inventor is Professor Fred Newton Scott of the University of Michigan.

The alphabet, which is said to have the approval of type manufacturers and typewriter houses, is intended to reduce the modern English alphabet by nine characters and do away with combinations, which Professor Scott declares are cumbersome, wasteful and complicated and don't express clearly the thought of the speaker or writer.

"The elements of the alphabet that I have designed are simple," said he. "The system resembles shorthand in one respect, yet the simplicity of the entire proposition is such that no one need devote a great deal of study in order to master its meaning."

A KING'S SKULL STOLEN.

Grave of the First Servian Monarch Desecrated by Ghouls.

The vault in St. Mark's cemetery, Vienna, in which reposed for many years the bones of Kara-George Petrovitch, the founder of the Servian dynasty, has been desecrated. The skull of the former Servian chief has been stolen, but the decorations and rings were not touched.

The coffin of Queen Persi was not opened. There is no clew to the desecrators.

King George (Black George), or George Czerny, was a peasant, born in 1766, who became in 1906 the leader of the Servians in the revolt against Turkey. He defeated the Turks, captured Belgrade and liberated Servia. He was driven out of Servia in 1813 and murdered in 1817.

WOMEN SHOULD PROPOSE.

Better Qualified Than Men to Select Helpmates, Lecturer Says.

Women should do the proposing to the men nowadays, according to the belief expressed by George Willis Cooks, lecturer at the Boston School of Social Science.

"Shyness is not essentially a feminine quality," he declared, "but simply the result of teaching. Woman at the present time appears to be getting a better education than man and therefore should be able to select a helpmate more intelligently than a man can do. She is taking the initiative in business and in politics, and the time is coming when she should also take it in love. Marriage will be happier when women do the courting."

PAY ONE GRAIN OF WHEAT.

Deed of Hazleton Property Contains Only Nominal Consideration.

An agreement between George W. Engle and Nathan E. Dodson, in which the consideration is one grain of wheat each year, was filed in the recorder's office at Wilkesbarre, Pa.

Engle is given a small plot of land near Hazleton. This is to be his as long as he turns over to Dodson one grain of wheat at the end of each year. The property transfer is made to permit a private sewer drainage.

Refined Lead Production.

The total production of refined lead in this country in 1910 was 470,380 tons, the greatest output in the history of the industry.

FEDERAL BUREAU OF MUNICIPALITIES FAVORED.

Movement Inaugurated For National Co-operation In Solving Problems.

In the American City for January the establishment of a federal department or bureau of municipalities is strongly advocated by several writers of prominence. The subject is introduced by Philip Kates, lawyer and city planner, of Tulsa, Okla., who points out the fact that the modern municipality is essentially an industrial and not a political problem. Says Mr. Kates:

"The idea that the city problem is a national problem, in the same sense that agriculture is a national problem, may seem strange to those who regard the city as a local political unit, and not a part of the great industrial life of the nation. There are great national organizations whose work is slowly educating the country to regard the city problem in its proper light, but these are nonofficial organizations, supported by voluntary contributions of public spirited citizens.

"The work is too vast for private support. It is too important for voluntary effort. If we would solve the problem for the future the federal government must take up the work."

Further light on the need for federal co-operation with municipalities is thrown by letters in the same issue of the American City from Hon. William Dudley Foulke, president of the National Municipal league; from Hon. John MacVicar, president of the League of American Municipalities, and from J. Horace McFarland, President of the American Civic association.

In its editorial comment on this subject the American City likens the United States to a great university and the cities, towns and villages of the country to schools wherein municipal problems are being studied. It emphasizes the folly of depending on local experience when in many cases there is similar experience gained elsewhere which might serve as a guide. That the administration of the city of Washington might be placed under the direction of the proposed department or bureau of municipalities, and that the Capital City might thus become in reality an experimental school of municipal betterment for the nation as a whole, is one of the interesting suggestions offered.

DRESSED BEEF AS A TARGET.

Two Army Officers Suggest That It Be Used In Bayonet Practice.

Punctured steaks and perforated roasts will be the fare of Uncle Sam's soldiers henceforth if the recommendations of two army officers who have been revising the manual of bayonet practice are accepted.

These officers declare there is too little realism in the life of a soldier to make him a good fighting man, and therefore they recommend that they use dressed beef as a target in practicing thrusts with the bayonet. Not until the soldier has actually felt his bayonet plunge into raw meat and learned to withdraw it from real flesh in readiness for another deadly job will he be prepared to carve up the enemy on the field of battle, these officers declare.

There would be no additional expense attached to this practice, it is argued, because the sides of beef used for bayonet practice could be borrowed from the company kitchens and returned after the bayoneters had finished with them. Clean bayonets, it is added, will be sufficient protection of the stomachs of the men who are to eat the beef.

Thus far in their course through the various offices of the war department the suggestions of these two officers in this respect have not met with any markedly enthusiastic reception.

BETS ON KANSAS WEATHER.

Fike Wins $26,000 if It Rains In Thomas County During Certain Period.

A Kansas man has made a wager that rain will fall in Thomas county, Kan., between March 1 and May 1 of next year. If the rain comes Jim Fike will clean up $26,000 next summer, go to Europe, wear patent leather shoes and a silk hat and "kill it" generally. A year ago he bet $50,000 against $500,000 that it would rain in his county between these dates and lost.

Jim Fike is the wheat king of Kansas. He has lived in western Kansas many years, and in spite of the failure of rain to appear at just the proper time he sticks. "I'll clean up yet," he said the other day in Topeka. "The rain will come some time, and when it does I will have my hand on the doorknob to let Opportunity in just the minute she raps."

BY DORY TO SAN FRANCISCO.

George Richie Hopes to Navigate Canal.

George Richie has set out alone from Providence, R. I., in the George Washington, a twenty-one foot dory, on a 16,000 mile trip to San Francisco by way of the Panama canal.

Richie expects to be the first to sail through the canal and hopes to reach San Francisco by Feb. 22, Washington's birthday. His dory has an auxiliary engine, but sails will be used when the wind favors. It is eighteen feet on the water line and about seven feet beam.

TRICK SCALES FOUND IN ELIZABETH BY THE SEALER

In view of Mayor Moy's recommendation that Plainfield provide itself with a commissoner of weights and measures, the first annual report of City Sealer William J. Bender, of Elizabeth, is not without interest to Plainfielders. It throws light on the short weight and measure evil at the county seat.

The evil in Elizabeth is not highly alarming, but it exisits to a decidedly appreciable extent.

That portion of Sealer Bender's report dealing with the tricks practised to fleece the public is interesting. Such things as scales to which have been attached slices of fat, washers, keys, hooks, knives, scissors and even putty were common throughout the city when Bender started his work. Counter scales thrown out of adjustment, but always in favor of the tradesman, by the use of lead, paper bags, soap, dates, nails and other articles, were also found by Sealer Bender on his inspections.

"No matter how closely a sealer watches the territory under his charge," said Sealer Bender to a reporter, "much that should come to his attention escapes him because housewives and others who are cheated do not take the trouble to tell him about it. That is what a sealer is for—to be called on whenever anyone finds that he is being fleeced by short weihgts and measures."

In the matter of prosecutions, both under the State law and the city ordinance, Sealer Bender has had a number of important cases, in one of which the offender was caught twice and fined for selling potatoes from a basket which was several quarts short.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Thomas Francis will continue his Bible study in the Book of Revelation tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the church at Duer street and Craig place.

The subject of next Sunday's lesson sermon at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, will be "Sacrament." The rest of the notice remains unchanged.

Mrs. John T. Kerr, president of the Presbyterian Foreign Missionary Society, will speak at Warren chapel, Friday afternoon, January 19, at 3 o'clock. All women of the congregation and others interested are invited.

Not Councilman Clay.

The picture appearing in the New York World today showing G. S. Clay, a New York lawyer with offices at 195 Broadway, distributing ear muffs to firemen on duty at the Equitable building fire, led many to believe that it was Councilman George S. Clay, of this city. Mr. Clay denies that he was engaged in such work.

COMMISSION RULING ON OFFICIALS' PASSES

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 11.—The State Utility Commission today announced a decision that the provisions of the public utility act of 1911 forbidding public utility corporations to grant free passes to municipal or county officials, is not to be construed as abrogating a contractural obligation incumbent upon a public utility company to afford free transportation to public officials when travelling in the discharge of their duties. The decision was rendered in the case of the complaint of the township of Bordentown, Burlington county, against the Riverside Traction Company operating a trolley line between this city and Camden.

A few years ago the township granted a franchise to the old Camden & Trenton Railway Company, the predecessor of the Riverside Company, to carry freight and there was put into the franchise the provision that the members of the Township Committee and the township clerk should have free transportation on the line when traveling in the discharge of their duties. After the passage of the act of 1911 the company refused the free transportation, claiming it was a violation of the new statute. Then the township authorities appealed to the Utility Board which recently gave a hearing on the question. Its decision is as follows:

"The provisions of Chapter 195, of the laws of 1911, forbidding any public utility to grant upon any local, municipal or county official any discrimination or free service whatsoever, is not to be construed as abrogating a contractural obligation incumbent upon a public utility to afford free service to public officials traveling in the discharge of their duties."

The company is ordered to give the free transportation in accordance with the terms of the franchise within the township. The order takes effect February 1.

Ex-Mayor of Roselle Dies.

The death of John Newton Meeker, third Mayor of Roselle and a member of an old family of the county, occurred Tuesday night after an illness of a month. Mr. Meeker was seventy-three years old, his death being caused by the infirmities of old age. Mr. Meeker is survived by a widow and one daughter, the wife of Rev. George Peck, of Camden.

Funeral of Matthias Menzenbach.

N. P. FRESHMEN TRIM GRAMMAR GRADE FIVE

A picked five from the freshman class of the North Plainfield High School yesterday afternoon defeated just as carefully selected a quintet from the grammar grades by the score of 13 to 7. The game was fast from the first toss up to the final call of time and the friends of the players cheered their favorites on with noisy demonstrations of approval.

Townley shone for the vanquished team by caging two field goals. Becker made the other baskets on fouls. Abrams was the star of the freshmen, his skillful passing being particularly effective. Tomlinson proved to be the largest tally-getter, although all of his mates shot one or more. He made five fouls out of six trys.

The lineup:

Freshmen—Forwards, Day, Tomlinson; center, VanMater; guards, Abrams, French. Grades—Forwards, Townley, Becker; centre, Newkirk; guards, E. Waldron, M. Waldron.

Referee, Taylor; timer, Dunning; scorer, Bennet.

ROSELLE LASSIES FALL BEFORE P.H.S. GIRLS FIVE

The girls' basketball team of the Plainfield High School defeated the girls' team of the Roselle High School at Roselle, yesterday afternoon by a score of 13 to 9. The Plainfield girls played their best game in the first half, when Miss Mehl by her accurate shooting threw three baskets and Miss Stewart shared the honors by shooting two goals from play. The first half ended with a score of 10 to 5 in favor of Plainfield. In the second half the local five he dlits own against fast work on the part of Roselle. The lineup:

P. H. S.—Forwards, J. Stewart, A. Mehl; center, R. Douglas; side center, N. Waldorf; guards, M. Moy, E. Phillips.

Young Friends Meeting.

The Young Friends Association will meet tomorrow night at the home of Norman D. Stringham, of West Seventh street.

He Was Prepared.

An honest old Philadelphia Quaker was refused a vote because he could not show the necessary papers. He attempted to cast his ballot, but was turned down by an inspector.

"Why, my friend, thee knows me. Thee knows that I live in thy ward," said the Quaker.

"I know you by sight, but I must see your papers," was the reply.

"I would not tell thee a falsehood. I have the papers at home, and I will go and bring them to thee."

"Get the necessary papers and you can vote."

The old gentleman went home and got the papers and cast his ballot. The next year he again appeared at the polls and the same inspector challenged his vote.

"Surely thee would not have me go again a mile to get thee my papers?" asked the Quaker. "Thee must know that I have a vote."

"No papers, no vote, sir," answered the inspector.

"I thought thee might be so vicious," said the old man, as a smile played under his broadbrim, "and I have brought them with me this time. Thee will not have the pleasure of having me walk a mile for them. I will bring them next year, too."—Washington Star.

Ruler of the Whole World.

A military doctor in a Prussian cavalry regiment recently asked 174 recruits to define the position of the imperial chancellor. Among the replies were: "He makes the rates go up and down. He pays all state dues. A preacher to empire. Does all the kaiser's writing. Has Berlin under him. Stays by the kaiser's side in battle. He rules the whole world."—London Mail.

WILSON'S BOOMERS HEADQUATERS OPEN

State Democratic Committee Starts Vigorous Campaign at Trenton Offices.

LEASE BUILDING FOR YEAR

Chairman Grosscup and Secretary Devereaux to Push Presidential Warfare With Vigor—State Campaign Preparations.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 12—Activities to aid in the movement to make Governor Woodrow Wilson the Democratic candidate for President, started in earnest today at the State Democratic headquarters, 39 West State street, this city. The State committee has leased the whole building for a year, and plans have been made for prosecuting a vigorous campaign in the interest of the Governor.

The first floor of the building which comprises the offices and meeting rooms for campaign purposes, has been completely renovated. The rooms have been handsomely repapered and painted, new light fixtures installed, the floors finished in imitation hardwood with handsome rugs laid and in other ways the headquarters have been brightened up for the Presidentian warfare.

Secretary William K. Devereux has the front office, and this is handsomely furnished with all the necessary fixtures for active office work. A large room in the rear will be reserved for State committee meetings and as the private office of State Chairman Edward E. Grosscup. A third room has been supplied with a large table in the center, and with comfortable chairs, and this will be supplied with daily newspapers and campaign literature to make it attractive to callers.

As already announced by Mr. Grosscup, the headquarters will be made the rallying point for the party, and will be used not only for the Presidential interests of Governor Wilson, but also to build up a party in the State in readiness for the campaign next fall.

LAST M'INTYRE CONCERT TO BE NOTEWORTHY ONE

The last of this season's series of the McIntyre chamber music concerts will occur next Tuesday night at the High School auditorium. The special features attending will be the appearance of Miss Lucile Stevenson, soprano, of Chicago, as assisting artist, and of Paul Kefer, Damrosch's chief 'cellist, taking the place of Mr. Bem in the Trio. Mr. Kefer will also be heard in solo work.

Miss Stevenson has won high distinction for her singing throughout the United States, both in concert and oratoria, having been heard with the best organizations including Chicago's great orchestra. Miss Stevenson is a niece of Mrs. W. F. Hobbie, of Watchung avenue, and has warm friends and admirers in Plainfield, who will be pleased over this opportunity of hearing her again.

The great Braham's trio in B major will be the chief number, being given here for the first time. The musically-informed will appreciate the importance of this selection as it is acknowledged to be one of the finest trios written. A detailed program will be announced later.

SENATOR PIERCE'S BILLS GO TO HIS COMMITTEE

Union County Solon's Tax System Revision and Grade Crossing Measures Among Those Referred to Him.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 12.—Following the introduction into the Senate by the Republicans of several of the reform measures promised by them, there is considerable interest as to the make-up of this committees which have the consideration of these bills. Senator Pierce's bill for the abolition of grade crossings was referred by President Prince to the Committee on Revision of Laws, of which Senator Pierce is chairman. This committee also has in its keeping Senator Pierce's bill revising the assessment system of the State and creating county Boards of Assessors. The other Republican members of the committee on Revision of Laws is Senator Read, the new mmber from Camden county, while the Democratic member is Senator Silzer, of Middlesex.

Senator Pierce is very much interested in these two measures and the fact that they were referred to his own committee will insure that they have early consideration, and that there will be no delay in reporting them to the Senate for action. It is expected that the Democrats will also introduce a measure providing for the elimination of grade crossings as thenr platform also declared for this reform. If such a bill shall be introduced by the minority in the Senate, it will, very likely, to to the same committee. There is already talk of considerable opposition from some of the railroad companies to the grade crossing bill, and it is expected that the railroads will demand a hearing upon the Pierce measure. When this hearing takes place it will also consider the Democratic measure, if one shall be presented, and without a doubt the hearing will be a lively one.

This Pierce committee will also have a lively time on its hands when it gives the hearing on the bill creating county Boards of Assessors. This measure, as it now stands, would legislate out of office all the twenty-one county Tax Boards and every one of the more than 500 assessors in the State. While it abolishes the present county Tax Boards, it retains the members as members of the new Boards, and extends their terms from three to five years. The fact that more than 500 assessors will lose their office if this measure goes on the statute books, necessarily means that the bill will encounter tremendous opposition based on personal interest. It is already being talked around the State House that those members of the Legislature who live in the smaller communities of the State will not take kindly to the measure because it takes the assessing of property out of the control of the local authorities. The committee on Revision of Laws also has the Nichol's bill to abolish poll taxes.

The four election bills introduced by Senator Leavitt, changing the Geran and the corrupt practice acts were all referred to the Elections Committee, of which Senator Leavitt is chairman, so that in this instance, too, the friend of the measures is their chief sponsor in committee. The other members of the Election Committee are Senator Read, of Camden, and Senator Barber, the new Democratic member, of Warren county.

President Prince sent the two factory bills and the bill requiring fire alarms in mercantile establishments, introduced by Senator Edge, to the Judiciary Committee, of which Senator Edge is chairman. The factory bills provide for curing the dust evil and the placing of safety guards on machinery. Senator Fielder, of Hudson, is the Democratic member of the Judiciary Committee, and the other Republican member is Senator Read.

The Leavitt Grand Jury reform bill and the automobile reciprocity measure introduced by Senator Leavitt were referred to the Committee on Municipal Corporations, of which he is chairman.

Thomas Jackson's Funeral.

The funeral service for Thomas Jackson was held last night at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Jackson, on Somerset street. Rev. William S. McCoy, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, officiated. The body was taken to Somerville for burial this morning. There was a large gathering of relatives and friends of the young man present at the obsequies and many handsome floral tributes to his memory were banked about the bier.

JOHN A. LAWRENCE, AIDE TO COUNIHAN, SUCCUMBS

Word was received here last night by William R. Townsend, secretary of the local lodge of Elks, that one of the members, John A. Lawrence, had died yesterday in Philadelphia. The message was sent by George R. Phillips, secretary of the Philadelphia Elks' lodge. This makes the third loss by death Plainfield Lodge of Elks has sustained in two weeks.

Mr. Lawrence is remembered as a member of the staff of the Plainfield theatre, while it was under the management of William J. Counihan. When the house was sold to Proctor and Sanderson, the present lessees, Mr. Lawrence secured the position of advertising manager of the Lyric and Adelphia theatres in Philadelphia, his former home town. His character and personality won for him a large circle of Plainfield friends in the comparatively short time he lived here.

He was a graduate of Lafayette college and for a time resided in Easton. Surviving are his widow and an infant daughter, and a sister living in Newark. The funeral will be in charge of the Philadelphia Lodge of Elks at the request of the local lodge. A number of local members will attend the service, announcement of which will be made later.

OFFICERS OF JERUSALEM CHAPTER ARE INSTALLED.

The newly elected officers of Jerusalem Chapter No. 24, R. A. M., were installed last night. The chapter was pleasantly surrpised by a visit from Grand High Priest Eichlin, of Newark, who was accompanied by Grand King Sandstrom, of the New Jersey Grand Chapter.

The installing officers were Dr. Peter McGill, past grand high priest, and Grand Lecturer Smalley, of Somerville. The officers installed were: Most excellent high priest, John Ulrich; excellent king, Charles A. Sturtevant; excellent scribe, Guy D. Peck; treasurer, Henry Liefke; secretary, William McD. Coriell; captain of the host, Allen Johnson; principal sojourner, William A. Cochran; royal arch captain, B. Frank Coriell; grand master of the third veil, William D. Bennett; grand master of the second veil, Barnard; grand master of the first veil, Lafayette Rosenstiehl; tyler, Kaspar Bolsterle.

The installation was largely attended. A collation was served in the banquet room after the meeting.

N. P. H. S. FRESHMEN ON AN "ALFALFA JOY RIDE."

The freshman class of the North Plainfield High School had a straw ride to Wetfield last night. They left the Somerset School about 7:45 o'clock and returned about 11, stopping at Westfield for light refreshments. Prof. Paul Meztx, teacher of English in the high school, headed the party.

Those who went were the Misses Annie Hull, Laura Dawe, Lena Mobus, Margaret Ewart, Helen Ryno, Margaret Hogan, Elva Lippincott, Lizzie Hummer, Julia Rowley, Marion Doughty, Ellen Doughty, Edna Green, Margaret Currin, Emma H. Ryno and Duclos VanMater, Elmer French, Ralph Smalley, Roscoe Van Camp, George Townley, Halber Hutchinson, Hyman Abrams, William Taylor, Edson Day, Lester Chandler, Paul Mextz.

CHICKEN RAISERS WILL HEAR FAMOUS EXPERT.

A special meeting of the Union County Poultry Association will be held in the Y. M. C. A. building, Elizabeth, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Professor James E. Rice, of the New York State Agricultural College, Cornell University, will address the meeting. He is probably the best known and most experienced poultry investigator in the world.

Everyone interested is invited to attend the lecture.

The association meetings are absolutely free to the public, and in the future, especially at the Saturday night meeting, women will be most welcome. A number of requests have been received from them for permission to attend.

PLANS FOR PEACE MEETING COMPLETE

Frederick R. Coudert Will be One of the Two Chief Speakers.

EDWIN D. MEAD THE OTHER

Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert to Preside—Chamber of Commerce Co-operating With National Committee to Save Taft Pacts.

Arrangements have been completed for the public meeting to be held Wedneday night, January 17, at the Plainfield High School, in support of Taft arbitration treaties. The meeting will be under the auspices of the Citizen" National Committee, organized to urge the ratification of the general arbitration pacts with Great Britain and France. Joseph H. Choate, of New York, is chairman of the committee. The vice-presidents are Adlai Stevenson, Levi P. Morton, Charles W. Fairbanks and Alton B. Parker.

Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert will preside at the meeting and the two principal speakers will be Frederick R. Coudert, of New York, and Edwin D. Mead, of Boston, widely known author and lecturer on international subjects. Mr. Mead was chairman of the executive committee of the thirteenth international peace conference held in Boston, and he has kept in close touch with the subject.

The Chamber of Commerce is cooperating with the Citizen's National Committee in arranging for the approaching meeting. It is believed that considerable interest will be aroused here in behalf of the movement to secure a ratification of the Taft treaties.

MRS. D. H. ROWLAND GIVES LUNCHEON FOR DEBUTANTE

Mrs. David H. Rowland, of West Seventh street, gave a luncheon yesterday in honor of Miss Dorothy Hoyt, one of the season's beutantes, who is now making her home witn her aunt, Mrs. Isaac N. Field, of West Eighth street. The decorative scheme was attractive, the chief color being pink.

The guests were Miss Dorothy Hoyt, Miss Frances Zelie, Miss Elizabeth McGee, Miss Edith Mellick, Miss Hope Ivins, Miss Eleanor DeGraff, Miss Snyder, Miss Blanche Buttfield, Miss Frederica Rutherford Mead, Miss Alice Titus and Mrs. Archibald Cox.

LUNCHEON AT SHERRY'S FOR MISS HELEN HYDE

Mrs. Everett Colby gave a luncheon yesterday at Sherry's, New York, for her niece, Miss Helen Hyde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Keppler Hyde, of this city, and one of the winter's debutantes, who has been more or less prominent in Plainfield society, especially among the younger set. Yesterday's affair was a charming one and was attended by about eighteen young women.

Included among those present were the Misses Vouletti Proctor, Vieva Fisher, Louisa Johnson, Lydia Coit Butler, Sybil Young, Caramai Carroll, Dorothy Hyde, Katharine Sands, Helen Whitney Claire Brett, Dorothy Adriance, Hazen Symington, Jeanette McAlpin, May Bovee and Adeline Townsend, all of New York.

Death Recalls Romance.

News of the death of Mrs. Mary Garris, sevey-four years old, at Pine Ridge, Pike County, Ja., recalls to old residents of Lebanon that she was one of five sisters who married survivors of the Civil War. One of the sisters is Mrs. Nancy Lindaberry, of Lebanon. Mrs. Garris' maiden name was Hoover. At the breaking out of the War of the Rebellion the sisters bid their sweethearts good-by and promised their hand in marriage at the end of the conflict. All five of the sweethearts went through the struggle without being injured.

BILL AFFECTING STORES HERE IS BEING HATCHED

Proposed Measure Limiting Women's Work Hours to 10 a Day Touches Saturday Night Opening--Merchants' Views.

WHO'LL GIVE 27 CENTS A DAY TO FEED 7 KIDDIES?

In its report for December, the Charity Organization Society gives figures for the busiest month of 1911. In addition to the usual work of caring for over a hundred families (113) there was all the Christmas activity.

In co-operation with the Daily Press and the Good Fellow, the society was able to insure a Merry Christmas to 688 children of whom 219 were cared for by Good Fellows and others. The regular work of the society is shown by the fact that 275 persons called at the office to ask for assistance of some kind. 472 persons consulted with the secretaries about giving help and the secretaries made 498 visits.

Nine volunteers helped the secretaries in visiting twelve families. Volunteers are always needed. Sixteen patients suffering from tuberculosis were assisted during the month, a smaller number than usual, ten other sick persons also being helped. Permanent work was found for seven people and seven were placed in institutions and eight were referred to the police.

Material relief given in December amounted to $194.43, of which $124.27 will be re-imbursed, leaving a net expense of $70.16 for the society. Contrary to the prevailing opinion the Charity Organization Society has no funds in reserve for the purposes of relief and depends upon the public to meet these needs, $75 to $200 each month.

One of the largest demands is for milk. Babies, sick people, arrested cases of tuberculosis all need milk, and the society spent $51.79 for this need alone in December, $21 of which there was no fund to meet. A special appeal is therefore made at this time to meet this demand. A typical instance is that of a widowed mother with seven children under working age. The society believes that three quarts of milk a day should be given this family as all of the children are not strong and the income which can be spent for food varies greatly. The society believes that the charitable people of this city would like to feel sure no child goes hungry and with three quarts of milk, daily, costing about $8 a month, this could be assured in one family at least.

CENTRAL LODGE A. O. U. W., INSTALLS ITS OFFICERS.

Officers were installed in Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., last evening by Grand Foreman E. M. McWhood, of Newark, assisted by Grand Guide J. W. A. Bauersachs and P. G. M. W. V. W. Nash.

The officers inducted for the year were: Past master workman, Francis J. Blatz; master workman, Frank H. Pond; foreman, Lorenzo J. Spicer; overseer, Everett Marsh; guide, Frank H. Marsh; recorder, Harvey R. Thorn; financier, William Newcorn; receiver, Chas. H. Randolph; inside watchman, Joseph A. Lohsen; outside watchman, Walter Bradford; trusteee, three years, Lorezo Spicer; representatives to the grand lodge, Francis J. Blatz, Edward M. Mosher, alternates to grand lodge, Theodore J. Mason, Harvey R. Thorn; organist, Theodore J. Mason; medical examiners William J. Nelson, M. J. Whitford and R. J. Yood.

There were initiations and a smoker. Rahway lodge sent word that their quoit team could not be present as they were to be installed in office in their local lodge.

NEW COASTING RECORD MADE ON A 'PLAINS HILL.

A new local record in long coasting on bob-sleds was made last night at Scotch Plains by a seven riders on William Meyer's sled, Joseph Carrona steering. The party from a standing start at Hollingsworth's pond coasted to the far corner of the Baptist church, a distance of fully 1,200 feet farther than a similiarly loaded sled has ever attained.

The distance is considerably over half a mile. The sled covered it in 40 seconds. The standing start made the getaway slow, but the bob gathered speed until it was burning the ice at a rate of two miles a minute.

Announce Engagement.

The engagement of Miss Mary Roche, of Central avenue, and Clarence E. VanSyckle, of East Third street, was announced today. The wedding will take place in May.

—Abrams' great rubber sale adv. See page 3.

Leaders in the crusade to better the condition of women workers have arranged for the introduction at the present session of the Legislature of a bill, which if passed as drawn, will affect the arrangements of all Plainfield department stores in the conduct of their business on Saturday. Department store heads in this city say that the bill, if passed, will compel them to divide their sales force into two shifts every Saturday.

The measure will provide for a ten-hour day. A. E. Force, head of A. E. Force & Co., owners of The White Store, is opposed to the ten-hour provision. He is heartily in favor of a sixty hour week, but wants a twelve-hour day, if the reform measure does pass, to enable merchants to keep open Saturday nights witthout the necessity of re-organizing their force.

In connection with the proposed bill Mr. Force said that personally he would like to see a law passed preventing stores from keeping open any night. Under present commercial conditions, however, he added, retail business men in towns like Plainfield couldn't very well do anything else but remain open on Saturday night.

The bill is designed to prohibit the employment of women in department stores, laundries, bakeshops, restaurants, factories and all other mercantile and manufacturing establishments, longer than ten hours a day and sixty hours a week. It has been drawn under the supervision of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, the Girls' Friendly Society of the diocese of Newark, the Mothers' Congress and the Consumers' League.

"As far as the general aim of the proposed bill goes," said A. E. Force, "I am heartily in sympathy with it. But I do not favor the ten-hours-a-day limit. The sixty-hour week is all right, but I believe the ten-hour day should be stretched to twelve.

"With a twelve-hour day the stores could continue Saturday night business as usual, with a maximum of forty-eight hours distributed through the rest of the week. I do not regard twelve hours as too long for a woman to work on one day in the week."

"Suppose the bill goes through as proposed, with a ten-hour day. Will that compel merchants to increase their forces or tend to do away with Saturday night opening entirely?" Mr. Force was asked.

"It will do neither. There will be no tendency whatever to shut down Saturday night. Personally I would like to see a law passed compelling stores to close every night, but under present commercial conditions, without such a law, it is hardly possible for merchants in towns like this to consider Saturday night closing.

"The ten-hour provision will be met by running the stores with a reduced force during certain forenoon hours on Saturday and having the rest of the staff come on late as a night shift."

Mr. Force added that the passage of such a bill as described would put a stop to many merchants keeping their stores open every night, and that he believed would be decidedly a step in the right direction.

Max Tepper, member of the dry goods firm of Tepper Brothers, expressed himself as being favorable to a sixty-hour week bill. He said that he believed that was long enough for any woman to work. He said there was a time when he believed that it was necessary to keep his store open every evening until 9 or 10 o'clock, when he was in business in the south bu the women of the city started an agitation for 6 o'clock closing, and he has never had any desire to return to the old plan. Of course, if a bill was passed making it prohibitory to employ women more than ten hours a day, some other arrangement would have to be made to meet conditions on Saturday.

Under present conditions, Mr. Force and Mr. Tepper said, at certain times in the year the stores open at 8:30 in the morning and close at 6 o'clock. The clerks of the Tepper store have a day off a week during August.

J. V. E. Vanderhoef, manager for the Woodhull & Martin Company, when questioned on the measure said that he hardly thought that such a bill would go through without opposition. However, if it did, he believed a satisfactory arrangement could be made.

BOILER PIPE BURSTS; COLD CLOSES SCHOOL

Break in Steam Tube Freezes Out Borough High and Grammar Pupils.

VAIN EFFORT TO WARM UP

Primary Pupils On the City Side Given a Holiday On Account of the Storm—Fire Whistle Signals Week-end Vacation.

A tube in one of the boilers used for heat the North Plainfield High School blew out this morning, making it impossible to heat the building sufficiently so that classes could be held. Notice that there would not be sessions for the primary grades on account of the storm, was given in the usual manner, and these pupils were not obliged to weather the gale, but the scholars of the grammar and high school appeared as usual and a futile effort was made to continue recitations in these departments.

All of the heat from the crippled department was directed to the grammar and high school rooms, but the mercury slid steadily down the thermometer and at 9:30 o'clock, Superintendent H. C. Krebs announced that all sessions were discontinued until Monday morning.

The fires were drawn from under the damaged boiler and as soon as it cooled mechanics began replacing the bursted flue, the only way in which the boiler could be made serviceable again. The break will be fully repaired in time to fire up Monday morning.

The fire whistle was blown five times at 8:15 indicating that there was no school in the city for the primar ygrades on account of the storm and the pupils are enjoying the same length holidays as juvenile boroughites. Many city high school and grammar grade pupils turned out but the attendance fell somewhat below standard. There were no classes for these departments this afternoon.

MISSIONARY WILL TELL OF HIS WORK IN CHINA

An interesting service will be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock in honor of the return of the Rev. Gilbert Lovell, who, for the past seven and a half years, has been the missionary minister of the church at Chang-Teh, Hunan Province China. Mr. Lovell reached this country December 22, and with his wife and children came to Plainfield a week ago. They are now stopping with Mr. Lovell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leander N. Lovell, of Crescent avenue.

The church will honor Mr. Gilbert's return Sunday morning by a service at which the ministers of the church and chapels will all take part. This will be the first occasion when all five of the ministers of the church will have had an opportunity to be together in the pulpit. They are Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the home church; Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel; Rev. Frederic L. Greene, of Hope chapel; Rev. F. D. Tildon, of Bethel chapel, and Rev. Gilbert Lovell. The last named will speak Sunday morning of his work in China and a large congregation is expected to participate in his welcome.

WANTS ACCOUNTING OF BOWLING ALLEY PROFITS

Peter F. Hoffman, who asserts that he is a partner of William F. Walters in the Olympia Bowling alleys on East Second street, has filed in the Chancery Court through his attorney, Robert Newton Crane, a bill for an accounting. On a preliminary motion hearing has been set for Tuesday, January 16.

In the bill filed Mr. Hoffman alleges that the receipts of the business should be equally divided between himself and Mr. Walters, after all expenses have been paid, and a number of other stipulations constituting an agreement between partners. Codington & Swackhamer have been retained by Mr. Walters.

Playhouse for Westfield.

A new theatre will be erected in Westfield in the near future by the American Amusement Company, of New York city. It will occupy the site of the old Gale clubhouse, which was recently purchased by Walter W. Mooney. It will be fireproof and will seat 1,200 people. Vaudeville and moving pictures will be exhibited.

"THE WHITE STORE" We Give S.&H. Green Trading Stamps

Our Sixth Annual January Clearance Sale

IS NOW ON, WITH GREATER VALUES THAN EVER OFFERED BEFORE. The reason we say GREATER is because the cotton market is at its lowest and because OUR STOCKS in all DEPARTMENTS are too LARGE and MUST be REDUCED BEFORE we INVENTORY the last of this month. THEREFORE, REDUCTIONS WILL BE MADE REGARDLESS OF COST. ALL FALL AND WINTER GOODS MUST BE SOLD THIS MONTH as we never carry any goods over from one season to another. This ad is a large one and will take some time to read it carefully. But it will pay you to read every item. If we don't increase our business this month 50 per cent. it will be because there is a scarcity of money, not because our prices are not low enough.

A LIBRARY YOU CAN HOLD IN ONE HAND.

All the great or notable almanacs in this country have been made by newspaper men. Old Dr. Franklin started the practice with the famous "Poor Richard's Almanac." With more or less success, other printers have ever since imitated him. Of late years, however, the issuing of newspaper almanacs has fallen into a low estate in many a big city. But the New York World Almanac for 1912 is an exception. It fills a want every place, as it is a compilation universal in scope, and not local, partisan or political solely. It seems to grow greater and better with years and experience. It has a condensed encyclopaedia of many volumes. It gives information and statistics upon almost every conceivable topic. It touches human interest at every point. It is a library you can hold in one hand, so far as ready reference and accurate information are concerned. It is a supplement to every library, the next friend of every editor, and informant in any office, study or school. It ranks with the great English publications of like import, and sells for half or third of their price. Without doubt it is the foremost publication of the kind in this country. On sale wherever books are sold.

Greeted by Bryan.

A number of Plainfielders at the automobile show in New York Wednesday night were cordially greeted by William Jennings Bryan, who was an interest visitor at the exhibition. Mr. Bryan extended his best wishes to all his friends here, inquiring after several of them whom he had met while the guest of Senator James E. Martine some years ago.

THREE PREDICTIONS.

Germany Saw Two of Them Fulfilled and Now Awaits the Third.

A Paris paper gives, under the title "Les Predictions d'une Voyante Norwegienne," an interview with an old woman who claims that on one occasion the present kaiser's father, when crown prince, consulted her as to his future while on a visit to Norway.

One question he put to her was whether he would ever become German emperor. She promptly replied that he would ascend the German throne and in her recent interview explained the subsequent proceedings of the seance. She took a sheet of paper and wrote down the date of the Prussian revolution—1849. She then placed the same figures in a vertical position and added them to 1849, making a total of 1871, which she declared would be the year of the rise of the German empire.

As her calculations were triple it is convenient to give them here—1849 + 1 + 8 + 4 + 9 = 1871; 1871 + 1 + 8 + 7 + 1 = 1888; 1888 + 1 + 8 + 8 + 8 = 1913.

Being satisfied as to his accession to the throne, the crown prince asked, "When shall I die?" The soothsayer wrote 1871 on the paper, as in the second example above, and replied, "In 1888." Then the crown prince courageously inquired how long the German empire would endure. The old woman made a calculation on the date 1888 and answered "1913."

ARTIST AS SIGN PAINTER.

Historic Precedent For a Piece of Work Done In New York.

A well known New York artist has painted a sign—a regular iron bound, outdoor "shingle" with lettering on it—for a firm of architects, and it has been put up in Thirty-seventh street near Lexington avenue as a permanent and shining example of applied art. There is historic precedent for this sort of work in the instances of several famous European masters, notably Watteau, Morland, Monticelli, Donatello and Benvenute Cellini. It is a significant departure for an American painter to make at the present moment.

"I did it partly as an artistic stunt worth while in itself," he declares, "but also with a commercial purpose. I mean as a protest against all this hypocritical cant about commercialism which is indulged in by some artists who can't sell even their conventional work because they won't adapt it to human, everyday surroundings. Commercialism supports art, and art ought to adorn and decorate commerce.

"Streets and houses don't gain anything by being outwardly ugly. Watteau thought nothing of putting in his best work on a street sign for the Paris picture dealer Gersaint, and in our century the two sides of that same signboard have sold for something like $85,000. No money could buy that sign today, for it is in the private picture gallery of the emperor of Germany."—New York World.

Tree Planted by Victor Hugo.

Persons passing along the Boulevard Raspial in Paris have their attention attracted by a new building of an unusual appearance. At the end of the house is to be seen an alcove which has been constructed to permit a fine acacia tree to flourish. It is evident that the design has deprived the owner of the house of several feet of valuable land and the apartment bounded by the alcove suffers in extent to a corresponding degree. What is the meaning of this "self denying ordinance?" suggests itself to every one. The reason is simple and praiseworthy. When Victor Hugo was a lad he planted the tree. It has waxed strong with years, and the owner of the property has decreed that it shall remain as a memorial to the great Frenchman.—London Globe.

Japan's Handmade Paper.

Handmade paper is produced in Japan principally by farmers as a secondary occupation which they can pursue in seasons when there is nothing to be done in the fields. There are no fewer than 60,000 families engaged in this industry. Japan has been quick in utilizing to the utmost its assets in bringing the manufacture of handmade paper to a high modern standard. In the districts where this paper is made there are experiment bureaus equipped with up to date instruments and apparatus for testing and selecting the various kinds of raw material not only for indigenous Japanese plants, but also imported fibers.

Quakers Against Military Service.

Australian Quakers are up in arms, to put it paradoxically, against the new commonwealth compulsory military service act. They have just held a convention in Sydney and decided that while as citizens they were prepared to render any duties that the state rightly demanded by the civil authority they could take no part under military direction in the universal training required by the defense act. Believing that Christianity and the practice of war were opposed, they regarded compulsory military service as contrary to the fundamental tenets of their religion.—London Chronicle.

The Print and the Picture.

Some time ago there was a large sale at Derby, and a set of six prints realized 6 shillings. One of them was of Lawrence's "Miss Farren," and it was sent by the purchaser to Christie's and sold the other day for 150 guineas. This is a higher price than Lawrence received from Lord Derby for the original picture, which was long at Knowsley, but a few years ago it was sold to Pierpont Morgan.—London Truth.

AS TO ADVERTISING.

Arthur Brisbane, editor of the New York Journal, who received his early education in the old Jackson School here and who is a Plainfield taxpayer, asserts that the "so-called local newspapers constitute the greatest force for good in America." This assertion the highest priced editor in the world makes in a four column editorial in which he asserts after referring to the tremendous circulations of metropolitan papers:

"But if you took all the metropolitan newspapers of the United States and weighed them in the balance against the press of the small cities and towns in America, it would be as though you weighed a city office building against Pike's Peak—and the local press would be Pike's Peak. The local editor speaks to his readers as one friend speaks to another."

One point that Mr. Brisbane makes in this connection is the value of advertising in the mediums in the smaller cities and we commend these statements of his to the earnest and thoughtful consideration of merchants who do not advertise, who in Plainfield are few and far between:

"Public men know the power of the local editor and of the local newspaper. It is a pity that the business men of the country are ignorant of that power. The man who has something really worth while to advertise could, if he would use the local newspapers intelligently, multiply his sales by ten, make himself known to millions that do not now know him and put himself at the head of his line of competition. If the automobile manufacturers who attract attention just a this moment would put their advertising intelligently in the local newspapers, paying a good, fair rate and offering good value, they could very soon change the output of automobiles in America from 140,000 in one year, which was the record of 1910, to 500,000 or 1,000,000 in one year—and this is no exaggeration.

"The smallest of the country newspapers has among its readers one or five or ten or a hundred men that could be made to buy a car now and will buy one sooner or later. Some intelligent automobile manufacturer with the right kind of product will realize this and sell tens of thousands of cars through the local newspapers before his competitors know what has happened. The average of prosperity and of wealth among the readers of a country newspaper is far greater than among the readers of a metropolitan daily, and in proportion to the cost of advertising, intelligent publicity through the country newspapers gives by far the best results. What we have said about automobile advertising refers to advertising in other lines. The dwellers in the cities, readers of the metropolitan dailies, have before their eyes the temptations and attractions of the great stores which cannot be reached by the reader of the country newspaper. If our business men realized their opportunities they would fight for parcels post, and they would make of every country newspaper an active distributing agency, doubling and trebling the country's prosperity and industrial activity."

ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.

Governor Judson Harmon, of Ohio, one of Governor Wilson's principal opponents for the Democratic nomination for President, made public yesterday his views on what the party platform should be this year. He favors tariff reform, economy in the administration of the government, and a more thorough regulation of the trusts. The first and third suggestions are not new and are being worked out by the Republicans at the present time, under the direction of President Taft. The economy argument may be a good one, but it has to be proven first that the departments of the governmental service have been extravagant. Postmaster General Hitchcock, for example, has put his department on a paying basis for the first time in its history. That does not look like extravagance.

The cry of extravagance in administering public affairs nowadays is a popular one for getting votes. The Democrats used the argument a year ago last fall when Governor Wilson was running for office, but we fail to note where any decrease in expenses has been brought about since they have had the Governor and Comptroller to keep an eye on the State pocketbook. In fact, the last Legislature materially increased the cost of running the State, and offered no economical measures. What is true in the State is true in the nation. As the population grows the expense of government must grow, and it is doubtful whether or not it has grown in proportion to the increase of the people in numbers. The business of crying for economy as a means to catch votes, when the administrative branches of the government and State are really economically run, is an unfair method. It takes a lot of money to care for the physical and moral well being of a great nation, and the Democrats must find better campaign material than the old, worn out economy argument, if they expect to get anywhere.

ELIZABETHPORT STATION.

Why the Jersey Central Railroad officials can permit such a station as that at Elizabethport to remain standing is hard to fathom. The road has a well earned reputation of caring for the wants of its patrons in regard to train service and many other matters, and yet the officials have allowed an old barnlike structure, entirely too small for the needs of the junction, to continue to stand at this important point. The matter is one which must directly affect Newark business of the line, for if it is possible to dodge that station travelers do so. We have understood that the railroad officials have put off making improvements at this point until it could be determined just how to eliminate the grade crossings in that section. This is probably a good excuse for not building a new station, but it is a poor excuse for not spending a few hundred or thousand dollars to make the present shed big enough for the demands upon it. During the recent weeks of bad weather it has been next to impossible to accommodate those who have found it necessary to change at this point.

TUBERCULOSIS WORK.

In the annual report of the State Sanitorium for Tuberculosis Diseases, which has recently been made public, it is shown that it cost $9.11 per week in 1911 to care for a patient there, as compared with $14.50 in 1908 and $10.04 in 1910. At the same time patients have been discharged as cured after four and a half months' treatment, as compared with six and a half months in 1909. During the year ending October 31, 1911, 393 were treated, 46 being discharged as cured and the balance either arrested or improved. 544 applicants for admission were refused the desired opportunity to be restored to health. These last figures open the most serious line of thought. Is the institution doing the best work possible, or are those who have charge taking every precaution to see that only the mildest cases are admitted, so that they can report at the end of the year that they have made a remarkable record?

The Rahway Valley Railroad has been taking in ten dollars a day and spending twenty-five. That is true philanthropy toward those who live along its line. Of course this could not go on forever, and the Public Utility Commission has given permission to raise the rate of fare. Just another evidence that the commission is a good thing for both railroads and travelers.

The Rahway Advocate, heretofore a weekly, appeared yesterday as a daily with its title changed to the Rahway Daily Record. We wish Mr. Rollinson and his associates unbounded success.

Judging from recent events in Los Angeles and Boston it is very evident that the best way to dodge execution for murder is to plead guilty, especially when one feels sure the prosecution has the evidence to convict.

NEWARK BAY FROZEN OVER; ALL TRAFFIC SUSPENDED.

As a result of the cold weather, Newark Bay has been frozen over by a layer of ice which is about four inches in thickness. Traffic has been suspended and boats are unable to come from or go to Newark.

The Elizabeth harbor, particularly about the coal dock slips, shows the result of the cold weather, and the tugboat William T. Cox is kept busy in breaking up the ice.

PERSIAN PUZZLES.

When You Think You Are Reading Men's Names You Are Not.

The trouble with the Persians—at at any rate, with those that get into the papers—is that they do not call themselves by their given names or their surnames, but only by titles. What, for instance, is Sardar Assad, by which the chief of the Bakhtiaris is known to all newspaper readers? It is not a name at all, but a title. The real name of the gentleman is Ali Ghuli, but to the world at large he is known as Sardar Assad, which means a lion.

The present regent is Nasr-ul Mulk. Nasr means help, mulk is kingdom and ul is the definite article; hence Nasr-ul Mulk means simply help of the kingdom. The present prime minister of Persia is Samsam-es-Sultaneh. This is not his name at all. His is a glorious title, meaning the never bending sword of the empire.

The word "dowleh" means in Persian "government;" hence you will find numerous "names" which are not names at all compounded with Dowleh, such as Mushir-ed-Dowleh, councilor of the government (mushir being councilor and ed denoting in a way the genitive case); Salar-ed-Dowleh, leader of the government, etc.

You are certain that a specific Arshad-ed-Dowleh had died 150 or 200 years ago, and so you are apt to ascribe to your friend of the same name figuring in the morning paper the age of Methuselah or the power of rising from the dead.

Then every Persian who can read and write and some who cannot calls himself Khan; every Persian who has been to Mecca calls himself Hazzi; every Persian who claims descent from the prophet is Seyed, Syed, Said. —New York Sun.

MIGHT OF MONEY.

The Unseen Empire That Controls the Great Nations.

The unseen empire does not need to own a country to control it. You do not need to own a railroad. You need to own its debts. It is the same with a nation. Since the large nations of Europe are controlled by the unseen empire there is not the slightest danger of Germany and England going to war. Nations do not go to war over trifles. In this case they could not fight. They were tied up. The unseen empire would not lend money for the fight. So they found a way out of it. When Italy applied to the unseen empire for a loan it was refused, for Italy is already in debt for one-fourth of all its property. But they promised more collateral. They got the loan. They are still looking for the collateral. The nations of Europe could not mediate in the case. They knew the unseen empire was behind it. The large nations of Europe are under control. The little nations are not, and so they have grown vastly in prosperity, as have Denmark and Norway and Sweden. The barbarous nations are not yet under control. The cost of war will soon make war with the barbarous nations impossible.—David Starr Jordan, President of Leland Stanford, in Address at Smith College.

Aviation In Africa.

The Belgian government has recently appointed a special commission to study the possibility of using aeroplanes for rapid communication with those districts of the Belgian Kongo that are still unprovided with railways and roads. Similarly the French government plans to equip a military post for aeronautical studies at Biskra, on the edge of the Sahara. Five aeroplanes are to be provided, four of them of metal, because of the probability that wooden apparatus would be seriously warped by the desert heat. A large staff of aviators and mechanicians will be stationed at the post, and an attempt will be made to establish communication by aeroplane in the Sahara.

The Dictograph.

The dictograph consists of a series of sensitive metal plates set in a hard rubber cylinder. In its elements it is a telephone transmitter magnified. Used in a business way, it enables a man to sit at his desk in his private office alone and talk off his correspondence without the stenographer being present. The stenographer may be in the next room or on the other side of the building, but she hears the words as distinctly as though she were at his elbow and sets them down. The dictograph promises to be of great service in detective work and is already being used in that line.—New York American.

Astronomy For Soldiers.

Astronomy for soldiers is to be taught in the English army under the direction of the distinguished astronomer Sir Norman Lockyer. To illustrate the value of a knowledge of the stars he tells how when Lord Wolseley ordered a night attack upon Arabi Pasha's forces at Tel-el-Kebir the expedition would have failed but for two naval officers whose study of navigation had made them more or less familiar with the heavens.

Clearing and Colder Weather Coming

There was a perceptible rise in the temperature last night, followed by snow, which was the prediction for today by the weather bureau. The minimum temperature reported by Weather Prophet John Neagle was 8 degrees, and the maximum, 22 degrees. The predictions for Saturday are clearing and colder.

Lecture, Concert and Dance.

A lecture, concert and dance will be held at Arcanum Hall, Westfield, under the auspices of Westfield Columbian Circle on Monday evening, January 15.

IDLENESS.

From its very inaction idleness ultimately becomes the most active cause of evil, as a palsy is more to be dreaded than a fever. The Turks have a proverb which says that the devil tempts all other men, but that idle men tempt the devil.—Colton.

Quite Natural.

"I wish to see the lady of the house," said the tramp at the back door.

"I am she," answered the lady.

"Go on—send me the missus," said the hobo.

"Look here, you impudent creature! I am the lady of this house and its mistress. You can't stand here insulting me by pretending you think I'm a hired girl either. You get right out of this"—

"Softly, madam," interrupted the bum. "You mistake my mistake. You looked so independent, so happy, so autocratic, madam, that I thought you were the cook. I hope you will pardon me. The error was natural, as you must confess."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Expanding Opals.

The reason why opals are so often lost from their settings is that they expand with heat more than other precious stones and consequently force open the gold which holds them in place.

William Reed, aged about 70 years, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Breck-Reed, who died recently as she was nearing the century mark, is under treatment at Muhlenberg Hospital. His home is in California.

AN ENGLISH WIT.

Some Stories of the New Assistant Censor.

As to Charles E. Brookfield, London's new assistant examiner of plays, there are more people who will admit his title as a wit than as a censor of the British stage. George Windham was once the victim of Brookfield's ready tongue. Windham was playing David Garrick, and it was common talk that he followed Garrick's mannerisms off the stage as well as on. One day during the run of the piece Windham entered a clubroom where Brookfield was sitting with some others and flung himself into a chair. His attitude was one of the most characteristic of Garrick poses. "By Jove," said Windham, "I get more and more like Garrick every day!" "And less like him every night," said Brookfield. On another occasion Brookfield was in the company of a number of actors out of a job when entered unto them George Grossmith, then at the height of his popularity as a drawing room entertainer. He railed his less fortunate companions on their lack of initiative. "Why wait for a theater engagement when one might make a hundred pounds a night at private parties? All you want is a piano and a suit of dress clothes." "That's all right," said Brookfield, "but we can't all of us look as funny in a dress suit as you do."—New York Evening Post.

Little Surprises.

"Here's the rope of pearls you lost, ma'am. No, I don't want any reward."

"You didn't need to send for me, Mrs. Gwilliams. The baby's broken out with the heat; that's all."

"Dr. Fourthly, the church board has decided to raise your salary $500 and give you a three months' vacation next summer."

"I see your seat is directly behind a pillar, madam. I'll change with you. I've seen this play several times before."

"Throggins, old chap, you want that office, and I don't. I'm going to withdraw my name."

"I notice you've advertised for a cook, mum. S'pose you try me for a week without any pay."—Chicago Tribune.

Enlightening the Court.

"What is your occupation?" the justice asked the witness.

"Jedge," he replied, "ain't you a-gittin' jest a leetle too pussonal? Have I got to give my livin' away before this here hon'able court?"

"You heard the question," said the judge, "and you must answer it. What do you do for a living?"

"Well, sir, I'll jest make bold to enlighten you sence you seem to need it. In the summer when I ain't a-fishin' I'm prophesyin' weather, an' when the weather don't fall right I'm either a-killin' of alligators an' a-sellin' of rattlesnake buttons or attendin' campaign barbecues an' votin' around."—Atlanta Constitution.

Applied Mathematics.

J. M. Barrie relates an instance of the late Professor Chrystal's readiness in applied mathematics. One day when he was producing on the blackboard those "spiders' webs in chalk" which were the despair of the unlearned a student near the top of the room dropped a marble, which bumped down, step by step, to the level of the rostrum. Chrystal, unheeding the giggles of the class, went on with his work. When the marble came to rest he observed, "Will the student at the end of bench 41 kindly stand up?" He had counted the bumps made by the marble in its descent.—London Globe.

Women's Secrets.

She—She told me you told her that secret I told you not to tell her.

He—The mean thing! I told her not to tell you I told her.

She—I promised her I wouldn't tell you she told me, so don't tell her I did.—New York Mail.

Mean of Him.

Newwed—Say, old man, you don't know what you miss by not being married.

Bachelor—I guess not. Do you count your money every night and morning?—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Racial Differences.

"What is the continual row in that apartment house?"

"It is a racial prejudice in a way. You see, a family in one flat has a Russian hound and the adjoining one has a Persian cat."—Baltimore American.

The Echo of a Toothache.

"It's a great comfort to tell your troubles to somebody."

"It depends on whom you select. Telling them to a dentist only seems to make matters worse."—Washington Star.

WE GIVE AND REDEEM SURETY STAMP COUPONS—$2.50 IN GOODS FREE.

Tomorrow Again We Give 40 Surety Coupons Free

TO INTRODUCE THIS PROFIT-SHARING INNOVATION TO OUR PATRONS

As previously announced, we are presenting to everyone entering the store this week a book containing 10 Surety Coupons. This book, when presented at the Coupon Station on the Main or Second Floor, will entitle you to 30 more free coupons, making forty in all. We start you on the way to a full book which will bring to you $2.50 worth of merchandise of your own selection in any part of the store, excepting the grocery.

More thousands than we had any reason to expect started their books last week, and this, exhausting our first edition very early, necessitating another large edition, which we are now distributing. People in all walks of life have quickly recognized in this profit-sharing a legitimate and certain way of giving to our patrons a discount of 2½ per cent. on every purchase made in this establishment, even on the meals you eat in our restaurant or the soda you drink at our fountain.

Every 10c purchase entitles you to a coupon.

Every $1 purchase entitles you to 10 coupons.

Every $100 purchase entitles you to a full book, which we exchange for a book of certificates that can be spent just like paper money in any part of the store, except grocery—twenty-five of them being worth $2.50 to you.

No simpler scheme could be devised for this sharing of our profits with those who patronize us regularly. It is convenient to all, easily understood and works out to the advantage of every one desiring to participate. It is an entirely different proposition from any like scheme operated by other concerns in that we present to you this whole store full of high-class merchandise for selection when you come to realize on your coupons. The return to you of 2½ per cent, is just as positive as returns would be from bonds, stocks or bank interest.

We want you to feel free to ask for Surety Coupons, if the salespeople do not offer them, as we are really anxious that you should have them with every purchase you make, and do not want you to feel that you are getting anything that is not due you when you ask for coupons.

If you have any idea of buying a Fur Coat, a Scarf or a Muff this season surely now is the most advantageous time for making a purchase, for see how we are paring the prices on these excellent furs despite the fact that the cost of raw skins has so largely advanced.

Take, for instance, these Black Russian Pony Skin Coats, 52 in. long and handsomely lined with gray Skinner's satin, which because of the slightest imperfections we are offering at $15.00

Then look at these perfect Black Moired Russian Pony Skin Coats, also 52 inches long, lined with rich Skinner's satin or brocade; made with large roll shawl collar and deep cuffs; luxurious coats that were cheap at $39.50, now offered at $29.50

Then here are Black Russian Pony Skin Coats lined with beautiful brocade, with large roll shawl collar and deep cuffs, which we have been selling at $69.50, marked to $49.50

52-INCH MINK DYED MARMOT COATS—
Regular $55.00, sale price $39.50
Regular $69.50, sale price $49.50

52--INCH SOLID SKIN CARACUL COATS
Lined with brocaded Silk—
Regular $69.50, sale price $49.50
Regular $89.50, sale price $69.50

52-Inch Near Seal Coats, brocaded silk lined, regular $69.50, sale price $49.50

52-INCH PERSIAN LAMB COATS

Regular $250.00, sale price ...$198.00
Regular $325.00, sale price ...$275.00

Furs, scarfs and Muffs in great variety at decidedly lower-than-usual prices.

LILLIAN RUSSELL.

Famous Beauty Who Will Be Married In May to Newspaper Publisher.

Lillian Russell, whose engagement to wed Alexander P. Moore, a Pittsburgh newspaper publisher, was recently announced, will retire from the stage in May, when the wedding takes place. Satisfied with her success in the theatrical field, where she won distinction as the "most beautiful actress," Miss Russell will do literary work. She has already tried her hand in that line and believes that writing should be her forte in future.

Miss Russell's first theatrical engagement was in 1879, when she was engaged by E. E. Rice to play in "Pinafore."

Her mother, Cynthia Leonard, was one of the first suffragists and ran for mayor of Chicago the same year that Belva Lockwood ran for president.

Her marriage to Mr. Moore will be Miss Russell's fourth matrimonial venture. Her first husband was Harry Braham, a musical director, who married her when she was a chorus girl. They lived in Boston for awhile and then separated. Braham got a divorce, and in 1884 Miss Russell was married to Edward Solomon. After ten years Miss Russell divorced Solomon, proving her assertion that he had a wife living in London. The same year she was married to John Chatterton, who sang professionally as Signor Perugini. Miss Russell divorced him in 1898.

LILLIAN RUSSELL AND ALEXANDER P. MOORE, TO WHOM SHE WILL BE MARRIED IN MAY.

Mr. Moore is forty-four years old and is a power in western Pennsylvania politics. He has known Miss Russell for twelve years. He has been married, but obtained a divorce on grounds of incompatibility of temper.

Miss Russell recently came out in favor of woman suffrage, but added that she believed that the government was getting along as well as it could if women were given the ballot.

Miss Russell declares there isn't another man in the world as fine as her new fiance. "He is a perfectly wonderful man. He has big, broad ideas, is not afraid of anything and is clever, too," she said.

The wedding will take place in New York. "I'm going to have a wedding, and I'm going to invite all my friends, so they can give me wedding presents, and I'm going on a wedding trip, and it's going to be at Niagara, and I'm going to have my picture taken in front of the falls, like any good American," said Miss Russell.

COMMANDER ANDREWS.

He Is the New Chief of the Navy's Navigation Bureau.

Commander Philip Andrews, U. S. N., who has just succeeded Rear Admiral Reginald F. Nicholson as chief of the bureau of navigation, was formerly aid to Secretary of the Navy Myer.

COMMANDER PHILIP ANDREWS, U. S. N.

The appointment of Commander Andrews is another example of Secretary Myer's policy of putting young men in important places in the navy when their efficiency and executive ability warrant it.

Rear Admiral Nicholson will go to the Asiatic station to relieve Rear Admiral J. B. Murdock as commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet.

Commander Andrews, born in New York, was appointed from New Jersey, entering the service in 1882.

The Sailors' Psalm.

How many people—landsmen, at all events—are aware that one of the Psalms is often called the sailors' psalm? It is of course Psalm cvii, wherein occur the beautiful and familiar words, "They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters—these see the works of the Lord and his wonders in the deep." The psalm is usually read as part of the simple services which take place on Sundays on ships at sea. For that reason it is known as the sailors' psalm.—London Chronicle.

Medieval Doors.

During the medieval period doors were small and narrow, so that only one person could pass through at a time owing to the universal need for protection against attack. For this same reason external doorways were sometimes set in a recess, commanded by openings through which arrows could be shot. The doors themselves were constructed in one piece and not divided from the center and were fastened by strong oak bars, which could be drawn across from one side to the other.

Question For Question.

"I shall discharge our butler," said Mr. Cumrox.

"What's the trouble?"

"He doesn't show me proper deference. When I am paying a man liberally I consider it his duty to laugh at my jokes."

"And won't he?"

"I don't think he can. He's an English butler. When in a spirit of gentle and condescending badinage I said to him, 'Hawkins, can you tell me which came first, the chicken or the egg?' he said, 'Which did you order first, sir?'" —Washington Star.

No Chance For Detection.

"Townley says you'll have to count him out of the theater party."

"Eh? What's the matter?"

"He's so hoarse he can't speak."

"Tell him to come, anyway. You can pair him off with the Gabber girl. She won't give him a chance to say a word."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wall Street and Stocks.

Probably 80 per cent of the stocks bought and sold for speculation on the Stock Exchange are bought and sold not upon conviction, but on example. A majority of the time it is true that the strongest reason people have for buying is that others buy, or vice versa. —New York Post.

Effort.

Keep the faculty of effort alive in you by a little gratuitous exercise every day. Do every day something for no other reason than that you would rather not do it.—William James.

It is the enemy whom we do not suspect who is the most dangerous.—Rojas.

Shipwrecked On The Sea Of Life That's What You Are Without Money In The Bank

Copyright 1909, by C. E. Zimmerman, Co--No 8

FLOATING FROM PLACE TO PLACE WITHOUT A HARBOR—a raft upon the sea of life, without anchor, rudder or sail, is the man without money in the bank. Your bank account is your harbor in stress of weather; and with the confidence that comes with money, to fill your sail, your passage across the sea of life will be smooth and safe.

Pays Four Per Cent. Interest

The Home Building & Loan Association

Offers Cheap Interest for a Home Builder or Buyer

It figures out about like this, as a series will run out in twelve years:
If $2,000.00 is borrowed (other amounts in same proportion),

He pays $10.00 a month dues for 144 months	$1,440 00
He pays $10.00 a month interest for 144 months at 6 per cent	1,440 00
Entrance fee, search, etc., about	25 00
Total amount paid	$2,905 00
He has the use of	2,000 00
At a cost for 12 years of	$ 905 00

Which is actual net interest of only 3¾ per cent. per annum.

This is on a basis of 6 per cent. When no money is on hand, the Association will provide money for the borrower at a very slight premium.

The regular meetings of the Association are held at its rooms, 109 Park Avenue, on the third Monday evening of each month. New series are opened at each regular meeting. Pillow of the Italian Peasant.

The Italian peasant girl as soon as she has learned to spin and sew begins to make her wedding trousseau. Thence piece by piece it grows, and she has put into it all her finest stitchery and sweetest thoughts. As soon as she is a bride she makes a bag of fine muslin. This she begins to fill with rose leaves. Each year adds its share. When she dies, perhaps an old woman full of years, it is this rose pillow that her head rests on. In this calm acceptance of and preparation for the great events of life, such as marriage and death, there are time and soil for the blossoming of fancy which we, stumbling, hit and miss, through life, do not furnish.

No Misers In Burma.

When a Burman has earned a little money he immediately proceeds to spend it all, for the Burmese have no ambition to be rich and never hoard; consequently there are no large landowners, and, there being no aristocracy, the people are as near being on an equality as possible. Poor people are quite as rare as rich people, and the only beggars to be met with are the lepers, who sit on the steps of the pagodas. Should a Burman find himself in possession of a large sum of money he builds a pagoda and possibly a zayat, or rest house. If any money still remains he gives a theatrical performance.

High Pews.

During the reign of William and Mary in England a worthy bishop complained to the latter that the ladies of the court were wont to fix their eyes on their neighbors rather than on him during his discourses. It apparently never occurred to the divine that the fault might lie in the sermons themselves. By consent of the queen high pews were introduced to prevent wandering eyes. "As for the young ladies for whose spiritual welfare they were devised," says a writer, "their indignation was only surpassed by the rage of their admirers." From that time high pews were commonly placed in churches.

ONLY ONE FAMILY ON THIS BLOCK GOES TO CHURCH.

The growing indifference of people in attending church was the theme of the address by Rev. John Y. Broek at the union of week of prayer service held at the First Presbyterian church, last night. The general topic was "Home Missions," and the speaker emphasized the manifest indifference of people generally in church matters and attendance.

Mr. Broek declared that he had made a personal study of the matter and his investigation had disclosed that in one residential block in this city there was but one family that regularly attended church.

The service was in charge of Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson and Rev. Dr. Craig, of this city, took part. A word of regret was received from Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, who was unable to attend as he had been called to Kingston, N. Y. The last meeting will be held tonight at Trinity Reformed church, when Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson will speak.

County to Take Over Street.

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders has notified the Summit Council that it will take over Morris avenue in that city as a county road. This question has been a subject for debate for ten years between the Council and the freeholders. Originally it was a county road, and the street has been in poor condition of late years.

MOTOR CARS NOW ON THE LEHIGH VALLEY R. R. TRACKS.

In place of the old-fashioned hand-car operated by the muscle of man, the Lehigh Valley Railroad has on a number of sections adopted the motor car for track inspection and repair work. The Valley road has just ordered a dozen new motor cars, and eventually the old hand-cars will be displaced altogether.

The section motor car, as it is called, is run by a gasoline engine, like an automobile. It is made light, weighing only 700 pounds, so that the secttion gang can easily lift it to and from the track. It has no back or front—it is alike at both ends and it runs at the same speed in either direction. It can negotiate twenty-five miles an hour.

The car is equipped with portable telephone apparatus, so that the foreman, at any time, can make connection with the wires and communicate with the train despatchers.

Samuel R. Mooney.

Samuel R. Mooney, of 3 West Grand street, Rahway, died Wednesday at the Elizabeth General Hospital, where he had been taken for treatment last Friday. He was fifty-nine years old and was the son of the late Samuel and Phoebe Mooney. Mr. Mooney was born and lived almost all of his life in Rahway. He is survived by a widow. Funeral services will be held tonight at 8 o'clock. Rev. Robert W. Elliott, of the Church of the Holy Comforter, will officiate.

PROF. HIBBEN IS HEAD OF PRINCETON UNIVERSITY.

John Grier Hibben, professor of logic was elected president of Princeton yesterday by the board of trustees of the university.

The new president succeeds Governor Woodrow Wilson, who resigned the presidency in October, 1910, after his nomination as the Democratic candidate for Governor.

The new president, who is about fifty years old, was graduated from Princeton in 1882. He went into the ministry, but in 1881 entered the faculty of Princeton as instructor in logic. He was made professor of logic in 1897.

During the controversy over plans for the graduate college, Professor Hibben was in sympathy with the theories of Dean Andrew West and William Cooper Proctor as against those of President Wilson.

Professor Hibben is well known as an author, having published over half a dozen volumes on logic, philosophy and belles lettres. He is president of the American Philosophical Society and editor-in-chief of the International Series of Philosophical Monographs the first of which he wrote.

Paint that Stays Painted
That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

N Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Burton Holmes, traveler, author and lecturer, next week begins his annual series of Travelogues in New York, his announced subjects all new and all the results of seven months of travel during the past spring and summer. South America, a new world for the exploitations of his pen and camera—was his field of travel. Starting with Spain and Portugal as the Mother-Lands whence sprung the civilizations of our "Southern sister," he will devote his first Travelogue to these, two of the most interesting and picturesque of the countries of the Old World. The second will be a description of the cruise from Europe via Madeira to South America, skirting the East Coast, touching at all the principal ports as far as Buenos Aires. His third Travelogue tells of the magnificence and beauty of this "Paris of America" and the wonders of Argentina, a field of golden opportunity. The fourth subject describes his interesting and thrilling experiences in crossing the Andes from Argentina to Chile, including his visit to the most stupendous and beautiful cataracts in the world—the Falls of Igazu, while his fifth topic is devoted to Rio de Janeiro—which he pronounces the most beautiful city in either continent—and to Brazil, another land of vast commercial interest to all Americans.

Owing to the success of William H. Crane's production of Martha Morton's comedy, "The Senator Keeps House," at the Garrick Theatre, New York, he will not revive his old plays for evening performances, as he had planned, but will put them on at special matinees, the first of which will be this afternoon, when "A Fool of Fortune," a Wall street comedy by Martha Morton, will be presented. "A Fool of Fortune" was first presented in New York city at the old Fifth Avenue Theatre December 1, 1896. Miss Morton had written two successful plays for Mr. Crane, called "Brother John" and "His Wife's Father." In the summer of that year she had observed the experience upon which the play of "A Fool of Fortune" is based. She submitted the scenario to Mr. Crane who accepted it at once. All the characters in it are taken from life. Conditions today are much the same as existed sixteen years ago in Wall street. After outlining her play, she spent two weeks in brokers' offices studying the Street. Several of the young men who gave her pointers at the time are now prominent factors in the financial district.

The second presentation by the Wilton Lackaye players, a new comedy drama entitled "The Right to Happiness," received its premiere by that organization at the Bijou Theatre last night and met with a hearty reception. "The Right to Happiness' is a translation by F. G. Fay from the French by Gustave Guiche and P. B. Gheuse. Its original title is "Chacun-Sa-Vie" and it is one of the Comedie Francaise successes, said to contain a great deal of brilliant comedy which has yielded capitally to English. Miss Adelaide Keim has been especially engaged to interpret the leading feminine role and other members of the company to be seen at the Bijou in the new play are Walter H. Regan, A. S. Byron, Julia Hay, Muriel Starr, Francis X. Conlon, Sybella Pope, Louis Thomas, Wedgwood Nowell and Harold Rowe.

BIG FUR SALE
At Charles Kurtzman's Fur Store

178 EAST FRONT ST. (Dr. Pittis' Office Building.)

Our fur sale will be the greatest cut price event ever known in Plainfield in exclusive furs. We will show Plainfield people a place where they can make money. I will sell goods at half of our cost prices in order that our patrons may get the highest quality of goods in Mink, Lynx, Natural Foxes, Raccoons, Coats, etc., at prices which, in other stores, they would have to pay for imitation goods. The reason why we are doing this is to still further increase our reputation for bargain giving and square dealing, in order that the public may have this store firmly fixed in their minds for the coming year. To show the people what prices will prevail at this great sale we quote the following:

Genuine Hudson Seal Coats, reg. price $75; sale price....$42.50

Brown Marmot Coats, real guaranteed quality $37.50

Big Line of Pony Coats .....$25.00 to $35.00

Real Eastern Mink Sets, reg. price $90; sale price $45.00

Lynx Sets, reg. price $90; sale price $45.00

One Black French Lynx Set, reg. price $16; sale price $7.50
All styles.

Brown and Black French Sable Coony Coats at $20.00
All styles.

All other furs, such as Natural Foxes, Russian Lynx, etc., between $15.00 and $25.00 per set. You cannot duplicate them elsewhere at any less than $45.00. We will refund the difference to any person who can prove they can buy these goods at lower figures..

Special Prices on remodeling.

WOMEN'S REGULAR TO $40 CLOTH SUITS—Women's and Misses' sizes. No suits are carried here from season to season; when the new season begins new suits begin with us. Our policy is to dispose of every suit in the season for which it was bought. Twenty dollars is less than any reputable tailor will charge for making alone—serges, cheviots, diagonals, broadcloths, mixtures, we cannot guarantee every size in every number, but there are plenty of sizes and plenty of styles, and the styles are right, at.....$20

WOMEN'S AND MISSES' $25 to $35 COATS—Our $20 assortment strengthened for tomorrow. You will find plenty in this lot coats that have sold all season and are worth today if compared with many $30 and $35, but we bought a great quantity, sometime ago, over 1,000 coats, and we therefore named a price that enables you to secure just this kind of a bargain; black and navy broadcloths, Kersey, choice mixtures, all new, fresh, beautiful silk lined, spec. $20

PONY COATS GREATLY REDUCED—The comparative prices noted below represent the regular prices that the garments have commanded all season prior to this sale.

They are not specially bought Pony Coats of questioned quality, but the best that the market produced, soft, rich, pliable and beautifully marked.

Reg $55 Pony Coats, plain 52 in brocade lined or "Skinner" satin lined $39.50

Reg. $45 Pony Coats, 36 in. brocade lined or Skinner satin lined, at $35.75

Reg. $65 Pony Coats, 52 inches, brocade lined or Skinner satin lining, beautifully marked, special.....$48.50

Reg. $79.50 Pony Coats, 52 inches beautifully brocade lined or Skinner satin lined, at $59.50

FOR THE BOYS

BOYS' REG. $5.00 ENDURANCE SUITS—All wool cheviots, in neat shades of grays, tans and browns, pretty patterns, also all wool heavy weight blue serge. These suits are exceedingly well tailored and perfect fitting—the knickers cut extremely full, have watch pockets, belt loops, and full lined; sizes 7 to 18 years; January sale, price $3.85

BOYS' REG. $5.98 AND $6.98 LONG OVERCOATS—Broken lines of our reg. $5.98 and $6.98 grades, materials of all wool cheviots, pretty shades of tans, browns and gray mixtures, full length coats, with convertable collars that can be worn button to neck, military fashion; sizes 7 to 17 years, January special.....$4.95

BOYS' REG. $7.98 and $9.98 LONG OVERCOATS—Convertable collar style, can be worn button to neck, military fashion or collar and lapel turn down, fabrics are all wool, heavy weight cheviots, pretty shades of grays, coats cut full length and extremely well tailored, some with loose belt on back of coat; sizes 10 to 17 years, January sale, price.....$6.95

BOYS' REG. $6.98, $7.98 and $8.50 RUSSIAN OVERCOATS—Broken lines of high grade chinchillas, kerseys and cheviots, pretty colorings, plain blues, grays and tans, also mixed grays and browns, self and velvet collar style, all coats exceedingly well tailored into swagger fitting models, with Venetian or wool linings, a good selection of these pretty and warm coats, in sizes 3 to 6 years; January sale price $5.00

HANDSOME CLOTH AS WELL AS PLUSH AND FUR COATS IN OUR ANNUAL SALE. OUR THIS YEAR'S SALE HAS BEEN STIMULATED BY A NUMBER OF PURCHASES OF MANUFACTURERS' STOCK AT SACRIFICE PRICES.

Most manufacturers have closed out their fall and winter stocks of ready-made garments, and their business is almost at a standstill. We have conferred with one of the manufacturers with whom we do considerable business and arranged with him to make up all his piece goods into the latest fashioned garments. They were only too glad to do this regardless of profit, as it meant absolute clearance of their stock, and enabled them to keep their operators at work. In addition to the Clearance Prices we have placed on our own stocks, we are in a position to offer you newly made and latest model garments at very attractive prices. LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Al G. Field began advertising the top price for the best seats at his show for one dollar. Through all the years since he has maintained this price. When even the mediocre theatrical companies, taking advantage of the public desire to be amused, advanced their price, Field positively refused to break his rule, adhering to the dollar mark. Competitors endeavored to belittle his enterprise but the arbitrator, the great public, more than sustained the Field policy. The dearth in amusement came. Picture houses, cheap vaudeville and other causes reduced the patronage of the so-called high-priced attractions. It was then the consistency of the Field policy reaped its reward. Through it all, every day in every city, the patronage of the Field organization increased. While others may play to moderately good business, Al. G. Field enoys the benefits of his reputation for fairness and the reward is crowded houses. Everywhere, of course, did he not offer a superior entertainment, the patronage would not be so great. Offering a good, clean show and square dealing with the public has made Al G. Field successful.

"The Man From Mexico."

The Proctor's stock company from Elizabeth, considered one of the best, will present that well-known play, "The Man From Mexico," at the Plainfield theatre, Tuesday night, January 16. The cast is an exceptionally strong one as will be noticed from the following names: Miss Edna Archer Crawford, James Cunningham, Tom Williams, Miss Josie Haywood, Brickam Royce, Miss Francis Williams, David Werner, William DeLong and George Fayer.

Will Open Restaurant.

Patrick J. Melvin, for a number of years manager of E. H. Clevely's North avenue restaurant and of late manager of the Timbo restaurant in Westfield, will open a lunch room in the store recently occupied by Harry Lister, on North avenue. Mr. Melvin expects to open on or shortly after the first of February.

PLAN CONFERENCE ON SEWER SCHEME

Common Council to Meet on Monday Night and Joint Meeting is also Arranged.

TO CONSIDER TRUNK LINE

Representatives of Eight Communities to Meet at Dunellen on Thursday Night, Plainfield Being Included.

Recognizing the strength of the opposition to its proposed plans for enlarging the city sewage beds, and realizing that some approved plan of action is urgent, representatives of the city and borough governments will hold a conference Monday night, following the adjourned meeting of the Common Council. The fact that the borough has met with obstacles in carrying out its plans for installing a sewage system and that Plainfield is being opposed by Dunellen in its proposition to enlarge the disposal beds has been the means of bringing the representatives of the two municipalities together to discuss what can be done.

In this connection, Dunellen has taken the initiative in arranging for a conference of representatives of Plainfield, North Plainfield, Fanwood borough, Fanwood township, Bound Brook, Somerville, Dunellen and Raritan to be held at Dunellen on Thursday. The Board of Health of Dunellen has planned the conference and the Common Council received an invitation today to send two representatives to the meeting. Mayor G. W. V. Moy has been requested to attend the conference here Monday night and also the one at Dunellen. There is a feeling among the residents of Dunellen that a trunk line sewer would solve the problem and efforts will be made, if thought advisable, to have a bill introduced in the Legislature this winter permitting the construction of such a sewer and seeking State aid in meeting the cost. This feature was brought out at the public hearing before the State Board of Health two weeks ago. Thus far the State Board of Health has not either approved or disapproved of Plainfield's sewage plans, and this will not be done until after another hearing to be held the latter part of February.

FORESTERS INSTALLED THEIR NEW OFFICERS

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, at its meeting last night installed the following officers: Orator, Robert T. Skinner; senior woodward, P. S. Flatley; junior woodward, Cornelius Regan; senior beadle, Frank Donnelly; finance committee, Kalman Rothberg. The rest of the officers are as follows:

Court Deputy, James T. McCarty; court physicians, Drs. H. H. Lowrie, A. K. Brennan, R. Yood; chief ranger Edward J. McCue; vice-ranger, Frank J. Winzenreid; recording secretary, Henry Hansen; financial secretary, Louis J. Feiring; treasurer, John R. Cline; junior beadle, Thomas Fitzgerald; trustees, John F. Casey, Sr., and Martin N. Whelan. The installation ceremony was conducted by High Court Officer John J. Praed acting as chief ranger, assisted by Charles Harring who acted as supreme marshal.

In the good and welfare of the order several members spoke of the faithful service of Junior Beadle Thomas Fitzgerald, who has held that office for the past fifteen years. Edward J. McCue began his third term as chief ranger.

BUSINESS OF CHURCH DR. ANDERSON'S THEME.

"The Business of the Church," was the subject of Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson's talk at the union week of prayer service at Trinity Reformed church, last night. He presented thetopic in a two-fold aspect, first, that the church is an instrument in the salvation of men, and secondly, the church is a training and development of religious character. Dr. Anderson elaborated on these points bringing out the important features.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of the church, conducted the service, reading the Scripture lesson and offering prayer. After Dr. Anderson's remarks a number of laymen took part, speaking along the same line of thought suggested by the leader.

All-Day Missionary Meeting.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of Grace M. E. church will entertain the district convention of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Newark Conference at the church the latter part of the month. It will be an all-day meeting.

PLANS FOR NEW PUBLIC LIBRARY ARE ALL READY

Work on Stately Structure Will Start as Soon as Weather Permits--to Face on College Place Opposite City Park.

The plans having been accepted and the contracts awarded, the work of construction of Plainfield's handsome new public library will be started as soon as the weather will permit. The building is to be erected on College place, facing the city park as the result of Andrew Carnegie's donation of $50,000 for that purpose. Messrs. Wilder & White of New York, are the architects, their plans being selected on a competitive bases.

It will be a fireproof building, designed in the style of the Italian Renaissance, and will be constructed of limestone and of rough-surface brick of special shape, known as tapestry brick. Both design and material will be of type different from any now existing in this city. The effect will be striking, and still restrained and dignified.

While, however, it is sought to express the best taste in the design of this Carnegie building, the chief purpose of library-utility, combined with convenience, will dominate the plan of the building. It will have a frontage of eihgty-seven feet on College place, with forty-nine feet on West Eighth street, the main entrance being on College place. It is planned as a separate structure, and it will be practicable to shut it off absolutely from the building now occupied as a library. But, for convenience sake, there will be a connection between the new building and the old. The main floor of the new building will be at the same level as the present reading-room floor. The reading-room of the new building will be its chief feature and will extend the entire length of the building on College place. The reading room will have a width of thirty feet and a ceiling height of twenty-two feet.

At the rear of the reading-room the new stock-room will be located. The stack equipment will be installed in three tiers, having communication with the existing stack-room at each stack floor level. The new stacks will provide shelf capacity for 45,000 volumes and the equipment will be of the most modern and convenient type.

New $50,000 Library Building, Work On Which Will Soon Be Started.

Book-cases will also be set to the walls of the reading-room. The wall surfaces above and the ceiling will be panelled and treated with ceiling lights in a decorative manner. This room will afford a seating capacity for ninety persons. The delivery desk will be so located as to be of direct access from College place; and, through means of an ample passage from the present reading-room, may be approached through the existing structure from the Park avenue entrance.

The basement will be half above grade, extending under the entire new building, and will contain the heating plant, vaults, store-rooms and lavatories. It will also contain a book-bindery and a lecture room, with seating capacity for one hundred and fifty persons.

The building committee furnished the plans and specifications and invited bids from a number of builders in Plainfield and in New York. The lowest bid was made by W. H. Fissell & Co., of New York, and the contract was awarded to that concern. It is understood that, so far as practicable, they will avail of local co-operation in the erection of the building. It is estimated that it will require almost a year to complete the structure. In the meantime the work and usefulness of the library are increasing month by month and is becoming an important educational institution.

The plans prepared by the architects have the unanimous approval not only of the building committee, but of the entire board of directors.

MERCURY SLID DOWN TO 8 DEGREES BELOW

The Coldest January Night Since 1904 is Experienced in This City.

FORECAST SNOW TOMORROW

Railroad and Trolley Service Hampered—Coal Dealers Are Kept Busy—So Are the Plumbers Who Nurse Furnaces and Pipes.

Weather Prophet John Neagle reports that during last night for the third time since 1893 zero weather or lower was experienced here. The official report shows that the minimum temperature last night was 8 degrees below which is the lowest since 1904, when a temperature of 13 degrees below was recorded, the lowest in ten years. On January 17, 1893, there was reported a temperature of 8 degrees below. On three dates in the past ten years zero weather was reported.

Mr. Neagle has furnished the following record of low temperatures covering a period of ten years:

January 17, 1893, 8 degrees below zero; January 6, 1896, 1 below; January 2 1899, 7 below; January 5, 1904, 13 below; January 26, 1905, zero; January 24, 1907, 1 below; January 31, 1908, zero; January 19, 1909, zero; January 10, 1 below. The weather report today follows:

"Increasing cloudiness tonight, probably followed by snow in early morning on Sunday; slowly rising temperature."

All of the local coal dealers have been rushed day and night filling "hurry-up" orders, and both horses and men have had a trying time of it keeping customers supplie. Householders, as usual, have had their troubles with frozen pipes, and it has been harvest time for the plumbers.

The extreme low temperature of last night caused a tie-up of the local trolley service by the snapping of the feed wire. One break occurred under the Watchung avenue bridge at 9:45 o'clock and the schedule on all the lines was knocked to "smithereens" for an hour. The tangle had barely been straightened out when another break occurred on the main line at West Front street and Giraud avenue. The trouble was discovered quickly by Patrolmen Bader and Wicht, who kept guard until the repair crew took care of the break. The main line cars ran irregularly until midnight.

The New Jersey Central experienced a great deal of trouble in moving passenger trains this morning, especially in the yards at Jersey City, where the switches were frozen solid. Nearly all of the passenger trains were from a half to an hour late, while the through western trains were much later in reaching their destination.

Mayors Meet Today.

Mayors of the municipalities throughout the State who are interested in the elimination of grade crossings will meet in the City Hall, Elizabeth, this afternoon to form a permanent association and to revise a proposed bill providing for the abolition of all grade crossings at the expense of the railroads. It is expected that the measure will be introduced early in the present session.

LEARN HOW READING IS TAUGHT TO 2-YEAR OLDS

The Montessori method for instructing young children in the fundamentals of education was explained by Miss Russell Bateman yesterday afternoon to the Plainfield Mothers' Association, at the regular monthly meeting in the High School. The lecture was delivered after the regular business meeting at which a resolution passed providing for co-operation with the State association in giving a Child Welfare Exhibit here in March.

Miss Bateman is a student at the St. Michael's School in Lexington avenue, New York, where Miss George, the American representative of Mme. Montessori, is instructing in the method which has attrarted the attention of educators all over the world.

The system makes it possible for children at two years of age to be taught how to write and do other things that are at present taught them in the primary grades. This is made possible by a series of geometrical blocks and forms cut out and roughened with sand-paper from which the children learn by touch rather than by having the knowledge forced upon them.

Miss Mabelle Phillips, of the Charity Organization Society, delivered an address on the work of her society and asked for volunteers for the visiting friendship committee. In the absenee of Mrs. J. C. Pierson, the president of the association, Mrs. H. D. Corbusier, vice president, presided.

CHURCHES TO PROVIDE FOR RESCUE MISSION

When the Plainfield Ministers' Association meets on Wednesday afternoon the report of the committee to consider ways and means for conducting the Rescue Mission will make its report. This committee will advise that the mission be conducted as a non-sectarian one as in the past and that all the Protestant churches in the city and borough help sustain it. A recommendation will also be made that the mission be placed under the direct charge of a board to be composed of representatives of the various congregations.

The committee, which consists of Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, Rev. John Y. Broek and Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, will suggest that John LeMatty be retained as superintendent. Mr. LeMatty has been the head of the mission since its beginning and has done a splendid work there. The meeting of the ministers will be held at the Y. M. C. A. hall at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

HIGH SCHOOL DEBATE CONSOLIDATION PLAN.

The question, "Resolved, That it is to the advantage of North Plainfield to be annexed to and consolidated with Plainfield," was debated in lively fashion by representatives of the senior English classes of the Plainfiel High School, yesterday afternoon. The affirmative and negative sides presented such strong arguments, pro and con, that the judges were unable to give any decision. Bruce Conlin was chairman and Mabel Foster the critic.

Those who represented the affirmative side were Helen Ryder, Millwood Lutz and Carrie Kling, while Effie Beekman and Nora McDonuogh represented the negative side. The second debate on the subject, "Resolved, That capital punishment be abolished," was won by the affirmative side comprising Egbert Fountain, Reynier Veghte and John Zerega. Their opponents were Milton Fine and Sayer Slawson. Burnett Doane presided and Evalois St. John was the critic.

CORNWALL-JOHNSON CASE HEARD BY VICE CHANCELLOR.

The case of Dr. F. W. Cornwall against Mrs. J. Wesley Johnson, whom he seeks to enjoin from renting offices in a house erected on a part of a lot at Watching avenue and East Front street, which had been built after he had purchased a part of the property from her, came up for final hearing in the Court of Chancery before Vice Chancellor Walker at Trenton yesterday. Tuesday, January 23, was set as the day for hearing the lawyer's arguments before a final decision is rendered.

The action was instituted last July by Dr. Cornwall, who alleges that Mrs. Johnson's purpose is contrary to their agreement.

Dr. Cornwall was represented by Charles M. Dolliver and S. S. Swackhamer, and the defendant by W. A. Coddington and George W. Anderson.

Dr. Herring's Theme.

The Rev. Dr. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will begin tomorrow night a course of sermons on "The Practical Value of Religion to a Modern Man."

MORMONS DETERMINED TO SPREAD TENETS HERE

Announce Through Counsel That They Will Resist Official Intereference to the Highest Court--Work on Pending Hearing.

Notice was served in the city court today by the two Mormon missionaries arrested Wednesday, through counsel imported from New York, that they intended to make a test case of the effort to shut off their propaganda. Stuart M. Kohn, the lawyer they retained, who has an office at 2 Rector street, New York, announced with emphasis that he denied any right on the part of the authorities to interfere with the propaganda as it had been conducted, and would carry the question, if need be, to the highest court.

Mr. Kohn appeared to represent the two Utah missionaries, Arthur Horsley and Albert Newman, who are twenty-one and twenty-seven years old respectively, when their case was called this morning. At his request the hearing was adjourned to February 26, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He entered a plea of not guilty for his clients.

The complaint which City Judge DeMeza read before accepting the plea, charges the missionaries with circulating literature in violation of a section of the ordinance dealing with the distribution of handbills, pamphlets and the like. It is an ordinance originally designed to prevent the scattering of advertising handbills and such literature about the streets and premises of householders.

"Is it the intention of your honor to contest the right of these young men to spread their belief as Mormons?" asked Mr. Kohn when the judge called for a plea.

"We will proceed under the complaint as read," said the court.

"Well, I merely wished to say that we are prepared to make a test case of this matter. We enter a plea of not guilty, and ask your honor to adjourn the hearing to some time in February."

"I will adjourn the hearing to February 26, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon," said Judge DeMeza, "but it must be understood that the young men are not to distribute literature between now and that date."

"Is there any question of my clients' right to remain in Plainfield during that time?" The court told him no one could question that right. "Well I will agree that it is understood that they are not to distribute literature as they have been doing, but I withhold for them their right to preach Mormonism by word of mouth and to give printed matter to such of those interested who ask for it."

After court adjournment Mr. Kohn made a statement to the newspaper men. He prefaced it with the statement that he wasn't a Mormon, but had been retained to defend the missionaries and purposed seeing that they were undisturbed in all their rights under the law.

"To begin with," said Mr. Kohn, "we will carry this case to the highest court in the land, if we have to. But I don't think it will come to anything like that. I read over the ordinance under which the city is proceeding, and it doesn't touch my clients in the remotest way, as I will show February 26. They have not scattered literature about the streets or areaways or pushed it under doors, as the ordinance forbids.

"We have agreed to stop spreading literature by the method pursued until this case is settled, but that will not stop my clients from pursuing their work as missionaries of their church."

He turned to the youthful-looking propogandists.

"You boys can go on talking your religion to your hearts' content to anybody who will listen to you. If anybody asks you for literature, give it to them. But don't pass it out until you have been asked for it. What we have agreed to you must abide by, but you go on exercising the rights that have not been questioned. If you believe in your religion, preach it."

The young men are very much in earnest, and those who have come in contact with them haven't any doubt as to what their course will be pending the hearing. They will go on seeking proselytes, with their tracts in their pockets instead of in their hands.

"We are spreading word of the Gospel restored," said Newman today, "and those who impute bad motives to us do us great injustice. We are paying our own expenses and buy our own tracts and we get no salary. We wouldn't be here if we were the sort of men our detractors would have it appear."

The missionaries said they hadn't made any converts in Plainfield yet, but had a number in prospect.

Before court was held, Mr. Kohn, Judge DeMeza and Mayor Moy discussed the case for half an hour in

GIVES UP ALL HOPE OF BROTHER'S LIFE

Mrs. James M. Charles Convinced That Bailey Died in Great South Bay.

MISSING SINCE JANUARY 5

One of Three Duck Hunters Who Disappeared In Gale—Wife's Despairing Vigil Over the Waters That Hold Husband's Body.

Edmund S. Bailey, who with Dr. Carl A. Clemons and Captain Tom Veltman, are believed to have been lost in Great South Bay, where they went duck hunting on January 5, is a brother of Mrs. James M. Charles, of Belvidere avenue, and has visited his sister here several times during the past three years that the Charles' have resided in this city. Mrs. Charles as well as Mr. Bailey's wife are prostrated. Mrs. Bailey is the only one who, up to yesterday, refuse to give up all hope.

Yesterday a maid whom Mrs. Bailey despatched to New York on Thursday returned with two large suit cases full of warm clothing from Mr. Baileys' wardrobe and his heavy fur coat. These garments Mrs. Bailey laid out on chairs in her rooms at the Cortland Hotel and she sat by them all day, looking out upon the white field of the bay, showing dim through the driving snow.

James M. Charles, who has been with Mrs. Bailey since first she hurried to Bay Shore to await the return of her husband, said last night that he thought he could persuade Mrs. Bailey to give up the vigil today and return to New York. The coming of yesterday's snow blotted out the last chance of the immediate finding of even the bodies of the three hunters, though the life savers are still keeping up the search.

Mr. Charles has been endeavoring to ascertain whether the Fire Island life savers had done their duty, and after his investigation he said he felt sure that they had been negligent and he declared that they had neglected their duty. He has evidence, so he thinks, to show that they were in a position to see the boat as it drifted on the bay Saturday and Sunday. He adds that the Fire Island station made no effort to pick up the boat when at last it was shown to the life savers and that they have not tried to find the lost men.

Mr. Bailey is twenty-three years old and he lived at 247 Fifth avenue, New York. His office was at 66 Broadway. He and Dr. Clemons and Tom Veltman left Bay Shore at 4:30 o'clock on the afternoon of January 5. They went in a power boat run by Veltman, of Bay Shore. The boat started for Bailey's shooting box on Short Beach Hassock, a dot of sand bar off the point of Short Beach Island. Nothing was seen of them after they set out upon the wind torn bay. It was said that at one time the wind was blowing eighty miles an hour and that the men were previously warned not to take the trip.

SUNDAY AFTERNOONS AT THE LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

The first of a series of pleasant Sunday afternoons has been arranged for tomorrow at the Young Men's Christian Association. The reading room and parlors of the building will be open at 2:30. At 4 o'clock, in the hall, an illustrated lecture on "Joseph, the Man Who Understood," will be given by President James E. Kimball, of the board of directors. This lecture gives the remarkable life-story of this great Bible hero. It has been prepared by a great teacher whose familiarity with the biblical story and its setting, whose appreciation of the greatness of Joseph's character and whose powers of expression have enabled him to produce a narrative of unbroken interest.

The fifty splendid stereopticon views accompanying the lecture show just such places, people and occupations as made a part of Joseph's life. They are made from photographs taken for Underwood & Underwood, of New York.

The lecture will be free to all men and to boys over sixteen.

Rev. A. C. Nickerson's subject at the morning service at All Souls' church tomorrow will be "Caring for the Church."

CITY'S PHYSICIAN TO BE DR. CURRIE

Mayor Moy Will Appoint Him to Succeed Dr. Chas. B. Lufburrow.

'ROTATION IN OFFICE' POLICY

His Honor Pays a Tribute to Present Incumbent — Confirmation by Council Is Considered Probable on Monday Night.

Dr. Charles B. Lufburrow, who has held the position of city physician and police surgeon for the past nine years, was not re-appointed by Mayor G. W. V. Moy at the organization meeting of the Common Council on January 1 nor at the adjourned meeting a week ago and neither will he be. The Mayor has decided to make a change and on Monday night when the Council will hold an adjourned meeting he will send in the name of Dr. Norman W. Currie, of Madison, avenue for those positions. It is believed that the appointment will be confirmed.

Mayor Moy said today that he was not making the change for political reasons, but simply because he believes in rotation in office. He said that he has the highest regard for Dr. Lufburrow as a physician and as a man and that he had rendered the city admirable service during the past nine years. His Honor is of the opinion, however, that it is not good policy for one man to remain in an office beyond a reasonable length of time.

Dr. Currie has been a practicing physician in this city for a number of years, during which time he has been connected with Muhlenberg hospital, having served on the medical staff. He is well acquainted with local conditions.

DUNELLENITES INJURED WHEN SLED HITS ROCK

Charles Terry and Russell Brakeley, young men of Dunellen, are recovering from injuries received while coasting on the Washington Rock road Wednesday night. Walter Stryker was also in the party but escaped being hurt when the bob upset.

With a number of other young men, Terry, Brakeley and Stryker had gone to the hill early to enjoy themselves. They had made several trips successfully when they decided to go higher up on the hill to get a better start. A number of others who had taken several rides with them declined to take the increased risk or the list of injured may have been much larger.

Starting from a point much farther up on the hill than any of the other coasters had dared the young men were soon flying down the smooth grade at a great speed when the front runners struck a partly hidden stone. The jar threw the sled off the road onto a pile of stone. They all clung to the plank, holding the two sleds, as it rolled over and over, finally coming to a stop with them underneath half conscious and helpless.

Terry was the first to fully regain his senses although the worst injured. He received a three inch scalp wound that required several stitches to close. Young Brakeley was injured about the legs and arms, but did not require the services of a doctor. Stryker was only badly shaken up. All three were assisted to the office of Dr. Platt and after a short time were able to go unassisted to their homes.

The course over which they were riding is about two miles long and the distance until they upset, considerably more than half way, was covered in less than a minute.

Welcome Service to Missionary.

The service at the Crescent Avenue church tomorrow morning will be one of welcome to Rev. Gilbert Lovell, who has returned from China, where he has been engaged in mission work. Mr. Lovell will make the address and the other ministers of the church and chapels will conduct the service. Mr. Gilbert was in China for nearly eight years and his address will review what he has been doing as a missionary.

Mayor Robert Clark to Build.

Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., has decided to erect two two-family houses on the tract owned by him on Watchung avenue, situated between the property occupied by himself and Warren chapel. The houses will face Watchung avenue and they will be modern in every respect.

POSTED DRUNKARD, HE LOSES SUIT FOR LIBEL

Trenton, Jan. 13.—The Supreme Court yesterday decided that an action for libel against any board of protectors appointed by a municipality under the drunkards' law of 1909 will not lie.

Chief Justice Gummere handed down an opinion in the case of James A. Johnson against William F. Marsh and others, who composed the Board of Protectors of Franklin Township, Gloucester county, and affirms the direction of a non-suit. Johnson's name, among others, was sent to saloonkeepers of the township and the latter were instructed not to sell to him.

Johnson brought suit for libel and the court directed a non-suit. In affirming the decision of the court below Justice Gummere holds that the members of the board, acting in good faith, under a public statute, were not personally liable, even though Johnson may have been done an injury by the posting of his name.

ACCIDENTS DUE TO COLD FILL ELIZABETH HOSPITALS.

Elizabeth, Jan. 13.—Patrolman William Guinee fell on the ice on North avenue early yesterday and broke his left arm near the wrist. He was found sometime later by Patrolman Ohrenberger and sent to the Alexian Hospital in the ambulance. The fracture was reduced and he was taken to his home, 320 Rosehill place.

Accidents and illness traceable to the recent cold spell have filled the local hospitals with patients and it has been necessary for the Alexian Hospital to set up extra beds. There have been many injuries from falls on slippery pavements and there is a large number of cases of pneumonia, pleurisy and grip under treatment. The Alexian Hospital admitted thirty patients during the past week and more than sixty have been treated for minor injuries due to falls on the ice.

COUGH OF BABY SAVES SIX FROM GAS DEATH.

Elizabeth, Jan. 13.—The coughing of a baby who was choking from the effects of gas flowing from a leaky pipe saved the lives of six persons, Mrs. Tony Grugugus and her five children, at 51 Pine street, early yesterday. All were so badly affected that they are now under the care of Dr. Emil Stein.

Escaping gas had been noticed about the house before the family retired Thursday night, but Mrs. Grugugus thought it was sewer gas and paid little attention to it. The coughing of the baby awakened her yesterday morning and she found that the room in which they were sleeping was stifling with gas. It was discovered that it was leaking from a pipe running through a closet. It is believed that the cold weather caused the pipe to burst.

Work of removing the snow began in New York before the fall ended.

NEW RULING OF LAW FOR RECOVERY OF DEBT

Overruling one of its own decisions, handed down in 1899, the Court of Errors and Appeals has placed a different construction upon the act of March 7, 1797, providing for the relief of creditors against heirs and devisees. During the century that intervened between the passage of the act and the decision in the controlling case of Henry Congar against Ann Brady, the proper construction of the act was a mooted question upon which the State courts had rendered conflicting decisions.

The gist of the decision of 1899 was that an action will not lie against the heirs of a deceased devisee to recover debts or obligations incurred by the devisor. In the decision which has just been given the court holds exactly the doctrine that "where a devisee dies without selling or aliening the lands devised, liability for the debts of the devisor, in respect of the lands devised, devolves not upon the personal representative but upon the heirs and devisees of the deceased devisee or the original debtor."

The opinion in the present case was handed down by Chancellor Pitney, while that in the Congar-Brady case, twelve years ago, was written by Chief Justice Gummere.

BRADSTREET AND DUN REPORT ON TRADE

New York, Jan. 13.—Bradstreet's weekly review of trade says in part today:

"Trade in the larger lines remains quiet, first because of the very cold weather that has prevailed over a wide area, thus preventing road salesmen from getting about, and secondly because inventories still occupy more or less attention. But mail order business with jobbers somewhat better, while city retail trade in overcoats, woolen underwear, hosiery, gloves, hats and caps and footwear has improved owing to the very low temperature or storms that prevail.

"The strike of longshoremen at Boston delays shipping at that port. Such foodstuffs as butter, eggs and potatoes have been advanced, while cattle, sheep and lambs are all dearer, receipts and supplies having been reduced. In the dry goods line little new business has developed but there are more inquiries, which suggests that the market is broadening.

"In the iron and steel industry January business thus far placed has exceeded expectations and the leading interest has a relatively large volume of unfilled orders on hand. There has been more car buying this week and the impression prevails that a good many orders have been placed in a quiet way.

"Business failures for the week ending January 11 were 421, against 649 last week and 353 a year ago.

R. G. Dun's weekly review of trade says in part:

"The business outlook is better than is indicated by the current statistics of bank clearings and railroad earnings. Clearings this week decreased outside New York 2.9 per cent. from last year, while in New York there were declines of 4.9 and 22.0 per cent., respectively.

"In the shoe trade more buyers are arriving in the market. Leather is steady, with increased sales, and hides are firm. The government cotton ginning report was one of the notable records of the past week, the amount ginned up to January 1 being not only over 3,000,000 bales larger than last year, but promising a total crop much in excess of fifteen million bales.

"The wheat crop seems to be better than recent reports indicated."

FROZEN EGGS CONFISCATED; REPUDIATED BY BAKERS.

Eighteen cans of frozen eggs, consigned to Furnival's Pound Cake Company, of Newark, were seized yesterday in Newark by Deputy United States Marshal Louis G. Beekman, and United States Pure Food Inspector Henry Lynn, at the Pennsylvania freight station.

The eggs had been shipped from Philadelphia and were at the station awaiting the arrival of a wagon from the baking company for delivery. The officials are awaiting orders from the United States Attorney-General to destroy them. The baking company officials repudiated the shipment of eggs and declared they knew nothing about them.

"We are going to make a clean sweep in Newark and vicinity," said Beekman yesterday. "We have cleaned up Jersey City pretty well and are now actively engaged in Newark and will soon place food stuffs on a safe basis.

New Brunswick's Milk.

BILL TO MAKE STRONG ACT MANDATORY IN THE STATE

One of the important measures of the present session of the Legislature will be presented next week in the form of a bill by Assemblyman Gill, of Mercer county, to make the Strong small board of freeholders act mandatory on all counties.

The original act was adopted in 1902, and it provided that the counties could take advantage of its provisions by submitting the act to a vote of the people at a regular election. Since that time eleven of the twenty-one counties have adopted the small board of freeholders, and the scheme has worked so satisfactorily that Mr. Gill is of the opinion that all of the counties should have this form of government.

Union county voted for the small board at the last election. The change is to be effective in 1913.

Hudson is the largest of the counties which has not adopted the provisions. When the scheme was first presented the optional feature was inserted in the law, so as to give those counties which did not want to take it up immediately a chance to see how it worked out in other counties.

The results have been satisfactory and the experimental stage has passed, according to Mr. Gill.

WOULD PAY PRISONERS UNJUSTLY CONVICTED

Justice to prisoners who are innocent of crimes for which they undergo punishment is contemplated in a bill that George O. Osborne, keeper of the State prison, will seek to have introduced during the present session of the Legislature.

The bill provides that prisoners thus wronged shall receive $1 a day for each day they serve, and that if they shall have served a certain period they shall receive $1,000 in addition, if they have never before been convicted of a felony. If a person has been previously convicted the daily allowance will be half a dollar and the gross grant only $500.

Since 1863, Mr. Osborne has been connected with charitable, correctional or penal institutions except for about six years. He became keeper of the State prison in March, 1902, and in that position has been called on to release a number of persons who were discovered to be innocent of crimes for which they were undergoing punishment.

The number of such cases is not actually large, so it is believed that the proposed law would not create a great financial burden. Mr. Osborne's plan is to have part of the payment to innocent men borne by the State and part by the county from which the men may have been sentenced.

ITALIANS SINK SEVEN TURKISH GUNBOATS.

Rome, Jan. 13. An Official note made public by the War Office yesterday says: "The Italian fleet in the Red Sea encountered and destroyed seven Turkish gunboats and captured an armed Turkish yacht on January 7. The Turkish warships offered violent resistance, but no loss was suffered by the Italians.

The battle was fought outside the bay of Kunfrida, about 500 miles north of Aden. Large numbers of Turks went down with their vessels, while boats from the Italian fleet rescued a number of sailors who swam clear of the wreckage. The armed yacht is being convoyed to Italy.

The war office believes that the Turkish battleships were assembled to convoy a military expedition which was to cross Egypt and join the Turkish forces at Tripoli.

The Italian attacking force consisted of the cruiser Piemonte and destroyer Artiglier. The most of the Turkish vessels are not known.

ELIZABETH SOCIETY AFTER BETTER TROLLEY SERVICE.

Elizabeth, Jan. 13.—The Men's Club of All Souls' Unitarian church, which is located in the El Mora section of this city, has begun an active campaign to get better trolley service in El Mora and Roselle. The street railway committee of the club has been authorized to co-operate with the transportation committee of the ElMora Association in the preparation of petitions to the Public Service Railway Company and City Council.

There have been many complaints about the service on the Third street line, which runs through El Mora and Roselle, and it is expected that drastic action will be taken if there is not some improvement.

TO TAKE TESTIMONY IN ST. ELIZABETH CONVENT SUIT.

Morristown, Jan. 13.—A Supreme Court commissioner will take testimony here on Monday, in the certiorari proceedings brought by the Sisters of Charity of St. Elizabeth at Convent and Mrs. Florence A. V. Twombly against the Morris Railroad Company.

The certiorari proceedings were taken out on the allegation that the Morris Railroad Company was not a bona fide railroad enterprise and that Justice Parker had no right to appoint commissioners to condemn land for the company in Florham Park and Convent.

POLICE FORBID COASTING ON THREE SUMMIT HILLS.

Coasting on Summit avenue, Summit, Thursday night, Miss Eleanor H. Dutcher, a pupil in Kent Place School, lost control of her sled, which crashed into a tree, rendering her unconscious. It was not until three hours after her removal to Overlook Hospital that she was revived.

A bobsled on which were a dozen colored men ran against a large stone on the side of Summit avenue the same night, throwing the men on the covered road, and Chief George W. Brown yesterday issued an order prohibiting coasting on Morris avenue, Oakridge avenue and Summit avenue hills. Chief Brown directed the night patrolman to visit the hills every half hour and arrest all coasters found there.

Cantata Sung at Somerville.

The cantata, "Esther the Queen," was presented at Armory Hall, Somerville, Thursday night to a large audience by 100 members and friends of the Fourth German Reformed church. Miss Lois Samuel took the part of Queen Esther. The cantata was beautifully staged. Most of the work in the training of the chorus was done by Professor Herman Jungmann and Miss Evelyn Lindquist.

SEVERE LAW MAKES BURGLARS GUNLESS

The heavy penalty prescribed by the New Jersey law for carrying concealed weapons is having a salutary effect upon burglars, according to the statement of Max Rosenthal, alias Max Levy, an old-time burglar, who was sentenced by Judge Clarence E. Case in the Somerset court at Somerville yesterday to a term of not less than three and one-half and not more than seven years in the State prison for breaking and entering the residence of John McNabb, a wealthy contractor at Bound Brook. Rosenthal was captured in the McNabb residence about 2 o'clock in the morning of December 15. He had loot valued at several hundred dollars packed up and ready to carry away.

Charles McNabb, State inspector of tuberculosis, a brother of John McNabb, surprised Rosenthal at work. McNabb overpowered the burglar and the authorities expressed great surprise that such an old-timer had not used his gun. Rosenthal explained this by stating that he, like many professional burglars of the present day, had given up the use of a gun because of the severe penalty for carrying concealed weapons and the danger of getting in unnecessary trouble by having it handy. Had Rosenthal been found with a weapon on him five years would have been added to his time of imprisonment. Rosenthal is believed to have committed a series of clever robberies in Bound Brook. He pleaded guilty to them.

LAWYER HAD "HUNCH" ON THE EQUITABLE FIRE.

New York, Jan. 13.—An unexpected development yesterday in the contest of the will of the late John L. Singer before Surrogate Cohalan was the submission of a will executed by Singer in 1905, which lay concealed in the vaults of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company until the day before the fire which destroyed the Equitable building.

Lawyer Leavitt, for the executors of the Singer will, dramatically told the court he had a "hunch that something was going to happen" and got the will out of the deposit box before it was needed in the case.

Had he not done so the case would have been closed without the new evidence. The contestants are the second of Singer's four wives and his two children.

LAKEWOOD SOCIETY EASY AS WAITER IS ARRESTED.

Lakewood, Jan. 13.—Society was greatly relieved yesterday to hear that it was a waiter who was arrested in New York charged with the theft of the jeweled hand bag which Mrs. Jasper Lynch lost at the Country Club dance New Year's Eve. The incident was the cause of a sensation, two New York guests at the dance having threatened to sue Mr. Lynch, alleging that he accused them of the theft and searched one of them.

Paul W. Werner is the waiter under arrest. The prisoner was employed at the dance and he is locked up to await the action of the Lakewood authorities. It is alleged that Werner sold the bag, which was worth $500, to a dealer in old gold for $45.

To Attend Big Convention.

Elizabeth, Jan. 13.—The Jeremiah P. Four hundred orphans marched out of the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society's old asylum in New York to the fire drill, and as fire destroyed the building neighbors extended their hospitality to the boys.

MM. Bourgeois and Delcasse declined to head a new French ministerial combination; M. Raymond Poincare deferred his reply; in the event of its being unfavorable President Fallieres will invite ex-Premier Briand to form a Cabinet.

Fearing an interior collapse of the Equitable fire ruins, which, it was said, would involve a greater catastrophe than the blaze itself, the work of razing the building was subordinated by the wreckers to that of removing the debris which is piled up on the floors.

Troubles of Socialist Mayor.

With less excited discussion than at the meeting ten days ago the Rockaway Borough Council rejected three appointments made by William A. Matthews, the Socialist Mayor, who had declared vacant the offices of the borough attorney and borough recorder, now held by John F. Stickle and M. S. Lambert, respectively. The appointment of James B. May for borough clerk was rejected by the Council as were those of George A. Tucker for marshal and street commissioner, and of Lewis Young for poormaster.

COUNTY COMMISSION.

Assemblyman John E. Gill, of Mercer county, will introduce a bill in the Legislature next week to provide for the government of all counties in the State by the plan of having a small commission of Freeholders, elected by the people of the whole county. This is known as the Strong board method, and has been adopted by eleven of the twenty-one counties under the referendum act of 1902. The success of the plan in these eleven counties has been such that Mr. Gill is convinced that it is much better than the old method, and should be adopted all over the State. Union county has adopted the act and the scheme will go into effect here next January. No one disputes that in some counties this is greatly needed and it would undoubtedly work to advantage everywhere in the State. There are some of the smaller divisions which cling to the old method, where the members are absolutely incompetent, if not corrupt, and they are the type of men who could not possibly be elected by the people at large. Mr. Gill's bill will probably meet with the approval of a large majority of the people of the State.

THE PEACE MEETING.

Unquestionably there will be a large audience at the meeting to be held on Wednesday night under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce in support of the Taft arbitration treaties. Particular interest will be taken because of the presence of such noted men as Frederick R. Coudert, of New York, and Edwin D. Mead, of Boston, neither of whom needs any introduction to this intelligent community. It is fortunate too that the chamber has been able to obtain such an excellent presiding officer as Alexander Gilbert.

The Chamber of Commerce is to be commended for arranging for a meeting of this sort. The arbitration treaties, if ratified, will not only be the crowning glory of the administration of Mr. Taft, but will mark an epoch in the world's movement for peace on earth and good will among nations."

Because as it says only 380 of Yale's 15,958 living graduates are "connected with authorship, more or less temporary," the Trenton State Gazette draws the conclusion that "college men are poorly represented in literature and journalism." That's about as near the truth as some of the stuff for which that Chicago business man, who is opposed to a college education, has been responsible for of late. It is the exception and not the rule today when the man with a sound academic education makes his mark in any branch of literary effort, the Trenton paper's opinion to the contrary.

Another kind of a fool has been discovered. A man in Wilkes-Barre spent his last cent yesterday for a special train to New York, followed by a dinner at a fashionable hotel. All he gained by it was to get his name in the papers, and have the happy privilege this morning of being "broke." He goes back home on a freight, and it will be chilly riding.

Some generous spirited residents are afforded an opportunity to do a good work if they will respond to the appeal made by the Charity Organization Society for funds with which to buy milk for babies, sick people and tuberculosis patients. For this item alone the society spent over $50 last month and there is an increasing demand just at this time.

Some prison officials are advocating the abolition of the death sentence in this country. The only ones who have to pay that penalty are the poor criminals, usually foreign born or colored, who cannot afford to fight conviction. They should have just as much opportunity to secure life imprisonment as does the fellow with money.

The weather now being experienced is the severest that the country has had in a generation. In some parts of the State the thermometer went to ten degrees below zero this morning. The plumbers have been having a busy time thawing out frozen pipes.

ILLEGAL TO INDENTURE STATE HOME YOUTHS ?

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 13.—In an opinion just rendered to Captain John C. Kalleen, superintendent of the State Home for Boys at Jamesburg, Assistant Attorney General Nelson B. Gaskill desires that the practice of indenturing boys paroled from the institution to farms and others is illegal under the law passed last winter prohibiting contract labor in the penal, correctional and reformatory institutions of the State. The decision also applies to the State Home for Girls in this city, or any other institution which indentures its inmates.

Superintendent Kalleen requested the opinion from Mr. Gaskill, stating that it had been the practice to indenture paroled boys when they had no parents or guardians to whom they could return from the home. Their earnings were deposited with the Treasurer of the Home and paid to the boys when they became of age. Mr. Kalleen wrote Mr. Gaskill that as he interpreted the law, it forbade the placing of a boy in any position for which a charge was made.

In his reply, the Assistant Attorney General said that while the new law is not entirely clear, yet at the same time, it seemed to him that the act in question does not include the practice of indenture as one of the methods of employment of the labor of inmates of these institutions. He said that in his opinion the indenturing should not be continued unless approved by the commission on prison labor, constituted by the new law. Mr. Gaskill declared that it is doubtful in view of the provisions of the act whether the commission would have authority to authorize the indenture of the inmates of the Home.

Mrs. Elizabeth V. Mansell, superintendent of the State Home for Girls said today that the decision would have a very serious effect upon this institution as well as the State Home for Boys, and that immediate steps would be taken to have the new law amended so as to permit the indenture of inmates from both institutions. She referred to the fact that the money earned by the girls who are indentured goes solely for their own benefit, and without some change in the law the girls would have to be retained in the Home until they were twenty-one years of age, and there would be no incentive for them to endeavor to earn their liberty.

SMALL SCHOOL BOARD NOT CONSTITUTIONAL ?

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 13.—Former Supreme Court Justice Gilbert Collins has rendered an opinion to the Board of Education of Bayonne that the law passed by the last Legislature providing for the appointment of school boards of nine members by the mayor of municipalities, in his view is unconstitutional. Mayor Cronin, of Bayonne, insists on acting according to the new statute and declares he will name a new board of nine members. Mr. Collins has advised the old board to ignore the 1911 act and to organize under the old law. Following a similar situation in Hoboken, this will undoubtedly lead to a test of the law in the courts.

The act is one of the reform school laws passed as the result of the public school investigation last year by a Senate committee. Mr. Collins' ground for holding it unconstitutional is that it is special legislation because it exempts from its provisions cities that at the time of its approval had school boards of less than nine members.

OPINION OF GASKILL ON NEW SENTENCE ACT

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 13.—According to an opinion just rendered to State Prisonkeeper George O. Osborne by Assistant Attorney General Nelson B. Gaskill, the new act for indeterminate sentences has no application whatever to sentences pronounced before the new act went into effect, with one exception. This exception is that when application is made to the Court of Pardons by any prisoners committeed to the State Prison before the new act took effect, for the commutation of the sentence of such prisoners to a sentence under the terms of the act, then the act will apply.

Section 14 provides that upon application made by any prisoners committed to the prison before the new act took effect, the Court of Pardons may commute the present sentence of such prisoners to a sentence under the new act by determining a maximum term one-half of which shall be the minimum term of imprisonment, but no such maximum shall be greater than the maximum established by statute for the crime.

Mr. Osborne requested the opinion interpreting the law because of doubt as to how it effected those prisoners sentenced before the law took effect.

FIRST FARCICAL SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Jan. 13.—The 136th Legislature had its first farcical session yesterday and following the custom for many years past, another one will be held each week until final adjournment March 22.

The State Constitution provides that neither House shall adjourn for more than three days without the consent of the other. In order to give a semblance of complying with this provision the custom has grown up through years of adjourning from Tuesday or Wednesday, as the case may be, "to Friday morning, and when adjournment is taken Friday morning it be to next Monday evening." When this resolution is put before each House it invariably goes through with bells on, because all the members know that none of them will be expected to be at the State House on Friday morning save the Mercer representatives. The custom leads to the farcical meeting every Friday morning during each Legislative session. Time and time again it has been claimed that the practice was contrary to the spirit of the Constitution and consequently illegal, but the lawmakers have never paid any attention to the claim.

At 11 o'clock, Senator Leavitt, of Mercer, entered the Senate Chamber and proceeding to the President's chair, called the Senate to order. No other Senators were present and none was expected to be there, both Democrats and Republicans tacitly agreeing to the farce. Harvey Rohrbach, the Capitol mail clerk, officiated as "secretary," and formally called the roll of the Senate. Senator Leavitt responded with "present" when his name was called. Then the "secretary" announced "no quorum present." With a rap of his gavel, Senator Leavitt declared the "session" adjourned until Monday evening.

Assemblymen Adams and Gill, of Mercer, conducted the ceremony in the House, several State House employes being present as spectators. Mr. Adams was "speaker" and Richard Smith, the State House telegrapher, acted as clerk. The roll was duly called with the same result as in the Senate. There were only two responses and the "clerk" announced no quorum present. Assemblyman Adams then declared the House adjourned until Monday evening. The Speaker's gavel was locked in his desk, so Mr. Adams rapped for order with the Speaker's drinking glass, which stood on the desk.

DUNELLEN CHURCHMEN HAVE SUCCESSFUL DINNER

The banquet given last night by the Baraca Class of the Dunellen Presbyterian church was a most successful affair. More than 150 diners were present and $815 was raised for the church fund. Rev. E. R. Brown, pastor of the church, presided as toastmaster.

The speakers were Mayor C. E. Richards, Dr. Thomas H. Platt, W. H. Herman, vice president of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., and Rev. Robert A. Mark, pastor of the Woodbridge Presbyterian church.

Rev. Mr. Brown also made an address after the other speakers in which he outlined the course he has mapped out for a vigorous campaign for the betterment of the church and to stimulate interest in its affairs during the winter.

Rev. Mr. Mark announced himself as a member of the advanced, or modern school, of ministers who believes that the church is made more attractive to the young men by associating it with their pleasures and recreation. To this end he has caused to be installed bowling alleys and various other forms of amusement as an adjunct to the church of which he is pastor. He also spoke of the criticism directed at him and others for their ideas and acts, but disagreed with those who have decried the innovation as turning the church into a club.

MARTINE'S QUESTIONS TO ANDREW CARNEGIE

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—Senator James E. Martine was an interested listener to Andrew Carnegie while the latter was testifying yesterday before the House Steel Trust investigators. The New Jersey Senator, although barred from asking questions direct of the ironmaster, did not permit this rule to keep him entirely out of the scene. He wrote out several questions on slips of paper and handed them to Chairman Stanley, who then put them officially to the witness.

One thing Mr. Martine was anxious to know was why Mr. Carnegie's company sold steel rails cheaper abroad than in this country. The witness said he had no knowledge of his company selling at cheaper rates in foreign markets.

Then the New Jersey Senator was aroused by the declaration of the witness that he considered it fair and honest for steel producers to obtain the highest price possible for their product.

"Do you apply the same idea to dealers in food stuffs?" Mr. Martine penned and handed to Chairman Stanley.

When asked this question Mr. Carnegie spiritedly replied that he would not answer such a query, as it had no relation to the subject under investigation.

$133,025 FOR Y. M. C. A.

$51,255 Collected in 4th Day of Twelve-Day London Campaign.

London, Jan. 13.—The turn of the tide came today in the effort which is being made to raise $500,000 for the Young's Men's Christian Association in twelve days. Subscriptions totaling $51,255 were announced at the luncheon in the Guild hall as a result of the previous twenty-four hours' work. The total for the four days now stands at $133,025 which is considered eminently satisfactory by all concerned.

Of today's amount $27,500 was made up by two anonymous donations, and $12,500 is conditional on the whole amount being rasied in the alloted period, but no one doubts that the campaign will be successful. One feature of the campaign is the number of generous donors who refuse to allow their names to be published.

Charles S. Ward, the American organizer, is delighted with today's results. He has been bombarded with requests from all sorts of organizations here to organize similar campaigns on their behalf.

Cut Face With Ice Tongs.

While unloading ice at his houses at Farmersville Thursday, Wyckoff C. Hoffman sustained a cut above the right eye. A pair of ice tongs slipped, inflicting a deep gash. Dr. Topkins took several stitches in the wound.

Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, owing to a bad cold will not preach tomorrow morning. Rev. C. H. Craig, of the borough, will occupy the pupil. Mr. Broek will preach in the evening.

ARBITRATION TREATY MEETING NEXT WEEK.

Session after session of the U. S. Senate find petitions presented, praying for the ratification of the proposed treaties of arbitration between the United States, Great Britain, and France, and there is not a question before Congress which is so occupying the minds of Senators and Representatives as this momentous question of International conciliation, says a Plainfielder. The meeting at the Plainfield High School Auditorium on Wednesday night is intended to arouse the interest of the citizens of Plainfield in the progress for the movement for promoting international peace and relations of comity and good-fellowship between nations and will prove to be a great educational force in this community upon this vital subject. Two of the most notable students of international questions, Messrs. Frederick R. Coudert, of New York, and Edwin D. Mead, of Boston, are to address the meeting which is to be open to the public and to which all are invited.

GIRLS WILL REIGN AT VALLEY CHAPEL TOMORROW.

There will be an unique service all day tomorrow at Wilson Memorial chapel when "Girls Day" will be observed. The entire service throughout the day will be in charge of girls, but Rev. Dr. E. G. Reed will preach the morning sermon.

The Sunday school in the afternoon will be conducted entirely by young women, one acting as superintendent and other as teachers; at 7:45 there will be a special song service and at 8 o'clock Mrs. F. M. Miller, of Somerville, will speak on "Girls, Their Ideals and Faults."

Perseverance Lodge Installs.

District Deputy William Edgar, of Neshanic, installed these officers of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, last night: Chancellor commander, Ephraim Compton; prelate, John Nischwitz; master of work, John Bicknell; outside guard, Peter Stram; keeper of records and seals, J. B. Higgins; master of finance, Samuel J. Robinson; master of exchequer, Joseph Baker. The other officers will be installed at the next meeting. Edward Bowman, as grand prelate, and B. J. Schreiner, as master of work, assisted last night.

Miss Kamaska's Funeral.

Funeral services for Miss Nellie Kamaska were held this morning from her late home on Harmony street and at St. Joseph's church, where a requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. William H. Miller. Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

BURIAL OF J. A. LAWRENCE TAKES PLACE TOMORROW.

The funeral service for John A. Lawrence, a former resident of the city, whose death occurred at his home in Philadelphia Thursday, will be held at his late residence, 2348 N. Bouvier, that city, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and will be in charge of the Philadelphia Lodge of Elks at the request of the local lodge of which he was a member. Exalted Ruler Bellis, Secretary Townsend, Past Exalted Ruler Runyon and Esteemed Leading Knight Hanna with a number of other members of Plainfield Lodge of Elks will attend.

The Plainfield burial service from the ritual of the order will be performed at the house, music for same being supplied by a quartet. Plainfield Lodge of Elks also sent an appropriate floral tribute.

EX-JUSTICE'S SON AMONG FIVE "JOY RIDE" VICTIMS.

Trenton, Jan. 13.—Donald Reed, son of former Supreme Court Justice Alfred Reed, of this city, and Chester Van Cleef, well known salesman, and three girls were drowned near here last night when their automobile ran into a water power canal while they were "joy riding."

Salvation Army Meetings.

The divisional quartette of the Salvation Army which is conducting a special campaign at the local corps will be in charge of all services over the week end. The program will include a meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in the hall preceded by an open air service. Tomorrow morning a service will be held at 11 o'clock and in the afternoon and evening services will be held a 3:30 and 8 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend these special services. There will be vocal and instrumental music at all services.

To Be Made District Deputy.

Bertholde J. Schreiner, having been endorsed for the position by members of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., of which he is a member, will be appointed district deputy of district No. 20, including the lodges of Plainfield, Somerville, Bound Brook, Flemington and Neshanic. The appointment is expected at the annual meeting of the grand lodge to be held in Trenton in February, when W. D. Quick, of Somerville, will become grand chancellor commander.

He Thought He Was Engaged.

The engagement of Clarence Van Sickle, of East Third street, and Miss Mary Roche, of Central avenue, announced yesterday morning, was broken yesterday afternoon. At least, Mr. Van Sickle, who is 18 years old, and authorized the announcement, says there was an engagement and that it ended. Miss Roche's family say there never was an engegement, because Mr. Van Sickle and Miss Roche are too young to contract one.

Grandfather Horace Adams.

Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District Court, was receiving the congratulations of friends this morning upon becoming a grandfather. His son, Herbert R. Adams, of Westfield, was presented with a son yesterday by Mrs. Adams, who was Miss Florence Hartfelder, of Whitewood avenue.

Turkey Supper at Trinity.

The Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church will hold its annual turkey supper in the lecture room of the church on Thursday and Friday nights, January 25 and 26, beginning at 5:30 o'clock each night. There will also be other features.

LIVE STOCK FARMING MEASURE OF PROGRESS

Not only does live stock farming measure agricultural progress and development, but it preserves the wealth of farming sections and is the direct cause of continued prosperity for the farmer, according to the annual report of the New Jersey Live Stock Commission, just filed with Governor Wilson. The commission says there has been a marked improvement in this State recently in the breeding of stock.

The report shows that during the past year the efforts of the commission have been devoted to bringing about the elimination of unsound and undesirable stallions, and that in most instances have been successful. Continuing, the commission says abandoned farms are due, in part, to the halting of live stock breeding. Then the report says:

"Within a comparatively short space of time the eastern farmers depended upon the western farmers not only for live stock products, but grain products as well, and gradually became a consumer rather than a producer. Within the last ten or twelve years there has been a decided reaction.

"Western farms have advanced in price, with a corresponding decrease in production. Eastern farms decreased in value and increased in production due to the general use of commercial fertilizers. Continued use of the latter, however, incubated new and heretofore unexperienced difficulties, and while cover crop and short rotations have proved of value, it is, nevertheless, true that a combination of the two mentioned practices, together with the maintaining of live stock on certain farms, has not only maintained their productiveness but increased crop yields."

WIVES OF JURISTS ATTEND MRS. MARTINE'S AT HOME.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—Among those who called at Mrs. Martine's "at home" reception on Thursday were Mrs. Justice Hughes and Mrs. Justice Lurton, Mrs. Senator Smoot Mrs. Senator Newlands, Mrs. Senator Curtis, Mrs. Senator Shively, Mrs. Senator Gore and Mrs. Senator Cummings. Among the wives of the Representatives were Mrs. Scully and Mrs. McCoy, of New Jersey, Mrs. Underhill, of New York, Mrs. Kahn, of California, and Mrs. Foster, of Illinois. Mrs. Martine was assisted in receiving by the Misses Faulkner and Emory, of Washington, and her niece, Miss Ruth Saunders, of Boston. Miss Saunders, who is spending the social season here as the guest of Senator and Mrs. Martine is one of the leading favorites of Washington's younger social set.

Accident to Locomotive.

The steam pipe of engine 592, hauling a westbound Baltimore and Ohio express, burst a short distance below Grant avenue at 9 o'clock this morning. The train was brought to a stop. Assistance was procured from an eastbound train to repair the damage. A delay of half an hour was occasioned.

Gardner F. Angier.

Gardner F. Angier died yesterday at his home in West Fourth street in his eighty-ninth year. He had been a resident of this city since 1903. Surviving are his widow, a son and daughter. The funeral will be held privately from his late residence and burial will be made in Hillside cemetery.

Damage Suit Trial.

The trial of the case of Mrs. L. D. H. Schenck, of this city, against the New Jersey Central, in which she seeks to recover damages for injuries she received in 1909 while alighting from a train at Grant avenue, was postponed in the Union County Court yesterday.

Workman Injured.

While assisting to carry a tool chest downstairs in the Hall Printing Press Works in West Dunellen, yesterday, Nelson Snyder, driver for I. V. Smalley, tripped and fell. His face was badly lacerated and his leg was bruised and sprained.

Holy Name Communion.

The Holy Name Society of St. Mary's parish will receive communion at the 7:30 o'clock mass tomorrow morning. At 8 o'clock tomorrow night the society will attend a solemn vesper service in the church.

Miss Minerva Guthapfel, a returned missionary from Corea, will speak at Grace M. E. church tomorrow morning and also at the Sunday school session in the afternoon.

"Evidences of Having Been With the Master," will be the subject of Rev. Mr. Goodrich's sermon at the Congregational church tomorrow morning. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a C. E. meeting, "around the wood-fire" at the parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin W. Andrews, of Plainfield, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ranney Corners, of Cleveland, at the Hotel Wolcott, New York.

Benjamin H. Bronk, of East Second street, who was employed by the P. S. C., has been transferred to Perth Amboy.

HELPFUL WORDS

From a Plainfield Citizen.

Is your back lame and painful?
Does it ache especially after exertion?
Is there a soreness in the kidney region?
These symptoms indicate weak kidneys;
There is danger in delay.
Weak kidneys fast get weaker.
Give your trouble prompt attention.
Doan's Kidney Pills act quickly.
They strengthen weak kidneys.
Read this Plainfield testimony.

Richard H. Day, 95 Grove street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Nothing has occurred to alter my high regard for Doan's Kidney Pills and I willingly give permission for the continued publication of my testimonial. What Doan's Kidney Pills did for me, they will do for other kidney sufferers. I had a dull pain across the small of my back and there was an extreme lameness in my hips. Standing for any length of time or walking any distance aggravated my trouble greatly. As the attacks grew worse instead of beter, I concluded that something must be done and as I had frequently read about Doan's Kidney Pills, I finally gave them a trial. The contents of two boxes cured me."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Prof. John Grier Hibben Is New President of Princeton

He Has Been Professor of Philosophy at the University Since 1891.

Son of an Illinois Clergyman. He Was Graduated From Princeton at 20.

JOHN GRIER HIBBEN, who has just been elected president of Princeton university, is a graduate of Princeton, class of 1882, and since 1891 has been a member of the Princeton faculty, occupying the chair of logic. He is well known as an author, having published over half a dozen volumes on logic, philosophy and belles lettres. He is president of the American Philosophical society and editor in chief of the International Series of Philosophical Monographs, the first of which he wrote.

Princeton men generally will rejoice at the selection of Professor Hibben.

JOHN GRIER HIBBEN.

Having been a successful professor of philosophy at the university for nearly twenty-five years, he has their confidence and affection. He will be of particular value to Princeton at the present time, owing to his entire sympathy with the plans for Princeton's new graduate college, now in the process of building.

Professor Hibben was born in Peoria, Ill., fifty years ago, the son of a clergyman, the Rev. Samuel Hibben. He was graduated from Princeton in 1882. As an undergraduate he won many scholastic honors, including one of the Stinnecke prizes, the class of 1861 prize, a junior orator medal, and at graduation he was the valedictorian of his class and won the J. S. K. fellowship in mathematics. He was also elected president of his class, an office he still holds. He received the master of arts degree from Princeton in 1885, the doctorate of philosophy in 1893 and the honorary LL. D. from Lafayette in 1907. From 1883 to 1887 he studied at the Princeton Theological seminary and at the University of Berlin and was ordained to the Presbyterian ministry in 1887, serving as pastor of the Falling Spring Presbyterian church of Chambersburg, Pa., from that year until 1891, when he returned to Princeton as instructor in logic and psychology.

The versatility of his scholarship was early demonstrated on his return to Princeton, for in addition to his work in logic and psychology he conducted classes in mathematics, Biblical literature and ethics. He was advanced to an assistant professorship of logic in 1894 and in 1897 to the Stuart professorship of logic.

Meantime he has been active in original research, having published in 1896 his "Inductive Logic," which is extensively used as a textbook in schools and colleges; "Problems of Philosophy" in 1896, "Hegel's Logic" in 1902, "Deductive Logic" in 1905 and "The Philosophy of Enlightenment" in 1909. The latter is one of twelve volumes in a series on "The Epochs of Philosophy," of which Professor Hibben is the general editor, the contributing authors being leading philosophers of Great Britain and the United States.

During the present year Professor Hibben has been giving a series of public lectures in Princeton on philosophical and scientific thought which has attracted large audiences. By these lectures, Princeton men say, his ability to give clear and persuasive expression to an abstruse theme has been brought out more than ever before. For several years also he has been much in demand as a speaker before alumni associations as well as at anniversaries of other institutions and on public occasions.

Professor Hibben has for several years served on important faculty committees, which has given him valuable administrative experience. He is also a member of the graduate council, which was constituted a few years ago to give organized effect to the work and influence of the alumni.

ALL WORLD PEACE DINNER.

Extraordinary Function In Washington Planned For February.

An important international peace function is to be held in Washington early in February, when the committee on foreign affairs of the house will be the hosts at dinner to the secretary of state and the diplomatic corps. Secretary Knox has accepted the invitation, and invitations to the diplomats have had a generous response. The dinner will be given in the Pan-American building.

Never has a secretary of state been the guest at dinner of the members of the house who constitute that committee, and never before have the diplomats of the world been invited to such a function. Peace is to be the subject at the dinner, and there is assurance of the greatest harmony.

Married In Bed.

Confined to his bed with a severe attack of pneumonia and refusing to have his wedding day postponed, Julian Knox of Cleveland was united in marriage to Miss Caroline Feller of Akron.

CANADA WANTS A NAVY.

Minister of Marine to Visit London In Connection With Scheme.

Canada is evidently contemplating some new scheme of naval defense. Mr. Hazen, the new minister of marine, is to visit London in order to consult with Mr. Churchill and the board of admiralty concerning the best available method of naval defense which Canada might adopt.

Mr. Hazen, it is considered, will proceed on the assumption that the interests of the empire as a whole must determine whatever new policy Canada may adopt. After Mr. Hazen has returned home the Canadian government will formulate its naval policy in accordance with the advice and desire of the board of admiralty at Whitehall.

To Fine Gum Chewers a Dime.

Determined to abolish gum chewing in the Athol (Mass.) high school, Principal W. J. MacDougal has announced that hereafter the pastime will cost every pupil detected "10 cents a cud." Mr. MacDougal says that the fines will be collected if it takes a sheriff to do it and applied to some worthy purpose.

CAUSES OF HIGH COST OF LIVING

International Commission to Study Them Is Proposed.

MIGHT SUGGEST REMEDIES.

President Taft Is to Be Asked by Economists to Invite Other Countries to Join In Creating an Investigating Board.

President Taft is about to be asked by distinguished public men and economists to invite the powers of the world to join in the creation of an international commission to study the questions involved in the high cost of living. A decision to this effect was reached at one of the meetings of the American Economic association.

The proposal for the establishment of an international commission to study the causes for the high cost of living and to suggest remedies to the various governments was made by Professor Irving Fisher of Yale university. It was approved by Senators Lodge of Massachusetts, Smoot of Utah and Crawford of South Dakota, all of whom expressed the belief that congress undoubtedly would concur in any recommendation the president might make looking to the creation of such a body.

Those who discussed the subject gave various causes for the present high range of prices. All agreed that prices of the necessaries of life were relatively high in all countries and that all available data pointed to still higher prices the world over.

The increase in the cost of production, higher wages, expansion of credit, the increased output of gold and a material increase in the volume of other forms of circulating medium, industrial combination, organizations of middlemen, waste in production, militarism and the universal demand for more luxuries and comforts by people generally were among the causes assigned for the present high cost of living.

"The rise in prices is not peculiar to the United States," said Senator Lodge. "It is a phenomenon that presents itself wherever we turn. The senate committee of which I was chairman investigated the subject at great length. We found it was a problem too complex to be treated with any hope of results by a single body representing only one state or one country.

"As the facts were revealed to us we came to the conclusion that high prices presented a world problem, therefore came to the conclusion that it should be made the subject of inquiry by an international commission.

"It is important to ascertain the cause or causes and to find out if a remedy is to be had. There is a great temptation always when people are hurt by anything like prices to attribute it to something they easily can reach. It only does harm to apply the remedy in the wrong place. No commission of one country, no body of investigators of a single state, can command the attention and the acceptance which any report on this great subject ought to have. I am in favor of the appointment of an international commission as proposed. I hope this movement soon will take the form of appropriate legislation in congress. I feel very certain that in congress those who have given attention to this subject will feel it is important to secure an international commission for the investigation of this phenomenon of advancing prices."

"I approve of the formation of such a commission," said Senator Smoot, "and such investigation should be official. The lead should be taken and the means provided by our government. Every civilized nation should be represented in this commission, as every civilized nation is affected by this problem."

SCHOOLHOUSES FOR DANCES.

Boston's Mayor Would Combat "Turkey Trot" by Opening Buildings.

In order that dances and other forms of entertainment may be enjoyed without the moral dangers sometimes present in the cheap halls of the city Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston urges the use of the schoolhouses for clean entertainments, social and athletic.

In this plan he has the support of various social working organizations including the Public Recreation league and the Boston Social union.

Mayor Fitzgerald saw need for immediate action, he said, when the "grizzly bear" and the "turkey trot" dances came into favor in certain dance halls where for a small amount young boys and girls were admitted.

"The schoolhouses should be thrown open for nightly entertainment. It would be to the advantage of our boys and girls to gather in such a place," he said.

Japanese In Woolen Industry.

The Japanese are making great strides in the woolen industry and by importing the latest modern machinery are striving to manufacture all classes of woolen goods that find a market in Japan. This they will probably do in a few years, with the exception of goods intended for men's outside wear, but at present the mills are making shirtings, both plain and fancy, and ladies' dress goods of various kinds.

to enter into details of many transactions.

"I am free to confess," declared he, "that I never saw the inside of a book of the Carnegie Steel company. I always left the details to my partners at Pittsburgh. I lived mostly in New York or abroad. If my twenty-five partners were not able to take care of the details I don't see how I could change the situation or improve it."

All "He Got" Was $420,000,000.

Some of the striking declarations with which Mr. Carnegie's testimony fairly bristled were—

That P. C. Knox was appointed attorney general on his recommendation.

That the government's suit against the Steel corporation "blundered" and was "silly" in its declaration that the book value of the Carnegie Steel company was $84,000,000, because this did not begin to represent the real value of the Carnegie interest.

That they had a "showdown" with the Pennsylvania in the matter of better rates and was sure he got the lowest rates, but apropos of rebating was unable to state whether the rates he obtained were lower than those granted to other shippers.

That the price of $28 a ton on standard steel rails was fixed by conferences between the three leading railroad presidents of the eastern trunk lines—the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and New York Central—and a commitee representing the payments like $100,000 were made in pool profits under the old Carnegie regime that was a "small matter" in a $5,000,000 account.

Didn't Bother About Sherman Law.

That he had never heard of the railroad rate law of 1907 until recently.

That he did not bother about the Sherman law, leaving legal details to the counsel, and was too busy attending to other business to worry about a statute which had not been finally construed by the courts.

That never before had be heard of the famous Addyston pipe case, the first Sherman law case in which Mr. Taft, now president, had rendered a great decision, although the name "sounded familiar and reminded him of the Eddystone light."

That it was at his suggestion in return for recognition by the late Jay Gould that the latter's son was urged to build the Wabash connection into Pittsburgh.

That he had been told by Judge Gary recently that there is in existence a letter written by the late Senator Hoar immediately after the passage of the Sherman law declaring that the law was not intended to apply to pools.

That no tariff should be collected on products protected by pooling arrangements.

That the cost of iron and steel ore is going "to go higher" and that the supposed ore fields of the Lake Superior district are going to be depleted before many more ten year periods roll around.

That so far as the law is concerned there are so "many sides of the law," and he supposed lawyers could defend either side according to the way they are paid.

"You continually complained of high rates on the Pennsylvania. Did the Pennsylvania make you any special concessions?" asked Mr. Gardner.

Unsuspecting In His Honesty.

"Never that I knew of," replied Carnegie. "I notice Senator Oliver has spoken that we received rebates. It is startling how unsuspecting an honest person can be. I was the one man in all Pittsburgh that fought the Pennsylvania on its rates. I bought the Bessemer road to the lakes. I joined hands with Vanderbilt. Vanderbilt sent for me and told me his son-in-law, Mr. Twombly, had advised him to build a road out of Pittsburgh.

"'What do you think of it?' Vanderbilt asked. 'I'll put up $5,000,000, I think so much of it,' I said. He said, 'So will I.' Hostetter, a wealthy man of Pittsburgh, went in on it. We agreed to build the road. I went to Europe. In my absence the Pennsylvania went to Vanderbilt and urged him to abandon the project. I returned from Europe to find that Vanderbilt had been captured by the enemy. I then went to young Gould and said to him: 'Your father once came to me at the old Windsor hotel in New York and said: 'Young man, I've been hearing about you. I'll put up the money to buy the Pennsylvania road if you will manage it and devote yourself to it.' I thanked him and replied: 'I have been a faithful clerk and friend of Thomas A. Scott of the Pennsylvania. Nothing on earth can induce me to take a step against him.'

"When I went to George Gould I told him this and offered him a chance to come to Pittsburgh. It was at my suggestion that George Gould went into Pittsburgh with the Wabash, which has been frightfully mismanaged.

"The Pennsylvania rates from Chicago to the Huntington yards at Newport News on a large shipment of steel were higher than the rates from Pittsburgh to New York. I showed this to Roberts of the Pennsylvania and told him, 'I can't stand it any more.' It did not seem to interest him, and I declared, 'All right, Roberts; you will send for me the next time.' Then I arranged to build the road to the coke ovens. I got a note from President Roberts saying, 'I want to see you.' I sent to McCrea and said I must have rates our competitors are getting.

"Thomas sent for me and said: 'Andy, you are a Pennsylvania man. Why do you fight us?' I replied: 'I thank you for asking that. Look at that,' and I showed him my plans for the road to the coke ovens. He said, 'I want you to quit on that coke oven road.' I said, 'I'll quit when you give us the lowest rates.' We made a little memorandum. Thomas and Roberts carried it out. We got no rebates others did not get."

SOME MORE ABOUT MAUD.

Maud Muller on a winter day
Got on the scales and took a weigh.

Her brows went up, the scales went high;
Maud Muller stood and said, "Oh, my!"

Straight to a Turkish bath she ran
And cried, "Reduce me if you can!"

They steamed, they rubbed, they pounded Maud,
Who felt herself too thick and broad.

But when 'twas done they signed: "No use!
Your weight we simply can't reduce."

She banted then, she lived on grain,
But found her dieting in vain.

She walked and walked, she climbed the hills
And paid the health professor's bills.

She grew as firm and hard as nails
And weighed the same upon the scales.

With Indian clubs she sprained her back
And broke her mother's bric-a-brac.

She rolled upon her bedroom floor
Until her form was bruised and sore.

She drank no water with her meals,
Yet still she made dents with her heels.

She tried each vain experiment—
She jumped, she danced, she bowed, she bent.

At last she went and gave it up
And on fat making foods she'd sup

She said she had concluded that
When folks are fat, why, they are fat.

Of all sad words heard roundabout
The saddest are these: "I'm getting stout!"

Ample Time.

Tired Tim (to laborer on a new railroad)—When do they expect to have the first train run over this road?

Laborer—In six months.

Tired Tim—All right; I'll wait.—New York Mail.

That Impudent Question.

Just as Rivers was about to sit down to dinner there came a ring at his telephone.

"Well?" he said, placing the receiver to his ear.

"Who is this?" demanded a high pitched, impatient voice.

"This," pleasantly answered Rivers, "is Don Hippolito Lopez Pomposo Antonio Ricardo Doloroso. Is that all you wish to know? Goodby."

Hanging up the receiver, he sat down and ate his dinner, happily unaware that an indignant person at the other end of the wire was storming at central for giving him the wrong number.—Chicago Tribune.

Not Towser.

"How cold your nose is!"

These words came from the daughter of the house, who was sitting in the parlor with her beau.

"Is Towser in the parlor again?" demanded her mother from the next room.

"No, mother; Towser isn't in the parlor."

And then silence resumed its reign.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Returned.

She had returned to him all the letters and gifts received from him during their courtship.

He, not to be outdone, sent her a half dozen boxes of face powder and with them a note explaining that he had probably carried that much away on his coat collar.—New York Mail.

A Candid Conclusion.

"So you have been looking over our canal and railway surveys?" said the official.

"Yes," replied the expert, "and I must say that, while Nature is a magnificent scenic artist, she's a mighty poor civil engineer."—Washington Star.

"Oh, yes, Miss Plumper. On one occasion I was forced to act as the chauffeur of a snowslide."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Wright—Did he? Why, say, he claims to be the fellow who wrote all the communications signed Constant Reader.—Yonkers Statesman.

Visitor—Are your children doing anything for you in this your last illness?

Old Man—Yes; they're keeping up my life insurance.—Puck.

How Carnegie Put It Over On John D. Rockefeller

Ironmaster's Witty and Surprising Testimony Before the Stanley Steel Committee.

Thinks Now He Was a Fool For Selling to Morgan So Cheap.

Representative Gardner picked up a memorandum, read it to Mr. Carnegie and asked:

"Would it be advisable for congress to enact such a law as I have just read to you?"

"Such a law would be ridiculous," promptly responded Mr. Carnegie.

"Well," replied Mr. Gardner, "what I have just read is the first section of the Sherman anti-trust law that has been on the statute books since 1890."

THE testimony of Andrew Carnegie before the Stanley committee was quite as racy as that of the late John W. Gates. It brought out that in organizing the steel trust J. P. Morgan had paid $420,000,000 for the Carnegie properties, of which the laird of Skibo himself received $213,000,000. Although this was $100,000,000 more than a previous option called for, Mr. Carnegie said he was a fool to have taken it, for the reason that he afterward learned Mr. Morgan would have given another $100,000,000. This reminds one of the doctor who made out what he considered a fair sized bill and when this was cheerfully paid kicked himself because he did not charge twice as much. Another human note of the same tone was struck when Carnegie gleefully chuckled about having got the better of John D. Rockefeller in an ore deal. Human nature seems much the same whether in a horse trader driving a sharp bargain with his neighbor or one millionaire dealing with another.

"What a fool I was to sell out to the Steel corporation for only $420,000,000!" exclaimed Mr. Carnegie with mingled feelings of emotion. "I have since learned from the inside that we could have received $100,000,000 more from Mr. Morgan if we had placed that value on our properties."

How He Beat Rockefeller.

The thought that he had been able to outwit John D. Rockefeller in a business deal pleased Mr. Carnegie immensely. He referred to it several times. The transaction involved the obtaining by Carnegie of ore from Rockefeller on a royalty basis of from 15 to 20 cents per ton. The Steel corporation has since capitalized the same property on a basis of $1 a ton. Mr. Carnegie said that when he conceived the idea of leasing these ore beds he summoned James Gayley, one of his partners, and said to him:

"You go to New York and don't you come back until you have those leases."

Mr. Gayley went and conquered.

"I did Mr. Rockefeller on that trade," said the ironmaster, smiling broadly, "and I have to laugh every time I think of it. It's quite a job, you know, to get the best of a man with a head like Rockefeller."

Mr. Carnegie felt so good over the recollection of this transaction that he went on to tell the committee about a call that he and Mrs. Carnegie had made on the Rockefellers on New Year's day.

"When we arrived at the Rockefeller home," said Carnegie, "we found Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller seated on the porch. Mrs. Rockefeller is a fine woman and a fine wife, but she is doing poorly now. The old gentleman was in good fettle. There he was—tall, lean and spare—smiling and beaming as happy as could be. He told us that cold weather did not affect him much, as he wore a paper jacket that kept out the weather. He gave each of us one, and it really is a fine thing to keep the body warm. We had a chat over old times, and (here Mr. Carnegie indulged in another chuckle) I didn't mention the ore transaction wherein I got the better of him."

"That was one time at least," he added, "that I took in my fellow millionaire."

Schwab—"There's a Man For You."

Mr. Carnegie began his testimony by telling of his humble beginnings in the steel business. He started in 1861 with $1,500 which he had borrowed from the Third National bank of Pittsburgh and which he invested in the Keystone Bridge company.

"That $1,500," he said, "was my start in business."

Mr. Carnegie told how early in life he had learned that a large part of success in business depended upon having the right sort of men to help and how he had drawn to himself ambitious young men of great capacity. He insisted that the Carnegie interests were built up by practical men in the trade and not by speculators. Charles M. Schwab and many others who have since become independent factors in the steel business did not in the beginning put a dollar into the trade, according to Mr. Carnegie. The entire investment of these men was in the form of brains and industry.

"There is a man for you," said Carnegie, referring to Schwab. "He's the greatest man I ever met—in his line, I mean."

Mr. Carnegie put a damper on the asking of hypothetical questions by throwing up his hands and remarking:

"Why ask a poor innocent man to give an answer to 'if?'"

Throughout his narrative the retired pioneer of the steel industry refused

SAFE DEPOSIT VAULT

STORAGE VAULT.

The imperviousness of the modern safe deposit vault to fire was conclusively demonstrated by the great calamity which occurred this week in New York City, and no stronger argument for the effectiveness of such vaults in protecting property can ever be presented than the millions of securities which survived the Equitable fire.

The Plainfield Trust Company's vaults are not only of the most modern and approved construction but are further protected by a fireproof building. Boxes for rent at $5 a year and upwards.

TO SPEND $6,000 LOOKING INTO A WATER SUPPLY.

The citizens of Cranford at a meeting held in the opera house auditorium Thursday evening adopted a resolution requesting the Township Committee to call a special election for the purpose of voting an appropriation of $6,000 to make a complete investigation into the subject of water supply.

The report of the citizens' committee recently mailed to each citizen was discussed. This report stated that Engineer Fuerties recommended the Echo Lake water or continuing investigations for a ground supply. Mayor Heins explained that the township had already spent $3,418.50 in its investigations.

Former Resident Killed.

PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL WINS AT BASKETBALL

The boys' basketball team of the Plainfield High School won its first game of the season yesterday, when it defeated the Somerville High School five by a score of 46 to 20 on the local court. The Plainfield boys outclassed the visitors throughout the entire contest, keeping the ball in their territory all of the time. At the end of the first half the score was 16 to 8 in favor of Plainfield. Both teams played a faster game in the second half, but Somerville could not overcome the superior work of the locals. The lineup:

Plainfield—Forwards, McNamee, Woodhull, Rosenson; center, Carty; guards, VanZandt, Nash, Grisley.

Somerville—Forwards, VanPelt, Shaw; center, Halstead, Bowlby; guards, Wachter, Gaston.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The Girls' Athletic Association is planning for a leap year dance to be given in the auditorium, Saturday night, February 3. The girls will arrange the whole affair.

Members of the senior class will enjoy a straw-ride to Westfield tonight leaving the High School at 7:30 o'clock.

Several boys have been practicing hockey for the past few days on Ohl's pond. Under the direction of Allen T. Doggett a team will be organized.

Preliminaries for the prize speaking contest to be held at the annual alumni reception will be given Tuesday, January 23. Already a number have entered the contest. A prize of $10 in gold will be given to the boy presenting the best declamation and a similar prize will be given to the girl having the best declamation. Only members in the course of public speaking are eligible. Miss Marguerite Shotwell recited "The Nortn American Indian," before the school, yesterday.

The members of the Wireless Club have begun the work of erecting a station on the roof of the High School. The station will be one of the largest in the vicinity, the apparatus to include instruments for receiving and sending messages at long distances. The club now has a membership of thirty boys, the officers being as follows: President, Earl Victorson; vice-president, Bradford Willard; secretary and treasurer, Arthur VanZandt.

The first of the Friday afternoon socials was held in the auditorium yesterday, about half the members of the school enjoying the dancing, while others played games. There was violin solos by James McNabb.

The Oracle, the school paper, made its appearance yesterday. There are several excellent cartoons, picturing events of interest in school life. Those submitting cartoons were James Lindzey and Seward Lyon. The editors have decided to publish a special alumni number in March, which will include letters and articles by former graduates.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

On Thursday night at the Plainfield theatre an exhilirating four act drama of typical western life, "The Cowboy and the Thief" will be presented in all its picturesque completeness as to detail and scenic equipment with a specially selected cast, under the personal direction of J. Wendel Davis, author of the piece. The management guarantees that patrons of the local theatre will see the same scenic production that was used in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and the large cities of the middle West, over which "big time" the show has been playing until recent arrangements have been made to make a sweeping tour of the smaller cities throughout the country. The great success of "The Cowboy and the Thief" has made this possible. Theatregoers here will have an opportunity of witnessing what is conceded to be the greatest western play that has been written since "The Squaw Man" and David Belasco's masterpiece, "The Girl of the Golden West." Briefly, it is a play with a gripping story of love and adventure, and intensely interesting plot portraying characterizations, and an inspiring atmosphere of reality possible by the wonderful scenic equipment which the company carries.

What Would Happen to the Office Safe?

In a fire such as that of the Equitable building, what would happen to the office safe that the average business man puts so much faith in? A word to those who are willing to profit by others costly experience: rent a box in the fire and burglar proof vault of The State Trust Company and thus insure your valuables against the day when a similar catastrophe may visit the building in which your office is located. Our Manganese Steel Vault is supported on its own concrete foundation and is surrounded by concrete and even though our building should burn to the ground, the vault and contents would stand intact.

The cost is but $5.00 per year, little enough for the protection and peace of mind that it will afford.

CASEY RESIGNS BECAUSE CHIEF IS NOT PUNISHED.

There was a warm session of the police committee of Westfield Thursday night during which Councilman James G. Casey tendered his resignation as chairman and a member of the board of police. Mr. Casey handed his resignation to Mayor Dennis.

Chairman Casey wanted to have Chief O'Neill fined thirty days' pay for disobeying orders. This move was opposed by Mayor Dennis and Councilman Evans. During the evening Mr. Casey said that he agreed with Mayor Dennis when the Mayor stated that the police force was in bad shape.

FR. MILLER'S FLOCK IN THEIR NEW HOME

Solemn Vesper Service Celebrates Completion of Handsome Church on Jackson Ave.

WORSHIPPERS FILL THE EDIFICE

Former Chancellor of the Diocese Delivers the Sermon—Father Miller Receives Many Congratulations From Priests and Laymen.

It was a red letter day yesterday in St. Joseph's parish. For the first time a solemn high mass was celebrated at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, at the 8:30 o'clock mass more than 500 men and women received communion, and last night a solemn vesper service was conducted celebrating the completion of the new edifice at Watchung and Jackson avenues.

Father William H. Miller was the celebrant at the high mass and was in charge at the solmen vespers. Rev. Dr. John Norris, former chancellor of the diocese, preached the sermon.

All available space in the church was filled by the large congregation attending the evening service. Members of the various church organizations from all surrounding towns were present in addition to many friends and members of the parish. The music was under the direction of James Bailey and consisted of musical vespers of solos and choruses by Stearns; Ave Maria, duet by Professor Bailey and Alfred LaPorte. Hymns for the benediction and "Holy God We Praise Thy Name," at the conclusion of the devotions were sung by the congregation. Mrs. Harry G. DeMeza was at the organ and the augmented choir was assisted by Professors B. A. Parubek and Joseph Denny, violinists.

The white marble altar was elaborately decorated with cut flowers and candles, by the Sisters of St. Joseph's Home. Father Terrill, of Rahway, was deacon at the 10:30 mass and Father Baldwin, sub-deacon. Father Dittrich, of Bound Brook, acted as deacon at the vesper service, Father Dunphy of Dunellen, as sub-deacon, and Father Baldwin as master of ceremonies. Father Ryan, of Somerville, and Father Langan, of Stoney Hill, were seated in the sanctuary.

Rev. Dr. Norris in opening his sermon said: "Christ became obedient for us even to death on the Cross, whereupon God exalted him and gave Him a name which is above every other name." Continuing he said that the sacred name of Jesus was a precious legacy and commended the Holy Name Society for the efforts being put forth to prevent its use in blasphemy and to teach the reverence to which it is due.

Rev. Father Miller was the recipient of many congratulations on this, the crowning success of his nineteen years of labor in St. Joseph's parish.

WATCHMAN LOSES LIFE IN AEOLIAN WORKS FIRE

Adam Miller Fatally Scorched by Flames That Led to Damage Which May Reach $100,000--Three Fire Departments Out.

Adam Miller, of Burnside avenue, Cranford, employed as a night watchman at the Aeolian works, Garwood, was fatally burned, and between $50,000 and $100,000 damage was done at a fire at the organ plant last night. Miller was descending the stairway from the third floor, where the fire originated as the result of an exploded lantern, it is believed, when his clothing caught fire.

He was enveloped in a twinkling. He ran to the ground floor and fell exhausted just outside the office door. His clothing was entirely gone and his body was burned from head to foot. He was found by citizens.

Dr. F. B. Gilpin, of Cranford, was notified and he made a record-breaking trip to the scene of the fire. After receiving first aid to the injured, the victim was taken by E. R. Perkins, general manager of the works, to the Elizabeth General Hospital. He died there this morning.

At the institution it was said today that Miller's condition is critical and there is little chance to save his life.

The fire started in the "pipe organ section" of the large factory, and while the damage from the blaze is not so heavy, water ruined thousands of dollars worth of materials which had been or was about to be assembled.

The Westfield fire department responded to the alarm and worked with the Garwood and Aeolian fire companies. The fire was discovered about 8 o'clock and it was nearly midnight before it was extinguished.

CHINA'S UPRISING GOD'S INSTRUMENT

Revolution Sign of His Spirit in Country's Dry Bones Says Missionary.

REV. GILBERT LOVELL'S VIEW

Missionary of Crescent Avenue Church Tells of His Work at Chang-Teh, Hunan, During Last Seven Years.

Rev. Gilbert Lovell, for the past seven and a half years a missionary in China, who returned to his home in this city, last week, was given a cordial welcome at the Crescent Avenue church yesterday morning by the members of the church and its chapels Warren, Hope and Bethel, who joined in the special service. Mr. Lovell, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Leander N. Lovell, of West Eighth street, is a missionary minister of the parent church and Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, the pastor, arranged for the home-coming service.

This was the first occasion when all ministers of the church and chapels had an opportunity to be altogether in the pulpit. Dr. Zelie had charge of the service, which began with Scripture responsive readings by Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel, and Rev. F. D. Tildon, of Bethel chapel, and prayer by Rev. Frederic L. Greene, of Hope chapel. Dr. Zelie presented Mr. Lovelle with a few words of welcome, in which he said that the church felt honored in having sent out two missionaries, Miss Rachel Mair, who died in Africa, and Mr. Lovell who has just returned from China after seven and a half years of devoted work to the cause of Christ.

Only once did Mr. Lovell digress from the talk of his work, and that was to make a brief reference to the recent uprising in China in an effort to establish a Republic. He mentioned that since his return so many friends had asked him whether he favored a Republic for China. He said that he did not care to enter into any discussion of the subject, but expressed the opinion that the revolution was a sign of God's spirit in the dry bones which he thought would result in many being brought to Christ. The opinion, he said, seemed to be that God is using the revolution to put new life into what has been known as a graveyard.

Mr. Lovell emphasized the fact that China is looking to the United States for help and sympathy and that there are many earnest Chinese who are praying the same prayers of the people in this country and are looking for an answer to them in their lives.

Mr. Lovell at the outset recalled a few incidents of his early life here stating it was in that church that he was baptized by the late Rev. Dr. Bliss, and that twenty years ago he made a public confession of Christ. He recalled the time that the Sunday school took possession of the choir loft and how glad he was when it was decided to use his violin instead of his voice in the worship. Mr. Gilbert then referred to his ordination in the church about seven and a half years ago, at which time the late Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards delivered the charge to the people. During these preliminary remarks Mr. Lovell said that it would be far easier for him to preach in Chinese than English, for on only three occasions since going to China had he used his native tongue in preaching. He spoke a few sentences in Chinese after which he interpreted them, the substance being "that it was easy to recall early associations in this honored church and that it would be easier to preach in Chinese than English."

The speaker's address, which was more in the nature of an informal talk, gave the congregation a clear and concise idea of the work the missionary and his wife have been carrying on in China. Mr. and Mrs. Lovell have been stationed at Chang-Teh, Hunan Province, where they have been in charge of schools for boys and girls. Mr. Lovell spoke more especially of the work in the boys' school, which now has an enrollment of twenty, telling of the success in teaching the boys about Christ. He related numerous personal experiences showing how the

FRANCIS M. WHITELY, SR., CIVIL WAR VETERAN, DEAD

Francis M. Whitely, Sr., seventy-four years old, died yesterday at his home in Steiner place after a long illness. Death was caused by a complication of diseases. The funeral will be held from his late residence tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and from Warren chapel at 2:30 o'clock. Burial will be in the North Plainfield cemetery. The service will be in charge of Winfield Scott Post.

Mr. Whitely was the oldest special marshal in the borough having been appointed each successive year since 1885 when North Plainfield was incorporated. Prior to that time he served several terms as constable.

He was a native of County Fermanagh, in the province of Ulster, Ireland, and came to America at the age of fifteen years. He has resided here since.

Enlisting in Co. I of the N. J. Volunteers during the war of the States, he rose to the rank of corporal and was mustered out as such. He was a member of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and of Plainfield lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., and the Odd Fellows Encampment.

Surviving are his widow and two sons, Francis M. Whitely, Jr., and George Whitley, a daughter, Mrs. Harry Winn, and three grandchildren.

JOS. M'INTYRE CONCERT WILL BE A RARE TREAT

A great musical treat is in store for the patrons of the McIntyre chamber music concerts tomorrow evening at the High School Auditorium. It will be the last one of this season's series and a particularly appealing program is offered.

The trio, Mr. McIntyre at the piano; Mr. Grimson, violinist, and Paul Kefer, Damrosch's chief 'cellist, will give the great trio in B major by Brahms. This will be its first presentation in Plainfield and announcement of its performance will be of great interest to all music lovers. It is recognized as one of the world's greatest masterpieces of chamber music.

Besides participating in the trio Mr. Kefer will also appear as a soloist. Another interesting trio number will be a genuine Spanish Gypsy Dance ("Seguidillas Gitanas"), by Fernandez-Arbos. Mrs. Lucille Stevenson, the prominent soprano of Chicago, is the assisting artist on this occasion and will give two groups of modern songs.

Trio opus 8 in B major (four movements), for piano, violin and 'cello, my Brahms; three songs, "Devotion," by Richard Strauss; "Cradle Song," by Brahms, and "The Victor," by Kaun; 'cello solo, "Lento Cantabile, by Chopin; four songs (English words), "Yesterday and Today," "Jean" and "Love Planted My Rose" Spross, and "The Cry of Rachel," by Salter. The last number on the program will be "Seguidillas Gitanas," a Spanish Gypsy Dance for piano, violin and 'cello, by Fernandez-Arbos.

TO CONSIDER LEGISLATION FOR CONTROLLING RABIES.

Necessary legislation for the control of rabies, of special interest to this vicinity because of the recent mad dog scare in Bound Brook, will be considered at the conference of State and local Boards of Health to be held in the State House, Trenton, next Wednesday and Thursday, January 17 and 18. Many other topics having direct bearing on local sanitary administration will be considered.

Speakers have been selected who are well qualified to discuss the subjects allotted to them. Prof. William T. Sedgwick, Ph. D., Sc. D., Professor of Biology and Public Health, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will discuss "The Modern Health Officer: What He Can Do for the People and What the People Can Do for Him." Dr. William H. Allen, Director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, New York city, will discuss "Budget Publicity as An Aid to Health Work."

Rev. J. Y. Broek's Busy Year.

During the year 1911, Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, preached 86 sermons, administered five communions, and seven private communions, delivered 24 special addresses in and outside the city, delivered 37 prayer meeting addresses, officiated at four weddings, conducted 23 funerals, received 34 into the church fellowship on confession and 26 by leter, baptized five children and sixteen adults and made 609 pastoral visits.

Mrs. M. A. Randolph, of East Front street, has leased The Plainfield, at 515 Park avenue, and will take possession on Wednesday, succeeding Mrs. Berrien.

RESCUE AT $8,000 BLAZE THAT RAVAGES OLD HOTEL

Chief Rogers Carries Unconscious Man From New Market Hotel--Firemen Suffer From Cold--Hands Frozen to Nozzles.

Fire early yesterday morning all but destroyed the old Nelson Hotel at New Market. It was discovered by Mrs. Daniel Sullivan, wife of the proprietor, shortly after the place had been closed and gave the firemen several hours work before it was under control. At 7 o'clock it was necessary for them to return to the ruins and play a stream on a part of that which had broke out anew.

The loss will be between $5,000 and $8,000. Quite a few of the firemen were badly frost bitten and in several instances their hands froze fast to the nozzles. Thermometers in the vicinity stood at 10 degrees below zero while they were at work.

The flames had been under way some time when discovered. They were caused by a fire in an old fashioned fireplace, the heat from which set fire to the inside of the chimney above the ceiling of the first floor and had eaten its way through the floor to the room below by the time the department arrived.

Alex Hulich was the first fireman to enter the burning building. He was closely followed by Chief Rogers who found Fred Stillger, a boarder, overcome with smoke. The unconscious man was carried out by the chief who returned expecting to find others, but everyone else was out by that time.

One stream was playing on the flames by then. The firemen turned it off to connect another line and the hydrant froze. This occasioned delay, and while that plug was being thawed out lines were connected to other hydrants.

At that stage the Dunellen and Plainfield departments were called upon for help. Dunellen responded and gave material assistance in checking the fire. Owing to the bad condition of the roads, Chief Doane estimated that by the time he could get the steamer and a hose wagon to the scene, the building would have been either beyond saving or the fire would be under control. He gave fire fighting tips by wire and helped hurry the Dunellen call through.

Among those whose hands were frozen is Chief Rogers. He had relived one of the men on a nozzle and before he realized it his hands were frozen fast. In getting them loose the flesh was pulled from the fingers and palms and it will be some time before he fully recovers. Stillger, the man he carried out, was none the worse for his experience today. Foreman Hulich, and in fact all those working with the firemen suffered intensely in the low temperature.

The building partly destroyed has a long and interesting history. It is more than a hundred years old, and during Revolutionary War days was used as a headquarters by the Hessian, British and American armies in turn. During the days of the old stage route between New York and Philadelphia it was one of the stations for changing horses and allowing passengers to get refreshments. It became known as the "Nelson Hotel" more than half a century ago when the late Lloyd Nelson became its proprietor. He conducted the place for nearly fifty years and since then it has had many landlords more or less prominent.

MARTINE FOR NEW NAVY YARD BUT---

If He Is to be Consistent He Must be Mindful of National Economy.

BRIGGS IS FOR JERSEY PLAN

Unreservedly in Favor of Transferring Naval Base from New York to Communipaw—Junior Senator's Statement.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, January 15.—Asked as to his attitude toward the plan to remove the New York Navy Yard from Brooklyn to the Communipaw section of Jersey City, as proposed in a report by Captain L. S. VanDuser, U. S. N., Senator Martine said today:

"The plan to abandon the New York Navy Yard in Brooklyn and establish a much larger and more modern naval base in Communipaw section of Jersey City naturally obtains my lively interest.

"I know nothing of this project in an official way. I note, however, that a newspaper statement is to the effect that the proposed new navy yard contemplates an expenditure of $26,352,000 of government funds.

"The expenditure of such a large sum for the establishment of a great navy yard in New Jersey would undoubtedly be of immense advantage, in a commercial way, to the State, and particularly to Jersey City.

"I am mindful of these facts and of the corrolary that, as the popular idea directs, I should lend my power ac a member of the United States Senate to the carrying out of the project. At the same time I also bear in mind the fact that the people of this country are now taxed $275,000,000 per annum, or nearly $1,000,000 per day, for war purposes, through the army and navy. I am convinced that this expenditure is a stupendous burden upon our people and ought to be substantially reduced. But, of course, Congress is continually pressed to increase the outlay for war purposes.

"The fact is that members of Congress are prone to demand economy in government expenses up to the point of where the interests of home folks come in, and then if local advantages seem to justify their stand they are militant and unyielding in demanding more or less large sums of money from the public treasury for federal projects among their constituents. Such a course begets neither official honor nor intelligent transaction of public business. During my term of service in Congress I do not purpose, insofar as my intelligence and conscience will guide me, to follow such a course.

"I should be very reluctant, either by voice or vote, to act against any proposition in Congress that might be argued as of special benefit to New Jersey. On the other hand, if such a proposition should seem to me to be either extravagant or far-fetched, even New Jersey's special interest would have to possess extraordinary merit to induce me to alter the course I have laid out for myself in such matters."

Senator Briggs, in speaking of the contemplated transfer, said that while he was unacquainted with the details, he would favor any movement which would bring a great navy yard to New Jersey, and that he would be very glad to do everything in his power to help in this transfer.

Mrs. John Curran.

After a short illness with a complication of diseases, Mrs. John Curran died yesterday at her home on Elmwood place in her thirty-fifth year. Surviving besides her husband is a sister, Mrs. John Bartel, of Somerville. Before her marriage, Mrs. Curran was Miss Bertha C. Mellman. The funeral will be held at her late residence tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be in charge of Rev. C. C. Cain. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

MAY NOT ARREST SUSPECT IN ELLIS CASE FOR MONTH.

A man who owned more money to Monroe F. Ellis than he could hope to repay, and for that reason wished him "out of the way," is said to be suspected of having fired the shot which narrowly missed killing the lumber merchant as he sat at dinner in his Basking Ridge home on the night of November 20. Evidence is said to be in the hands of the detectives sufficient to warrant his arrest at any time.

"I think we know who shot Mr. Ellis," said Prosecutor Pope just before leaving for a trip South, Saturday. "And I think we know the motive for the attack. Since my interview with Mr. Ellis, a short time after the shooting, I have not changed my mind as to the identity of the guilty party. I cannot say when an arrest will be made. It may be in a month or a day."

Funeral of Gardner Angier.

The funeral service of Gardner Angier was held at the late home at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, and was private. Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, of which Mr. Angier was a member since coming to Plainfield in 1903, officiated. The burial was in Hillside cemetery. Mr. Angier formerly lived in Jersey City, where for many years he was engaged in business as a manufacturer.

KITCHEN FIRE THAT LED TO EXPLOSION

Hopp Forgot to Test Hot Water Supply and Pipe Blew Out.

STRUCK BY FLYING METAL

Stove Wrecked, Windows Shattered, and Fire Department Called Out—Neighborhood Startled by the Blow-Up.

When John Hopp, a painter who lives at Clinton avenue and West Fourth street, made ready to build a fire in his kitchen range yesterday afternoon, he didn't try the hot-water faucet to see if the contents of the range boiler had frozen. The neglect led to an explosion that wrecked the stove, shattered the windows in the house, set fire to the kitchen floor and nearly sent Hopp to the hospital.

He escaped with bruises and a swollen eye. The fire was put out before it had done more than slight damage.

Hopp and his wife were away from home the night before, and the fire in the range went out. The zero temperature froze the water in the range boiler solid.

At 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon Hopp went into the kitchen to start the range. He tried the cold water faucet at the sink, and found it in running order. He forgot to test the hot water supply. He built a roaring fire and trouble began to hatch at once in the supply pipe that ran from the boiler around behind the firebox, where the flames were hottest.

The sudden expansion of the frozen pipe led to a smashing explosion. Hopp was bending over the stove when the tube let go. A piece of the stove frame struck him on the thigh and knocked him down. He fell on his back and another piece of iron that flew toward the ceiling came down on his right eye. He lay dazed while other things were happening.

The force of the explosion ripped a dozen pieces out of the stove, and the main section of it was jarred almost to the center of the kitchen floor. All the windows in the house were shattered, and the noise of the explosion startled all the residents on the block.

Neighbors who ran to the house saw coals from the shattered range blazing on the kitchen floor and sent in a still alarm to fire headquarters. Hose Company No. 3, of West Fourth street and Darrow avenue, responded but the fire had been doused with pails of water before they got to the scene.

Hopp was bruised where the iron struck his body, and his eye was badly swollen, but he suffered no other hurt. Both pieces of flying metal struck him flat side on.

COUNCILMAN CRIPPLED BY RUNAWAY ICE BLOCK.

Councilman J. J. Stahl, of the borough, is incapacitated from business by an injury received Saturday while at work on his ice pond harvesting the 10-inch crop made by the recent cold snap. While assisting one of his workmen push a cake of ice on the skids, they lost their hold on it with the pikes and it slid back smashing Mr. Stahl's right foot.

He was taken home and the injury was dressed by Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan. No bones were broken but the flesh is badly lacerated.

Mrs. Harriet R. Edgar.

Mrs. Harriet R. Edgar, aged 70 years, wife of William Edgar, formerly of this city, died at her home on Elmer street, Westfield, yesterday of pneumonia. She was a native of Rockaway, Morris county, and had lived in Westfield twenty years. Prior to that she resided in this city and Somerville. Mrs. Edgar is survived by a husband and two daughters, Mrs. W. C. Johnston, of Elizabeth, and Mrs. H. G. Randolph, of Rutherford. The funeral will be held at the late home Wednesday night and Rev. C. J. Greenwood, of the Baptist church, will officiate.

R. T. CRANE WAS FOE OF COLLEGES

Advocated Burning of Higher Educational Institutions.

HEAD OF A BIG CONCERN.

Gave Employment to Six Thousand Persons—Carnegie His Pet Aversion. His Sensational Attacks on Harvard and Other Colleges.

Richard T. Crane, head of the Crane company of Chicago, who died recently, was a foe of universities and higher educational institutions.

"Burn the colleges and use the money they spend for better purposes," declared this self made ironmaster. College men of all classes, he believed, tended both to inefficiency and immorality, and in his last years he spent much time in attempting to prove his assertions.

The autocratic manufacturer's pet aversion was Andrew Carnegie, brother ironmaster, but giver of libraries and supporter of universities. And indeed in most respects the two men were the direct antitheses of each other. Crane was a man of powerful frame, thickset, sinewy and agile almost to the day of his death at eighty years. The square head and thick neck showed a bullheadedness of purpose which the keenness of eye stamped as competent of carrying out.

It took this man more than fifty years to complete the building of his big business with its 6,000 employees. When it was done it was called the Crane company, but the "company" was to the last Richard Teller Crane. Other Cranes there were in the business, but "old R. T.," as he was known to his employee associates of half a century, was all that counted.

He was the president of a complex corporation, yet knew how each machine should run and was likely to stop at any workman's bench and give him a sharp rebuke for some shortcoming. Yet he was as quick to seize the grimy hand of an old employee in friendly greeting and talk with him like a fellow workman. Most of his men he knew by their first names. He was a democrat and autocrat in one.

"Academic learning beyond the essentials of the grammar grades in public schools is waste of time and waste of money for the boy who is to enter commercial life," was the dictum of Crane.

In a volume he published early in 1910 Mr. Crane told of the results of an investigation into the methods, uses and expenses of "higher education" of all kinds. He charges that the millions spent annually on universities, colleges and technical and agricultural schools and law and medical schools in general are swallowed up in one of the most gigantic "swindles" of the age. Among other things he says: "The college men talk as though they knew all about every other man's business and that they could manage affairs better than the business men themselves.

"College professors and teachers are prepared to give advice on all subjects. At $2,000 a year teachers they tell us how to turn out $5,000 and $10,000 a year business men. Isn't it a bit strange that it never has occurred to these smart college fellows to go into business for themselves? Why draw a small salary for telling young men how to draw big salaries if you are capable of drawing the big salary yourself?"

Last September he came out with his most sensational attack, when he assailed the morals of the higher institutions of learning. At Harvard, he declared, 95 per cent of the students drank more or less and 15 per cent went completely to the bad. He found conditions bad at Yale and Princeton and worse at Columbia. Cornell was also a particular target. He found all sorts of immorality rampant in all centers of learning. The storm of protest this aroused among college men has hardly yet died away.

Police Gazette Annual.

One of the best sporting reference books of the year is the Police Gazette Sporting Annual for 1912, just out. It contains a record of the best performances in all branches of sports, ably compiled by Sam C. Austin widely known as a sporting writer and critic. The athletic records have been culled from those accepted by the Amateur Athletic Union and are therefore official. They include those of rowing, yachting, racing, trotting, pacing, automobile, bicycling, football, aeroplane and swimming. The feature of the book, however, is the pugilistic records which includes the history of every boxer of prominence in the world and their photos.

"Home Run" Baker Signs.

John Franklin Baker, the star third baseman of the world's champion Athletics, Saturday signed a contract in the office of Manager Connie Mack, at Shibe Park. Baker has been at his farm in Maryland since the close of the baseball season. He was flooded with offers to go on the stage, one firm offering the Trappe "phenom" as much as $1,500 for a ten weeks' engagement, but he said that there was nothing he could do on the stage, and that he did not care to get along as an actor on his ability to slam the ball. The number of years that Baker's contract calls for, or the salary, was not made public.

Another High Priced "Beauty."

Baseball fans hereabouts are beginning to look up the "dope" on Hugh Bedient pitcher, sold Saturday to the Boston Red Sox by the Jersey City team of the International League for $10,000, part of which will be taken out in five players. Bedient was on the reserve list of the Boston Club last year when sold to Jersey City for $750, so the deal cost Boston $9,250 more than would have been necessary had the Red Sox management not permitted him to slip from their fingers.

HISS PLAYS YOU DON'T LIKE.

Harvard Professor's Scheme to Elevate the Stage.

Professor George D. Baker of Harvard university, head of the Drama League of Boston, believes in drastic measures to force theatrical promoters to produce a higher class of plays. He said that the most expressive manner in which to show the disapproval of a play was by the hissing of persons occupying orchestra seats. Several years ago the hissing might be left to the galleries, but the old gallery attendance now puts in the time at moving picture shows.

Professor Baker said the only manner in which the Drama league could be a success was to have a special committee attend all first nights and after the performance issue a bulletin on the play if it deserved laudable mention. If unworthy of notice in a bulletin, the special committee should lead the hissing. No mention was to be made of the plays hissed, this publicity being left to the newspapers.

THOMAS J. MULLEN BUYS NEWARK BRANCH.

The many friends of Mr. Thomas J Mullen, of Newark, will be interested to learn that he has purchased the Newark branch of the firm of John Mullin & Sons, of which he has been the manager during the past three years. This is one of the oldest furniture firms in the State of New Jersey, and was in fact the pioneer of the installment trade. Mr. John Mullin, senor, fifty-three years ago opened a small furniture store in Jersey City at the time when the country was recovering from its war troubles. Money was very scarce, and times very hard, only the absolute necessities of life were being purchased. With a small stock of goods suited to the needs of the people, Mr. Mullins conceived the idea of supplying those, who could bring a friend to vouch for them, or who could give a sufficient guarantee of their ability to pay within a specified time, with anything they required, on the promise of a small weekly sum; many and many a young couple, marrying in those bitter days, took advantage of this opporunity, and in this way, the first installment business was built up. Year by year, confidence being established, these first patrons sent their friends, then their children, and often their grand children to buy where their folks did. A collection of old receipts dated, 20, 30, 40 and 50 years ago, brought in by different customers, is one of the proudest possessions of Mr. Mullin, Sr. Mr. Thomas J. Mullen the present purchaser, is the husband of Mr. John Mullins' only daughter.

Baseball's Own Book.

The fifth annual edition of Spalding's Official Baseball Record for 1912 edited by John B. Foster, has just been published and contains a fund of information for every follower of the national game. The Record is a timely work of reference, but it is not wholly statistical, however, as a history of the past year in baseball, chronologically arranged, is presented, an account is given of the evolution of the ball from the early days to the present cork center ball, the 1912 selections for the Spalding Baseball Hall of Fame, world series records, and minor league happenings. Records of previous years constitute Part II of the book and comprise a compilation that would ordinarily require months of delving into old records.

Miss Florence Stacey, a member of the 1911 graduating class of Muhlenberg Hospital's training school, who has been at her home in Easton, Pa., since last summer, has returned to the city and taken up her residence on West Fourth street.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

One of the most successful of all the season's dramas, having the west for its locale and its characters and scenic equipment true to life, is "The Cowboy and the Thief," which comes to the Plainfield theatre next Thursday. This is the third successful season of this play. It is not composed of pistol shots and cheap sentiment but it made of real men and women, carrying the audience into an atmosphere of love and adventure, of song, laughter and tears. You will laugh a great deal, and you will cry some and you will be glad that you came to see "The Cowboy and the Thief."
